Two Suspects Fail In Bid For Freedom

Leap From Police Van With 'Revolver' Made Of Soap, Wax

TORONTO (CP)—Two suspected bank robbers made a break for freedom Friday in front of the Don jail as members of an assize court grand jury watched.

Talbot Murphy, 22, and Robert Woods, alias Ted Martin, 24, jointly charged with robbing a Dominion Bank branch of $28,000 last Sept. 5, were being returned to their cells after being committed for trial on the robbery charge.

As the doors of the van opened at the jail, the pair jumped to the ground. One of them carried what looked like a black automatic pistol. It had been fashioned from soap and blackened with wax.

Constable Bob Gray was knocked to the ground. Woods broke free and ran down a driveway, with constable Bill Craig chasing him. Murphy was held by constable Gray.

THREATENS MOTORIST

Woods jumped into a car being driven by James Wagstaff of Toronto and said: "Get going quick or I'll blow your brains out." While Mr. Wagstaff fumbled with the gears, constable Craig arrived and pulled Woods out of the car.

Police said there were nine prisoners in the wagon at the time and they were all handcuffed together. They said the men used a thin two-inch piece of steel to pick the locks of four handcuffs to free themselves.

Members of an assize court grand jury watched the attempted escape from the windows of the governor's office in the jail. They were on a routine inspection of the jail at the time.

Just Reckless

MONTGOMERY, Alta. — (AP) — Ed Byrd admitted Friday that he was driving while drunk, but the judge couldn't convict him of it.

He was chauffeuring a horse and wagon when arrested, and the city's drunk-driving ordinance applies only to motor vehicles. So police judge John Scott made it reckless driving and fined Byrd $25 and costs.

Duplessis Raps Federal Tax Agreements

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Duplessis said Friday the federal government wants to put "responsible provincial governments . . . under federal tutorship" by means of tax agreements.

Quebec wants no part of federal-provincial agreements whereby the central power takes over some provincial taxation fields in return for annual subsidies, Mr. Duplessis said at his weekly press conference.

When Justice Minister Garson said in a speech at Hamiota, Man. March 30 that "nothing is more important" than that the agreements should be "perpetuated," he only confirmed what the Quebec government had always maintained.

"In the final analysis, temporary federal-provincial agreements are permanently - temporary," the premier said.

KEEP QUEBEC'S RIGHTS

His government intends to "perpetuate claims to Quebec's rights and liberties." The central power has tax agreements with all provinces except Quebec. The agreements expire March 31, 1957.

Mr. Duplessis said Ottawa invoked the country's war needs, post-war needs and "war preparations" to get the provinces to sign agreements. Some provinces were "practically forced" to sign new "so-called temporary taxation agreements" in the post-war years.

He quoted Mr. Garson as saying Confederation was established to deal with the economic needs of the country, adding: "This throws some light on a materialist mind which subordinates the settlement of Canadian problems to questions of money."

PACT OF HONOR

Mr. Duplessis said Confederation was "first of all a pact of honor between two great races whose cultures are essential to the prosperity and progress of the country and national unity."

He suggested the federal government should amend the Criminal Code to allow provincial lotteries. An amendment which would leave prosecutions against lotteries to the provincial attorneys-general might be acceptable, he said.

Mr. Duplessis, Quebec's attorney - general, presumably meant that if such an amendment was made a provincial lottery, already in the Quebec statutes but inoperative, would be set up.

Mr. Duplessis also announced that 15,000 pounds of margarine seized under a provincial ban will be destroyed. He said he wanted to make clear his government intends to enforce its ban "rigorously" and called on "the co-operation of all" to see the law is observed.

The ban adopted in 1949 forbids possession, manufacture, sale and transportation of margarine in the province.

Study Russian Plan To End Air Incidents

Britain, U.S., France Consider Bid For Single Corridor

BERLIN (AP)—Britain, the United States and France are giving "serious consideration" to a Russian plan for ending cold war plane incidents by establishing one big air corridor to Berlin, Allied officials said today.

A three-part Soviet proposal submitted last Tuesday now is being studied by government experts in Washington, London and Paris.

The West's answer may be ready next week.

The Soviet plan, developed after two MiG jet fighters shot down an unarmed RAF bomber on the East - West interzonal frontier March 12 and killed all seven crew, includes these points:

1. One big corridor, 90 kilometers (56 miles) wide at its narrowest point. It would be run between Hannover and Berlin for all Western air traffic with this isolated city and would replace three corridors each 20 miles wide. These have connected Berlin with Hamburg, Bueckeburg, and Fulda in West Germany since the end of the war.

BAN ARMED PLANES

2. Allied military aircraft of any type would be permitted to fly in the big corridor—if they are unarmed. But all armed Allied planes would be banned.

3. Routine flying would be at altitudes between 1,000 and 5,000 feet, compared to altitudes up to 7,500 feet now generally used in the small corridors.

The Soviet plan is being carefully studied from all possible angles, for the security of 2,000,000 anti-Communist West Berliners fundamentally depends on free air access to the city.

IN SHAPE OF CONE

The proposed new corridor would be about 100 miles long and nearly that in breadth at its western terminus. From west to east, it would gradually taper down, but even at its narrowest in the vicinity of Berlin, it would be at least 56 miles wide.

Under present rules, armed allied planes can be flown in and out of Berlin. But the Russians insist that such armament should be forbidden in future.

It was believed that the West's reply would be neither a clearcut acceptance nor rejection of the plan as a whole, but would take up problems involved in individual points and seek further clarification.

The West Berlin Social Democratic party—largest in the city—meanwhile, demanded today that the Allied powers insist on continuance of three corridors.

Reds Urge Renewal Of Full-Scale Armistice Parley

MUNSAN (AP)—The Allies and Communists today signed an historic agreement for the first formal exchange of disabled captives of the Korean war and the Reds pressed impatiently for a quick renewal of the full-scale armistice negotiations. The Communists agreed to return 600 sick and wounded prisoners and the Allies pledged to give up 5,800 North Koreans and Chinese. The first of these may begin the journey home as early as next Wednesday.

The agreement may have paved the way for armistice in Korea. The truce talks have been deadlocked for a year and suspended since Oct. 8 over the last big issue of exchanging war prisoners. The Reds had insisted on the return of all their captured soldiers. The Allies refused to return anyone to Communist rule against his will.

North Korean Maj-Gen Lee Sang Cho told the Allied liaison team:

"Our side considers that the plenary session of the delegations of both sides should be resumed immediately to discuss and settle the entire question of prisoners of war so as to realize an armistice in Korea."

U.S. Rear-Admiral John Daniel said the United Nations command in Tokyo would give an answer.

FAVORS RESUMPTION

Gen. Mark Clark, UN Far East commander, already has said the truce talks can be resumed after settlement of the disabled prisoner exchange.

But the exchange of sick and wounded captives, some of them undoubtedly prisoners since the first days of the Korean war nearly three years ago, was the big job for the moment.

See Complaint Against Chiang Shelved At UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—With the United Nations debate on old Communist peace proposals continuing into next week, diplomatic sources predicted today that a Burmese complaint against nationalist China will be quietly shelved until the next general assembly meeting in September.

The United States is hopeful that a settlement of the issue—the latest hot case for the UN—can be arranged long before that time rolls around. The American delegation is working at top speed to smooth out the dispute and avoid a UN debate at the present time.

The assembly's political committee, meanwhile, continues work Monday on a Polish resolution containing the old Red peace proposals. The U. S. Friday denounced the resolution and called for its quick rejection. The Russians and the Poles are expected to turn in long speeches early next week before a vote can be taken, but defeat of the proposal appeared certain.

The UN will go on with its work under the direction of a new secretary-general, Dag Hammarskjold of Sweden. The former Swedish deputy foreign minister was sworn in Friday as the successor to Norway's Trygve Lie. He is the second secretary-general in the seven-year history of the international organization.

The Burmese complaint against Chiang Kaih- shek's Nationalist Chinese regime was filed March 26. It asked the assembly to recommend that the security council approve a resolution demanding the removal of Nationalist soldiers along the northern Burmese boundaries.

The Rangoon government also asked that the resolution condemn the Nationalists for committing aggression against Burma.

The Burmese item, now before the political committee, is the last point for the assembly to consider before concluding its session. If the U. S. and other countries are successful in stalling off a debate, the assembly likely will wind up this session the middle of next week.

New Atom Blast Less Potent, 20 Planes Watch

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—An experimental atomic device was detonated at 7:45 a. m. (EST) today atop a 100-foot tower at the Yucca Flat proving ground and the atomic energy commission announced "desired effects were obtained."

No other details were given.

The explosion, fifth of the spring test series, did not seem as powerful as some of the previous shots.

The orange-flaring blast produced a relatively small white cloud over the test site 75 miles northwest of Las Vegas. The cloud was not visible here, although smoke from most previous shots have been.

This was the first time the AEC has announced use of a 100-foot tower. Most previous tower blasts have utilized a 300-footer. No reason for today's switch was given.

Some 20 planes were in the air over the test site, the usual complement. Such craft are used to track the cloud, survey terrain and measure radioactivity in the atmosphere.

Neither troops, cars nor animals were involved in the experiment. All have been used in previous shots in the series.

The sound wave, reaching here some seven minutes after the blast, was heard as two separate low rumbles. No shock wave was felt.

The shock wave from last Monday's blast, heaviest of the season, broke a plate glass window in a downtown store. The Monday bomb, dropped from a high flying plane, exploded at a record height of more than 5,000 feet.

Lull In Building Causes Layoffs

TORONTO (CP)—A lull in spring building has resulted in 10,600 skilled construction tradesmen and 10,000 construction laborers being out of work in Ontario.

The national employment service reports that the demand for laborers has increased slightly in recent weeks and that it expects there will be more construction as weather improves.

The biggest shortage of manpower is on the farms. NES says at least 1,000 can be absorbed within the next six weeks.

The meat packing industry is hiring additional help and the clothing industry is in full swing. Business is brisk for furniture companies and Kitchener firms report that this spring will be ahead of 1952.

Red Police Shoot Boy Escaping E. Germany

BRUNSWICK (Reuters)—Communist police Friday fatally shot a 16-year-old East German youth as he tried to cross the Anglo-Soviet border into West Germany, police reported here today.

A 15-year-old boy with him escaped across the frontier unharmed.

Shortly after the incident, a party of six Soviet soldiers and 25 Communist police cordoned off the area, police said.

Find Three Fishermen Lost Night On Bay

COLLINGWOOD (CP) — Three fishermen were found Friday night after being reported missing in a small boat on windswept Georgian Bay.

They are earl White, 26, Claude White, 38, and Fred Raymond, 58.

Arrangements for a search were made when they did not return to Collingwood by the time they had expected to get back.

Claxton Claims Red Policy Remains Unchanged, Danger To Relax Efforts

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton cautioned today that no shift has occurred in Russian policy which would warrant any change in the development of joint Western strength. He said it is possible that recent Russian overtures are the first fruits of the Western effort in Korea and under the North Atlantic Treaty but he added that "the prudent man does not cancel insurance as long as the risk continues." In a speech prepared for delivery at the opening of a new armories here, he reiterated the government's cautious but interested stand on the Russian "peace" offensive. He said:

"In the last few days, the Communists have shown a change in attitude which holds out the possibility of arriving at a settlement which might lead to the termination of hostilities in Korea. We welcome that possibility and the peaceful objectives of the Western nations have been shown both at the United Nations in New York and in the resumption of negotiations in Korea.

MUST BUILD STRENGTH

"But we must remember that no change has occurred to alter the policy which the United Nations in Korea and the North Atlantic nations in the North Atlantic Treaty have agreed to and that is to build up their strengths so that they can be secure. President Eisenhower, Mr. Churchill and many others have made this plain by their statements.

"The Western nations have had as their objectives to stop aggression in Korea and to prevent aggression in Europe. They have made a great effort and it is possible we are beginning to see the fruits of that effort in a changed attitude on the part of the Communists. Great sums have been spent; they are the price of our collective insurance; they are premiums to ensure our peace. The prudent man does not cancel insurance as long as the risk continues."

Boiler Blast Damage Set At $3,000,000

JOPPA, Ill. (AP)—A boiler explosion rocked the Electric Energy, Inc., plant here early today and first estimates set damage at $3,000,000. No injuries were reported.

The steam electric plant is being built to supply power to an atomic energy project across the Ohio river at Paducah, Ky.

A company spokesman who estimated damage at "about $3,000,000 said "security reasons" barred further details of the explosion.

Anti-Profit Cops Close 39 Argentine Stores

BUENOS AIRES (AP)President Juan D. Peron's anti-profiteering squads have closed 39 stores and jailed 350 merchants in the start of a labor-demanded campaign to tame an inflationary price whirl.

The arrests were announced Friday night at the close of the first day under new price ceilings covering almost all essential goods. Peron announced Wednesday that violators of the new ceilings would face penalties including jail sentences, fines, permanent closing of their stores and seizure of their stocks.

At that time, he blamed a beef shortage and a 50-per-cent overall increase in other food prices on an "organized opposition campaign" to his regime.

WORKERS RESTLESS

The campaign against rising prices was ordered after leaders of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT)—long one of Peron's most potent political weapons—told him workers were growing restless under the slump in their living standards.

The Peronista party also ousted Col. Domingo Mercante, former governor of Buenos Aires province, and seven members of Congress on charges of rumor-mongering.

Despite the nation's economic and political crisis, Peronista candidates appeared virtually assured of victory in Sunday's elections in the newly-created provinces of Presidente Peron and Eva Peron. These were formerly the national territories of Chaco and La Pampa.

Spectators Jam UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The jam of spectators who wanted to see Sweden's Dag Hammarskjold inaugurated as United Nations secretary-general Friday became so great that security forces had to stop the routine guided tours. UN sources said more than 3,500 persons pushed into the assembly hall, which normally seats 2,100.

Saves Three Lives

New Technique May Reduce Deaths During Operations

By FRANK CAREY

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Sudden death from accidental stoppage of a healthy heart during a surgical operation eventually may be eliminated by a new electrical stimulating technique, a Harvard doctor said today.

Dr. Paul Zoll said that possibility is suggested through use of an apparatus which applies an electric current across the unopened chest. It has saved the lives of three persons whose hearts had been brought to a standstill by heart disease, he said.

He told the American Heart Association the apparatus also had been tried on three persons whose otherwise healthy hearts had stopped beating during surgery. These three died, he said, but the patients' hearts had been at a standstill for between 40 and 100 minutes before the apparatus was used.

Zoll said research had indicated the value of speed in applying the technique in such cases and added:

"We feel that with improvements in the technique which we are now exploring, it may eventually be possible to eliminate sudden death resulting from accidental heart stoppages due to accidents during surgery or the application of anaesthesia.

"The best chance of realizing this would be to have such an apparatus present in the operating room at all times, ready for immediate use."

He told of three patients who were saved by the apparatus after their hearts stopped beating due to a diseased condition. The hearts were kept beating for periods up to five days before they started beating spontaneously again.

Zoll said the apparatus is the first one to promote beating of a stopped heart by applying the electric current to the outside surface of the body.

Seek Flier Lost Over L. Ontario

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Air force planes took to the skies again today to resume the search for a 24-year-old airman who disappeared in his F-47 Thunderbolt over Lake Ontario Friday.

Spokesmen for the 136th fighter interceptor squadron at Niagara Falls airport said every available pilot would be sent aloft to hunt for Lieut. William G. Stephenson.

Two other fighter pilots flying with Stephenson said his plane disappeared into an overcast about eight miles out on the lake from Olcott. They said Stephenson radioed that he was in trouble and would attempt to ditch his plane in the water.

Police returning from Friday's search said winds of gale force were whipping up waves 20 feet high on the lake.

City Breeds Skeeters To Study Extermination

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The city engineer's department is breeding mosquitoes in various gardens here and nobody's complaining.

In fact city council can't wait until the date when the larvae appear. As soon as they do, operation extermination will get under way.

The breeding has been carried on so that the council will know just the day to start their $1,000 war on the pests.

Thirty acres in three breeding areas will be sprayed with insecticide by aircraft.

The council has also voted $200 for rat extermination in premises along the old Welland canal.

Admits Starting Mixer With Workman Inside

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Harold W. Weidenhammer, 29, Friday admitted he flipped the switch of a giant cement-mixer and caused a fellow factory worker to be sliced to death by the churning blades, state police said.

"I just wanted to see it run while a man was in there," Weidenhammer was quoted as saying.

Ira T. Uptegraff was killed in the mixer at the Flint Cement Products Co., April 3. He had climbed inside the machine to make repairs when it started up.

Weidenhammer was held for further questioning.

1000 Army, RCAF Men Join For Exercises

NORTH BAY (CP)—Approximately 1,000 army and RCAF personnel are to take part in Checkmate II, a tactical exercise at the RCAF station here April 18 and 19.

Checkmate I was held last fall designed, as is the upcoming scheme, to test defences at the big jet base.

Army formations taking part will include the reserve battalion of the sentative group of the 58th Light Anti-Aircraft, Royal Canadian Artillery, of Sudbury.

Key Spy Suspect, Doctor Suicides

BONN, Germany (AP)—An alleged key member of the big Soviet-operated spy ring just uncovered in West Germany has committed suicide, the federal interior ministry said today.

Dr. Hans Hartig, arrested with 37 other Germans on charges of spying for Russia, hanged himself Friday night in his jail cell in Essen, the ministry said.

Until recently, Dr. Hartig was an official of the West German Iron and Steel Association.

In this capacity, he had an intimate knowledge of West Germany's industrial secrets, the ministry said. It claimed he had been giving the Soviet espionage ring secret reports on industrial research and production for two years.

Acting chancellor Franz Bluecher Friday announced the arrest of 35 German members of what he called "the biggest and most dangerous Russian-operated espionage ring uncovered since the beginning of the occupation in 1945."

The interior ministry today said two more members of the ring were seized Friday night. At least six others are being hunted.

Vet Flies Home With Pet Monkey

PUSAN, Korea (Reuters)—A Canadian Korean veteran who refused to go aboard a troopship unless his mascot monkey went with him was on his way home today—by plane.

Sgt. N. Todd of the Royal 22nd Regiment was scheduled to go aboard a homeward-bound troopship when officers objected to him taking "The Ape of Gibraltar."

"He goes with me, or neither of us goes," said Todd. The officers were adamant and Todd stayed behind in Pusan, his hopes of getting home to Vancouver fading.

He and the monkey went to a sergeant's mess for some liquid consolation. There Todd got an idea. He put the monkey—hangover and all—into a kitbag and thumbed a flight for Tokyo and home.

"Any monkey that helped us make monkeys out of the Communists deserves a good home back in Canada, and that's where this ape is going," Todd said just before taking off.

Todd paid $60 for the monkey in Tokyo before he went to Korea. He took it with him into the front line and it got its name from Little Gibratar, scene of several hot actions in which the Canadian 27th brigade participated.

4 Toronto Teenagers Hurt In Car Crash

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Four Toronto teen-agers were injured, one severely, early today when, police said, the driver of their 1929-model car fell asleep just west of here on the Queen Elizabeth Way and the car ran into a hydro pole.

The youths were returning from a middle-of-the-night jaunt to Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Edward Murray, 17, is in hospital here with severe head injuries. The others, Norman Alexander, 17, Herbert Marshall, 17, and Bernard Dolmen were treated for minor cuts.

The car was a complete wreck.

CBC To Air Counter-Attacks on Red Radio Broadcasting Propaganda Through North

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC will launch a counter-attack this month against Russian propaganda broadcasts, the major radio fare of many residents of Canada's far north.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the 11-member CBC board of governors, told the Commons broadcasting committee Friday that the RCAF will fly Canadian programs to six defence department radio stations in the north. The stations will broadcast six hours daily, reaching the great majority of people in the Yukon and Northwest Territories and Labrador.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) raised the question of Russian propaganda broadcasts. He said many northerners complain that the Russians drown out Canadian radio.

Later, a CBC official said Mr. Fleming apparently referred to short-wave, English - language broadcasts by the Russians.

The official said the idea of supplying recorded programs to the defence department stations arose from the CBC's operation of an international broadcasting service which had recordings available.

Mr. Dunton said the CBC is aware of the problem Mr. Fleming mentioned and has arranged for the broadcasts over six defence radio stations. About 30,000 persons will be within range of the new broadcasts in the areas of Whitehorse, Y.T.; Yellowknife and Aklavik, N.W.T.; Churchill, Man.; and Goose Bay, Labrador.

(The populations of the three areas in the 1951 census were Labrador 7,890; Northwest Territories 16,004; and Yukon 9-096. There has been some increase since.)

Mr. Dunton said the CBC rejected the idea of radio relay stations to serve these areas because they would be too costly. Short-wave transmission to the north was not "too good."

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said many soap operas are "morbid and depressing." He wondered if it was a good thing to have so many programs dealing with the break-up of families.

Mr. Dunton replied that surveys indicate that half of the women in Canada listen to the soap operas.

Mr. Coldwell asked if there is any indication of their effect on marriage.

"Maybe they show the women how well off they are," remarked J. T. Richard (L—Ottawa East).

Chinese Drive RoK Troops From Outpost

Shell-Pitted Peak Changes Hands Nine Times In Week

SEOUL (AP)—Two Chinese Communist companies, about 350 men, today drove South Korean infantry off Texas hill, a shell-pitted 2,000-foot central Korean peak which has changed hands nine times in a week.

The RoKs hurled two counter-attacks against the hill after dawn but both were beaten back, an 8th army officer said.

The Chinese attacked with burp guns, hand grenades, mortar and artillery less than 12 hours after losing the hill in the see-saw battle which has raged almost continuously since Sunday.

The Texas hill fight was the only major action along the 155-mile battle front as negotiators in Panmunjom signed an agreement for exchanging sick and wounded prisoners which could pave the way to a Korean truce.

BOMB SUPPLY DUMP

Friday night, B-29s bombed a 115-acre Communist supply dump near Sinanju. The dump had been left untouched for weeks while the Reds stocked it with valuable war material. Other United Nations planes struck troop and supply areas elsewhere in North Korea.

Sabre jets swept MiG alley and tangled briefly with Communist jets. The 5th air force reported no damage to enemy planes.

Four UN planes were lost behind enemy lines last week. One of the four was piloted by a double MiG ace, Capt. Harold Fischer, Jr., of Sioux City, Iowa. Communist radio has said he was captured after parachuting from his plane.

The other three planes—an Australian Meteor jet, an F-84 Thunderjet and a Sabre—were shot down by Red ground fire.

Commute Sentence To Life In Prison

WELLAND (CP)—The death sentence on James Alfred Kelsey of Welland has been commuted to life imprisonment, it was announced today.

Kelsey was sentenced to hang Tuesday, April 14, for the murder of Sam Delibasich, Welland taxi driver, in the fall of 1949.

It was announced that the sentence was changed by order of the governor-general-in-council. W. S. Martin, QC, and Sam Hughes, appointed to Kelsey's defence by the legal aid branch of the Welland county bar society, and Archdeacon A. Davis of Welland, Kelsey's spiritual advisor, made the plea for executive clemency to Justice Minister Garson.

Eden Will Undergo Operation In London

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will undergo a major operation at a London hospital Sunday, the foreign office announced Friday.

Eden, 55, entered hospital Wednesday and the operation was to have been performed Thursday. It was postponed because he caught a cold.

Eden is expected to be away six to eight weeks.

William Tinker

The funeral service for William Tinker, who died Tuesday at his home at 266 Burnham St., was held Thursday from his home. Burial was in Fife's cemetery, Otonabee.

The Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United Church officiated.

Pallbearers were Ernest Lillico, Bruce Sargent, Gordon Bigelow, Milton Clydesdale, Harold Fife, and Maxwell Fife.

Powerful Cable

STOCKHOLM (CP)—The world's longest underwater power line, a 50-mile cable, will be laid this summer to carry a 100,000 volt direct current supply of electricity from the Swedish mainland to the Baltic island of Gotland. The cable, estimated to cost $4,500,000, will serve an island population of 60,000.

City Incinerator Has Last Fires Next Week

After 30 years of community use in the disposal of garbage and other domestic and commercial refuse, Peterborough's incinerator on Townsend St. will become an obsolete property next week, perhaps permanently.

City council has adopted the landfill method of disposal, its $16,000 crawler tractor is expected to be delivered here Monday, and by the middle of the week should be in operation at the dump in North Monaghan.

That was the immediate prospect as reported to the sanitation committee Friday afternoon by J. E. Pierce, superintendent of sanitation. The simple system of landfill has been explained since the council decided to abandon the incinerator.

The bulldozer scoops out a long trench into which the garbage trucks dump their loads. This material is packed into place and reduced space by the heavy machine rolling over it. The excavated soil is spread back over the trench as covering material. That is the essence of the landfill. Final pressing and levelling is concluding stage of the process, and the garbage trucks drive on to the next trench.

CLEAN UP GROUNDS

Mr. Pierce told the committee he intended to put out the dump fires, level that accumulated heap of ashes and incombustible remnants, and try to develop some presentable appearance to the place.

Trenching for the arriving garbage will be laid out in the field to the east of the dump. That is the general plan. Both the incinerator and dump fires will be extinguished, and as the landfill method becomes established, the refuse will eventually decay in the effects of burying.

Council is deserting the incinerator as an economy. They preferred to invest in a bulldozer, rather than spend an estimated large sum on repairs and enlargement of the Townsend St. disposing plant. Requirement of expansion has resulted from the continuing growth of the city in new subdivisions and annexations. That is the plain explanation and cause of the switch to landfill.

Ald. W. J. Beggs presided as chairman at the Friday meeting with Ald. Graham and Mayor Waddell present. They agreed to the sugestion of Mr. Pierce that he be permitted to visit several cities to observe their practice of the trench filling method and to enquire about any "headaches" they may have encountered. Oshawa and Barrie were mentioned, and Mr. Pierce's trip may extend farther if necessary, probably west of Toronto.

The Weather

Peterborough Temperatures:

Today:
Night low....39 Noon.....43
Noon barometer.....29
Yesterday:
Highest.....52 Lowest...39
One Year Ago:
Highest.....36 Lowest...18

Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office in Toronto at 9:30 a.m.

Synopsis:

Strong cool westerly winds will continue over the province today but will slacken tonight. This cool air produces considerable daytime cloudiness and will give light scattered showers in the south of the province and snow-flurries in central and northern regions.

Sunday promises relief from the strong winds but temperatures will remain on the cool side. There may be some sunshine in the forenoon in central and northern regions. Southern Ontario will probably be affected by cloud and some rain associated with an area of low barometric pressure located this morning in Texas.

Regional forecasts valid until midnight Sunday:

Lake Erie, Lake Huron, Niagara, Western Lake Ontario regions: Windsor, London, Hamilton, Toronto cities: Cloudy clearing this evening, clouding over again before dawn. A few light showers this afternoon. Occasional rain Sunday afternoon and evening. Little change in temperature. Winds west 30 today, light tonight, northeast 15 Sunday. Most of the Allied sick and wounded will be flown home immediately after they cross the line, if they are able to travel. The others will be taken to hospitals in Japan.

20-DAY LIMIT

The exchange must be completed within 20 days after it starts. It must begin not later than April 21 and can start earlier.

Besides the 120 Americans, there are 20 Britons, 15 non-Koreans including at least one Canadian, Turks, Greeks and Dutch, and about 450 South Koreans in the group the Communists will release.

Only one Canadian—Gnr. John Orvan Jenkins of Hamilton, Ont.—is in the list of sick and wounded handed over by the Reds.

Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho, chief Communist liaison officer, has promised a more complete breakdown by nationalities as soon as possible.

The Allies will give up 5,100 North Koreans and 700 Chinese at the rate of 500 daily. The Communist rate will be 100 men daily.

Observers at this advance UN camp were openly hopeful that completion of the sick and wounded exchange agreement will lead to a truce in Korea. They pointed out that if both sides could agree on 10 points for exchanging disabled captives in less than four hours, they should be able to agree on the remaining eight paragraphs of the armistice draft.

URGE CAREFUL STUDY

Officials agreed that Red peace overtures should be studied carefully. But they also agreed that if the Communists sincerely want an armistice they will get one.

The signing of the pact was a simple ceremoy. It started at 12:08 p.m. (10:08 p.m. EST, Friday) and lasted only 2½ minutes.

Not a word was spoken during the signing.

Daniel signed first on six sets of documents, two each in Korean, Chinese and English. Then Lee affixed his signature.

When the pact was signed, Lee pressed for a quick renewal of the truce talks.

Daniel replied that he would inform his superiors. Then Lee suggested that liaison group meetings should be resumed "within one or two days to discuss and decide on the date for resuming the plenary sessions."

With that the meeting adjourned. No date was set for another meeting but it appeared likely the UN command would call another session soon.

Daniel emerged from the conference hut smiling broadly. He told correspondents:

"A PLEASURE"

"It was a pleasure for me to sign this agreement today for repatriation for sick and wounded personnel. You will recall that the United Nations command has repeatedly urged this move since first making it in December, 1951."

Daniel told the Reds that the Allies would be ready on 72 hours notice to start delivery of sick and wounded at Panmunjom. The Reds said they would let him know Sunday how soon they are ready to begin.

Thus, at the earliest, the exchange probably will not begin before the middle of next week.

Daniel asked Lee for a breakdown of the group of 15 sick and wounded which the Reds said included men from Turkey, Greece, Holland and Canada. The Reds said they would let him know soon.

ASKS MORE RETURNED

Before the 10-point agreement was signed, Daniel made one more appeal—the third in a week—for the Communists to increase the number of Allied prisoners they will return.

"For humanitarian reasons," Daniel said, "I again request that you use the broadest interpretation of the degree of sickness in determining the final number of captured personnel who will be repatriated. We will do the same."

Lee replied: "Our side considers that there should be no further dispute about this question."

Just before the signing, Lee entered for the record a statement reserving the right "to request that the sick and injured captured personnel of our side not repatriated this time will be handed over to a neutral state so as to secure a just solution to the question of their repatriation after an armistice."

The sick and wounded exchange was worked out on the Allied insistence that no disabled prisoner be forced to return against his will. That principle is contained in the Geneva Convention.

COMPLETE DETAILS

Once the major proceedings were finished, staff officers of both sides met to complete minor administrative details. They already have agreed on the reception sites inside the Panmunjom area.

The agreement guarantees against attack of convoys moving to Panmunjom from prison camps, and provides that no more than 300 persons from each side will be inside the Panmunjom neutral area at one time. It also provides that prisoners will be exchanged in groups of 25 at a time, accompanied by rosters giving name, rank, nationality and serial number.

While the liaison groups met to sign the agreement, UN reporters, jeep drivers and other allied personnel across the road listened to Radio Moscow on a powerful portable radio.

They heard an English-language broadcast on the latest remarks by Russia's chief delegate to the UN, Andrei Vishinsky, on the Korean situation. Vishinsky was quoted as saying that the trade of sick and wounded is the first step and that nothing should stand in the way of repatriation of all prisoners of war, and an end to the Korean war.

Storm Damages Said High In West Ontario

by THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sixty-mile-an-hour winds which Friday caused widespread damage in much of southwestern Ontario diminished to 25 miles an hour today with light scattered showers.

Weather experts said the breeze will probably disappear by nightfall. Fair and warmer weather is forecast for most of Ontario Sunday.

Estimates of property damage caused by Friday's winds ran into thousands of dollars as barns, trees and telephone poles fell before the gale.

Shipping was even harder hit. Two steamers were driven aground in the St. Mary's river at Sault Ste. Marie while shipping was delayed 17 hours in the Welland canal.

ONE STILL STUCK

The Joseph H. Thompson managed to work herself free at 5 a.m. today after lying aground all night, but the ore carrier Shenango was reported still stuck fast. Lighters have gone to her aid.

Some 16 freighters were forced to heave to in the Welland canal as the winds made manoeuvring in and out of locks too hazardous. Canal officials gave them the green light at 7:10 a. m. today.

Chatham and Kent counties were hardest hit by the screeching winds. Other communities in the London district had power failures. Telephone service was restored late Friday night to Chatham subscribers, but rural lines in Kent county are not expected to be in operation for several days. Chatham's fire alarm system was also put out of action.

In St. Catharines, a woman was taken to hospital with leg injuries after winds blew down a 20-foot wooden barricade in front of a downtown construction.

Fire in South Dorchester township was whipped by high winds. Five barns, about 20 head of cattle and farm implements on the farm of Harry Bearss were destroyed. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

Lightning started a fire near Sarnia. It struck a penny arcade and flames destroyed the frame structure.

Tree branches were blown about Hamilton streets and signs torn from their hinges. One man was treated for minor injuries after being blown off his feet.

London and Toronto had winds of 60 miles an hour. There was considerable damage in both districts. Barns were damaged in Dover township. Ingersoll was without power for three hours in the early morning as a result of a power failure in the hydro transformer station at Woodstock.

Toronto suffered minor damage, mainly to homes. Signs were blown down and a seaplane broke away from its moorings at the Island airport. It was quickly recaptured with only slight damage.

Direct Ann, a pacer horse from Otterville, was killed when wind ripped apart the rear of a truck in which she was travelling home from New Hamburg.

Frank Homewood, 62, of Burlington, lost his fishing nets and was almost carried into Lake Ontario when the high winds caught his small boat in outer Hamilton harbor. The wind finally whipped the craft into a jetty where he was pulled to safety.

Wayne Bellsmith and Jimmy Beamish, both 12, from Barrie, were playing in an abandoned row boat when the strong winds carried them nearly a mile out into Lake Simcoe. They were rescued by two men in an outboard motorboat.

Smith Contracts For Crushed Gravel

Smith Township Council have awarded R. A. Blythe Co. a contract for the crushing of gravel. Two companies tendered for the contract.

R. A. Blythe's tender was for gravel, available at the bin for 54 cents a cubic yard, and put on the roads for 87 cents.

The other tender was from Charles Young Construction Co.: 50 cents at the bin and 90 cents if put on the roads.

Council also arranged for the contractor to supply gravel to residents for lanes, driveways, etc. The cost will be $1 a cubic yard when the crusher is operating in the vicinity. Payment will be to the contractor.

Admits Was Drunk

Pleading guilty to a charge of being intoxicated, Weldon Finn of 494 Park St. was fined 10 and $2.50 costs in Magistrate's Court today.

Howe Predicts Continuation Of Expansion "For Years"

CLEVELAND (CP)—Trade Minister Howe of Canada predicted Friday night that his country's economy and population will expand "for many years to come." "If the threat of war vanished overnight," he said, "it is expected that there would be minor dislocations and temporary recessions but in my opinion Canada's curve of expansion will be upward for many years to come."

It was the same with population, the minister added in a speech prepared for the diamond jubilee convocation of the Case Institute of Technology.

Canada, with a population of fewer than 15,000,000, was being "constantly pressed" to open her gates wide to immigration and subsidize the movement to fill empty areas.

FAVORS CAUTION

Canada has been "liberal" with her immigration policies, but Mr. Howe believed that in a "middle country in size and thought," there was much to be said for "a cautious and pragmatic approach to artificial stimulation."

"Of one thing we can be sure—the population of Canada will show a strong and steady growth for many years to come."

Mr. Howe's 7,000-word speech, while dwelling on economics, reached also into the field of philosophy, advocating the spirit of "compromise" as the "only hope for world peace and community of nations."

Ten New Members Sworn Into Club

An expanding membership of the YMCA Friday Night Club necessitated a second initiation service this year. The initiation team of Bill King, Fred Huffman, Bill Bunker, Charles Bain, and Ron Wallace told the prospective members that purity of life, purityo fmofive, and sacrificial service are the planks of the Friday Night Club.

Mr. G. H. Roper, past Y general secretary, past president and life member of the club, related the history of the club. As one of its originators, Mr. Roper told of the fun, fellowship and service that has been the tradition of the Friday Night Club since its inception in 1925. Pointing out that many well-known Canadian men have been members of the club, he stated they had set high standards which he felt sure would be upheld by the new members.

These new members are: Bob Clark, Stewart Taylor, Norman Hayward, Bob McGibbon, Bob Morrison, Edgar Kee, Maurice Cordell, Gerry Wittenberg, Gord Williamson, and Terry Graham.

Howie Eastman thanked Mr. Roper on behalf of the club.

Slides Of U.K. Shown To Joint Meeting

KEENE (ENS)—The Tillicum class and the Busy Bees Mission Circle were entertained by Mrs. E. Spurway of Peterborough, who showed colored pictures taken while she and Mr. Spurway visited England and Scotland last year.

The president Marybelle Elmhirst was in the chair and the meeting opened by the singing of several Easter hymns. Laura Irwin took charge of the worship service which followed the Easter theme.

The guest of the evening was introduced by Lois McFarlane. The pictures consisted of scenes aboard the Empress of Canada, beautiful rose gardens and homes and historical sites in England, Scotland and Paris. The final picture was taken from the air on the return flight. Mrs. Spurway was thanked by Olga Gall.

The Busy Bees Mission Circle adjourned to the home of Ferne Richardson and the Tillicum Class assembled in the club room for refreshments, which were served by the hostesses, Dorothy Given and Mary Tuthill, assisted by Isobel Wismer and Phyllis Mackness.

Committees were formed to help with the YPU banquet, to see about sponsoring a play from Peterborough and to look into the possibility of having a rummage sale. It was also decided to send a contribution to the Cancer Society. The mobile unit (Little Red Door) of the Peterborough branch, Canadian Cancer Society, will be in Keene sometime next week; the date and time to be announced over the radio.

Rideaus, Dutchmen Next Tilt In Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP)—Smiths Falls Rideaus and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen will resume their Eastern Canada Allan Cup finals here Wednesday. Smiths Falls leads the best-of-seven series 2-0.

Fourth game of the playoff is scheduled here Friday. The fifth contest, if necessary, will be played next Saturday night at Guelph. The arena here is not available that night.

Boy, 4, Breaks Arm

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Larry Elmhirst, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Elmhirst, has returned from Civic Hospital, Peterborough, where he was treated for a broken right arm.

Larry was playing in the yard at the home of his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elmhirst, Belmont township, where the accident happened. He was alone at the time and, from what could be learned by questioning him, he tripped and fell on a stone.

Disputes Right Of County To Retain Money

HAVELOCK—(ENS)—Peterborough county had no right to retain money it received from the sale of debentures for the Norwood District High School Board and dole it out according to progress reports unless agreeable to the board.

This was the opinion expressed in a letter from the Municipal World produced at Thursday night's meeting of the Norwood District High School Board by Trustee E. T. Buck.

The letter also cited the case of Clarkson vs. the town of Allliston in which it was ruled that money collected by a municipality for a school board or received by such municipality from the sale of debentures for the school board is not money of the municipality but is held in trust for the school board to whom it must be paid on demand.

On a motion by trustees D. H. Walsh and C. McConnell, a copy of the letter will be sent to Peterborough County Council.

TEMPEST IN TEAPOT

Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer, said today that the money obtained from the sale of the debentures had been paid by the county to the secretary-treasurer of the school board by instalments with each progress report.

"It was felt by county council that if they were raising the money they should know how it was being spent," Mrs. Spurway said, referring to the dispute as a tempest in a teapot. "The money has all been spent anyway."

"The Municipal World is not the authority for what the county does," she added. "The county obtained the advice of its solicitor and banker in this matter before it decided to pay out the money as it did."

Chairman Hamblin reported Thursday night that a special committee had met the county school committee and the latter had consented to pay the age grant and the maintenance cost of Douro's pupils and turn over to the board the balance of $3,807.42 belonging to debenture funds.

The secretary-treasurer was instructed to submit to the county a claim for costs of Douro's pupils who used the Thompson bus from Asphodel-Douro line road to the Norwood District High School and return to cover the period of September to March inclusive.

Trustee Ross informed the board that Brooks' bus was unable to make full trips in March due to impassable roads in Belmont township.

TO MAKE REPAIRS

Trustee Buck reported that the Eastwood Construction Co. will repair and properly cover the school disposal bed in the very near future and that H. H. Roberts will in a few days inspect the new school building and arrange to have any defects repaired and replaced. Mr. Buck produced a letter from Mr. Eastwood regarding the hot water storage tank inspection, claiming that inspection of a tank of 100 pounds pressure is unnecessary. The tank was in accordance with specifications.

Trustee D. H. Walsh informed the board that the committee had received six applications for a teacher of science and mathematics for September and the contract had been completed with Mr. R. M. Freeman, of Kingston, subject to approval by Mr. Beatty, superintendent of secondary education, regarding guidance work. Mr. Walsh expected the present staff would contract for teaching in the school next term. The rate for supply teaching was set at $12 per day.

The history of the activities of the Norwood District High School Board and the building of the new school are to be put into pamphlet form to the number of 500 at a cost of $75 to $80.

Bruce Mines Publisher Honored By Citizens

BRUCE MINES (CP) — Fred Rickaby, weeklies publisher, Friday night was honored by the citizens of this community, 40 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. Rickaby has for the last 50 years published seven weekly newspapers for Algoma's north shore, St. Joseph Island, Manitoulin Island and the Sudbury rural area. He served in municipal offices for 40 years.

Mrs. Wesley Irons

The funeral service for one of Curve Lake's oldest citizens, Mrs. Wesley Irons, who died Wednesday following a lengthy illness, was held Friday from her home to Curve Lake United Church.

The Rev. W. B. Day, minister of Curve Lake United Church, officiated at the service. The pallbearers were Leonard Whetung, William Knott, John, Austin, Stan and Steven Taylor, and the flower bearers were Lila Kelly, Almeta Cappoway, Isaac and Verne Taylor, Amy Muskrat, and Yvonne McCue. Burial was in Curve Lake Cemetery.

New Wheat Pact Sets Quotas For Its Nations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The international wheat council today announced guaranteed quotas totalling 595,542,052 bushels annually that will be assigned to participating members in the event of a new three-year agreement goes into force.

Terms of the new wheat pact, setting forth maximum and minimum prices and specific quotas, were reached last Thursday. A substantial majority of the importing and exporting nations voted for them but Britain, a major importer, did not.

The new agreement, which will be signed on Monday, sets a maximum price of $2.05 a bushel and a minimum of $1.55 a bushel.

Under the present pact, which expires July 31, the ceiling price is $1.80, the floor price is $1.20.

Britain did she would not accept any maximum price above $2. The council, however, assigned Britain a quota of 177,067,939 bushels for each of the three years should she change her mind and ratify the agreement.

The new accord will go into force when ratified by countries holding 50 per cent of both the export and import quotas. The necessary ratifications must be completed by July 15.

The amount of wheat included in the new agreement represents slightly more than half the wheat moving in international trade.

Under the pact, Canada will have guaranteed sales of 250,000,000 bushels for each of the three crop years involved beginning this year. The crop year runs from Aug. 1 to July 31.

The United States will have annual guaranteed sales of 270,174,615 bushels.

Following are the amounts other exporting countries will sell each year: Australia 75,000,000; France 367,437; United States 270,174,615.

Top Canadian Film To Be Shown In Library

"Land of the Long Day," the film predicted to win the 1953 Canadian film award, will be the feature of the regular monthly Peterborough Film Council's meeting at the Public Library on Tuesday night.

The film was produced by Douglas Wilkinson who is at present planning a two-year stay in Baffinland. This two years of study was made possible by a fellowship granted to Mr. Wilkinson by the Arctic Institute of America.

Other new films will also be shown at this open meeting.

Tractor Overturns, Caledon Youth Killed

CALEDON EAST (CP)—Andy Ellis, 16-year-old farm hand, was killed Friday when the tractor he was driving overturned on top of him.

The youth, who told friends he was saving his money for a trip to the Calgary stampede this summer, was clearing rocks for a farm near his home when a heavy stone in the tractor scoop toppled the vehicle.

Caledon East is 35 miles northwest of Toronto.

Drew Challenges Russia Prove Overtures Honest

OTTAWA (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Friday challenged Russia to prove its peace overtures are serious by allowing free elections in Iron Curtain countries.

Addressing the fifth annual convention of the Polish Combatants' Association, Mr. Drew said that until Russia permits free elections in Poland and other Communist satellites "there is no reason for us to accept the word of any representative of the Kremlin."

Some convention delegates shouted: "They never will, they never will."

Mr. Drew added that Russia's latest international moves are "encouraging signs—at least I hope they are."

REASON IN 1939

He said Canada went to war in 1939, not because Canadian soil was invaded, but because the freedom of Poland was threatened.

"We remember that cause and won't forget it until Poland is free from slavery." The Polish veterans applauded.

Mr. Drew said Poland's slavery under communism is "more vile" than the slavery imposed by Nazi Germany.

Jan Ostrowski, association president and former lawyer who now farms at Huntsville, said Canada was the first country to open her doors to Poles after the war. These immigrant Poles felt a "deep gratitude" to Canada and Canada would not regret her generosity.

Obituary

MRS. MARY SULLIVAN

Mrs. Mary Sullivan of 109 Sophia St., Peterborough, widow of the late Richard Sullivan who predeceased her in 1946, died in city hospital Friday, following a prolonged illness.

Mrs. Sullivan, the former Mary Kennedy, was born and educated in Douro township, daughter of Mrs. Mary Kennedy, now of Peterborough, and the late John Kennedy.

She has resided in Peterborough for the past 32 years and was a member of the Immaculate Conception Church and belonged to the Catholic Women's League and was a member of the Altar Society of her church.

Mrs. Sullivan is survived by her two brothers, Victor and Edward Kennedy of Douro township.

Mrs. Sullivan is resting at the Duffus funeral home until Monday morning, thence to the Immaculate Conception Church at 9 a.m. for requiem mass. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro.

Believe Convicts Dead

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—Two convicts were missing and believed dead Friday in a fire which raged out of control in the Stateville prison furniture factory. Twelve trapped men were rescued by fellow-convicts who knocked a hole in a concrete floor and dragged them to safety. Some 300 men were in the building when the blaze started.

South Rhodesia Favors Union With Two States

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Southern Rhodesia Friday recorded a clear "yes" for federating with its northern neighbors, clearing the way for the birth of a British central African federation of almost 7,000,000 inhabitants.

The final count of votes cast in Thursday's referendum was 25,570 for federation; 14,729 against.

Only four of 30 voting districts showed an anti-federation majority.

The legislative councils of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland are expected to follow Southern Rhodesia's lead and accept the federation plan, as put forth by Britain, by the end of this month.

The British Parliament has already approved it in principle and is expected to pass the necessary enabling bill in May.

Sir Godfrey Huggins, Southern Rhodesian prime minister who has long fought for federation, said last week he expects that the federation plan will probably be put into effect by next August.

Federationists say the new state of 900,000 square miles and great mineral riches will lend political stability to the entire troubled continent. Opponents of the project were largely swayed by racial fears. Many Southern Rhodesian whites feared that the racial composition of the new state will be lopsided with 6,400,000 Africans against a mere 200,000 whites.

Vocal African opinion has been against federation, claiming it will give the European population too much power.

MGM Fires Lanza Over Demands

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—MGM studio Friday fired Mario Lanza after a year of bickering with the eccentric tenor.

"Lanza has been shown every consideration over the months 'The Student Prince' has been scheduled and rescheduled," said Dore Schary, studio head, in announcing the singer's dismissal. "His latest demands are unacceptable."

Schary estimated the frequent postponements have cost the studio $800,000.

He said Lanza had made demands not covered by his contract after the studio had given the singer his choice of starting dates, April 13 or May 5, for the production. Schary gave this as the main reason for terminating Lanza's contract.

Lanza, in a statement issued through the talent agency which represents him, said: "At the proper time and before the proper forum, all of the details will be revealed. I am confident that the decision will be in my favor."

Miss E. V. Kennedy

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The funeral of Miss Emma V. Kennedy, who died in Peterborough hospital Tuesday was held Friday morning from the Hendren funeral home to St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church.

A teacher on the Lakefield public school staff for 31 years, she was held in the highest respect by her former pupils, many of whom attended her funeral.

Requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. Dr. V. J. Masterson of St. Paul's Church and graveside prayers were said by the Rev. Joseph Welch of Kinmount, assisted by the Rev. M. McCarney of Otonabee and Dr. Masterson.

Pallbearers were Phillip Quigley, Eugene Quigley, Francis Bissonnette, Gerald Walsh, Howard Walsh and Joseph Sabatino. Interment was in St. Peter's cemetery, Peterborough.

Americans Pay Most

WOODSTOCK (CP) — American buyers paid top prices at the 20th Oxford black and white sale at the fair grounds here Friday. A total of $10,195 was paid for 41 head of cattle, with 22 cows averaging $290. One bull brought $225 and 12 bred heifers averaged $215.

Story Of Trip To Angola By Missionary Related

WARKWORTH (ENS) — The W.M.S. of St. Paul's United Church held their regular monthly meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Douglas Rowe.

President Mrs. W. Grant Allen presided. The devotional conveners Mrs. J. A. Greenly and Mrs. Harry Kelly presented the Devotional program. After the singing of the hymn Mrs. Lorne Evans led in prayer. Mrs. Ivan Denike read the scripture. A duet "Alone" was given by Mrs. C. Massey and Mrs. Carr accompanied by Mrs. Don Thompson, pianist.

Mrs. Howard Evans read the story of Christ.

Mrs. A. Harwood sang the solo "Lead Me to Calvary" accompanied by Mrs. C. W. Massey, pianist.

Mrs. A. L. Sisco read the introduction from the Study Book "African Trails", and gave a travelogue on Dr. Tucker's trip to Angola.

Mrs. J. A. Greenly asked for used clean bedding and clothing be brought to the Sunday School rooms for packing the bale.

A vote of thanks was extended to the hostess and those who had helped in the program.

Give Schools Butter

WASHINGTON (AP)—The agriculture department announced Friday it will donate an additional 50,000,000 pounds of government-owned butter to the school lunch program and to charitable institutions. In January it gave 24,000,000 pounds to the same agencies. The butter will be taken from a 143,000,000 pound supply the department bought in recent months under a dairy price-support program.

Zorin Russia-Bound

NEW YORK (AP)—Valerin Z. Zorin, deputy Russian foreign minister who recently was replaced as permanent Russian delegate to the United Nations, left for home Friday on the French liner Liberte. A large number of minor Soviet officials were at the ship to bid him goodbye.

Murderer To Hang

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Wanted for more than 100 murders, the notorious Pakistani outlaw Mohammad Rahim Hingoro was sentenced to death Friday by a Sind province special court.

Gov. Dewey Mum On Seaway Chat

WASHINGTON (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, in town for tonight's spring dinner of the exclusive Gridiron Club, has emerged mum about what he discussed at a luncheon with President Eisenhower.

On leaving the White House, he said "we had a very pleasant talk."

Asked whether, in line with advance speculation, there had been discussion of New York's bid to develop St. Lawrence river power with Canada, Dewy said:

"Anything of such a nature would, of course, have to come from the president."

That possibility dimmed when James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary and Dewey's former press chief, said the president would have nothing to say about what was mentioned at the luncheon.

It had been indicated earlier that Eisenhower and Dewey were almost certain to discuss New York's application to the federal power commission for a licence to join Canada in the power project.

Mrs. Damon King

MARMORA (ENS)—The funeral of Mrs. Damon King was conducted Friday afternoon at the Wells funeral home by the Rev. K. J. Crawford. Burial followed in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

Pallbearers were George Aunger, Carl Boyd, Bruce Johnston, Thomas Hannah, Stuart Varty and W. B. Wilde.

Mrs. King died in Bancroft Tuesday night. She had not been well since the fire in the Jones Block, Marmora, in the winter of 1952, when she and her husband, together with other tenants, were driven from their homes. Recently she had been living with relatives in Bancroft.

She was born 85 years ago in the northern part of Hastings county, the former Mary Hawley, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Castle Hawley.

She was twice married, her first husband being Albert Henry, who predeceased her about three years ago. The Henrys were residents of Marmora for several years and had a large number of friends.

She is survived by her husband Damon King, one son Seymour Henry of Marmora, three brothers Daniel and James Hawley of Marmora and William Hawley of Toronto.

CHATHAM (CP)—Hospital officials from regions one and two in Western Ontario attended an all-day convention here Friday. C. W. Weber, president of the Ontario Hospital Association urged delegates to press members of Parliament and cabinet members "to preserve our present system of hospital administration."

A round-table conference was conducted by Miss V. T. Drope, Seaforth; W. Adams, St. Thomas, R. Buckner, Windsor; W. E. Fox, Guelph; W. Hatch, Kitchener-Waterloo; Miss R. M. Beamish, Sarnia; Sister S. Elizabeth, Sarnia, and Sister M. Consolata, Chatham.

Landing Craft Waits For Injured PoWs

TOKYO (AP)—The service newspaper Stars and Stripes said a troop landing craft today dropped anchor off Cheju Island, off southeastern Korea, and prepared to take aboard 700 sick and wounded Chinese prisoners of war for return to the Communists.

Agreement for exchange of disabled PoWs was signed at Panmunjom today.

A Stars and Stripes correspondent at Cheju said that as soon as the order comes from Panmunjom, the ship will pick up the PoWs for a 17-hour trip to mainland Korea.

Church Inducts Rev. T. Kennedy

WARKWORTH (ENS) — The induction service for the new minister, the Rev. T. E. Kennedy, took place on Wednesday evening in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Warkworth.

Mr. Kennedy had accepted a call to become minister of the Warkworth and Hastings churches in the Peterborough Presbytery, coming here from the New Glasgow and Rodney Presbyterian churches.

The Rev. A. E. Toombs, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Campbellford, and Moderator of the Presbytery, presided over the service.

The Rev. Scott, of Bowmanville, preached the sermon, addressing the congregations of the two churches, Warkworth and Hastings Presbyterian, taking his text from Romans 1:16, "For I am not ashamed of the power of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." He stressed the power of God.

The Rev. R. D. Duncanson, of Norwood, addressed the minister.

Other ministers present were the Rev. W. Patterson, a retired minister in Millbrook; the Rev. C. G. Boyd, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Peterborough, the Rev. Louis Fowler, of Port Hope, who is also the clerk of the Presbytery, the Rev. W. H. Heuston, of Millbrook.

Miss Lois Fowler, church organist, presided for the hymns and the choir anthem "Walk About Zion."

A reception was held following the service in the church basement for approximately 100 members of the Hastings and Warkworth congregations and a social period was enjoyed.

Mr. Heuston, of Millbrook, extended a vote of thanks to the ladies for catering.

Frustrated By Budget Cut Coronation Committee Quit

OTTAWA (CP)—The executive of Ottawa's Coronation committee, frustrated by a 60-per-cent cut in its proposed budget, resigned in a body Friday night and tossed back at the city the job of arranging a municipal celebration June 2.

The civic finance commissioner, A. H. Ritchie, told the 14-member executive that board of control had proposed cutting $8,300 from the $15,000 budget requested by him to put on the show.

"There are no hard feelings," said committee chairman Dr. M.M. MacOdrum, president of Carleton College. "But I regret the committee's work has been in vain."

In 22 meetings the committee laid plans for open-air festivities on Confederation Square the night of June 2. There was to be a patriotic review, a water pageant along the Rideau canal, a mardi gras with street dancing and a fireworks display.

But board of control, headed by Mayor Charlotte Whitton, reduced the proposed fireworks expenditure to $2,000 from $4,000 and decided it would have no mardi gras street dancing.

Before calling Friday's meeting, Dr. MacOdrum said committee members were "greatly discouraged, frustrated, in our efforts."

Miss Whitton had no comment on future Coronation-Day planning.

The mayor, who plans to attend the Coronation, said that by law the city was limited to spending $30,000 in any one year for travel expenses, receptions and special events. The Coronation committee's $15,000, plus other related expenditures by the city, would bring the total outlay to $26,000 and leave the city with only $4,000 for travelling expenses during the remainder of the year.

However, Ottawans will still be able to attend a Coronation celebration planned on Parliament Hill by the federal government.

The Law Is A Ass

Last Wednesday in Montreal a judge sentenced a woman to jail for bigamy. This would have been just, had not the law, or lack of it, led the woman to commit bigamy. In 1946 the young woman's husband, who had already deserted her, was sentenced to fourteen years in penitentiary for a hold-up. The wife heard about the fourteen-year-sentence later. She had two children to support. In 1947 she went through a bigamous form of marriage with another man and thus secured a home for herself and children. Last year she left this second husband, who claimed he had only then found out about her previous marriage. So the charge of bigamy was laid. Evidence produced in court revealed that the twenty-five-year-old mother had been behaving admirably, supporting her children as well as she could. The court took this into consideration, provided able defence counsel, and the jail sentence given her was light.

* * *

In such sorry cases, black and white merge in dirty greys. Nevertheless, the law, or lack of it, had put her in a quandary. Her husband was locked up in penitentiary for fourteen years. To his previous voluntary desertion had been added fourteen years of compulsory desertion. It was a bleak prospect for a nineteen-year-old woman with two children. She took the law into her own hands—or, rather, the lack of it—and remarried, illegally because she could not get a divorce. Surely a long prison term is justifiable grounds for divorce? It is desertion — criminal desertion. But Canadian laws do not recognize desertion, forced or voluntary, as grounds for dissolution of marriage. The Divorce Reform Association of Ontario seeks recognition of five grounds for divorce, as well as the present sole valid cause—adultery. Among the five are desertion after three years, but not directly included—though it may be implied in this clause—is desertion because the husband or wife is a criminal and behind bars for three, ten or fourteen years. Quebec law, of course, recognizes no grounds for divorce at all. There can be no reform of it, since it does not exist.

* * *

The divorce laws of this country are an outrage to family life and civil decency. We jail a mother with two children because, after her husband has been put behind bars for fourteen years, she seeks the security of another home for herself and young family. The law says it is bigamy. As Mr. Bumble remarked, "the law is a ass, a idiot". In this Montreal case, the judge was merciful but the law was not just.

Cost Of Living Index Down

Prices for many household and personal goods have gone down but not because there is a possibility of peace. The consumer price index last given out was for the month of February, before there was any real probability of Stalin's dying or of Russia and China coming to terms to the West. The index dropped seven-tenths of a point to 114.8 (based on 1949 prices as 100). It is the lowest in nearly two years. This should be welcome news to housewives.

Another piece of information they might like is this: the wholesale index is down too. Generally the retail (consumer) index follows by a month or two the trend of the wholesale index. Thus prospects are good for an even lower index two months hence.

Lower prices for foods were chiefly responsible for the lower February index. But behind this cause was a general economic settling across the country. The Korean war pushed prices higher; now after nearly three years of it, both the U.S. and Canada have made their adjustments and overcome any shortages there were. Scarcity tends to inflate an economy; a balance between supply and demand levels prices.

United States prices last month reflected the lack of tension in the American economy; their spiral, set in motion by the outbreak of the Korean war (in June, 1950), has been turned back. The best quality steak, which was $1.16 a pound four months ago in New York, is now 77 cents. Pork chops have gone from 91 cents a pound to 66 cents. Fruit, vegetables and fish are sometimes twenty per cent. cheaper than they were last November, and eggs are at least sixteen per cent. cheaper. Clothing is down seven per cent. in price, furniture ten per cent., and TV sets and refrigerators are down about eight per cent. in general in the States.

Both Canadian and American workers and housewives have thus had real relief from high prices.

12,920 Washing Machines

This city has more vacuum cleaners than there are in the entire Province of Newfoundland. The County of Peterborough (including the city) has more passenger cars and telephones than there are in the Province of Prince Edward Island. The County has more washing machines than P.E.I. Only in the number of radios do P.E.I. and Newfoundland rate high in comparison with their populations. We mention these facts not to show that the Maritime Provinces are impoverished in material things, but that Peterborough city and county are richly provided with them.

According to the 1951 census figures on such matters—the figures have just been released—Peterborough city and county together had 15,985 dwellings of one kind and another. In these the census-takers found 12,920 power washing machines, 8,600 electric vacuum cleaner, 11,805 telephones, and 14,835 radios (excluding car radios and radios in boarding-houses). The number of cars belonging to the 15,985 dwellings—exclusive of cars owned by roomers and boarders—was 8,625. For the city itself the figures were: 10,020 dwellings, 8,630 washing machines, 6,360 vacuum cleaners, 8,225 telephones, 9,515 radios, and 5,000 passenger cars. Only 415 of the dwellings in city and county (125 of them in the city) had none of these conveniences.

By some standards, these represent a high standard of living. By these same standards, Ontario had the highest among the provinces. Here are comparable figures for the three most populous provinces:

	Ontario	Quebec	B.C.
Dwellings	1,181,125	858,785	337,780
Washing Machines	927,390	645,075	234,330
Vacuum Cleaners	648,035	283,335	170,250
Telephones	864,580	499,565	192,170
Radios	1,098,480	802,540	308,320
Cars	640,135	231,940	153,325

The full figures show that in general, every house in Canada has a radio and most have washing machines.

Except for Newfoundland, the Maritime Provinces are as well provided with these five conveniences as the average. P.E.I.'s figures are low because the Province has a small population, and only 22,455 dwellings.

We have not yet seen the census figures on bathtubs, electric stoves and can openers.

Teacher Who Takes His Own Advice

Engineering professor V. G. Smith of the University of Toronto is one teacher who seems to practise what he preaches. Speaking this week at the Ontario Educational Association he advised technical teachers to take an industrial job every fifth year, so as to observe factory methods and to keep abreast of current techniques. For many years Professor Smith has been a principal consulting engineer to the Ontario Hydro, specializing in the design of long-distance transmission lines.

We are not sure that this sort of job covers the kind that Professor Smith urged on technical teachers; he spoke of observing factory methods, and seemingly of taking a full-time job in industry for a year. But it shows that he gets very near the practice which, as a technical teacher, he prescribes. It seems to be sensible and sound advice.

Many senior professors of engineering, metallurgy, geology and related subjects, are annually retained by industry as consultants, and work closely with it during summer months. We question whether union contracts can allow and factory management can provide the opportunity for less highly specialized technical teachers—teachers in high schools, for instance—to get the feel of factories and current industrial techniques either during summer recesses from school or during an occasional year away from the teacher's desk.

A Simple Funeral

Archbishop Alexandre Vachon of Ottawa was one of the great Canadians in the Roman Catholic church. Scholar, scientist, teacher, administrator and notable churchman, his influence was wide and important in the Province of Quebec and in the archdiocese of Ottawa. Archbishop Vachon has served Canada generally, too, on various national committees (the National Research Council, for instance). He was well known in ecclesiastical and educational circles throughout the continent.

We are interested that, according to press reports, the funeral ceremony "was kept humble and simple by his own wish". Humbleness and simplicity are relative terms. Three cardinals, eight archbishops, forty bishops and hundreds of other church officials attended. Thousands of parishioners came to the Ottawa basilica from which the funeral was held. It was the largest gathering of church dignitaries since the Marian Congress of 1947, which Archbishop Vachon himself had organized.

The high mass of requiem, celebrated by the Papal Legate, was the one used for all Roman Catholics.

NOTE AND COMMENTS

A 22-year-old Montral woman has been found guilty of fortune-telling. Bad fortune-teller, or crude fortune-hunter?

The Journal of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Sometimes I wonder if school teachers have any idea of the effect produced by their lessons in the minds of the young. This afternoon, filled with the fresh spirit of Easter, took some children for a country walk, and in no time at all they had discovered a dead skunk. In vain did I attempt to lure them from this treasure with seasonable talk. A dead skunk, so far as they were concerned, was directly related to Easter, for they had been instructed in the horrible death of the traitor Judas "who burst asunder in the midst and all his bowels gushed out"; they wanted the skunk to repeat this interesting and unusual feat. I had no great objection, for I thought that a little practical anatomy might be instructive, but I am never sure how dead a dead skunk really is: just as certain dead bodies in history have proved the undoing of their murderers, I feared that this skunk might prove the undoing of the children, so I applied a Russian veto, and we moved on to safer pleasures.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: My office in Spring pleases nobody. Sometimes it is too hot, and as soon as a window is opened it becomes too cold. When the heat is on the atmosphere is parching, and my eyeballs shrivel like old hard-boiled eggs. Yet half an hour after the heat has been turned off the whole place is unpleasantly damp and rheumatic. I know that there are buildings which are outfitted with artificial climate; the U.N. building in New York is such a place. A janitor sits at a control panel and creates artificial California inside its confines, whatever the weather may be doing out of doors. It may be this artificiality of atmosphere which makes it so hard to achieve any lasting agreement in U.N. In the outer world everybody must take his chance with the weather; it is the common enemy, and the common delight. Russians and Vatican emissaries can at least unite in agreeing that it is a fine day, or that the rain is past all endurance. The weather is the basic topic on which all other agreement may be built. But when the weather can be turned on and off like electric light this precious boon is nullified, and chaos begins. I keep my old-fashioned, variable office system to prevent worst trouble.

TUESDAY: Attended a concert this evening, and enjoyed the music greatly, though for a few minutes it was in competition with a bugle band which was marching past the building. It is characteristic of the musical life of the city in which I live that every concert runs foul of this bugle band at some point in its program. I cannot say that I care for bugle bands, wide as my musical sympathies are. When a boy I played in one, though my instrument was the Side Drum; they were eight drummers, and sixteen buglers and I have walked many miles rattling my drum, while the bugles blared their simple-minded tunes in my ears. It is no small feat to play a bugle well; indeed, I venture the opinion that buglers are born, and not made. Not many of them had been born in the particular group from which the buglers in my school band were drawn; they had wind and spit in plenty, but no genius for the instrument. At the earliest opportunity I got out of the band and achieved the post of Corporal in Charge of the Medically Unfit; this was the peak of my career as a cadet. I never hear a bugle band now without thinking of it, and as the singers fought against the band tonight Fond Memory brought the light of other days around me.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: A Jewish friend gave me a package of unleavened bread, as it is Passover, and I ate a lot of it in a greedy, reflective way. Crisp, flaky, lacking any definable taste and yet delicious and satisfying, it is a favourite foodstuff with me, and yet it never occurs to me to buy any. I suppose it is because I have been trained from early childhood to think that starches should be eaten sparingly, if at all. But starchy foods are my favourites. Potatoes I consider to be at least as palatable as oranges; I am a great lover of spaghetti, and her stunted sister, macaroni; I delight in bread of every kind, if it is really baked and not simply blown up into a gluey mass. But I dare not stuff myself on these dainties. My old school nurse, Miss Toxaemia Dogsbody, Reg. N., warned strongly against them; I well recall that when I was nine years old she told a whole classroom full of us that it would infallibly give us hardening of the arteries, and to this day I sense a twig-like crackling in my body if I eat a couple of sandwiches — unquestionably dried and protesting arteries. It is shameful, I know, to be a victim of a food-fad, but early indoctrination dies hard.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: Attended a meeting today with a heavy heart, for the agenda was a long one, and I feared a harrowing session. But the chairman was so miraculously good at his job — so free from the usual desire of chairmen to talk all the time, to allow the argument to run down side-alleys, to repeat himself and to allow others to say seven times what only needed to be said once — that we whisked through all our business and were out in the sunshine by three o'clock. Being a chairman is a great responsibility, and should always be entrusted to really busy men — not to men who like to seem busy. A busy man wants to get the job done and go home. But too many chairmen desire only to bask in the glory of their power.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: Good Friday, and a holiday, which I employed in grooming the pleasure-grounds at the Towers. It was a perfect Spring day, and I sang a blithe song as I raked and rolled and tidied. A large number of bronze grackles and some pigeons walked about the lawn after me, hoping for something to eat, and I flattered myself that I looked rather like St. Francis preaching to the birds. A large dog came and dug a hole in a flowerbed, and I preached to it, sternly, and finally tossed a stick in its direction. It thought this was an invitation to play, and I had to do some more preaching. Then I distributed fifty pounds of pulverized sheep manure, and although I was conscious that it would work wonders for the garden at some future time, I found it a harrowing experience in the present. This done, I went to visit some friends, and observed that they shrank from me in an unaccustomed fashion and that one young woman whom I had not previously met eyed me with disapproval. It was her child who disturbed my calm, however. "Ma, why does that old man smell like wet corduroy trousers?" asked the tot. Then I explained about the sheep manure, but as this did not greatly improve the tone of the party I went home.

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: After my recent bout of lumbago it was suggested to me that I should get a bed-board and sleep with it under my mattress. I have done so, and it has greatly improved the quality of my rest, and allayed the pain in my back. But it has had another, and somewhat disquieting effect. It has greatly clarified and sharpened the focus of my dreams. I used to dream in a harum-scarum, fuzzy way — nothing that could bother a man. But of late I have had dreams of startling immediacy, and last night I dreamed that I was having dinner with Mr. St. Laurent and the late Josef Stalin; both of them were as clear and impressive as photographs by Karsh, and as the Prime Minister wore evening dress and Stalin wore his usual light military tunic, and as I wore my pyjamas, I felt somewhat outclassed. They stared at me politely, but they did not say much, and I finally realized that I had intruded upon them without being asked. This woke me in deep embarrassment and when I dozed again I found that I was back in High School, with all twelve Matriculation papers to write in a few minutes. Woke screaming. If this continues that bed-board must go. Better lumbago than eight hours' torment every night.

"WATCH THE BIRDIE"

The London-Tailored Male

By ALISON SETTLE

THIS SEASON'S London-tailored fashions for men and women have taken divergent paths. With the same British influence at work, using tailors trained in the same skills, often cutting from similar fabrics (if in different weights), the results produced are curiously unlike.

Women's skirts, cut to appear exceedingly slim in repose, are given groups of concealed pleats for easy movement: the trousers of men whose tailoring emanates from Savile Row (and its environments) are real "drain-pipes," cut as narrowly as they can be made. Their only likeness to a woman's skirt is that they aim to slim the figure and are without the traditional turn-ups in deference to the many well-off but plump men.

But, while the well-dressed man's trousers are exceedingly narrow, his jacket is given long and definitely flared "skirts." Women refuse this line, which they consider broadening, and choose jackets that are close-moulded to bust, waist and hips alike, the line ending just below the hipbone. The modish woman has also foresworn cuffs on her sleeves and flaps on her pockets, which now are quite unnoticeable, while men have newly taken an affection for cuffed sleeves and continue to emphasise their jacket skirts with very noticeable flaps.

For men there are set-in sleeves, modestly wide-shouldered, a natural line is not forbidden but any slope of the shoulder is frowned on. For the women shoulder slope downwards and sleeves are far more often cut in one with the back of the jacket than they are set-in all round a seamed armhole. When the seemed armhole is used, it is set at least an inch down from the natural line, to avoid a squared effect.

ALL THE SAME, there are points of likeness. Both sexes like their jacket fronts to be well-canvassed over the chestline. Both affect single-breasted fastenings to jackets, the newest using four-button closings to bring the fastenings high. The difference is that men leave the bottom undone to show the gay, contrasted "weskit" which they wear (often lapelled), while women, who also wear weskits, close all buttons and cut the base curved or sloping to give a permanent view of the glories of the waistcoat.

In the highest class of tailoring men and women often use similar weaves of wool, a barleycorn design leading. Both use velvet collar-backs for straight topcoats. Both like their casual or sports jackets to contrast with trousers or skirt, as the case may be.

There is no masculine equivalent to the feminine love for suits in tie-silk patterns; men, the logical sex, use tie-silks for their ties, though they may, a little shamefacedly, order a dressing-gown in such a silk. But men and women alike choose midnight-blue for a formal evening tone, women for satin or brocade dresses, men for their dinner jackets. And while men order overcoats which can be worn with equal success for formal daytime wear and over evening dress, women are buying canvas-stiffened silk coats which are used for late afternoon and for full evening occasions.

IN ONE THING only does the smart Englishwoman firmly refuse to follow any sort of lead from men: that is where her hats are concerned. It is a cause of concern to the export trade that the general overseas reaction— from new York to Melbourne— to what London considers the smartest man's silhouette of the day is one of deep disapproval.

This silhouette requires the curly-brimmed bowler, a revival (like drainpipe trousers and fancy waistcoats) from Victorian days, worn tilted so far forward over the eyes that a man has to hold his head up and back in order to see whom he is passing along Pall Mall or St. James's Street. This looking-down-his-ones effect of the curly-brimmed bowler has come to be as much disliked as the apparent superiority of the Guardsman wearing a Service cap with "cheese-cutter" peak.

Foreign disapproval of this bowler is shared by women here. In consequence many who started the season wearing tiny brims that shadowed the forehead have, in the last month, bought hats that sit bonnetlike or wide and flat, on the top of the head, well away from the eyes.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

In Gibeon the Lord appeared to Solomon in a dream by night: and God said, Ask what I shall give thee. And Solomon said, Thou hast shewed unto David thy servant my father great mercy, according as he walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with thee; and thou hast kept for him this great kindness, that thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day.

And now, O Lord my God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father: and I am but a little child: I know not how to go out or come in . . . Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad: for who is able to judge this thy so great a people? . . .

And God said unto him, Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life; neither hast thou asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies; but hast asked for thyself understanding to discern judgement; behold, I have done according to thy words: lo, I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart. (I Kings 3:5-7,9,11,12.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ . . . And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge and in all judgement; that ye may approve things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere and without offence till the day of Christ; being filled with the fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ, unto the glory and praise of God . . .

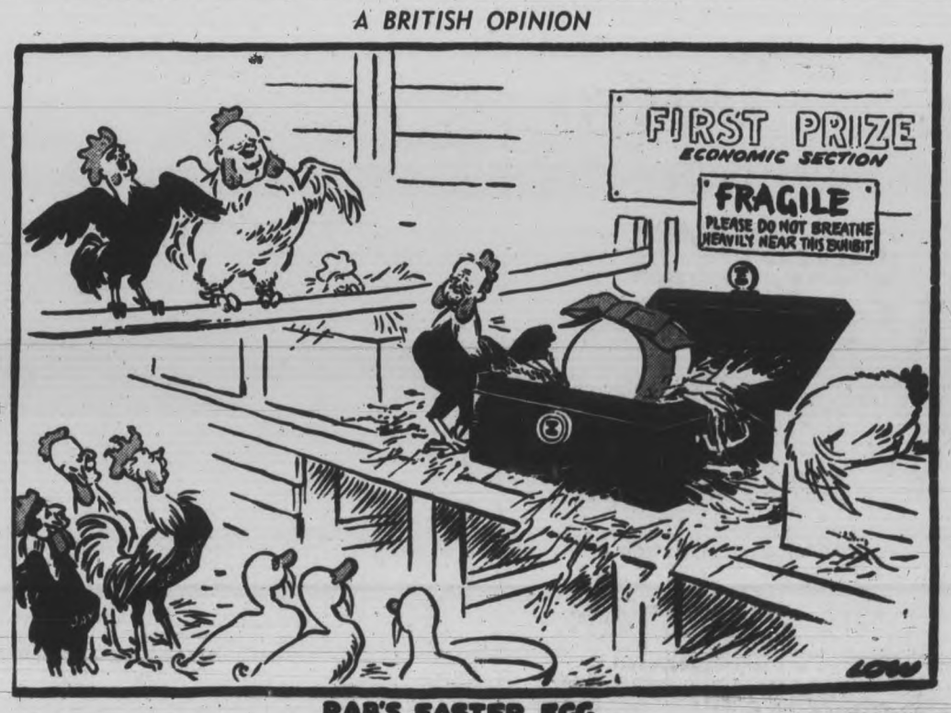
Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ: that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel. (Phil. 1:2,9-11,27.)

Who Says Toronto Is Dull?

(Ottawa Journal)

The things some people say about Toronto are no secret — that it's a dull, dull town, that nothing ever happens between Saturday noon and Monday morning, that in a manner of speaking they fold up the sidewalks after business hours. One would think, to hear some critics, that they made a practice of shooting cannon balls down (or up) Yonge Street every Sunday forenoon to prove Toronto's reaction to that celebrated test of rural serenity.

But the critics are wrong, and we prove it by this quotation from the Toronto Globe and Mail of Monday:



"Seventeen turbulent hours preceded the calm of Easter morning in Toronto.

"There were two knifings; one traffic fatality; 21 persons injured in 18 accidents; one body pulled from the lake; one indecent assault on a juvenile; three premises entered and robbed; two sudden deaths from heart attacks and 35 assorted fires with one woman slightly burned.

"Police arrested 156 persons, 105 of them as common drunks, in the period between 4 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. Sunday. Eight motorists were arrested for driving while their ability was impaired, one was charged with dangerous driving, another for driving while his licence was under suspension and two will receive summonses for careless driving."

And what more could any reasonable person expect in the way of excitement? Toronto dull? Why, there's more going on than you could shake a stick at.

Your Garden:

Weekend Garden Chores on Lawns, Perennial Flowers

BY HENRY PREA (NEA)

The lawn is either a challenge or a nuisance to the novice home gardener. If he wants to achieve a real carpet of green, the sooner he gets busy the fewer worries he will have this summer.

First on the list of chores is to rake the lawn with a flexible metal tooth rake, or leaf rake, to loosen the dead grass and to roughen the surface of the soil so that the fertilizer can enter the soil and reach the grass roots.

A second raking to remove the fertilizer from the grass blades is recommended—then water well so that the fertilizer gets into the soil where it belongs—and also to prevent it burning the grass. A 4-12-4, 4-10-5 or any fertilizer strong in phosphorous is recommended. Apply at the rate of two or three pounds per 100 square feet of lawn area.

The Old Gardener again says "if you feel that you must roll the lawn—do so with the lightest roller you can get—an empty water ballast roller is fine." Remember that rolling is not to pack the soil down or even up bumps or hollows—but to gently firm back into the soil any grass plants which were heaved out by frost action.

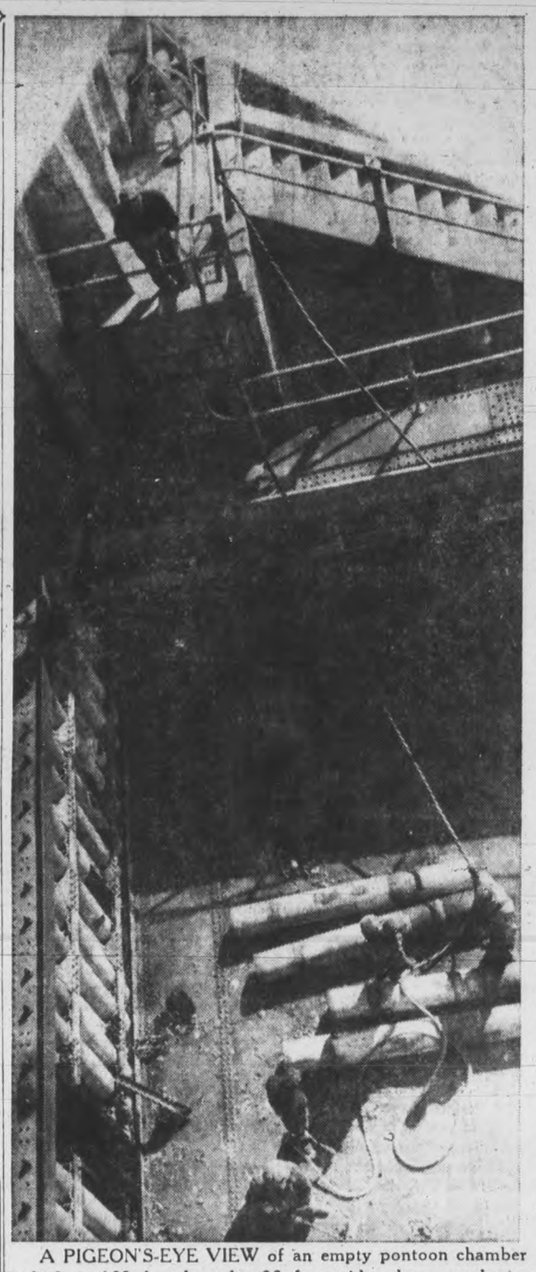
Number one chore is to rake lawn. This roughens soil so fertilizer can get to roots.

Reseeding of bare and thin areas should be done but only after the soil has been loosened to a depth of an inch and some peatmoss and fertilizer has been worked in. Seeding should be light, using no more than one half pound for each 100 square feet. Heavier seeding is wasteful.

Hardy roses may be pruned as soon as one is reasonably sure that danger of freezing weather is past. Replacements of roses which have died during the winter may be made as soon as the ground can be worked. Some losses must be expected.

Hardy chrysanthemums and most other late-flowering perennials may be divided when they start to grow. Have the beds ready, so that they may be replanted as soon as the divisions are made. Chrysanthemums need dividing each spring.

As soon as planting conditions are right, sow the following vegetables: Peas, parsnips, spinach, beets, carrots, lettuce, parsley, radishes and salsify. Potatoes may go in early, too.



It is wise to test vegetable seeds. This testing is easily done by folding them in a strip of blotting paper in a pan of moist sand. If the sand is kept moist and warm for several days, possibly a week, the best of the seeds will have sprouted. With most vegetables, 75 out of each 100 seeds should start. Annual flowers of most kinds should do as well.

Give the asparagus bed an early dressing of complete commercial fertilizer. Say a 10-6-4 mixture.

Dig parsnips that were left in the ground over winter before the tops get too high.

Uncover the perennial beds and strawberry beds gradually. If any of the strawberry plants have been partly heaved out by frost, press them back into place with the foot.

Peterborough Taj Mahal Gets Its Annual Spring Refurbishing And Grease

EXAMINER PHOTOSTORY
By NICK NICKELS

If your spring house cleaning appears to reach gigantic proportions these days there are 10 men at the Lift Lock who know exactly how you feel. They, too, are busy on the annual spring refurbishing of Peterborough's most famous land mark until mid-May when navigation opens.

There is water to be pumped out of the pits which were flooded in fall and water to be flooded into the upper reaches. Four sets of gates, in the upper and lower reaches and in the chambers (pontoons), are examined and tested. All the engines entombed in the bowels of the towers and superstructure are overhauled. Rubber water seals in the gates are examined. There are 1,000 and one details to attend to.

This spring the chambers which have remained dry will be chipped of rust and coated with a waterproof paint. This work is done every five years, or, when dry conditions prevail.

Finally the structure's colour scheme of red, green and aluminum will be restored. By the time the first touring cruiser sounds its claxon as warning that it needs to be lifted "up the hill," all will be in perfect working order.

The Peterborough Examiner has recorded the construction and operation of the Lift Lock for the past 49 years; indeed, it carried a symbol of the famous structure on its mastead for a decade. From its files we learn of the great job of excavation, of the erection and pouring of 26,000 cubic yards of concrete around the 1,400 tons of steel work. On the official opening day of July, 1904, we read further, that the very elements let down a veritable cloudburst of rain to thoroughly soak the great gathering of officials and town folk. Since then, the newspaper has made its operation one of its chief "beats"—the traffic of wood scows and steamers until the early 30's, and the current movement of the 300-odd pleasure craft each summer.

The latter is its only function these days but in the past, before railways webbed the province, there were more practical schemes for its use. The Big Lift at Peterborough and the smaller one at Kirkfield were to have made it possible for the movement of grain boats along the 240-mile Trent system from Georgian Bay to Trenton. But it was a dream that never materialized.

The Trent system as a whole has been called a political "white elephant" but its main, and current function, escaped the hotheads. By its series of reservoir lakes, water control locks and power plants, the Trent like Topsy, "jest growed" into the greatest freshwater drainage control system in the world.

It maintains the constant water table in the whole heartland of Central Ontario and fertile farmlands, cottage colonies on fish-filled lakes, wildlife in the surrounding watershed and power to sell are the results. The whole drainage area developed in ratio to the development of the Trent system.

If you have a liking for statistics on the highest hydraulic lift-lock in the world here they are:

The boat lift is 65 feet from the Little Lake lowland to the top of Armour Hill. The chambers (pontons) are 139 feet long by 53 feet wide and contain eight feet of water. Lockage time is ten minutes and there are three daily locking times during the navigation season, at 9 a.m., 2 and 7 p.m.; "through trip" craft may lock through at any time by special arrangement. The triple concrete towers soar 100 feet in the air from the lower water level and rest on bedrock foundations many feet again below that. A total weight of 1,500 tons of metal and water is lifted with each locking through operation. A lockmaster and crew of two comprise the seasonal operating crew.

The Lift Lock is a tourist sightseers' mecca in summer. They come many miles out of their way to see the structure and consider themselves very lucky if a boat should happen to be going through while they are there. Miles of still and movie film have recorded its beauty and the city-owned film, "The Call of the Kawarthas," made by the late Fred Roy, has shown many tourists their first glimpse of it. They come here later in person to see it for themselves.

And judging from the many darkened parked cars on the landscaped canal banks adjacent to the lock the romances of many a Peterborough couple started in the shadows of its three towers. The Lift Lock is our Taj Mahal and we are proud of it.

PORTABLE COMPRESSOR gets a tinkering from four workmen. It supplies forced air for chipping and scraping rust from the steel work.

PETERBOROUGH'S TRADE MARK, the world's highest hydraulic lift-lock, is a creditable beauty spot to the city in summer.

FABULOUS FINDINGS

Ancient Universe

Long since have the old religions of Greece and Rome become extinct, and there is not a worshipper today of the so-called divinities of Olympus. They have been wafted through the ages from the department of theology to that of literature.

Those ancient Greeks, followed by other nations, at first believed the earth to be flat and circular, their own country being its central point around Mount Olympus, where dwelt the gods.

The earth was crossed from west to east and divided by the Sea, later known as the Mediterranean. Around earth flowed the River Ocean, going from south to north on the western side of earth and in the opposite direction on the eastern side. The earth received its waters from the River Ocean.

It was believed that the northern part of the earth was inhabited by a happy race called the Hyperboreans, dwelling in continuous bliss and spring beyond lofty mountains.

On the south side of the earth were an equally happy people named the Aethiopians, highly favored by the gods.

On the western margin by the stream of Ocean lay a happy place known as the Elysian Plain, where mortals liked by the gods were taken, without tasting death, to enjoy blissful immortality.

Their imagination peopled the Sea with giants, monsters and enchantresses. Around the disc of earth they believed there were other nations beloved by the gods.

Apparently there was no Columbus in Hellas to brave the belief of a flat earth with a possible drop off if one travelled too far. At any rate, mythology records the ancient Greeks were happy. That, of course, could be a fallacy and frailty of humanity—modern man believing the old days were best. And those were very, very old days.

This weekend should be tops for smelt fishing at "The Front". In fact, from some of the reports of fishermen pals it has been good during several nights of this past week. Neighbor Morley Ward of Lakefield Park netted himself 400 at Little Britain one night last week and on Tuesday he and Jim Huggins tooled down to Gage's Creek, east of Port Hope, and with a six-foot net nailed 800, or, enough to fill a washtub heaping full. It was cold sport in Lake Ontario's cold lusty breakers, Morley said, but worth it.

You have to work at this smelt fishing. Aimless dipping in the dark and lack of patience bring back many reports of poor luck. Certainly, there is an element of luck in it but not the tough kind you need for summer sport fishing.

Since smelt don't weigh much they would come expensive at $10 a pound per fish caught. My equipment-dealer scout tells me this is the actual case of one hapless lad who laid out thirty bucks for waders, seine net, this and that and came back to town on Thursday night with three smelt.

The yearly meeting roster of the Peterborough Nature Club arrived a few days ago. I will report their activities from time to time. Current doings for April are:

April 11-12: Annual meeting and convention of their affiliated federation meet at McMaster University, dinner and field day on the Dundas Marsh.

April 24: Final Aububon Screen Tour of the winter season at Queen Mary Auditorium, Tom and Arlene Hadley's picture "Happy Valley".

Our out-of-whack seasons this year have advanced many things and not the least of these, pickerel spawning. According to wildlife men the fish appeared on the spawning beds around March 25 and the run was over by Monday of this week. I have had repeated phone calls from itchy sports about the opening date. It is May 15, my boys, and you will just have to gnaw your knuckles till then.

Trout fishermen have the first go on May 1. It is too bad that regulations don't permit pickerel fishing to open on the same date to give sport-hungry fishermen a chance. Instead, their hordes will tramp the trout country to death for a two-week period, because, that is the way things stand.

More Power To Boschink

Ernie (Time-on-his-hands) Howson, former Peterborough Lock president, tells me he and son Don were up at Stony Lake on April 3, the day the ice went out.

"Earliest break-up I can ever remember," observed Ernie.

The hydro power lines, he says, from west of Crowe's Landing on the south shore, have webbed west past the Duck Pond, behind Green's and Leo Copp's islands, across Breeze's and along the considerable length of Syndicate Island. Meredith Huycke (the old G. A. Morrow island) will probably be the last to tap into the line at the extreme end. A far cry from the old oil lamp days for Boschinkers who will not grieve their messy, dangerous passing.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Canadiens and Bruins tee off on Montreal ice tonight in the second of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup finals, Dick Irvin's crew winning the first 4-2. Third one is in Boston next night and the fourth there Tuesday. Then, they travel back ond forth for a game at a time. Don't sell the Bruins short yet, as they absorbed a 7-0 loss in their opener in Detroit, but went on to take the semi-final set by four games to two. Odds favor the Montrealers about two to one at present, but the gamblers also went overboard on the Wings and wound up holding an empty bag. We look for a stiff final series.

Bob McCabe of this city and Coach Gerry Brown of Oshawa Generals organized the Bruins' puck school in Oshawa last weekend. Bob is scout for Boston in this area, and suggested having a spring school rather than just an autumn tryout camp, though Bruins will have the latter, also. Of 42 prospects at the one-day trial, 16 came from this city and district. The Lakefield and Peterborough boys made a real impression, while Hal Cotton, Brown, McCabe and the Generals' brass also liked the work of four Havelock juves, Chase, Ruttan, Paranuik and Laing. Yes, the local artificial ice arena is paying off now in pro puck prospects. Nor will Boston Bruins be caught with their plans down in this neighborhood.

Backward, Turn Back

A chap gave us a yellowed copy of The Examiner of Oct. 28, 1911, the other day and the sports pages were fill with chatter about the Thanksgiving Day road race coming up, and sponsored by this paper. One picture of the previous year's run showed many hundreds of people lining George St. and packed around the "Y" to see Albert Smoke, great Chemong Indian marathon runner, jogging home in front of the strung-out pack after the 10-mile run from Lakefield. They were taken up there by bus and the race was sanctioned by the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union. These races were run annually from 1906 until sometime in the 20s, and often drew big entries from around Central Ontario.

* * * * * *

Some of the winners down the years were R. P. Best, Ernest Wilson, J. H. Adams, Albert Smoke, Peter Wallace, Bert Cross, Willie Edwards of Keene, Frank Leahy of Douro and others. Well-known runners of that era also included: Fred Simpson of Hiawatha, Ben Howard, Charlie Moss of Havelock, Charlie Thorpe, George Brown, George Robinson, Jimmy McMartin, Garnet Tovey, Ted Heard, Cec Armstrong, Tommy Barnett, J. B. Mann and Charlie Tedford. Starter was Thos. McGeachie; timer, W. E. Wasson, and clerk of course E. N. McWilliams. A junior race of five miles usually was run off the same day around that period. Prizes were: First, gold watch; second, gold ring; third, amethyst tie pin; fourth, coat sweater. What, no cash?

Senior Ball Changes

Dr. Cliff McKee of this city was on the OBA senior ball steering committee which put through some considerable changes in senior rules this spring. The Intercounty Loop is now rated a major league in the OBA, that is a minor pro circuit. There's also a senior "A" class which does away with sudden imports from across the border or anywhere else, and does not permit any pay for play, except a possible split of profits at the end of the season. An American player must have lived a full year in Canada previous to the season of play if he is used by a team. No imports at all may be brought in after Jan. 15 of the current year. Cities of 30,000 or more population must play senior "A," if they have a senior team at all. Such teams must be ready for OBA playdowns by the third Saturday of August.

* * * * * *

Just another four weeks or so and the Lakeshore Baseball Loop will swing into action. Bowmanville were slated for an initial drill today, though windy weather may stop that. If the B's don't use Oshawa players this season, they'll apply for an intermediate "B" rating. A club using imports must go "A". Indications are that Oshawa will field just one club in this circuit, a senior squad. Fred McKim will manage the Cobourg "B" entry, which hopes to draw new players from the Army Ordnance Depot there. Howie Dalton will have nightly workouts next week for the local juniors (known as the Liflocs). Haven't heard yet if the league will consider an entry by the senior Petes. Lefty Bill Dadson has been invited to join the Oshawa (Intercounty) Merchants.

Greenshirts Drop Two In Row To Smiths Falls

OTTAWA (CP)—Johnny (Plumber) Craig, the fast little goalie of Smiths Falls Rideaus, gave his club a 2-0 shutout over Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen Friday night in their Eastern Canada senior hockey finals.

Craig's effort, coupled with goals by Connie Tudin and Eddy Mulligan, gave Rideaus a 2-0 lead in games in the best-of-seven battle for an Allan Cup final berth.

Immediately after the game the Dutchmen boarded a train for Kitchener, where the balance of the series will be played starting next Wednesday.

The previously underdog Rideaus stayed to crow, to thump their goalie on the back, and to take a week-end rest. The victory ran their unbeaten streak in playoff games to 11.

Coach Hal Dewey had nothing but praise for Craig, who made 21 stops against Kitchener. He saved on a sizzling backhand shot by Don Bauer, warding it off with his elbow midway through the third period when Rideaus were a man short on a penalty to Ray Trainor.

SPACE OUT GOALS

Rideaus spaced out their goals—Tudin's early in the second and Mulligan's late in the third period.

Tudin scored from a faceoff beside Kitchener goalie Keith Woodall's net. Gary Moore got the draw and put down a short pass to Tudin who blasted a partially screened shot between Woodall's pads and the goalpost.

Kitchener was pressing to tie the game late in the third when Don Thomson and Dusty Blair relayed passes to Mulligan. He beat defenceman Clare Martin and then shoved the puck past Woodall.

Kitchener held the upper hand for only the first 10 minutes in the game, which was featured by hard and sustained body-checking. When they did break through they were stopped cold by Craig.

Smiths Falls played with the same line-up that won the first game 6-2. Kitchener pulled out forwards Paul Oliver, who scored in the opening game, and Greg Hicks, and replaced them with Don Rope and Harvey Jacklin.

New Goaltender Keeps Flyers Up On St. Mikes

BARRIE (CP)—Barrie Flyers' search for a netminder has ended.

One reason is that Canadian Amateur Hockey Association rules stipulate that once a regular goaltender has been injured and put out of play for the rest of the season and an alternate goaltender has been borrowed, the alternate must remain in goal unless he himself is seriously injured.

The second reason is the fact that Barrie has a perfect record since Marv Edwards, underrated goaltender from St. Catharines Teepees, has occupied the Flyers' nets.

With Bil Harrington, regular Barrie goaltender, in goal, the Flyers won only two out of five games against St. Michael's College in their best-of-nine Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals.

WIN LAST TWO

Since Edwards has taken over, they have tied and taken a 4-3 lead in the series by winning the last two games. They tied the series with a 5-4 win over the Collegians in Toronto Wednesday and Friday night took a 6-4 home-ice decision over the Irish. Since Edwards put on a Flyer uniform, Hap Emms' men have been playing heads-up hockey.

Emms, Barrie coach, was turned down a second time by the OHA executive in an attempt to obtain the services of Montreal junior Canadiens' goaltender Charlie Hodges.

Edwards was a bit shaky at first and St. Michael's forged to a 2-0 lead on goals by Bill Dineen and Murray Costello in the first four minutes.

Edwards quickly improved and Flyers tied the score before the end of the period. Skip Teal and Larry Thibeault were the marksmen.

Baseball Queries To Get Part Answer Monday

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Will New York Yankees make it five in a row? Can Brooklyn lick the seven-year National League jinx and successfully defend its championship? Will Stan Musial cop his seventh batting title? Is Joe Black merely a one-year wonder?

Where will Jackie Robinson play now that he has lost his second-base job to rookie Junior Gilliam? Is Mickey Mantle really the "new" Joe DiMaggio? Will home-run slugger Ralph Kiner bounce back or will he be traded? Will the Braves put Milwaukee on the map and vice versa?

These and other questions await answers as the 16 major league teams await the opening of the season next Monday and Tuesday.

Approximately 300,000 spectators are expected to attend the 10 openers, two of which will take place Monday afternoon.

In special inaugurals, Washington will host the Yankees in the American League and the franchise-shifted Braves will be guests of Cincinnati in the National.

All teams will swing into action the following day. The largest crowd—some 55,000—is expected at Cleveland where the improved Chicago White Sox clash with the Indians.

Baseball-hungry Milwaukee, with its new $5,000,000 stadium packed to its 36,000-seat capacity, will celebrate its return to the major leagues, taking on St. Louis Cardinals.

Some 40,000 are counted on to see the Philadelphia Athletics-Yankee game at New York.

Crowds of 15,000 are expected at St. Louis to see the Browns and Tigers, and at Boston to watch the Senators and Red Sox.

A total of 111,000 is expected to take in the four National League openers with 25,000 at Chicago, Brooklyn and Philadelphia.

The Cubs take on Cincinati, Pittsburgh Pirates visit the Dodgers and New York Giants face the Phils.

BOTH AUSSIES WIN

MONTREAL (CP) — Australian ace Frank Sedgman Friday night downed Jack Kramer 6-4, 17-15 in a meeting here on their professional tennis tour. Kramer now holds a 39-27 edge in matches over the Australian. Sedgman's fellow countryman, Ken McGregor, disposed of Pancho Segura 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 to make it an all-Australian night.

Hockey Juniors Denied Men Needed For Replacements

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pleas by tape-recording and resolutions by a chamber of commerce proved unavailing Friday. Two short-handed junior hockey teams were denied the replacements they demanded for injured players.

Barrie Flyers, embroiled in the Eastern Canada junior semi-finals, and Lethbridge Native Sons, battling for the Western junior crown, pulled out all the stops in an effort to fill gaps in their line-up.

The Alberta club, short three of its regular defencemen, called in Mid Houghton of Calgary Buffaloes, but lost him by a ruling of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when opposing clubs yelped that Houghton, considered the best junior defenceman in the West, isn't needed since the Sons have enough reserves in their own farm system.

The Lethbridge Chamber of Commerce lined up with Frank Boucher, manager of the parent New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, in blasting the CAHA and calling for a new decision on Sons' right to reinforcements but the CAHA stood pat.

W. B. George, president of the CAHA, said he has turned down the last-ditch attempt by Lethbridge.

George said he has told club officials the CAHA will not allow their request for a neutral observer to decide if a medical replacement is needed.

"The rule distinctly states that no injured player can be replaced, except a goalkeeper," the CAHA president said. "The decision of the executive committee is final."

The Barrie club lost goalie Bill Harrington during their Ontario Hockey Association final series against Toronto St. Michael's and tried to talk the OHA governors into allowing them to sign Charlie Hodge of Montreal junior Canadiens.

The OHA demurred on the grounds that Hodge is affected by a suspension slapped by the CAHA on its Quebec branch as the result of another player-eligibility dispute.

The Flyers so far have Marvin Edwards of St. Catharines Teepees, an eliminated OHA club, but pressed their case before the OHA Friday with coach Hap Emms speaking in absentia by means of a tape recording.

But Emms' recorded eloquence failed to sway the league governors, who ruled that Barrie already had used the one replacement to which they were entitled when they signed Edwards

J. M. Roxborough, ast president of the OHA and a member of a sub-committee which earlier rejected Barrie's plea, said he was not consulted before the sub-committee's decision was given to Emms. He said under OHA rules the president should make the decision regarding an injured goalkeeper but said that in this case Emms was told that it was the sub-committee that made the decision.

In his tape recording Emms said that in a telephone conversation with George S. Dudley, secretary-manager of the CAHA, he asked if Hodge was eligible to play for Barrie. Dudley did not say that Hodge was eligible but didn't say he was ineligible. He said if the application was made to the OHA to use Hodge he would advise against it.

In addition to his attempt to obtain Johnny Henderson, goaltender of the eliminated Toronto Marlboros, Emms tried to get Windsor Spitfire goaltender Dennis Riggin.

Lloyd Pollock of Windsor told the meeting Riggin could not play for Barrie because his studies were falling down and his parents did not wish it.

Dudley told the committee that if the request were granted it would "make the CAHA look silly."

FACE LIFTING—Gene Smith massaged Corky Gonzales' nose but the latter put his beak to the grindstone to win an upset, split decision in a 10-round featherweight bout at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena.

Mohawks Win Series Against Soo Indians

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—Cincinnati Mohawks, champions of the International Hockey League won their best-of-seven semi-final series with Sault Ste. Marie by overwhelming the Indians 5-1 Friday night.

Cincinnati took the series 4-1 The Mohawks will meet the winner of the Eastern Hockey League playoffs for the U.S. amateur title.

The Indians, representing the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, trailed 2-0 at the end of the first period and 3-1 at the end of the second. The Mohawk goalie, Claude Evans, made spectacular saves that brough cheers from the crowd of 2,000. Evans had 38 saves against 28 saves by the Sault goalie, Bob Mitchell.

Cincinnati scored twice within minutes after the opening whistle.

Sugar Jim Lauds Rocket's Play In Cup Opener

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Sugar Jim Henry, neat and dapper, stood in the hotel lobby Friday and marvelled about Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Sugar Jim, now 32, has looked at many a hockey shot in his day. As a goalie he has been in and out of the minor leagues half a dozen times. Last season he wore the livery of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League for the first time. His comeback was rated the greatest of any player and he's still going strong.

"When the chips are down Richard is terrific," said Henry.

Sugar Jim looked up thoughtfully as if remembering last year's semi-final of the Stanley Cup series between the Bruins and Montreal Canadiens. Richard, his face blood-smeared, fought his way through the whole Bruin team and scored the deciding goal of the deciding game.

Now the same teams are in the Stanley Cup final. In the opening game Thursday night, with Canadiens leading 3-2, Richard came down centre, split the Boston defence, recovered the puck—and beat Henry again.

"I've never seen anything like that guy in playoffs," said Henry. "Why, even in the sixth game last year he scored the tying goal against me, and Canadiens went on to win that one.

"He has what it takes, and believe me you never know what he is going to do. I'm telling you, when those chips are down that Rocket is the greatest competitor I've seen. The guy is positively marvellous."

The modern Olympic Games were first held in Athens, Greece in 1896.

Nurses Victors Over Black's In Keen Tussle

Civic Nurses nudged out a 43-41 girls' basketball verdict over Black's last evening in the YW gym to sew up their city playoff series. It was tight all the way, with Nurses only in front by 22-19 at the halfway mark, and they were crowded right to the final whistle in a keen cage contest.

Carol Chestnut was the big shot for Civic in the first half to rack up 14 points, including six field baskets. Pat Martyn was good for six points and Bev Dawe two. For Black's in this half, Carol Gibson clicked for seven points, Marney Hollingsworth five, and Rita Naylor, Edith McIlhagga and Carol Raper two each.

Carol Gibson paced Black's in the last half drive with 10 points, two of them on free tosses. Mabel Gillen unwound for five points, Rita Naylor getting four, and Marney Hollingsworth and Carol Raper two each. They were just down on basket at the finish. For the Nurses in the last session, Jeanne Bell and Bev Dawe accounted for five points each, while Carol Chestnut and Pat Martyn were hooping the ball for four each. Fran Hannam dropped in three foul shots in the hot closing stages of the struggle. Teams:

Nurses: C. Chestnut, J. Bell, F. Hannam, A. Rose, B. Dawe, M. Flavelle, P. Martyn.

Black's: C. Gibson, R. Naylor, M. McGill. M. Middleton, J. Fredericks, M. Hollingsworth, E. McIlhagga, C. Raper, M. Gillen.

Durocher Hopes Giants Over Losing Streak

By BOB HOOBING

New York Giants returned home Saturday from their exhibition tour with manager Leo Durocher feeling his team has recovered from the effects of a recent nine-game losing streak.

When Cleveland handed the Giants their eighth straight loss 12-11 April 1, Lippy Leo didn't show up for a scheduled speaking engagement in Denver.

By the end of the following day the Indians, major spring opposition for the Giants, held a 10-2 edge over the Polo Grounds crew and were threatening to make a runaway of their series.

Durocher's attitude has changed considerably since then and his National League pennant contenders, winners of seven of their last eight starts, can break even in their 22-game warm-up series with Cleveland by whipping the Indians today and Sunday in New York.

New York's latest triumph was a 9-7 comeback effort against the Indians at Lynchburg, Va., Friday featuring Giant batting power in which homers accounted for 12 runs.

DROP LEAD

Ray Katt's three-run blast in the eighth put the Giants ahead 8-7. Hank Thompson made sure with a ninth-inning bases-empty homer. In the third, Whitey Lockman sparked a four-run outburst, hitting a home run with two men aboard.

Bill Glynn drove in six Cleveland runs—five on a pair of homers.

New York's Sal Maglie and Cleveland's Bob Lemon, both of whom went the first seven innings, found the going rough.

Lemon left the game with a 7-5 lead but had been tagged for six hits including Lockman's wallop.

Maglie, "The Barber" of control fame, was relieved by Monte Kennedy after yielding 12 hits and all seven Indian tallies.

Home runs played a big part in the only other major contest not cancelled by the weather as Cincinnati's rejuvenated Redlegs bombarded Detroit 7-4 at Cincinnati.

Jim Greengrass, Wally Post and Ted Kluszewski tagged loser Billy Hoeft for bases-empty homers in the middle innings.

The Tiger catching corps—Matt Batts and Joe Ginsberg—accounted for three more tallies.

Cincinnati's Herm Wehmeier gave up eight hits in going the distance for the winners.

Toronto Girls Take Lead In Basketball Final Play

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Cliftons Friday night took a 17-point lead in a two-game total-poirt ladies intermediate Canadian basketball championship final by defeating Cornwall 50-33.

The second game will be played here Saturday.

Theresa Jones of Cliftons outclassed the field with 27 points on eight field goals and 11 free shots to lead her club to the win. Next high scorer was Dorothy Unroe with 11 points on four field goals and three free shots.

Top marksman for Cornwall was Lorraine Kaneb with 16 points on seven baskets and two free throws. Charlene Kaneb netted seven and Frances Snetsinger netted five.

Toronto took a 4-0 lead early in the first quarter and was never threatened in the session. At the whistle the home team led 11-6.

Jones, the tallest girl on the Clifton team at six feet three inches, began to click in the second and picked up eight points. Cliftons continued strong throughout the period and had a 10-point lead at one time.

Cornwall picked up 11 points in the quarter on four field goals and three free throws. Toronto with four field goals and seven singles led 26-17 at the half.

Cornwall tried desperately in the third quarter but couldn't penetrate Cliftons' strong defence Toronto got a number of breakaways and made them count. Cornwall failed to score a field goal in the period, picking up only three singles. Cliftons added 10.

In the final quarter Cornwall didn't net a basket until the 4:30 mark and counted only one free throw. It came through with its second basket one minute later. Toronto lost Olga Romanko on fouls with two minutes left in the game.

Cornwall seemed to find the mark in the last minute and looked as if they could win the contest. But the Toronto lead proved too big and at the final whistle Cornwall trailed by 17 points.

Hot Hogan Leads Masters Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Ben Hogan, the grim little golfer who once had a masters tournament dedicated to him, took charge of another masters Friday as he shot his way into the lead at the 36-hole mark.

Hogan put a round of 69 on top of Thursday's 70 for a two-day total of 139. That's five strokes under par for Augusta National, the spacious and soul-testing course in the red clay hills of east Georgia.

Augusta's par is 36-36—72 for the 6,900-yard layout.

At the end of play in the second round, which started in a thunderstorm and ended in bright sunshine, Hogan had a one-stroke margin over Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., and two over Chick Harbert of Detroit and Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y.

Tied at 142 were ex-open champion Lloyd Mangrum, who shot a 68 for the day's best round; Ed Oliver of Palm Springs, Calif., and Milton Marusic of Herkimer, N.Y.

Defending champion Sam Snead who shot a 70 Friday and only got credit for a 71 because of a mixup on the scorecard he signed, couldn't control his wood shots Friday and wound up with 75 for a 146 total.

Irvin Pondering Changes In Canadiens' Line-Up "Maybe Before Game Time"

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—Dick Irvin, who likes nothing better than confusing as many hockey people as possible all at once, may spring some Stanley Cup line-up changes on Boston Bruins tonight. For a coach whose team has just won three straight final play-off games, any such deviation from stand-pat practice is confusing in itself. Only a week ago Irvin reshuffled his Montreal Canadien lines and whipped Chicago Black Hawks twice in the cup semi-final. Then he used the same line-up in beating the Bruins 4-2 Thursday night to open the best-of-seven final.

Now he says:

"I doubt if Billy Reay can play. I'll use Paul Meger in that case. I'm thinking of some other changes. Maybe I'll make them just before game time."

ROOKIES GAVE PEP

Irvin knows that the injection of four rookies, including goalie Jacques Plante, into the line-up put pep into the team and proved the turning point in the Chicago series.

If he thinks some of them are a bit tired he may come back with refreshed regulars. It is doubtful, however, that he will drop, big Eddie (Spider) Mazur, the rookie from Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League who ruined the Hawks with two goals in the last game and played well Thursday.

Gerry McNeil, the regular goalie, was injured in practice since his displacement and is hardly ready to be considered, especially in view of Plante's good work.

A defence position might be open. Irvin has been going along with four defencemen. Big Jim Macpherson is a pretty handy man, and of no value sitting around as a spectator.

PATRICK HOPEFUL

Coach Lynn Patrick of the Bruins had reason to look forward to tonight's game with optimism His great play-maker, veteran Milt Schmidt, will be back and it's a certainty the Boston attack won't look as sluggish as it did Thursday.

Schmidt missed the first game because of a skate cut. With one of the four stitches removed, he worked out in the Bruins' drill Friday.

Goalie Jim Henry, too, is ready. There was some excitement in the Boston camp Thursday when Henry showed up for the game reporting stomach miseries and weakness. But he insisted on playing.

Patrick said Henry "played a fine game, better than the rest of the team, and his attack of 'flu or something had nothing at all to do with our defeat."

After tonight's clash, the teams move to Boston for games Sunday and Tuesday.

Yugoslavs Skip Soccer Team For Freedom

VIENNA (AP)—Five members of a Yugoslav soccer team who came to Austria to play Easter holiday games refused to go home and have been given political asylum in the British zone, officials said Friday night.

The five said they had been "continually spied upon and discriminated against" because they refused to join the Communist party in Yugoslavia.

The five were members of a Croatian state league team named Sisak. The rest of the team returned to Yugoslavia.

Conversion Can Be Sudden As It Is Real And Complete

By WILLIAM F. GILROY, DD.

Conversion, as the word implies, means a turning about. And no turning about was ever more complete than that in which Saint Paul turned from his persecuting zeal of threats against the disciples of the Lord (Acts 9: 1), to become a Christian disciple himself.

Sudden conversions, strange as they may seem, have been by no means rare. In many instances, as I think was true in the conversion of Saint Paul, they are not as sudden as they seem to be. Though the experience of sudden conversion may be very real and may have a clear evidence of its determining cause.

The conversion of Saint Paul as he himself has vividly described it in Acts 22, took place upon the road to Damascus. He was going there to persecute the Christians. It was accompanied by a challenging voice and blindness. But I think his conversion really began on the day he stood guarding the garments of those who stoned Stephen to death (Acts 7:58).

In the story of Paul's conversion he was "kicking against the pricks." But what was pricking him and making him all the more furious in his resistance? It was the voice of conscience.

Could one versed in the Hebrew Scriptures who a few years later was to write so eloquently of divine and brotherly love, see a man who was being stoned to death while praying for forgiveness for his enemies and crying, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit," and not hear a voice of challenge in his heart? That I think was when the conversion of Paul began.

Nevertheless conversion can be as sudden as it is real and complete.

Often it has come through crucial or enlightening experience, which has changed one's views and attitude. It is as if one has always lived in a valley. Then one day climbing a mountain peak, he suddenly sees a world that he has never known before. There can be peaks on which the atmosphere of the soul may be completely changed.

Nor are complete conversions either sudden or through some long process, as strange and unexplainable as they may seem. Underlying such conversions is usually a conscientious attitude. In these cases conversion means a change of association and allegiance rather than a change from a life of sin to a life of righteousness.

Paul said that he had lived in all good conscience all his life. Others called his Christian way heresy (Acts 24:14), but he called it still worshipping the God of his fathers. Conversion was an emergence into what he considered a further and better way.

In all such conversions there is an experience, strange as it may seem to others, that brings spiritual satisfaction. Sin, insincerity, and untruth are the only enemies of the soul.

Junior Farm Schools Train Teenage Boys

MANTECON. — To meet a shortage of skilled men in agriculture, the Mexican government operates 14 junior agricultural schools. Here boys who may not have the time or the money to go on to what corresponds to our Agricultural Colleges, get a basic training that prepares them to introduce modern methods on the small farms.

* * * *

Such a school is the Escuela Practica de Agricultura Reyes Mantecon in Mantecon just outside Oaxaca. Here are 135 boys from 13-18, all on scholarships. Upon graduation the 12 with the best marks are given scholarships to take more advanced training.

* * * *

When a youngster feels he wants to study agriculture, he comes to the school and writes an examination. The number is limited to 135 and only the highest qualified are taken. Those that fail may try again the next year provided they are within the age limit. These boys are mostly sons of men who got small holdings of land from the government when the big estates were broken up. Since many of the parents have little agricultural knowledge the sons go back and help improve the standards. Other boys are sons of small ranch owners.

* * * *

It is run like a boarding school, the students living in. They have from Saturday afternoon to Monday morning off. But most of them return from their homes Sunday night, the teachers said.

* * * *

PREPARATORY WORK

In the bigger centres children get six years of primary school education, while in the towns it is usually four years. Therefore the agricultural school has to give two complete courses totalling two years to bring the students up to those in the cities before they do much in the agricultural study. Then they receive two years of elementary agricultural training.

* * * *

The following subjects are studied in the last two years: First year—practical agriculture; industrial agriculture such as bees, fruit, vegetables and preserves; shops (machinery and carpentry); theory of agriculture; elements of botany; regional geography which includes the country where the schools are, the division of the country into zones, climate, economics, transportation and distribution of products; Spanish, arithmetic, geometry, physics, chemistry, physical education and military exercises.

* * * *

The second year the boys study: cattle (handling of cattle and poultry); industrial agriculture which includes products of milk and meat; shops; rural buildings; zoology; constructive drawing (blueprints to plan projects for farms); elements of economics and rural administration; agricultural accounting (how to keep books, etc.); Spanish; science of measuring land; physical education and military training.

* * * *

The principal, Sr. Juan Antonio Aguilar Ordanez, was most kind about giving me every facility to see the school. The vice-principal, Sr. Rudolfo Roman Bracamontes, took me in charge the afternoon I spent there and explained their operations. Although he has only been at this school one month he has been working for 10 years for the department and has been a professor for 25 years. He teaches geography, Spanish, arithmetic and geometry.

* * * *

39 CLASSES IN THE SCHOOL

There are 39 classes and only 6 professors which means that one teacher will teach a complete grade. All the technical classes are taken by the engineers and the cultural ones by the professors. There is an army sergeant who gives military training, like our cadet work.

* * * *

The children have neat dormitories, each boy with a cot and a locker. Their day starts at 5:30 a.m. and they have to report for classes at 6 a.m. Some go directly to the fields and those who haven't classes have to clean the school as part of their training. There is a directed study hour from 8-9 a.m. so that they will not have to study much at nights. Lunch is at 1 p.m. and classes are finished at 6 p.m. with supper at 7:30. The boys work at night only when it is urgent. If there is an emergency, such as a breakdown in irrigation, they all go to the fields to see how the teachers handle it.

* * * *

The afternoon I was there some of the boys were working on a small irrigation project. Others were busy with tractors. Those having time off were sitting around laughing and talking like boys anywhere. It was a happy place.

* * * *

AN OLD HACIENDA

The school is built on an old hacienda of which only the ruins remain. They have an excellent irrigation system for the land and a big swimming pool. They also have their own water purification plant. The water comes from a spring in the mountains.

* * * *

There are homes for the married teachers and the bachelors bunk in a building nicknamed 'the hotel," Sr. Roman said.

* * * *

The schools operate for 10 months in the year, but these months vary according to the climate where the school is. At Mantecon they run from February to November. Others have different terms. This school also has a herd of 20 cows.

* * * *

The government takes every care of the students under its roof. A doctor comes daily from Oaxaca to check the boys and he arrives about 7:30 a.m. If there is an emergency, the boy is taken by car to the doctor in Oaxaca. There is also a small school hospital in charge of a kindly nurse. It is clean and modern and they can handle up to 10 patients in a pinch. Most of the cases are malaria and grippe.

Main Street Topics

FEATURE AIR CADETS

John Fisher, popular Canadian radio commentator and broadcaster, will feature Royal Canadian Air Cadets in his talk on Sunday, April 11, at 7 p.m., as an opening of air cadet week.

OTTAWA BAND VISITS

The Fisher Park Collegiate Band of Ottawa will visit PCVS next Friday and play at the assembly from 3 to 4 p.m. Entertainment will be provided for the visiting students, the Board of Education have decided.

ATTENDS LIBRARY MEET

Miss Genevieve Fowler, PCVS Librarian, will attend the 51st annual convention of the Ontario Library Association which meets May 24-26 at McMaster University, Hamilton. Permission was granted at the April meeting of the Board of Education.

GLOBE SHATTERING

One evidence of the high winds that raced through Peterborough Friday was the shattered glass around an outdoor telephone booth on George St. at the YMCA parking lot. The globe indicating the booth was blown from its standard and smashed on the sidewalk.

COUNTY ROADS FAIR

County roads are in fair condition this spring, Jack Kean, county engineer and road superintendent reports. At present all roads are passable for motor traffic though there are soft spots. Mr. Kean says the favorable weather has allowed the frost to come out gradually. Several roads have been blocked for a day or so but they are now all open.

HOUSE SCORCHED

A smouldering exploded firecracker is believed to have started a fire at 1 a.m. today in a back shed at the home of Alex Clements, 288 Brock St. The fire did only a few dollars damage and was put out by firemen with a handpump. Flames spread from inside the storage shed and scorched the side of the frame dwelling.

CARS BANG AT DRIVEWAY

Minor damages resulted from a two-car accident Friday on Caddy St. Neither of the drivers, Ronald Bryan of 313 Caddy St. nor Edward Bedding of 178 Hazlitt St., were injured. Bryan was driving east on Caddy while Bedding was backing up across the road to enter a driveway when the accident occurred. Bedding's car was damaged to the extent of $50, and Bryan's, to the extent of $30. PC William A. Scott investigated.

CAR CATCHES FIRE

Leaking gasoline that fell on a hot manifold started a fire Friday afternoon that burned out the engine wiring in a car owned by Robert Ross of Fraserville. Mr. Ross was about to drive through the Aylmer St.-Hunter St. intersection and he stepped on the starter. Instantly flames flew up from under the hood. John Lynch, a CPR express man, used a fire extinguisher that was in his truck for such an emergency, and he put out the blaze.

PLAN TO UNVEIL

Members of the supervision committee of the Board of Education and of the Kenner Memorial Fund committee have together inspected wall space for the Kenner portrait at the Kenner Collegiate. Plans are being made, says W. Howard MacDonald, chairman of the Fund committee, for a formal unveiling of the portrait on Saturday, April 25, when donors from out of town will be present, and also the distinguished painter Kenneth Forbes who was commissioned to do the portrait of the late Dr. H. R. H. Kenner.

FLOWERS ON MARKET

The last couple of weeks there has been a steady flow of flowers making their appearance at the city market. This morning for the first time there were Baby Tears, Wandering Jew ivy, Calceolarias and Geraniums. There was also a good display of various knitted articles and baked goods. Even though egg prices were down five cents the market remained fairly slow. Grade A oversize eggs were selling for 60 cents, grade A large 55 cents and medium 45 to 50 cents. Spring chickens were selling for their usual 50 cents a pound.

TWELFTH ANNUAL CLOSING EXERCISES for the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College were completed Friday night when the commencement exercises were held at St. Paul's Presbyterian church. This is the second class to graduate since the college moved to Peterborough. Valedictorian Theunis Botha (centre, top) of Johannesburg, South Africa, chats with other student commencement speakers Mary Lou Rice of Collingwood and Wesley Edwards of Toronto. Brother and sister, Esther and Peter Sorensen (lower photo), of Argentina, congratulate each other. Twenty-seven students from Canada, the United States, South Africa and South America formed the graduating class.

1,000 Witness Graduation Of 27 Students Of Eastern Bible College

"Yours is the privilege to hold forth the light, the torch, the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ," the Rev. C. A. Ratz, principal of the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College said in his charge to 27 college graduates Friday night. More than 1,000 people filled St. Paul's Presbyterian Church to capacity for the 12th graduation exercises of the college and the second to be held in Peterborough.

The graduation diplomas were presented by the Rev. W. H. Found, president of the college.

Theunis Botha of Johannesburg, South Africa, was class valedictorian.

"We have been privileged to spend three years on the banks of the greatest discoveries there are —those that unfolded the glories of our Lord Jesus Christ," Mr. Botha said in his address.

PREPARATION ESSENTIAL

"I am convinced that these years of preparation have been essential before we launched out in the great vital work of the teaching of the word of God."

Mr. Botha paid high tribute to, "the devoted teaching of a spirit-filled faculty." And in his concluding remarks he charged the class to carry the word of Christianity all through the world.

The president of the college presided for the exercise. The invocation was given by the Rev. B. L. Embree of Penticton, B.C. and the scripture read by the Rev. Norman Schlarbaum, dean of men.

The Rev. W. B. Greenwood of Belleville introduced the faculty and other persons taking part in the exercises.

Mrs. Mary V. Swanson, dean of women, outlined the progress of the newly-formed college alumni association. She announced that the alumni had decided to give a scholarship of $100 to the second-year student who had obtained the highest standing and who had shown the proper attitude and deportment and cooperation in the school.

DIVIDED SCHOLARSHIP

The scholarship this year was divided in two and presented to second-year students, Miss Beulah Beisil and Miss Vivian Vtriainen.

The music for the evening was presented by the entire college body and a choral group from the college under the direction of the Rev. F. H. Parlee, of the Full Gospel Pentecostal Church and

Cancer Society Opens Campaign To Raise $8,000

Monday is the opening day for the 1953 fund-raising and membership campaign of the Canadian Cancer Society in Peterborough County. The campaign is being organized and conducted by the Peterborough unit of the society.

Approximately 300 canvassers will start this country-wide canvass which has an $8,000 objective.

The money raised in this campaign will be used in the threefold program of the society in Peterborough as across Canada—education, welfare and research.

The motive behind the membership drive as part of the campaign is to bring a better understanding of cancer, its symptoms and treatment, to people in Peterborough city and county.

VISIT TOWNS

During the month various radio programs outlining the work of the society will be presented and the mobile unit, The Little Red Door, will be going to Lakefield, Apsley, Keene, and Havelock next week with a registered nurse in charge.

Frank Foster is chairman of the campaign and Mrs. Clare Stuart is chairman of the canvass committee. Also on the committee are Mrs. Joseph Dunkerley. Mrs. James Perry, Mrs. Ed. Collins, Mrs. Gordon Bennett, Mrs. Ruby Brooks and Miss Joan Austin. Donald Lowrie is in charge of publicity and Dr. Louis Zacks in charge of speakers.

During the campaign Mrs. Bennet will be at the Peterborough Unit's headquarters, The Little Red Door, 440 Water St., to accept donations and answer questions.

Premier Frost Urges Centres Use Grant To Level Off Taxes

Premier Leslie M. Frost told a Peterborough audience Friday night that in 1954 the Ontario government would be making a special $12,000,000 grant with no strings attached to the 1,000 or so municipalities in the province. And he said the government would like to see the municipalities use as much of this grant as possible to ease their tax rates. Premier Frost was visiting Peterborough to officially open the new $600,000 St. Peter's elementary school for boys at Brock and Reid Sts. An audience of 400 heard the premier in the school auditorium.

He said that this unconditional grant was "unparalleled in this country," and he added that the government was introducing it because "we don't want the municipalities spending money to get money."

"We must keep tax rates and levies as moderate as we can," said Premier Frost. "I'm making that the keynote for 1953.

"I'm going to ask the 1,000 municipalities of this province to hand on as much as possible of the $12,000,000 in contained or reduced tax rates."

INCREASED HELP

Now that there is a levelling off of prices it will enable the municipalities to use the money granted by the government to level off or reduce taxes, he said. In the last 10 years there has been a six-fold increase in provincial government assistance to the municipalities. The sum has risen from $20,000,000 to $125,000,000 a year.

Premier Frost complimented the Separate School Board for being able to build an 11-classroom school, complete with a large gymnasium and an auditorium seating 886 people, for $600,000.

On a personal note, he said that Mrs. Frost and he had arrived in the city Friday afternoon and had a visit with the Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough. During the opening ceremony Mrs. Frost was presented with a bouquet by seven-year-old Paul Young, son of Dr. and Mrs. Bob Young, and a Grade I pupil at St. Peter's.

"I always regard Peterborough as one of our steady, solid communities in this province. My visit here recalls many old memories; it is like a second home to me."

Peterborough is expanding, not only in physical size but educationally, said Premier Frost. And much the same thing is going on all over Ontario.

By the end of 1953 the population of the province will have exceeded the five-million mark. Fifty per cent of all people emigrating to Canada settle in Ontario. The population of the province is increasing by 180,000 every year; that means a community of 15,000 people springing up every 30 days.

With these statistics the Premier indicated that Ontario is "an expanding province," and he said it was rapidly becoming "a show place of America."

MAJOR PROBLEM

Education is a major problem, he said.

"Last year in Ontario there were 750,000 school pupils. The growth is about 50,000 every year. Last year—with all these magnificent schools—we were just about able to keep pace with the pupil growth . . . In 1953 we are going to have to accommodate another 50,000 . . . and by the time we reach 1960 we are going to need to have accommodation for 1,[illegible]000 pupils. That's not the end of the story but it takes us ahead for seven years."

In the last 10 years grants for education in Ontario have gone up from $8,000,000 to $64,000,000.

This eight-fold increase during the last decade is shown locally,

Freak Accident Victim Condition Satisfactory

Clayton Connolly, RR 10, Peterborough, victim of a freak accident Thursday near Indian River, remains in "satisfactory" condition at St. Joseph's Hospital today Connolly suffered a fractured skull when the rim blew off a tire he was inflating.

"It takes a day or two to tell with these cases," a hospital spokesman said. According to a witness of the accident, Connolly's head was "caved in" by the impact of the steel rim.

Mine-Mill Asks New Agreement

TORONTO (CP)—The International Union of Mine, Mill and Amelter Workers (Ind) has submitted demands for a new collective agreement covering Sudbury and Port Colborne employees of the International Nickel Company of Canada.

The demands include a wage-welfare package equivalent to 20 cents an hour.

Other requests for the 16,000 workers include wages, full financing by the company of surgical and insurance plans, a better holiday plan, an additional paid statutory holiday, time-and-a-half for Sunday work and five- and 10-cent shift premiums.

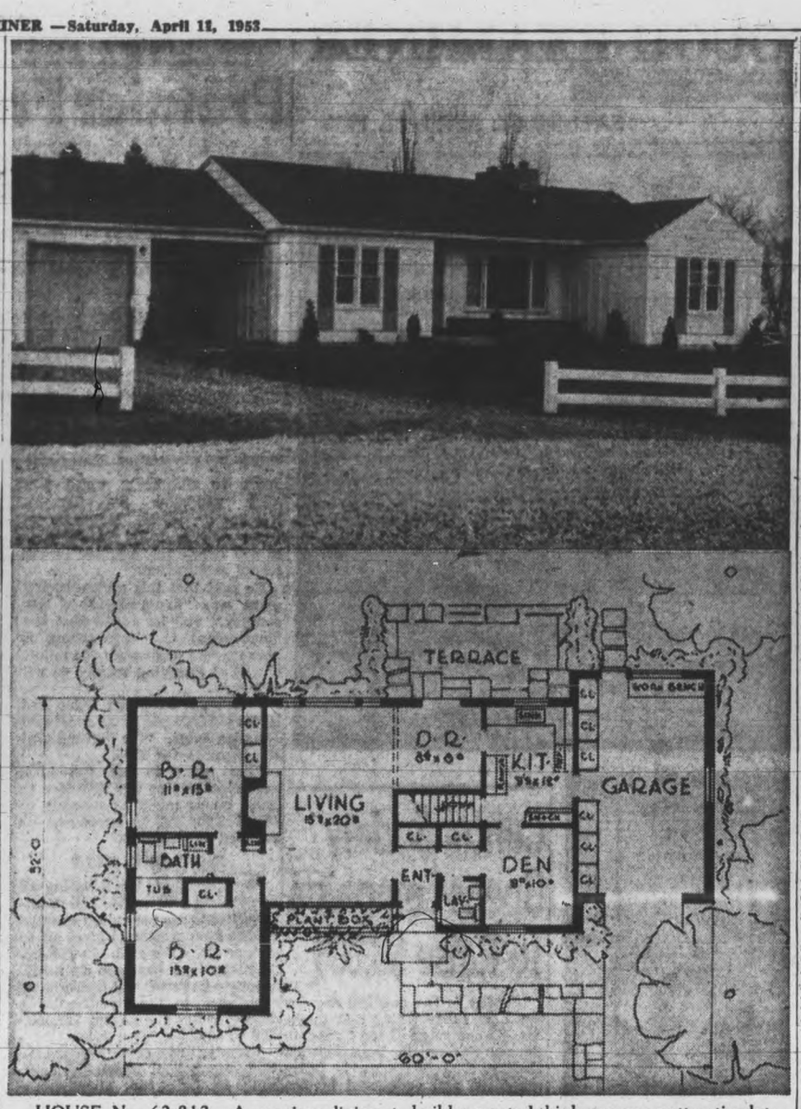
Give Final Reading To Gas Pipeline Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—After a debate stretching through weeks, the Commons Friday gave third and final reading to a bill to incorporate Mid-Continent Pipe Lines, Ltd.

The company proposes to pipe natural gas from Alberta as far east as Montreal.

The incorporating bill was approved by the House with amendments specifying that all the company's lines must be built within Canada.

Before the bill becomes law, the amendments must be approved by the Senate, which had passed the measure without them.



Sponsors of the measure have said the pipeline is planned from the Alberta gas fields along the general route of the Canadian Pacific Railway to Winnipeg and thence eastward to Ontario and Quebec by a route north of Lake Superior.

Contract Talks Stalled

CHATHAM (CP)—Negotiations between sugar beet growers and the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company on a 1953 contract remained deadlocked after a meeting here Friday night. A company spokesman said the contract was not settled but declined to comment.

Thug Gets $250

ORILLIA (CP)—Thieves broke into the refrigeration room of the Orillia Frigid Lockers Friday and took $250. C. W. Price, owner of the lockers, said when he arrived at work he found the wire screen on a side door had been pushed in. The money had been hidden under a pile of meat and other foodstuffs.

HOUSE No. 62-812—A spacious living room that commands a view of both front and rear is a desirable feature of this home. Not to be overlooked is the den and full basement with a large recreation room space, well planned utilities and storage. The builder erected this home on an attractive lot, reversing the plans as they appear here to take advantage of special features of the site. Contains about 1,170 sq. ft. Lag In Effort To Reserve Land

HAMILTON (CP) — K. C. Dalglish of Toronto said today that expanding Ontario communities are lagging in the effort to reserve land for recreational, educational and scientific purposes.

He told a meeting of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists that the cities of Toronto, Hamilton, London and Woodstock are among the worst offenders.

Mr. Dalglish, chairman of the federation's parks committee, said Detroit presents a contrast to what is being done about preserving recreational areas in larger Ontario communities.

He said that starting in 1944 an authority serving the Detroit metropolitan area has acquired 7,500 acres of land to preserve and develop into parks and other recreational facilities.

He said that the Toronto city planning board also announced conservation plans in 1944 but since then has done nothing toward the acquisition or preservation of the areas outlined in the plan, He said similar lack of foresight is being shown by other expanding Ontario cities.

Ottawa Student Wins Davies' Poetry Prize

KINGSTON (CP)—Award of the Senator Rupert Davies poetry prize of $500 to William H. Jenkins, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Jenkins, Ottawa, was announced Friday by principal W. A. Mackintosh of Queen's mathematics and physics student.

The Kingston Whig-Standard essay prize of $500 was divided between Mary Hoyce Booth, Fort William, and Nigel R. Gander, London, England. They wrote 5,000 words on "The Two Elizabeths." Both are arts students.

Get Six Years Each

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Howes and Edward Turner, both 25, were sentenced Friday to six years each in Kingston penitentiary for armed robbery. Last March they forced their way into the home of Reginald Bevington, captain of the city fire department and collector for the firemen's credit union, and forced him to hand over $200. The robbers then fled—right into the arms of police waiting at the back of the house.

MUSIC HATH CHARMS?—For some it does, but not for the unidentified toddler, left, who covers his ears as the National Symphony Orchestra plays a special "Tiny Tots" concert in Washington. Disagreeing with the critic is little Jacqueline Wohl, 2½, standing fascinated amid string section.

Holds Judgment Rubber Combine

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven reserved judgment Friday on the five major rubber companies which have pleaded guilty to charges of operating a combine.

Crown Attorney T. H. Phelan asked for the maximum fine of $10,000 for each company and a prohibitory order preventing them from continuing the combine.

The firms are: Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, Dominion Rubber Company, Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Company, and Gutta Percha and Rubber.

In asking for the prohibitory order Mr. Phelan said it would only be enforceable in Ontario. It is necessary, he said, because of the wide scope of the combine, its detriment to the public and the length of time.

Mr. Justice Treleaven said the words "other persons" in the suggested prohibition order "certainly covers people not before me" and he felt the Crown was asking him to do "a tremendous thing."

Held Up By Ice Jams, Fleet Waits At Port

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Held up by ice jams at the Sault locks for the last few days, a big fleet of grain and package freighters is expected to reach the Lakehead ports during the week-end. The grain shipping rush, which got off to a big start when navigation opened, is expected to revive next week.

Only five carriers were under the spouts at the grain elevators Friday and another five or six are expected to take on loads today.

Shipping officials say the vessels are beginning to get through at the Sault and should reach here by Sunday.

Rare Books Lost

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Fire destroyed rare books and relics worth thousands of dollars in Canberra's civic centre early today. University professors called from their beds raced in and out of the blazing building attempting to save irreplaceable records, a fossil collection built up during the last 40 years, and books from the National University College.

The bones of St. Andrew, patron Saint of Scotland, rest in the Cathedral at Amalfi in Italy.

Furniture Refinishing Takes Patience

Transparent finishes given old furniture in the process of refinishing readily show up flaws and mistakes made in the various operations preceding the final coating. Careless work in any one o fthe steps may ruin the whole effect.

To begin with, remove the old finish with paint and varnish remover applied with a brush to small areas. Let it stand for a few minutes until the finish is softened, then remove the finish with a putty knife and No. 2 steel wool.

Since many removers contain wax, it is best to wash the entire surface down with turpentine and wipe it dry with a clean cloth. This removes all traces of wax. Be sure to reach all hard-to-get-at places with the turpentine.

After this, wash the surface with a weak solution of washing soda in water, rinse it with clear water and allow plenty of time for drying. Stain, varnish or other coatings should never be applied until the wood is absolutely dry.

The importance of having a smooth, clean surface can't be overemphasized, either. In preparing old wood to receive stain, sandpaper with No. 00 garnet paper on flat surfaces, and No. 0 or No. 00 steel wool on curved areas.

remove all traces of dust and particles of wood with a clean cloth foistened in turpentine.

Oil stain is considered the easiest to use. Apply it with a brush, let it stand for a few minutes to penetrate the pores of the wood, then wipe off the surplus with a cheesecloth. Or in extremely fine work, oil stain can be applied to small areas at a time with a cloth.

Since the stain lightens considerably in the 24-hour drying period, the shade it will produce is hard to judge. So it is best to keep the stain light and apply more, if necessary.

If varnish is your choice of finish coating, one coat should be enough. Flow it on to the surface with a soft-bristle brush. Avoid pressure on the brush, apply the varnish smoothly and evenly to small areas. For best results on furniture, the brush should pass over the surfaces only once, but it takes practice to do this and avoid "back-tracking."

An easier means of finish-coating furniture is with penetrating wood finish, which strikes into bare wood, hardening fibres and sealing pores. One manufacturer claims its penetrating finish is exceptionally durable and scratch-resistant.

This finish is applied with brush or cloth and the excess is wiped off in about 15 minutes with a clean cloth. After it dries for six or eight hours, apply another coat the same way.

The material is colorless, but darkens the wood slightly, accenting the natural beauty of the grain. It dries to a soft sheen and is ready for waxing. Oil stain may be applied with penetrating finish in a mixture of the two.

In staining and varnishing chairs, make it easy for yourself by placing them upside down on a table to coat the undersides first.

SANDING and staining or finishing chairs is much easier done at table height. Coat under sides first.

Where and How to Insulate Building Concrete Floors

Concrete floors should be designed to produce comfortable living conditions and to conserve fuel by restricting heat loss. Important considerations are the floor temperature which can be maintained, and the method of insulation to achieve the desired result.

For comfort, the floor temperature should not fall below 60° F. at approximately 1 foot from the outside wall when the room temperature is maintained at 70° F. Temperature of the floor farther from the outside walls, will of course be higher. This condition may be accomplished by one or a combination of the following:

1. By insulating the edges of the concrete slab laid on the ground and extending the insulation for a distance under the slab around its perimeter.

2. By insulating the slab edge of concrete floors laid over crawl spaces and insulating the exposed wall of the crawl space.

3. By providing a finished floor of adequate insulating value over the concrete.

4. By the use of rugs or similar floor covering.

Methods 1 and 2 are generally more effective than insulation placed under the entire slab surface and are easier to instal in a satisfactory manner. Method 4 should not be used separately unless the covering material is of a type which will not be affected by the condensation of water vapour on the slab surface underneath.

The selection of insulation to be used in any of the methods listed above depends upon several factors as follows: 1. The durability of the insulation for use in the selected location within the structure; 2. The strength of the insulation to withstand the pressure of the earth or of the loads placed upon it; 3. The relative insulation value of the materials; 4. The total cost (in place) of the insulation.

Insulating materials placed in or near the ground will probably be subject to attack by moisture and mildew which may eventually destroy the insulation or materially affect its insulating value. Pressures from the earth or structural loading will compress or otherwise destroy the effectiveness of insulating material which has not sufficient structural strength to maintain its form under the conditions of use.

Where a material depends upon coating with asphalt or coal tar pitch for protection it is necessary to select the coating carefully, bearing in mind that the solvents in pitch will affect asphalt. This is important where such coated materials are to be used in contact with roofing felt.

Variations in the amount of insulation are justifiable for varying climatic conditions since equivalent comfort may be attained with less insulation in warmer climates than in colder climates. If floor heating is used, more insulation is desirable for greater fuel economy.

Expect Howe To Reveal Wheat Terms

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP)—New light on some puzzling aspects of proposals for a new international wheat agreement may be shed by Trade Minister Howe Monday, particularly on the position of the United Kingdom, key world wheat buyer.

The minister is expected to make a statement in the Commons on the terms tentatively agreed to by a majority of the 46 negotiating countries. Britain, the world's biggest wheat importer, has declined to sign. There are some doubts in this capital whether a new agreement can work without Britain's participation.

Some experts believe that many importing countries which signified preliminary approval of terms for a new pact will reconsider their stand and decline to ratify the agreement if Britain does not sign eventually. At the same time there is a feeling that Britain can be persuaded to change her mind and enter the pact, possibly after a direct appeal by Canadian, American and Australian governments to Prime Minister Churchill. France is the other major exporter.

In the next two weeks there likely will be a lot of trans-Atlantic discussion before the 14-day deadline for signing the agreement ends.

The stumbling block is still price. Britain is the world's biggest wheat importer and Canada's best wheat customer. But Britain doesn't want to pay more than $2 a bushel for wheat in the next crop year, starting Aug. 1.

Wheat experts said that Britain, judging by past experience, believes that whatever is the ceiling price under the new pact will be the going price. The majority of the 46 countries participating in the current pact have agreed to a new ceiling of $2.05 a bushel for No. 1 Northern, compared to $1.80.

The countries also agreed at the Washington conference Thursday which ended 10 weeks of negotiations, to raise the floor from the current $1.20 a bushel to $1.55.

Leading Preacher Dies Taught At Wycliffe

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Benjamin William Horan, 59, one of Canada's leading preachers and professor emeritus at Wycliffe College, died Friday.

He retired last May after 30 years service, during which he specialized as a teacher of both Old Testament and New Testament literature.

Professor Horan was chaplain of the Irish Protestant Benevolent Society and had been a member of board of the Canadian School of Missions.

Weekend Garden

The litter which is removed from strawberry beds may be kept in the rows between the plants to mulch the ground and keep the berries from the earth.

Set out the strawberry bed this month, or, according to the climate and season, giving it a sunny location with well-drained soil. Set the plants 16 inches apart in the rows, and be sure that the crowns are exactly level with the ground. At least one-third of the roots should be trimmed off square with a pair of sharp scissors.

Spray the pear trees, the lilacs, the flowering almonds, and the flowering quinces for scale. Keep an eye out for insect cocoons, caterpillar nests, and insect eggs and destroy them.

Gardening Questions

Q—Will the Firethorn lend itself for use as a tall hedge along a driveway?

A—Firethorn, crataegus pyracantha, can be used as a hedge. However, when used along a driveway it should be kept well sheared, since by nature it is a sprawling large shrub. Trimming will remove most of the flowers and thus very few red berries will develop.

Mrs. R. M. Oddie

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Largely attended was the funeral service for Mrs. Roy Morton Oddie, the former Mary Elizabeth Davis, held Thursday afternoon from the Hendren funeral home. A former resident of Lakefield, Mrs. Oddie died at her residence, North Division Street, Kingston, Tuesday, following an illness of eight years.

The service was conducted by the Rev. G. Whitehorn of Campbellford United Church, assisted by the Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough.

Pallbearers were John Phillips, Archie McKay and Everett Partick, all of Kingston and district, and William Whetung, Stanley Richardson and Theo. Down of Lakefield. Interment was in Lakefield cemetery.

THIS GROUP OF SMILING East Africans are some of those responsible for the Mau Mau massacre at Lari, vividly described in the accompanying dispatch. The store-bought clothes some of them wear make a strange contrast to the primitive carnage they left behind on Lari Ridge.

Slaughter Of 121 Natives Said Worst On Record

By DUDLEY A. HAWKINS
NEA Special Correspondent

NAIROBI, Kenya (NEA)—To Oradour, France, and Katyn Forest, Poland, add the name Lari, Kenya.

To the Gestapo and the OGPU add Mau Mau—and put the Mau Mau in front by a mile.

I have just come back from Lari, back from underneath the wheeling vultures. I have stumbled among charred bones and smashed skulls in the still-smoking rubble of what was once an African settlement.

Squeamish? If you are not I will tell you a story as black as any in the black history of primitive Africa. This is an event that might even have made Heinrich Himmler sick. It is definitely the worst of the Mau Mau outrages.

Lari is—delete is, substitute was—a pleasant place, a typical ridge settlement of the Kikuyu tribe. In Kikuyuland there are no real villages. Each family or clan occupies a roll of mountain country with pastureland bordered by forest.

Each sub-unit of the family, according to its size, builds its huts near its own fields, where the thousands of goats and cattle graze. Each settlement of huts, perhaps only three, perhaps as many as 30 is surrounded by patches of corn and potatoes.

The Lari ridge is seven miles long, a few miles from the Equator, 8,000 feet above sea level.

LOYAL GROUP

Lari is loyal. Three hundred young men on the ridge had formed themselves into a "homeguard" equipped with spears and bows and arrows to aid the Government in the fight against the terrorists. Their old chief Luka, protected by a faithful and vigilant bodyguard when he left his location, had already dodged or repulsed three attempts to take his life.

If the people of Lari had any other worry it was the failure of the rains. The pastures were looking dry and the corn was stunted.

So on Thursday evening, March 26, as a tropical moon smiled serenely on Lari, the old men, the women and their chubby little children went to sleep. Their men folk were on patrol guarding the forest approaches.

But at 8:30 p.m. a fire sprang to life at the far end of the ridge. That was a diversion to attract the homeguard. At the other end of the ridge, 100 Mau Maus crept silently through the maize fields. They carried timber and nails.

Selecting houses earmarked the previous day, doors were barred with timber.

Then came the "firemen." To the drought-dry thatch they applied firebrands. The women and children had two alternative deaths, to die in their blazing homes or to be hacked to pieces as they tried to escape through the windows.

Some chose one way, some another.

As frightened women threw their children to safety they were caught by the Mau Mau, on their spears or decapitated by pangas.

Some terrorists sat to drink the blood of slaughtered children.

Dante could not have even imagined such a scene.

As the homeguards came pell mell across from the forest the terrorists fled, leaving behind a blazing pyre of dismembered bodies. And striking at other settlements along the moon-lit ridge the whole bestial massacre was repeated.

When I went to Lari the stench of death was on the land, vultures in the sky. I spoke to the survivors, watched the grim task of identification. A count was made of 121 bodies.

WOUNDED CRAWLED BACK

Wounded were crawling in from the forest where, like animals, they had run to hide.

One little boy of 12, still alive, crawled in. His right arm was missing, his foot hanging by a thread of skin.

Chief Makimei, a grand old man, high on the death list of the Mau Mau for his resistance to terrorism, spoke to me with the corpses of 17 members of his family heaped nearby.

"We have no room in our hearts for sorrow, only hate," he said. "The men who attacked us have only steeled our hearts."

Our talk was interrupted by the hysterical screams of a woman. She had identified the body of the last of her six children.

The Chief told me of incredible carnage, how toddlers had been decapitated, frightened children hunted down in the maize fields.

Such is Africa today. The Western peoples have brought a little light to this dark continent but in the forests and mountains of Kikuyuland, Africa is pitch black.

I drove back to Nairobi down the winding tracks and onto the arterial road. There were telephone wires, Coca Cola signs, sleek cars.

But on that road, drinking the Coca Cola, using the telephone, wearing store clothes, using ball point pens, were natives. I wondered how many of them had taken part with bloody panga and simi in the massacre of Lari.

Dr. Jordan Says

Common Liquid Cleaner Can Cause Poisoning

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

This column is written as a warning. It is aimed specifically to call attention to the dangers of a widely used chemical known as carbon tetrachloride.

This chemical, either alone or mixed with others, is sold under a variety of trade names, principally for cleaning purposes.

It is commonly used in the home or office for dry-cleaning. It is used also in fire extinguishers and for many purposes in industry It is non-inflammable.

It is absorbed into the body, either through the skin, or mixed with the air in the form of fumes.

When large quanities are absorbed in a short period of time, it produces acute poisoning usually with dizziness, vomiting, headache and other symptoms and may cause death within a day or two.

When smaller quanities are absorbed over a longer period of time the symptons may be subacute, or chronic. The chemical attacks the liver and kidneys, and in acute poisoning, the heart and lungs.

It is believed that carbon tetrachloride poisoning quite often goes unrecognized since the symptoms are easy to confuse with those of other conditions. In a report involving 15 cases of such poisoning, all of the victims were either suffering from chronic alcoholism or had been drinking before or during exposure to this chemical.

The treatment, even of chronic cases, is not completely curative or satisfactory, and therefore prevention is of the utmost importance. Anyone who uses a cleaning solution containing carbon tetrachloride should employ the greatest care not to become exposed to the fumes, and should be equally careful to avoid extensive concentrated exposure of the skin to the fluid.

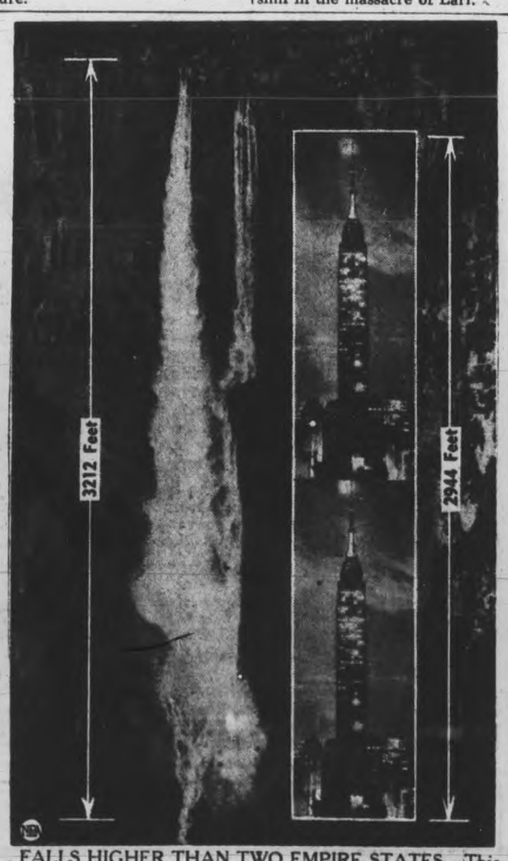
It is also felt that as a matter of precaution some people should never be exposed to carbon tetrachloride- specifically those who are alcoholic, over-weight, undernourished, or those with lung disease, high blood pressure, peptic ulcer, kidney or renal disease, and all those who are known to be particularly sensitive to this chemical or related ones.

Here is an example of a recognized human disease in which it can be truly said that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Marine Workers Reject Contract

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A meeting of local 11, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers (CCL) Thursday night turned down a 1953 contract proposal by the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company and decided to request a conciliation board.

The meeting voted by secret ballot to reject a company offer which included a two-cent an hour wage increase; 40-hour week effective March 1, 1954; company contribution up to $3.06 a month per employee to a package welfare plan and Coronation Day as a paid statutory holiday.



George Brought of Collingwood, general representative of the CCL, said Friday that original demands by local 11, which is bargaining agent for about 1,000 yard employees, were for one dollar a week additional pay; company payment of 50 per cent of the cost of the welfare plan, two statutory holidays, Coronation Day and Armistic Day, and a 40-hour week effective March 1, 1953.

Dulles Takes Holiday At Summer-Cottage

WATERLOO, (AP)—State Secretary John Foster Dulles arrived here Friday on his first vacation trip since taking office and said he is going to "forget what is going on in Washington."

He and Mrs. Dulles will be at their summer home on Main Duck Island in Lake Ontario until next Thursday. Dulles has said that while there he likes to wash the dishes.

They arrived here by plane from Washington and left in an amphibious plane for the island retreat.

FALLS HIGHER THAN TWO EMPIRE STATES—This first full-length picture of Angel Falls in Venezuela shows its full 3,212 foot height, 15 times that of Niagara Falls and higher than two Empire State Buildings, right. It was discovered in 1937 by Jimmy Angel, a flyer who crashed on top of the falls. He spent three weeks walking back to civilization from the little-explored Gran Sabana area.

Garson Suggests Code Alteration

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson suggested Friday that Parliament should finish one major five-year-old job on the Criminal Code at this session and then start another.

His statement was prompted by a wrangle in Commons committee over whether the term insanity has become so archaic that it should be stricken from the code.

The minister held that this is a big question and that there are others of importance, such as the abolition or retention of capital punishment, which should get long and separate study.

But, he argued, Parliament should first finish the job at hand, completing the first general consolidation of the existing criminal law in the last 60 years. Once the code was consolidated—the job started before special commission five years ago—then there might well be studies of important questions which would represent major changes in the law and would require major decisions in themselves.

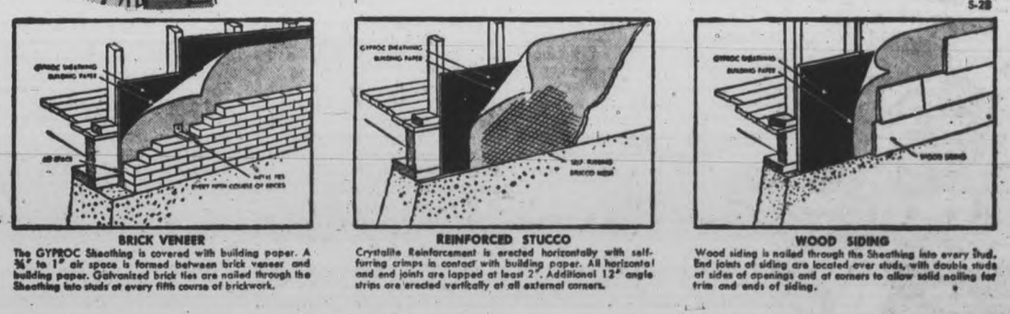
He welcomed a suggestion by G. W. Montgomery (PC—Victoria-Carleton) that the committee should recommend such a course to the House.

DOBBINS' COMEBACK — Milk route horses have made a comback in Marion, Ill., and trucks are being replaced by horses like "Ike," shown here with milkman Roy Edmonson. Horses are "cheaper," according to Edmonson, and they behave better in traffic than most drivers.

GYPROC SHEATHING
CUTS BUILDING COSTS

WEATHERPROOF ••• WON'T BURN ••• CUTS COSTS ••• ADDS STRENGTH

GYPROC SHEATHING is the practical, fire-protective sheathing for use with wood siding, reinforced stucco, brick or other masonry veneer. It is economical, easy to handle and quickly erected. GYPROC SHEATHING is sawn and nailed like lumber, with practically no waste. Edges fit snugly, forming rigid, wind-resistant, well-braced walls.



GYPROC SHEATHING meets the requirements of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation building standards. Available through Builder's Supply and Lumber Dealers across Canada.

GYPROC is a registered trademark for your protection. Manufactured only by

BRICK VENEER
The GYPROC Sheathing is covered with building paper. A ¾" to 1" air space is formed between brick veneer and building paper. Galvanized brick ties are nailed through the Sheathing into studs at every fifth course of brickwork.

REINFORCED STUCCO
Crystalite Reinforcement is erected horizontally with self-furring crimps in contact with building paper. All horizontal and end joints are lapped at least 2". Additional 12" angle strips are erected vertically at all external corners.

WOOD SIDING
Wood siding is nailed through the Sheathing into every Stud. End joints of siding are located over studs, with double studs at sides of openings and at corners to allow solid nailing for trim and ends of siding.

Smith Township Taxes 31 Mills, Same As 1952

Smith Township's county and township general rate remains at 31 mills in 1953, the same as in 1952. The total levy for the township on the tax roll is $148,236.19.

During the year the local assessment was reduced from $2,769,710 to $2,466,351. Because of the annexation of 1,200 acres by the city the township lost $392,505 in local assessment. However, another $89,146 was picked up in new assessment bringing the total at the end of the year to $2,466,351.

Educational rates are up. This includes the Lakefield District High School 13.2 mills this year, compared with 8.7 in 1952; the Peterborough District High School levy of 11.1 mills this year compared with 9.6 in 1952.

Most of the public school rates are also up.

Following is a comparison on county rates this year and last:

Corner Collision Causes $200 Damage

Damage was estimated at over $200 in an accident Friday at the intersection of Aylmer and Brock Sts. Drivers involved were Herbert Mason of 1353 Monaghan Rd. and Henry Smith of 265 Lake St.

Mason was driving north on Aylmer, and Smith, east on Brock. They collided near the southeast corner of the intersection.

Aylmer is a through street at Brock.

Mason's car sustained damages of $65 and Smith's, damages of $150.

PC William G. Scott investigated.

Sure, She Said

The most appreciative members of Premier Leslie M. Frost's audience in St. Peter's auditorium Friday night were the handful of pupils who were permitted to attend.

At the same time they got an insight into the way prime ministers arrive at decisions. Much like other married men, it seems.

The pupils heard Premier Frost declare April 17—or some other suitable day—a holiday, to mark the formal opening of the elementary school for boys. He suggested however that Sister Lucretia, principal of St. Peter's, first see that her staff members impress on the boys their duty to maintain their free heritage.

Then he recounted how the decision to declare a holiday was arrived at.

"On my way to Peterborough I said to Mrs. Frost—she's Irish you know—how about giving the boys a holiday sometime?"

" 'Sure' she said."

And that was that.

Longshoremen Strike

LONDON (Reuters)—A gang of 150 longshoremen struck at Bermondsey docks here today because a security guard put his hand in a man's pocket instead of just frisking him from outside as he was leaving work. The strikers will hold a meeting tomorrow to decide action on their demand for an apology.

Hedy Now American

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Glamorous Hedy Lamarr became a United States citizen Friday. The motion picture star was one of 41 persons from 34 countries who took the oath of allegiance. Miss Lamarr, 38, came here in 1937 from her native Vienna. She was naturalized under her real name, Hedwig Eva Maria Kiesler.

Careless Charge Dismissed After Arguments

LINDSAY—(ENS)—"From now on we won't bother with rear-end collisions," commented Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan, QC, at the conclusion of a trial in police court here Friday, when Claude Kimball of Lindsay was acquitted on a careless driving charge. The charge was laid after an accident on highway 7 west of Lindsay March 13.

Kimball, who was defended by A. J. Fair, of Peterborough, had been following a car driven by Ken Western also of Lindsay. When Western slowed down to turn into the driveway of his garage service station at the outskirts of town, Kimball was unable to stop in time, and could not swing around the car ahead because of slippery pavement.

The collision caused damage estimated at $150 to the Western car, and another $100 to $150 to Kimball's truck, according to evidence brought into court. Constable James Hall of the Lindsay OPP, who investigated the accident, testified that skid marks on the highway behind the truck measured 130 feet.

The truck had been stopped by the impact of striking the Western vehicle.

Crown Attorney Jordon and defence counsel Fair crossed verbal swords several times during the trial. At one point, commenting on the evidence of Western that he had not signalled to turn into the lot, Mr. Jordon pointed out that the law called for signals only when turning at an intersection of another street or highway.

Magistrate Gee, in rendering the decision, commented that the slippery quality of the pavement and the lack of warning of Western's intention to take the turn, caused him to dismiss the charge. Crown Attorney Jordon then retorted "well, from now on we won't bother bringing rear-end collisions into court."

Premier Frost

the Premier said. Ten years ago grants to all schools in Peterborough totalled $40,000; now the figure is about $300,000.

Premier Frost then switched from educational problems to history. He reminded the audience that the Peter Robinson planned migration was one of the first of its kind in Canada. And the ideals of those pioneer settlers are reflected "in this beautiful school."

"Those people came to the settlement with practically nothing of the world's goods. Nothing but great ideals . . . But these ideals were more valuable than all the millions of dollars we can add up . . . What counts is not the beauty of this school, nor the wealth of Ontario, but the ideals that will carry on."

Bishop Berry said that St. Peter's at last gives the boys of the Cathedral parish a school they can call their own. Formerly they were divided among four schools.

The Roman Catholic community desire a school of their own, he said.

"This is not a form of disdain for other schools in the province but a deep desire for 'the full treatment' only possible in our schools. It is part of the Catholic heritage . . . A full interpetation of the religious view of life: that is what the parents seek and that is why they impose sacrifices on themselves. They feel that life is incomplete, even empty, unless they have the full religious teaching."

John G. McCarney, chairman of the Peterborough Separate School Board, said there was not a Roman Catholic school built in the community during a 40-year span. From the time St. Peter's was opened in 1906 until St. John's was completed in 1946.

Mr. McCarney pointed out that it was the first time in 20 years that the boys of the parish in elementary grades were united in the one school. Other children, however, would be able to use St. Peter's modern facilities, including its gymnastics and auditorium.

Mayor Hugh Waddell brought the greetings of city council and the city in general and he described the auditorium as "the largest and finest of its kind in the city." He said he thought the new modern school would be an asset to the community.

Other speakers were Gordon K. Fraser, MP; W. B. Gordon, who was present on behalf of the Board of Education; J. C. Doyle, separate school inspector; and the Rev. James F. McGuire, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral.

The Hon. Harold R. Scott, minister without portfolio in the Ontario government, introduced Premier Frost.

Miss Helen Hajnik sang two songs and was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Marion Aman.

Shortly before the formal ceremony began, Bishop Berry blessed the school. Later the audience were permitted to inspect the building.

Arsenal Makes Strong Bid For Division Lead

LONDON (Reuters)—Arsenal today made a determined bid for the English League Division I soccer championship with a 4-2 victory at Manchester City.

The win pulled the Gunners into third position, two points behind Wolverhampton Wanderers and a single point back of Preston North End. The leaders drew today 1-1.

Arsenal is in a strong position with a game in hand over Preston and three games over Wolverhampton.

Big upset of the day was lowly Stoke's 1-0 victory over sixth-place Charlton Athletic. Stoke's negro captain, Roy Brown, pulled his team away from the threat of relegation to Division II when he headed a ball which trickled into the Charlton net.

In Division II, Sheffield United remained on top with a scoreless tie at Leicester City. Runner-up Huddersfield crept to within three points by blanking West Ham United 1-0.

Bristol Rovers took a 3-0 defeat from Watford but retains leadership of Division III South. Millwall blasted Crystal Palace 4-1 to edge within four points of the Rovers.

Oldham continued its winning ways in Division III North, defeating Gateshead 2-1 to stay three points ahead of Wrexham, which downed Crewe Alexandra 1-0. Port Vale drew 2-2 with Bradford to go into third place, Grimsby lost, 2-3 to Carlisle United, to take fourth.

East Fife was idle but stayed atop Scottish League Division A by a single point. Hibernians are second after drawing 1-1 at Aberdeen. Hamilton Academicals blanked St. Johnstone 2-0 to retain a one-point lead over Stirling Albion in Scottish League B. Albion downed Alloa Athletic 3-1.

Pegasus today won the Football Association Amateur Cup for the second time in three seasons with a 6-4 win over Harwich and Parkeson before about 100,000 fans at Wembley.

New Curtains Parish Project

As an indication of the enthusiasm with which parishioners of St. Peter's looked forward to the opening of the elementary school for boys, the Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, points to the stage curtains in the school auditorium.

A dozen or so women from the parish, taking advantage of spare afternoons and evenings, sewed the curtains to professional standards over a three-month period. Actually none of the women were professional but their work was supervised by an expert, Edward Whaley of 581 Walnut St.

Friday night at the formal opening of St. Peter's, with Premier Leslie M. Frost in attendance, Bishop Berry commended the women for their volunteer work.

The backdrop and sidedrop curtains are of gold-colored shagbark cloth, and the cherry-red velour was imported from England.

Mrs. William H. Toal of 537 King St., president of the Diocesan Council of the Parent-Teacher Association, organized the women. The sewing began as a PTA project but later other women—many of them with more spare time than mothers of small children—volunteered their services and it became a parish project.

Extra Insurance Planned For PUC Staff

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—The question of adding physicians' and surgeons' insurance to the Blue Cross contracts in force for the employees was discussed at Thursday's meeting of the Public Utilities Commission and left with a committee comprised of manager Denyes, treasurer Ibey and Mayor Locke, with power to act.

Councillor George Elmhirst, of Seymour, requested that a hydrant be placed in the vicinity of the River Road on the west side of town. It was decided to ask for a petition by those desirous of having hydrant protection in the area, rental to be included in the water rates.

NOT IN FAVOR

Mr. McLaren's request that his store be made a west-side place of collection for water and light accounts was not greeted favorably by the manager. Mr. Denyes was authorized to contact Mr. McLaren explaining that the commission would require a $1,000 bond, that he be responsible for any errors and that returns be made to the commission office each morning. Manager Denyes reported that in certain cases it was cheaper to deliver accounts than to mail them.

The board received a communication from the town council requesting the reaction of the commission to meeting with various municipal bodies to discuss the apportionment of all municipal insurance among local agencies. Commissioners Newman and McGregor were named to act for the commission.

The manager was instructed to find out if the employees favor a pension plan, to contact Mr. McFadden of the government annuity branch and to get data from local insurance agencies regarding pension plans.

A letter will be sent to the town council requesting permission to establish a sinking fund.

Commissioner McGregor asked if the council or commission had ever received compensation for the water rights at the pumping station, where at one time some 300 h.p. had been generated. A committee was named to look into the matter.

All meters installed in future will be of the new four-prong type.

TIVERTON, Eng. (Reuters) — Earl Fortescue, 64, one of the four Knights of the Garter who will hold the golden canopy over the Queen during the Coronation anointing ceremony, was thrown heavily while fox-hunting Friday. He went to hospital with concussion and bruises.

Plan Machine Capable Of Reproducing

CLEVELAND (AP)—A Bell Telephone scientist says there are plans for a machine which could reproduce itself.

Clause E. Shannon of the Bell laboratories discussing computers at Case Institute of Technology's 75th anniversary celebration Friday "hastened" to add "this fascinating but somewhat sinister type of machine is not yet in production."

A mathematician, he said, has set up an abstract mathematical model for a machine which will "collect parts from its environment and assemble them to produce a second machine of the same type, which then starts collecting parts to construct a third machine and so on ad infinitum."

Computers, he said, differ from adding machines in that they are faster, have large "internal memories" and can be programmed—they can be instructed so that they can make a choice or decision among various lines of behavior.

Computers of this kind can be "set up to play various games with a certain amount of skill, games of the complexity of bridge or chess."

Another machine described by Shannon can do grocery store shopping "efficiently."

But "it will certainly be centuries rather than decades before machines are writing Shakespearean sonnets or Beethoven symphonies."

Sugar Co. Rejects Board's Offer

CHATHAM (CP)—A final three-hour meeting between sugar beet growers and the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company Friday night ended without settlement.

The meeting was the last in a series arranged between the Ontario sugar beet growers marketing board and the company by the Chatham board of trade. The board attempted to arbitrate contract differences between the two groups when negotiations broke down on March 31.

A final proposal presented by W. F. Reid, chairman of the board of trade's arbitration committee, suggesting adoption of the 1952 contract, plus an 18 per cent a ton increase for growers with no tonnage guarantee, was turned down by company representatives.

A. W. McIntyre, assistant to the president of the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company, said the rate laid down in last year's contract was the company's maximum offer. Two other offers were made by the growers during the meeting but both were turned down by the company.

Mr. McIntyre said that the present breakdown in negotiations has been caused by the unsettled sugar situation which is aggravated by the unrestricted import of Cuban refined sugar into Canada and the falling world price on raw sugar.

Gold Mine Director Dies In Duncan, B.C.

TORONTO (CP)—Maurice William Summerhayes, 81, managing director of Wright-Hargreaves gold mines of Kirkland Lake, died Friday at Duncan, B. C.

Formerly of Kirkland Lake, he had been living in British Columbia for the last several years. Surviving are two daughters in Duncan and a sister in South Africa.

RCAF To Decorate 2 Fliers For Arctic Mercy Flights

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCAF said Friday night it is decorating two airmen for mercy flights that bucked Arctic storms and pounding seas to save human lives.

Sqdn. Ldr. D. R. Cuthbertson, 34, of Brantford and Montreal, has been awarded the Air Force Cross and his crewman, Cpl. J. W. Malo, 32, of Taber, Alta. and Rawdon, Que., the Commendation for Brave Conduct.

In September, an urgent request was received from Hopedale on the Labrador coast for evacuation of a seriously-injured civilian.

Despite an adverse weather forecast, the two took off in a single-engine Norseman aircraft equipped with floats. At Hopedale strong winds were churning the water into five-foot waves but the pilot managed to land and pick up the passenger.

Then the pilot received word that the young son of a missionary at Makkovik, about 60 miles southeast, was in critical condition after being mauled by husky dogs. The crew took off for Makkovik, aware that the landing would be extremely hazardous. However, they landed without mishap and the youngster was placed aboard.

A heavy bank of fog rolled in and the pilot took off with a 100-foot ceiling. The return flight to Goose Bay was carried out in freezing temperatures and although twice the pilot encountered engine trouble due to carburetor icing he kept the aircraft airborne and on course.

He found Goose Bay blanketed by heavy thunder showers, an indefinite ceiling of 300 feet and visibility varying from one-quarter to one-half mile.

Despite heavy radio static and the adverse weather conditions, he executed a masterful let-down into Goose Bay harbor using a procedure he had worked out earlier for just such an emergency.

Four days later, another emergency call was received at Goose Bay from Saglek Bay, 375 miles up the bleak Labrador coast, for evacuation of a civilian in critical condition.

Although a storm was raging at Saglek Bay with a 500-foot ceiling, Sqdn. Ldr. Cuthbertson and his crewman took off again in the Norseman.

On arrival they found a heavy swell rolling into Saglek harbor with waves between four and six feet high. A successful landing was made.

As the patient was being loaded aboard, it was discovered the right float had been sprung and was leaking badly. An immediate take-off was made under the same hazardous conditions.

After seven hours and 30 minutes of rough instrument flying and a landing and take-off under practically impossible conditions, the weary crew and patient arrived at Goose Bay.

Car Clips Pole Passenger Hurt

David Leether of 638 Hawley St. was treated at Civic Hospital Friday for injuries when the car he was riding in sheared off a telephone pole on Edison Ave. Leether suffered abrasions and lacerations to his face and forehead.

Reginald Leether of 646 Lillian St. had been driving west on Brioux Ave. when he turned left to drive west on Edison.

His car continued straight across Edison and struck a telephone pole shearing it off near the base.

Riding in the front seat, David Leether was thrown forward into the auto's windshield, breaking it and cutting his face. He was released after hospital treatment.

Damage was estimated at $75 to the car and $40 to the phone pole.

Rioting Starts Anew In Minnesota Prison

STILLWATER, Minn. (AP)—Rioting broke out in Stillwater prison shortly after 9 a. m. today.

Prisoners began smashing windows in the north cell block of the big prison.

Eating utensils were thrown by the screaming convicts into the prison yard.

Acting warden Cark Jackson said a wave of "growing arrogance" was sweeping through the 1,000 convicts.

FALLS WIN CAGE EVENT

KINGSTON (CP)—Niagara Falls Friday night won the A section championship of the annual Queen's University invitation basketball tournament for the fourth straight year.

In the finals Niagara Falls downed Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute 71-31. Earlier in the day Kingston had eliminated St. Catharines 32-28 and Nepean High School of Ottawa 48-43.

The B section title went to Albert College of Belleville which defeated Brockville 57-42 in the finals. It was the fourth game of the day for the Brockville crew. They had defeated Cornwall St. Lawrence 33-24, eased out Oshawa 40-33 and bowed 37-44 to Albert earlier.

Perth won the C section championship defeating Port Perry 42-30. In the other games in that section Perth had defeated Deep River 51-24, Renfrew defeated Deep River 48-35 and Port Perry edged Renfrew 34-33.

Howie Triano of Niagara Falls won the most valuable player award in section A for the second straight year with his 38 points in the final game, a record in the eight-year-old tournament.

Jim Faulkner of Albert College won the award in B section and Russ Stewart of Perth in the C group.

TIGERS SIGN 2 PLAYERS

WATERLOO (CP)—Waterloo Tigers of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League have signed two players for a tryout at a spring training camp which opens later this month.

They are Jim Caffery, who plays hockey with St. Michael's College, Toronto, and 22-year-old Jim Kovatsis of Detroit.

Caffery, a lefthanded pitcher who also plays first base and outfield, played with a senior team in Toronto last year when he batted .425. Kovatsis is a shortstop who can also play second base.

ELGINS SIGN 8 MEN

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Manager Bob Benish of St. Thomas Elgins of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League said Friday Bill Bataky, Windsor Canadian Olympic basketball player, is here to work out with the team as shortstop

Others signed Friday include Jim Trew, 28, second baseman of Birmingham, Mich., with seven years of professional baseball behind him and Ray Urban, 27, third baseman from South Lee, Mass., with nine years of professional experience. Trew was manager of the Duluth, Minn., C. team last year.

Benish said eight men now are signed.

Canadian Champ Wins With TKO

EDMONTON (CP)—Earl Walls of Edmonton, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, floored Grant Butcher of San Francisco twice in the second round Friday night to win by a technical knockout in the featured 10-round bout at the Edmonton Gardens.

Walls weighed in at 190 pounds. Butcher, California heavyweight champion, weighed 191.

The referee awarded the fight to Walls on a TKO after he had nailed Butcher with a left for the first knockdown and tagged him with a hard right as the Californian rose to his feet.

Tito Trying To Influence Others To Break Away

By FRED SPARKS

BELGRADE — (NEA)—Where does Tito go from here?

The little dictator, manicured and neat as a Radio City usher in his powder blue uniform, speaks to a wild crowd.

They punctuate his remarks with frantic chants: "Hero Tito! Hero Tito! Who is Tito? We are Tito. And Tito is ours."

He speaks without manuscript. The only thing on the varnished rostrum is his beautiful pair of leather gloves.

He looks over the crowd of peasants in fur caps, glassy-eyed school children, husky soldiers in badly-cut uniforms.

His speech deals with his new friends: American aid, Britain's royal palaces.

Tito is not without ambition. His every strut screams it.

It seems certain his ambitions begin in the Balkans. And that is O.K. with the West. He would simply love to head a bloc of Communist Balkan States that refuse to take orders from Communist Mother Russia.

He would not take orders from Washington—but he would take many more dollars.

Can Tito, having proved a Communist state can live without Moscow, influence his Balkan neighbors to break away?

TRYING

He is trying in many ways. The most direct method is Radio Yugoslavia, which beams volumes of anti-Malenkov communism to Albania, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and Poland.

The satellites try furiously to jam Radio Yugoslavia. They come in on the same wave length with highly pitched recordings of barks, whistles, and rumbles. However, local broadcasts go off the air at 10 p.m. to give Radio Yugoslavia enough voice power often to break through.

Since Tito's London visit, Radio Yugoslavia has been using more Voice of America material. Tito's announcers tell Iron Curtain neighbors:

"We are taking American aid for the common defense against imperialism, but they are not interfering with us like the Russians did.

"Russian communism is not real Marxism. It is government by terror. We tried terror, influenced by Russia, and it doesn't work. As Lenin wrote, having accomplished our revolution we are reducing the power of the state.

"Wake up, friends. Russia is exploiting your country—just like it exploited our country—until we broke away."

Radio Yugoslavia discusses individual satellite problems. The pitch to Bulgaria, regarded as a particularly unhappy captive, recalls the mysterious death of former Dictator Georgi Dimitrov. He slipped out of this world while visiting Stalin.

The real reason for his departure, Tito's announcers hint, is that Dimitrov wanted to join Tito in a Balkan Alliance without Soviet chains.

WEST PLEASED

The west is quite happy about Tito's radio blitz. Many hard-bitten Communists are more likely to think of living peacefully with the West now that Tito is doing just that.

Don't get the idea Tito is playing an "American theme." Far from it. He doesn't make much of the U.S. effort in Korea, merely referring to the action in passing as a UN affair. And Radio Yugoslavia keeps poking at the Catholic Church and the Vatican, still high on Tito's hate list, although there are plenty of rumors here about a peace pact with the Pope.

Anyway, Tito's radio sounds more and more like the Voice of America or the BBC. Which recalls the local gag: In 1948 a fellow went to prison for yelling: "Down with Stalin."

Kept in Belgrade jails for five years, without a shred of news, he was released the other day. As he strolled away he saw a political gathering. He joined it and taking no chances this time, yelled: "Hurray for Moscow!"

He's back in his old cell, puzzled.

Bensfort WA Honors Departing Member

BAILIEBORO (ENS) — The Bensfort Woman's Association met at the home of Mrs. Stewart Bell with a large attendance.

The devotional was taken by Mrs. C. Libbey and Mrs. W. Moncrief. Mrs. Earl Wilson gave a reading on "Gifts." Plans were discussed for a Coronation tea to be held in June. At least 10 ladies may attend the convention in St. James' Church April 23.

Mrs. Otis Burns, who is moving to Quebec in May, was presented with a cup and saucer as a parting gift from the WA. Lunch was served by the hostess and Group C.

Budget Gets Final Approval From Committee Of Whole

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott's income tax changes have not made all members of the Commons happy, but they have received the general endorsation of the House after the usual crop of complaints.

The minister's 61-page bill implementing cuts in personal and corporate income taxes in the budget was given approval Friday night after some relatively minor changes proposed by Mr. Abbott and after running the gauntlet of opposition criticism.

The approval came after study by the House in committee of the whole, the last stage before third and final reading. Third reading was deferred.

Several points came under fire. They included provisions to:

1. Enlarge personal income tax credits on dividends received by the taxpayer from Canadian corporations.

2. Lower, but not eliminate, the "floor" restriction on how much medical expenses can be charged up against tax liability.

3. Allow elected municipal officers to get tax exemptions on amounts paid them as expense allowances. Some members contended this should be extended to appointed school board members and that its retroactivity to 1949 discriminated against some municipal officials.

Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) also called on the government to relieve the little business man with a few employees who has to deduct employees' income taxes for the government. The government was "hitch-hiking" on these business men.

"By the time they get around to making the collections and answering all the questions of the bureau of statistics, they don't have time to attend to their own business," he said.

The dividend tax credit came under fire from members of all three opposition parties. Under this provision, personal income tax payers will get an allowance against their tax of 20 per cent of the value of the dividends they get from Canadian corporations. Up to now, the allowance has been 10 per cent.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) and Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia) called for removal of the dividend credit altogether. It was, they contended, a violation of the principle of taxation on the basis of ability to pay.

Mr. Abbott defended it as a method of partially avoiding double taxation on corporate profits and as encouraging investment in company stocks.

He brought in one amendment, which the House approved, to ensure that dividend credits will not eliminate the taxpayer's liability for the two-per-cent "social security" tax for old age pensions.

Mr. Knowles also called for removal of the "floor" provision for charging medical expenses against taxable income. Expenses over four per cent of income now may be charged. The budget proposes to reduce this to three per cent.

Mr. Knowles said it is an "injustice" that taxpayers cannot get full exemption for all medical expenses.

On the question of exemptions for municipal councillors, several opposition members urged they should be made applicable to appointed school board members. They also protested against the principle that expense exemptions retroactive to 1949 will be applicable only to those officials whose pay in earlier years was specifically segregated into salary and expense categories.

THEY HAVE NO CHURCH BUILDING or Sunday School of their own, but these little tots, all under four years of age, were brought to Sunday school by their parents to the South-end Presbyterian Mission, and while their parents worshipped in another room of the Confederation School, these children assembled for Sunday school in one of the classrooms.

For Parents Only

Indifferent Parents Blamed, "Age of Drift" from Church

By NANCY CLEAVER

"I haven't been to church since I was married and hardly any of my friends have (although for some reason we all send our children to Sunday school). On the church's own admission, we represent a fast-growing class."

An outstanding Canadian writer, Robert Thomas Allen, recently made this comment.

What is your reaction to this? At least it is honest. But is this the best atmosphere in which to bring up children? Who does this father think he is fooling? Certainly not any bright youngster!

If, by any chance, you belong in this "fast-growing class" of disinterested church folk, what does your non-attendance say to your child? Does your example not shout to him, much louder than any words, "Religion is 'kid stuff,' and we have no time for it. You run along to Sunday school. We know where you are — safe, and not into mischief or bothering us!"

RESPONSIBILITY ON PARENTS

How long does attendance at Sunday school continue to be a vital experience for the child who is sent there, unaccompanied by mother or dad? Sunday school may be a real influence in a little child's life for a time. But when he gets into his adolescent years, if he sees quite plainly that religion is never mentioned by his folks and they never go near the church, why should he waste his time at the church school? The main responsibility for the "age of drift" away from church and Sunday school by teenagers in many homes can be placed squarely on the shoulders of indifferent parents.

Perhaps mother is faithful in religious observances, but like Clarence Day's father, in "Life With Father," the head of the house doesn't work very hard at being a church member. This kind of a father is bound to color a boy's attitude to the church. He concludes that church is all right for women—but if Dad can get along fine without church, so can he!

How "fine" does a person or a family get along without the church in their lives? Realization of the value of a church connection to a home is not made by gathering around as a family and looking at the church from the outside (and criticizing its weaknesses with clever phrases and half-truths!)

TURN TO THE CHURCH

When all goes well, many people seem to get along fairly happily and successfully without the church. But what happens when trouble, real sorrow strikes? If the life of that son or daughter of yours was to be snuffed out to-day by some horrible accident or sudden illness, to whom would you turn? No matter how casual you had been about your church, would you not want a religious funeral service?

The church's teaching about immortality, about life after death, might fall on ears deafened by grief. But what parent would choose to have the little body buried with no prayer said over the grave? Is it not rather shabby to use the church in the hour of darkness but ignore it in the days of sunshine?

How much an adult misses who has no time for church! Many a mother or dad who has drifted away from the church, has started to attend church again regularly because a son or daughter wants to go to Junior congregation. Then, almost to their surprise, mother or dad discovers some way in which the church answers some special personal need!

VALUE TO ALL

One parent who loves music finds peace and serenity in the hymns and the quiet worship service. A father is listening to the sermon has his ideals for daily living re-inforced. A fearful mother has her weight of anxiety lifted during the prayer as communion with God becomes more real to her.

Another parent who is lonely, seeks the warm companionship in a church group. A mother in a missionary society feels she is doing something constructive to further peace and the Kingdom of God on earth. A man whose own boy is entering adolescence finds satisfaction in whole-heartedly backing the Scoutmaster and in becoming a Sunday School teacher. Still another thoughtful parent supports the Christian church because he sees in it the greatest force opposing the growth of Communism which threatens our democratic way of life to-day.

The founder of Christianity, "As his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day." Jesus knew the uselessness of half-hearted allegiance. He said bluntly, "He who is not for me, is against me." Fathers and mothers can you answer that challenge?

Where do you stand, as a parent, for or against the church, the body of Christ on earth? The future of your country, of your children and your children's children may well depend on your answer. You will never regret giving your time and energy and money to the church of your choice. It is not just a place to send your youngsters to Sunday School! You need the church and the church needs you!

Norwood WMS Meets At Mrs. J. McConnell's

NORWOOD (ENS)—The April meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the United Church WMS was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. John McConnell.

In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. A. R. Atkinson, this report was given by the president, Miss Pauline Weir, showing that $58.10 had been sent in for the first quarter of the year.

The worship service was led by Mrs. Allan McNab. A Bible reading and prayer was given by Mrs. John McConnell, followed by responsive readings. The missionary program was on the Easter message. Readings were given by Mrs. Irwin Warner, Mrs. Fred Patterson, Mrs. David Hall and Mrs. John McConnell. Mrs. Russel Gardner sang a solo and Mrs. Kenneth Pakenham closed the program with a prayer.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. McConnell. Lunch was served by the group in charge.

Mrs. J. A. Boland and her committee served a delicious lunch at the close of the meeting.

Calgary Women Learn Sewing From Craftsman

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary housewives who believe making a dress isn't just a matter of snip, snip, snip, are learning old secrets of the needleworker's art from a master craftsman.

Mrs. Stella Gunther, a little woman with a quick, shy smile, is an expert in pattern making and other sewing skills. She has just finished teaching a night course in pattern drafting and designing here at the Institute of Technology and Art and some day hopes to have a school of her own to teach foolproof pattern methods.

Mrs. Gunther, who moved to Calgary from Atlantic City, N.J., in 1951, learned her trade the hard way. She spent seven years at the master school for dress designing in Berlin.

EXTENSIVE STUDY

Three years went for a bachelor's degree and another 3½ years were spent in getting her master's degree in sewing, designing and pattern drafting. The course included everything from fashion drawing to the study of textiles and fine needlework.

"We had to learn bookkeeping and home economics too," says Mrs. Gunther. "We had to know every aspect of running our own business or we couldn't get a licence to operate or teach apprentices."

The final examination for the course took 10 hours and included theory and practical work. Judges were members of the Dressmakers' Guild.

Most of the time in class rooms it was so cold students did their fashion sketching with gloves on, says Mrs. Gunther. Fuel was hard to find and fires were stoked with sawdust.

CHIEF REQUIREMENTS

Mrs. Gunther says the main thing is the ability to sew, combined individual sizes. The system she uses doesn't include the familiar number sizes.

A basic block is drafted on paper from measurements, drawn to one-quarter scale since it's easier to work with. Then the full pattern is drawn, calculating measurements in centimetres.

This pattern forms the basis for all garments. With variations for styles such as batwing sleeves and flared skirts, any number of dresses or suits can be made from the single draft. When pasted together with tape, it takes on the shape of the person whose measurements it matches and the fit is so precise that no pins are needed.

Mrs. Gunther says with this to work from, an amateur dressmaker can design something from imagination or copy a garment seen in a magazine.

A YEAR-AROUND SUITING in orlon, worsted and mohair, is used (above) for the suit this traveller has chosen. Fabric is lightweight and possesses remarkable wrinkle-resistance. Four-gore skirt and jacket with rounded lapels make the suit that's an expert traveller.

Mrs. F. J. Saure Guest Speaker At WMS Meeting

The St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Auiliary of the WMS held its spring thankoffering meeting Friday afternoon with the president, Mrs. J. H. Eastwood, in the chair.

The devotional period was conducted by Miss E. O. Simpson.

Mrs. Stanley Northrop delighted the audience with two solos, Where're You Walk ,and I Heard a Forest Praying. Mrs. Gwen Craw accompanied Mrs. Northrop. The soloist and accompanist were thanked by Mrs. Eastwood.

Mrs. J. J. Craig introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. F. J. Saure of Park St. Alliance Church.

The Rev. and Mrs. Saure spent more than four years in French West Africa. One year was spent largely among the Red Bo-Bo tribes, which are the third largest in French West Africa.

Mrs. Saure explained the physical features of the land, the types of the home and the characteristics of the people. For the most part the people were born with fear and carried fear with them until death.

She stressed the fact that while education and civilization had their rightful place, this was not the whole answer. The people were looking for a power and this could be had only through the simple message of the Gospel.

Mrs. Saure described an Easter service attended by a throng of natives and compared the expression of the confessed Christians with those of the non-Christians, which indicated the great change which had taken place in their lives.

Mrs. C. G. Boyd thanked Mrs. Saure for her address.

At the close of the meeting a delightful social hour was enjoyed and delicious refreshments were served by the following hostesses: Mrs. W. A. Burrell, Mrs. T. H. Taylor, Mrs. Victor Tully, Mrs. S. Dickson Hall and Mrs. D. W. Clark.

Bible Class Holds Meeting

Mrs. Sam Watson, 435 Park St., was hostess to the Ever Awake Bible Class of St. James' Sunday School Thursday.

The meeting opened with the devotional period under the direction of Mrs. G. Towns. Readings were given by Mrs. R. Tully and Mrs. Towns. Scripture readings by Mrs. Dennis Traynor and Mrs. Cliff Brown closed the devotional.

The roll call was answered by 15 members with aprons for the fall tea. Mrs. Towns gave the treasurer's report. During the business period, it was decided to have a bowling party for the next meeting night. Two contests were won by Mrs. R. Rutherford and Mrs. C. Crown.

A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Watso nand her committee. The Mibpah benediction closed the meeting.

Early types of ink were made by mixing materials such as soot in sticky solutions.

BECAUSE SPRING FASHIONS DEMAND a good bust-line, the right bra makes a difference in the appearance you make. Ole Cassini designs (left) two-piece dress with one-piece look. It is off-white taffeta, can be worn with or without halter-top pinafore. Mermaid silhouette (centre) is also from this designer's collection. It's pure silk navy taffeta with off-shoulder look and whittled-down waistline. From Vera Maxwell comes (right) another two-piece costume that looks like one. This is in a double thickness of white chiffon, has surplice top and slim, pleated skirt. All three fashions are worn with bras providing correct curve-control.

DOROTHY DIX:

Makes Wife Unhappy To Pamper Her Husband

DEAR MISS DIX: How can a woman get out of the bad habit of just living for her husband? Ken is the type who demands pampering. Whenever he comes home, he expects dinner on the table, and no matter how much time I have put into its preparation, he complains. He comes home quite late, and often I'm finishing the dinner dishes at ten o'clock. I don't mind doing these things, but his constant complaining irks me. I don't have friends, and have no social life, because I must always be home in case my husband needs something. I know it isn't good for me to be so constantly at his beck and call, but how can I change the situation? He is 40. I am 46.

M. B.

ANSWER: What you are actually trying to convey is the fact that you have no interest in life apart from your husband.

Since you mention no children, I assume you have none; therefore, I can't see what there is in an average-sized home (which I presume is what you have) to keep you constantly tied down. Planning your work, and meals, would give you at least the afternoon to make new friends, or renew old acquaintances. You have time to pursue a hobby, help the Red Cross, join a church activity, or do a dozen and one things that would take you away from your home now and again.

You think you're doing Ken a favor by being completely at his service. You're wrong. Nothing could be worse for him.

CHANGE TALKING SUBJECTS

When he sits down to dinner I'll warrant all he hears from you is a minute-by-minute description of how hard you worked for him all day. He has enough work himself. A meal is more than the food put on the table. It should also include companionship, laughter, mutual exchange of ideas, and perhaps a bright bit of neighborhood chat. If you don't contribute in this way, you're slipping on the job. Try a change of your daily schedule.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl in my 20's, and love choral singing. Unfortunately, our church choir is no longer active, and I wonder if you would know of a choral group open to the public.

JOAN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your city is noted for the excellence of its musical groups and institutions, and you should have no difficulty in becoming affiliated with one of them. Get in touch with one of the large music schools and ask them to recommend a choral group.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend and I have been going steady for six months. About five weeks ago he stopped drinking. Then his friends started kidding him about being "henpecked" and "tied down," so he decided to go ahead and have a drink. I've told him I'll never marry anyone who drinks and that I'll quit him the next time this happens. Do you think I'm being too harsh?

G. L.

ANSWER: The so-called friends who are starting all this trouble should be tarred and feathered. Instead of giving the boy a pat on the back and offering every support they can, they'd rather kick him.

You aren't being too harsh; in fact, someone in this affair must have backbone. While your threat may keep the lad away from liquor, a bolstering-up will do even more good. Praise him for the fine work he's done and, if you know any congenial people, get their co-operation for morale boosting.

Readers' Saturday Column

By MARY MOORE.

Question: You have helped me before and now here I am again. As you know, most white cakes and the popular white mixes in the stores are for 8" layer pans. Well I want to know how much to increase my recipe for 9" pans and also for 10" pans. Can you please help me? I am enclosing the recipe I usually use for 8" pans. Mrs. James B.

P.S. When using a packaged mix do you think I could successfully split a package to add to another package (same kind).

ANSWER: Yes you can add ½ package of cake mix to a whole package of the same kind of cake mix, BUT to do it you must be sure you have divided the second package exactly in half—either by measuring the whole thing in measuring cups and dividing it in halves by measure, OR by weighing the contents and dividing them in halves by weight. Then of course you add only half as much liquid as called for the whole package.

Here is my recipe for a 2-egg cake that exactly fills 2 9-inch layer tins:

STANDARD TWO-EGG CAKE

(fills 2 9-inch layer cake tins)

Two and one-quarter cups sifted cake flour, 2¼ teaspoons double action baking powder or 4½ teaspoons single action baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup butter or other good quality shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, ¾ cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift measured and sifted flour with the baking powder and salt 3 times. Cream the butter well and add sugar gradually while creaming until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs for 1 minute. Add the flour mixture alternately with the milk and vanilla, a small amount of each at a time. Bake in 2 greased and floured 9-inch layer cake tins at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes. If this cake is baked in pan 8 x 8 x 2 inches bake it at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes.

Double your recipe to make 3 10-inch layers. To make 2 10-inchlayers I have calculated your recipe this way: 1 cup shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 3 eggs, ⅜ teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, 1 cup milk, 3 cups sifted flour, 3¾ teaspoons double acting baking powder or 6 teaspoons single acting baking powder.

I hope these suggestions have answered your question.

QUESTION: Please give me your best recipe for dandelion wine.

MRS. F. R.

ANSWER:

DANDELION WINE

This makes a very mild wine but is the only recipe for wine using dandelions that I have. Maybe some of our readers will mail me a recipe when they see your request. If they do I will be grateful, and I will print it.

Use only fresh dandelion blossoms and carefully remove all stems, as otherwise the wine will be extremely bitter. To every quart of blossoms well packed but not crushed, add 2 sliced lemons, 2 sliced oranges, and 1 quart boiling water. Cover and allow to stand in earthen container for 24 hours. Drain off all of the juice thoroughly. For every quart of juice thus obtained add 1 cup granulated sugar. Pour this sweetened juice into jars, and stand them in granite pans or on porcelain platter, allow jars to stand in cool place until all fermentation ceases. Each morning it will be found that fermentation has caused the jars to run over, but top surface of liquid will be below top of jars. With the contents of 1 jar fill the others to level full every morning. After all fermentation ceases empty wine out into clean container, wash the jars thoroughly in hot water, put clean dry rubbers in place, refill jars to nearly overflowing, and seal. This may be used in 2 months but is better if aged for 1 year. I cannot guarantee this recipe for I have not made it, but it comes from a reliable reference.

6—In Memoriam

EASTABROOK—In loving memory of my dear mother, Maud Isabelle Eastabrook, who passed away April 12, 1949.
A bitter grief, a shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear.
Our loss is great—we'll not complain
But hope in heaven to meet again.
—Ever remembered by Jim, Jean and grandson Dougie.

EASTABROOK—In loving memory of my dear wife, Maude Isabelle Eastabrook, who passed away April 12, 1949.
Deep in the heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame I shall keep it
Because she was one of the best.
—Ever remembered by her husband Harold.

GIARDINO—In loving memory of my dear husband, Carmine Giardino, who passed away three years ago, April 11, 1950.
O what I would give to clasp his hand;
His dear, kind face to see,
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
That meant so much to me.
His spirit has fled,
His sufferings o'er,
At the fireside he will Join us no more.
—Sadly missed by his wife.

GIARDINO—In loving memory of our dear father, Carmine Giardino, who died April 11, 1950.
Gone dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Sadly missed by sons and daughters.

HARTLEY—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Catharine Hartley, who passed away April 12, 1952.
Oft and oft our thoughts do wander
To the grave not far away,
Where we laid our dear mother
Just one year ago today.
—Ever remembered by daughter Joan.

HARTLEY—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Catharine Hartley, who passed away April 12, 1952.
In my heart your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true:
There's not a day, dear mother,
I do not think of you.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Isabel.

JOHNSTON—In loving memory of a dear husband, Frederick W. Johnston, who passed away April 12, 1944.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and kind in heart and mind
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
—Always remembered by his wife, Emma.

PERREAULT—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Douglas Perreault, who passed away April 11, 1952.
One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home, it was His will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Always remembered by mother, father and brothers.

PERREAULT—In loving memory of a dear brother, Douglas Perreault, who passed away April 11, 1952.
We watched you suffer day by day,
And could not help in any way,
But just stood by and saw you pass
Into the Saviour's arms at last.

Toronto Bowlers Lead In Regina

REGINA (CP)—Western rules didn't stop a group of Toronto trundlers from assuming a narrow lead over their Regina rivals when the first all-Canadian five-pin bowling championship got under way here Friday night.

The Eastern bowlers spilled the maples for a count of 6,015 to beat the Western team's total by 33 pins in a five-game block. More than 500 spectators viewed the proceedings.

Tom Mallon of Toronto gained a 68-pin margin over Fred Krausher of Saskatoon in the first stage of a contest for the Dominion singles title.

The all-Canadian roll-offs will be concluded tonight with another five-game block in the team and singles divisions which will be played under Eastern rules.

The main difference in the Western and Eastern codes concerns the value of certain pins. In the West, the scoring count reads 1-4-5-3-2, while in the East it is 4-2-1-5-3.

Havelock WA To Paint Parsonage Kitchen

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Mrs. H. R. Haacke was in charge of the devotional service and the program for the United Church Women's Association in the Sunday School auditorium.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. W. Lewis. Mrs. Haacke offered prayer and read the thought for the day which was on "Love." and gave a reading "The Riddle of Rocky Gorge."

The president Mrs. H. Agnew who presided for the business session reported for the parsonage committee and asked for paint for the kitchen of the parsonage. A motion by Mrs. A. Anderson and Mrs. C. Toms to purchase the paint and hire a painter was carried. The president also reported that in future the cheer and flower committees would be combined and known as the Sunshine committee. A quilting and pot luck lunch will be held in the church basement April 16.

Mrs. W. Lewis and Mrs. C. Toms were appointed delegates to the Presbyterial WA St. James' United Church, Peterborough, April 23.

Veteran CCF-er Heads Party For B.C. Election

VANCOUVER (CP) — The CCF's fight for power in the June 9 British Columbia election will be carried out under a veteran socialist whose trade is education—school principal Arnold Webster.

The 54-year-old principel of Magee high school here moved Friday into the leadership slot made vacant when ill health forced Harold Winch to resign after more than 20 years of service to socialism.

Mr. Webster was elected by acclamation after Mr. Winch rejected a last-minute bid that he withdraw his resignation. Nine other candidates said they didn't wish to run.

One of those who declined to stand for election was Ernest Winch, senior partner in the only father-son team in the B.C. legislature.

The convention continues today and Sunday to complete a platform for the party, runner-up to Social Credit by only one seat in the election last year.

Social Credit elected 19 members to 18 for CCF and formed a minority government, which fell on a vote of confidence March 24. Following the defeat, Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace rejected a CCF bid that it be allowed to form a government.

LONG ACTIVE

Mr. Webster has been active in the civic, provincial and federal fields of politics. He served three terms as president of the CCF in B.C. and now is serving his 13th term as a CCF member of the Vancouver park board.

"This change of leadership does not mean any change of policy or emphasis in any way," he said. "We are united on those policies which have been working through the years."

He added:

"We say it is not safe to leave great enterprises in the hands of individuals for their selfish ends. We believe they should be controlled by the people."

Mr. Winch, 45, was first elected to the legislature in 1933 and has been there ever since. Party whip from 1933 to 1939, he became House leader in that year and was leader of the Opposition for the last 12 years.

"My reasons for resigning are purely personal," he told the 175 convention delegates Friday. "I would like to make it clear that there is no dispute, no split, in the CCF."

He said "poor health and nervous exhaustion" left him no other choice and he is not considering entering federal politics.

Mr. Webster indicated he will seek election in Mr. Winch's old riding of Vancouver East.

Visiting Newsmen Cause Excitement Among Russian People In Brest-Litovsk

Editor's Note:
Miss Rebecca F. Gross has returned to the U. S. from a visit to Moscow with other U. S. news executives who received a block of visas as an evident part of the recent Soviet efforts to be more friendly to the West. She is co-publisher of the Lock Haven (Pa.) Express.

By REBECCA F. GROSS

BERLIN (AP) — The spectacle of 10 Westerners strolling through Brest-Litovsk this week drew curious crowds of young and old. That was the last day in Russia for a party of U. S. newspaper and radio people who flew from London via Helsinki March 31, a few days after getting word that they could have visas for a visit to Moscow.

We had planned to return by air, by way of Stockholm. Then we learned we could get permission to cross western Russia, Poland and Eastern Germany by rail, with a stop of several hours at the Russian-Polish border. The change was worth the extra time, if only for the sake of rubbing shoulders with the curious crowds at Brest-Litovsk a community of about 20,000.

We crowded into three taxicabs and went to see the city hall, a couple of theatres, and a lovely little Russian Orthodox Church topped by blue bulb spires. The entourage of cabs attracted some attention, especially as the camera-bearing passengers popped out at every stop to photograph the scene. We had been told by the tourist manager that picture-taking was permitted. We had taken pictures without explicit limitations everywhere we went, except inside the Kremlin walls and at the Stalin automobile works in Moscow.

VISIT BIG STORE

After we dismissed the cabs we walked through the business district, visiting what appeared to be the largest store in the city.

A series of connected shops, each with its own door opening to the street, this store was crowded with people within two minutes after some of our party walked into the shops. When we went in, the place was almost empty. The purchase of a few dolls had not been completed, however, before it was so jammed with people that one could scarcely struggle to the counter to add another order for a five-inch doll. The doll, which had a rag body and a plastic face, cost seven rubles ($1.75 at the arbitrary exchange rate used by Moscow).

When we departed, the store emptied at once. When we moved into another street, stopping en route to take pictures of well-bundled children who eyed us with round-faced curiosity, the crowds followed and overflowed into the street.

IDENTIFY THEMSELVES

We identified ourselves to the crowd as Americans, and several spoke to us in Russian, German, and English—the last from a woman who said she was a school teacher.

An old lady who spoke German was much interested in the fact that we were Americans. Her reaction, as translated by James L. Wick, of Niles, Ohio, leader of our group, was to assure him that things would be better in the U. S. "after the revolution."

There were a good many soldiers walking around the town. They, too, took a lively interest in our activities but none interfered with us in any way.

The attention we attracted at Brest-Litovsk on our way out of Russia was more noticeable and unanimous than in Moscow.

We arrived at Moscow at night in a Russian plane in which we flew from Helsinki.

Waiting for us at the huge airport was a delegation of high-ranking Russian officials.

FEW FORMALITIES

Customs formalities were negligible. The bags of about half of us were opened but the inspectors barely glanced into them.

Coming out we had only one difficult episode as the train carried us over the borders of Russia into Poland and from Poland into East Germany. Inspectors opened a few bags at Brest-Litovsk, but not many.

Polish inspection was made when the train was a few miles out of Brest-Litovsk. It resulted in the removal of film from several cameras.

Leaving Poland and entering and leaving the Soviet zone of Germany was not difficult, not even to the opening of a bag.

Toronto Opens Newspaper Week

TORONTO (CP) — Newspaper week opens here Monday with publishers and executives of Canada's daily newspapers meeting in annual sessions of their news and business organizations. Scheduled are annual meetings of The Canadian Press, the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association, and Press News Limited.

CP directors meet Monday and Tuesday. Annual meeting of members of the national news co-operative will be held Wednesday, when a new board of directors will be chosen.

CDNA directors meet Thursday and Saturday, with the annual meeting Thursday and Friday. The CDNA holds committee meetings Tuesday.

Annual and directors meetings of Press News, CP's affiliate which provides news to radio stations, are set for Monday, both being continued Wednesday.

The Canadian section, Commonwealth Press Union, meets Tuesday night.

Sir Christopher Chancellor, general manager of Reuters, will speak at the CP annual meeting dinner set for Wednesday night.

"Marsh Hare" Dinner Draws 200, Nets $400

LONG POINT, Ont. (CP)—They didn't call it muskrat," it was "marsh hare."

Some 200 men sat down to a dinner Thursday night, at $2 each, to raise money for flood relief in Britain and Holland and for a program of supplying equipment for Long Point district playgrounds. The meal was provided by the Lions' Club of this Lake Erie community.

"We don't know of anything else like it anywhere," Lions' president Lorne Neal said. "Perhaps no one else could manage an annual supper that featured muskrat. But by golly, you'd be surprised how many come back."

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—The 574-foot lake carrier E. B. Barber is to slide down the ways at Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company today in the Lakehead's first launching of 1953. Mrs. E. B. Barber, wife of the president of the Algoma Central and Hudson Bay Railway Company, will christen the new vessel. Capacity is 450,000 bushels of grain, or 13,500 tons of ore.

Find Mash, Fine Man

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Arthur Welsh, Grantham township farmer, was fined $101 Friday for possessing a mash "suitable for the distillation of spirits." He was arrested after five RCMP officers searched his home and found 245 gallons of fruit mash, apparently made from cherries.

De Laval Elects Andrew Purdon Gen. Manager

The De Laval Company, Limited, of Peterborough at the annual meeting held April 10 elected Andrew Purdon vice-president and general manager, F. H. Mitchell secretary and a director, and J. W. Harris treasurer and comptroller. C. L. Upper, retiring president, was appointed management consultant. G. F McKinnon is manager of DeLaval's Peterborough office.

Mr. Purdon's promotion to acting general manager and Mr. Mitchell's appointment as sales manager, of the company's dairy and creamery divisions, were recorded in this paper during March of this year. Mr. Harris, C.A., formerly with Peat, Marwick & Mitchell Company, in 1952 joined De Laval accounting department.

These De Laval executive promotions, Mr. Purdon stated, will greatly assist the company in taking advantage of the expanding industrialization, improving dairy markets, and increasing overall business activities throughout Canada.

Lads In Rowboat Saved On Lake

BARRIE (CP)—Two 12-year-old boys who climbed into an unused rowboat Friday drifted across Kempenfeldt bay in Lake Simcoe.

Wayne Bellsmith and Jimmy Beamish were playing at the edge of the bay when they decided to get into the rowboat. They pushed it along the shore with a pole, then started drifting out into the bay.

A friend, Wayne Fitzgerald, 11, who refused to go with them, headed for the elder Wayne's home. Police were called and Ronald Butson and Mellville Smith, employees of a boat lines company, took a motor launch out to rescue the boys.

Butson said later: "The tiny boat was half filled with water when we reached the lads."

Kenney, of Seeley's Bay, Ont., points out a target from a hilltop position to Sniper M. P. LeBlanc, of Orleans, Ont.

SHIP JAM—Great Lakes shipping was brought to a standstill in the Sault Ste. Marie area when a sudden spring flow of slush ice jammed the St. Mary's River and caused 85 large freighters to drop anchor until the passage cleared. The freighter Harry Yates, upbound through the Canadian canal, became stuck when the 444-foot freighter got caught between a lock gate and ice piled 15 feet thick. Traffic returned to normal five days after a strong wind cleared the locks of the slush ice.

Famed Canada Goose Lands By Aircraft At Windsor

By ROD CURRIE

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Winnie, the Canada goose who is getting as famous as his ancestor of the golden eggs, settled down at the nearby Jack Miner bird sanctuary today to recuperate.

Compared to the legendary goose Winnie is a flop; he can't even fly.

It was for this reason he arrived in Windsor Friday night aboard a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane for a reception by Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, air lines officials, a battery of photographers and reporters and a cluster of spectators.

After posing for photographers, he was packed into the car of Manley Miner, a son of the famed founder of the sanctuary 25 miles southeast of here, and whisked away to the seclusion of a private, 25-foot-square coop.

For Winnie all the hubbub was old stuff. He has been in the limelight, and caused a minor ruffle of international waters, since he was found stranded at Greenwich, Conn., a couple of weeks ago.

Finally, Canadian interests won their battle to have Winnie brought home. Before leaving New York he was presented with a 14-carat gold leg-band bearing the legend: "Winnie, U.S.A.-Canada."

During a stopover in Toronto Friday the welcome was similar to the one he received here.

Winnie first attracted attention a few weeks ago when his lack of tail feathers prevented his joining the flock taking off to fly north from an inlet at Greenwich.

Other geese tried unsuccessfully to help him take off.

A pellet hole through the web of one foot led to the belief the gander was once wounded. Officials of the New York zoo speculated the shot may have injured a nerve which controls the tail feathers.

It is Winnie's inability to move these feathers that keeps the bird from getting airborne. A sympathetic pilot said the bird's plight was similar to that of a plane without rudder control.

Mr. Miner, whose long experience at the sanctuary prompted officials to send Winnie there for care, said the gander won't be released until he can take care of himself. "Maybe that won't be until after the birds moult in August," he said.

Dutch Bandsmen Join Canadian Brigade

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's Army is enlisting Netherlands musicians as bandsmen for service both in Canada and abroad, Defence Minister Claxton said Friday.

He told Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes VC (PC—Nanaimo) that reports that Netherlands bandsmen are going to serve with Canada's 27th brigade in Germany are true. In addition, he said, they also will serve in Canada.

The army later said the shortage of Canadian musicians willing to enlist and who have the required talents is such that it is recruiting bandsmen both in Holland and England.

Ottawa Offers Scholarships In Town Planning

OTTAWA (CP)—More than $20,000 has been set aside to help students of community planning, housing and urban development during the 1953-54 academic year, D. B. Mansur, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, announced Friday.

The money will go for two senior fellowships worth $3,000 each, nine fellowships worth $1,200 each and five bursaries worth $800 each.

Senior fellowships are intended to help those who have already shown capacity for original work and who are able to contribute to development of housing in Canada. Applicants must have professional qualifications and administrative, teaching or research experience

AT FOUR COLLEGES

The nine fellowships are for study of community planning at McGill University or the Universities of Toronto, Manitoba or British Columbia. They are available to graduates of recognized universities in social sciences, architecture or civil engineering. Applicants must be prepared to undertake a prescribed course of studies.

Applications for the two senior fellowships and five bursaries should write the chairman of the research committee, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Ottawa. Applications for the nine other fellowships should go to registrars of McGill, the Universities of Toronto, Manitoba or British Columbia.

Juror's Poor Hearing Causes Second Trial

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Lloyd Stanley Dagg, ordered to stand trial a second time after it was discovered one of the jurors at the first trial heard very little of the testimony, was acquitted Friday of a charge of receiving stolen goods.

Judge Aibert J. Gordon ordered the new trial last November when Crown Attorney Bruce J. S. Macdonald called for a poll of the jurors and discovered juryman Omer Bissonnette suffered poor hearing.

ON TRAINING RANGE—Two members of the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion load Bren gun magazines at the Putlos ranges, north of Hannover, Germany. Pte. Gilbert Brault (left) and Pte. Andrew Dubuis, are both from Montreal. Soldiers with the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade on garrison duty in West Germany take well to their field training but have some complaints about how to spend their off-duty hours.

Soldiers Beef In Germany But That Is Always Granted

Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff correspondent with the Canadian forces in Korea since 1950, has spent three weeks in Germany with the 27th Canadian brigade. He listened to soldiers' complaints and in this story, one of a series, he lists some of them and gives the army's answers.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—Soldiers beef in any man's army.

Here is a sampling of the sort of beef that reached the ears of a Canadian Press reporter, and the army's answers.

1. Pte. Bob Nodwell, Toronto—"I can't exchange my uniform. They get worn out. I can get a tunic but no pants."

The army says there is no shortage of uniforms in ordnance stocks. Perhaps new unit quartermasters were not indenting properly.

NEW CLOTHING SCHEME

2. Cpl. Joseph Schumaker, Kelowna, B.C.—"Why do we have to wait until May 1 before exchanging clothing. I have four shirts worn in the neck. I hear that after May 1 we're going to have to pay."

The army here says "there is a new clothing scheme coming out but we're not clear on the details yet ourselves." The scheme apparently involves a clothing allowance to the soldier from which will be deducted the cost of items issued to him. He will be entitled to draw any accumulated credit. Legitimately-worn-out items still will be replaceable.

3. Pte. Romeo Lariviere, High Prairie, Alta.—"The meals aren't good enough."

The army says the food supplied is good. It says good cooks are scarce and it is trying hard to train enough to satisfy the brigade. Where there is room for improvement the food should be better soon.

This reporter found the meals well varied, but unappetizing to Canadian taste. One reason: German kitchen help does most of the cooking. Another: Catering seems impersonal, the cooks don't take the same pride in satisfying a battalion that they do when they cook for a company.

4. Pte. Lawrence White, Lindsay, Ont.—"Why can't I wear civilian clothes off duty?"

The army says it was decided in Ottawa, as a matter of policy, that Canadian soldiers in Germany should wear uniform "to show the flag." The policy is to be changed shortly and soldiers in good standing will be given the privilege of wearing civvies off duty.

MIDNIGHT LIMIT

5. Pte. Howard Kimber, Sarnia, Ont.—"Why do I have to leave public places at midnight when I have a pass authorizing me to be out until 2 a.m.?"

The army says British Army authorities established early in the occupation the policy that men in uniform should leave public places at midnight.

6. L.Cpl. Keith Bates, North Bay Ont.—"Why can't we have 48-hour passes at week-ends. We don't work Saturday afternoons and Sundays anyway?"

The army says that with authority to wear civilian clothes soldiers also will be able to obtain overnight passes. For social purposes around Hannover two successive overnight passes should serve the purpose of a 48. The army doesn't want to complicate the existing leave set-up, which provides for three 14-day leaves a year, one of which may be taken out in seven 48 hour passes.

7. Pte. O. A. (Al) Harding, Montreal—"Why don't we get some good Canadian entertainment?"

The army here says: "We would like to know the answer to that one too. That's up to Ottawa." There are two radio shows daily for Canadians, but what the men want are concert parties. Other things needed, says the army, are dart, checker and cribbage boards, dominoes and playing cards.

8. Rifleman Ed Bellefeuille, Toronto—"Why haven't we a Canadian club for the men here?"

The army says "what would such a club offer that isn't available now? What would it cost? How many soldiers would it serve? We consider the facilities here superior to those in any Canadian camp, such as Wainwright, Alta., for instance."

Atom Conference Ends No Statement Given

CHALK RIVER (CP)—Atomic scientists from Canada, Britain and the United States ended a three-day declassification conference here Friday but maintained an air of secrecy on conclusions reached.

A delegate said, however, that a number of recommendations had been made which must be approved by each of the three governments before they go into effect.

There will be no statement, he said, until that is done.

Butler To Bring U.K. Budget Down Tuesday

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Treasury boss Richard Austen Butler retired Friday night to his country home in Essex with a pocketful of expensive question marks. The country gets the answers Tuesday.

For Tuesday is Britain's budget day—probably the greatest occasion of the parliamentary year, with its well-loved ritual of the whimsical question, the battered dispatch box and the traditional refreshments.

There's one big difference this year. The usual confident forecasts about what's going to be in the budget are missing. The financial writers are hedging every bet. They know what they'd like the chancellor to do, but they're not sure how he can do it.

One of the big stumbling blocks is that Britain closed the financial year March 31 with an overall deficit of £436,000,000. In his previous budget, Butler had estimated an approximate balance, but revenue was considerably below expectations.

The budgetary deficit apart, Butler's biggest decision may involve consideration of international financial trends. Put simply, he must make up his mind whether restraints on spending should be tightened, or whether the possibility of a world recession might be an occasion for letting out the sails a little.

Last year Butler set out to achieve a balanced economy—one in which neither the forces of inflation nor of deflation would have too great an influence. He is said to feel that he has succeeded.

Now the task, as treasury officials see it, is to keep the balance and at the same time act strongly to boost production for export.

Bank Manager Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Durward Donald Lennie, 56, manager of the Leaside branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, died Friday of a heart attack. A native of Hamilton, he joined the bank in Dundas in 1915 and served branches at Owen Sound and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. He came to Toronto in 1930.

ARNOLD J. WILSON

DONALD J. HAWTHORNE

Operations are conducted through its Westclox Division at LaSalle-Peru, Illinois; Seth Thomas Clocks Division at Thomaston, Conn.; Western Clock Company, Ltd., at Peterborough, Ontario; Stromberg Time Corporation, New York; Haydon Manufacturing Company, Torrington, Conn.; and Goshen Division at Goshen, Indiana. It also operates overseas plants in Scotland, Brazil and Australia.

Firemen Rescue Two In Toronto House Fire

TORONTO (CP)—Firemen fought their way through smoke in a Toronto home Thursday night to rescue a baby from its crib and a crippled 83-year-old woman from an upper floor.

Firemen located Anne Haley, 3, in the crib but Mrs. Charles Stuart was found on the hall floor where she had collapsed while trying to flee. All other occupants of the house escaped. The fire is believed to have started from a spark from a cigar igniting clothing hanging in a stairway.

Polite Thieves

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Burglars ransacked the head office of the Graham Oil Company here Friday and stole 10 cartons of cigarets. Before leaving, they scribbled two thank-you notes in red pencil on the back of a contract form.

Short But Busy Week Ends On Toronto Mart

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It was a short week but not a merry one on the Toronto stock exchange.

Trading opened after the Easter Monday holiday with a burst of selling. The exchange's indexes, which measure the main price trends, showed an average decline of slightly more than two points.

Communist peace moves in Korea and elsewhere drew the largest share of blame for the losses. Observers say any upset in the international situation—peaceful or warlike — causes uncertain and lower prices.

New York traders were inclined to view the decline there as the result of "spring switching" rather than a "peace scare." They said investors were clearing some stocks out of portfolios, holding the cash or buying other issues to take advantage of Republican government policies.

They look for a period of adjustment to result from the end of price controls, lessened "government interference" in business and some deflation.

Toronto traders suggested that Canadian markets could withstand any cut in armament expenditures better than the United States markets. They said the Canadian defence program is planned for several years and no drastic cuts are expected.

Mining companies in Canada were not dependent exclusively on defence industry and many big developments now under way would not be halted even if some defence cuts were made.

Here's the market picture day by day:

Selling pressure sparked a sharp decline in Toronto Tuesday and some Montreal prices fell to record lows. A small rise started in Toronto Wednesday while Montreal was mixed. Montreal hit more lows Thursday and Toronto slipped. Friday saw an improvement in Montreal but Toronto continued weak.

New York markets were open Monday and prices suffered sharp losses. Mixed prices prevailed Tuesday and an advance started Wednesday but fell off Thursday. Prices continued lower Friday.

From Thursday to Friday, the Toronto indexes showed industrials down 2.52 at 313.45, golds down .62 at 80.27, base metals down 2.97 at 165.65 and western oils down 3.1 at 120.30.

In the Montreal averages, banks were down .06 at 33.29, utilities down 1.4 at 94.5, industrials down 5.8 at 194.4, combined down 4.3 at 161.1, papers down 17.48 at 687.46 and golds down 1.36 at 61.12.

In New York, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down $1.70 at $109.60.

A CORONATION SCENE — XI

AFTER THE CORONATION — Following the sacred rites of the Coronation service the Queen will make her processional way along the nave of Westminster Abbey. At the West door her coach is waiting for her triumphal drive through London. Through ancient prints and tapestries the history of the Coronation is told in the film "The Coronation Ceremony," made for public showing by Her Majesty's Central Office of Information. The film is made up of artists' drawings.

B.C. Enters Field Of Auto Insurance

VICTORIA (CP) — The British Columbia government has entered the car insurance field.

Effective April 1, the government ceased buying insurance from private companies to cover its 2,850 vehicles on the road and is issuing its own.

The move has been called an "economic measure" in a circular which is going out to all persons who drive government cars in connection with their work.

Order Substantial Increase In Air Defences

OTTAWA—(CP)—The government has ordered a "substantial increase in the emphasis on the defence of North America against air attack" as a result of modifications in Canada defence program, a white paper on defence disclosed today. The 40-page document, tabled in the Commons by Defence Minister Claxton as a prelude to a two-day military debate starting Tuesday, did not elaborate on that point but tied in with reports that the RCAF is likely to exceed the 41-squadron limit laid down in 1951 as its goal.

The white paper said that "over the past two years and particularly over recent months the (Canadian) program has been subject to searching review and this has brought about some modifications to give effect to the combined experience of the United Nations in Korea and of the North Atlantic nations in Europe."

It added: "There has also been a substantial increase in the emphasis on the defence of North America from air attack."

SABRES BEST MiGs

The white paper also said:

Canadian-made American-flown F-86 Sabre jet fighters have been outfighting Russian - made MiGs in Korea by a 9-1 ratio and by this autumn an even better Sabre will be in production, equipped with Canada's own Orenda engine.

2. The accumulation of clothing and personal equipment for mobilization—butt of many questions and attacks in the House—is largely completed but stores of "hard goods"—tanks, guns and other big equipment—are not anywhere near that complete.

3. The three-year Canadian defence program which was announced as a $5,000,000,000 project in February, 1951, now is expected to cost $5,268,000,000 plus another $350,000,000 which counts as defence costs, a total of $5,618,000,000.

4. "While Canada, like other countries, has been working on a three-year program, it should be appreciated that defence planning must extend well beyond the period of three years, and the program is subject to continuous review."

MANPOWER BOOSTED

5. Since Korea, Canada's military manpower has jumped 121 per cent, to 104,000 from 47,000 "but the defence strength of Canada, actual and potential, has increased far more than is indicated merely by the increase in numbers of men."

The statement that increased emphasis is being placed on home-defence against air attack was backed up by the statement that the first home-defence CF-100 jet squadron has recently been formed and that others are following.

It said air attack is the most probable form of attack against this continent and that the threat will increase "as further progress is made in design and production of new aircraft and the increasing stockpile of atomic weapons estimated to be held by the U. S.-S. R."

The paper, in an apparent reference to recent Soviet overtures, said the growth in Western strength "furnishes no reason for complacency but should be rather an incentive to press along the course which has already contributed to our having had three years without a major war."

Any chance of settlement must be welcomed but the Western powers "must neither allow themselves to be lulled into a false sense of security nor ruin their economies by trying to do more than they are capable of doing."

Blame Hormones For Some Types Of Cancer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

DENVER (AP) — Sex hormones working in secret ways on women's breasts between the ages of 20 and 40 may start breast cancers that appear at 55 or 60, a physician said today.

This is a clue to a treatment of breast cancers with both female and male sex hormones, which has benefitted a few women. It also is a long-range clue to prevention of human cancers.

The experiments were described to science reporters starting a two-week tour, organized by the American Cancer Society, of cancer research centres in Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Houston, Tex., and New Orleans.

The hormone guilt is indicated in mouse experiments by Dr. Robert Huseby, University of Colorado school of medicine.

BALANCE LOST

Specifically, he said, the fault seems to be in the amounts and inter-play of female and male sex hormones in the body. Female hormone stimulates the breast. Male hormone may protect the breast from too much female hormone. The balance of hormones may be out of kilter in women who later get breast cancer. Still other hormones may be involved.

Just what the mix-up in hormone pattern may be still is a mystery. If the normal balance can be learned, blood tests might make it possible to learn which women needed extra amounts of various hormones while young in order to prevent cancer later.

Dr. Huseby is using combinations of male and female sex hormones on women whose breast cancers can't be cured by surgery. Three of the nine women have benefitted greatly, he said. The cancer of one woman is apparently still gone seven years later. Five were not helped at all and the results in another were doubtful.

Douks Set Fire To 13 B.C. Homes

NELSON, B. C. (CP)—Thirteen homes were put to the torch Sunday in British Columbia's turbulent Doukhobor country. The occupants of four managed to put out the flames but nine burned to the ground.

Night-raiders threw gasoline or coal-oil on doorways and then tossed matches.

Fires broke out at five homes at Perry's Siding, 15 miles northwest of here; at five homes at nearby Appledale and at three homes at Shoreacres, 14 miles northwest.

Later, Reformed Sons of Freedom Doukhobors from throughout the troubled West Kootenay area gathered at Krestova to deny any part in the arson attacks.

The Sons of Freedom sect has been blamed for past arson attacks. The group, an offshoot of the orthodox Doukhobors sect, has split. One group calls itself the Reformed Sons, while the other keeps the "Sons" name.

Many of the 300 who met at Krestova said they thought terrorism is being incited and carried out by non-Doukhobors. They worshipped and exchanged information on the fire-attacks for three hours. A fund to assist the burned-out families was started by a Doukhobor leader, John Jperepelkin.

Budget Theme?

SAFFRON WALDEN (Reuters)—British treasury boss Richard Buttler, who will present his new budget Tuesday, read the lesson at his parish church at this Essex village Sunday.

'The lesson, from the 52nd chapter of Isiah, might not cheer Britons expecting Butler to slash taxes.

An excerpt from it said: ". . . And ye shall be redeemed without money."

Settle Last Details Of PoW Swap

Allied Troops Stage Dress Rehearsal Of Exchange Drill

MUNSAN, Korea — (AP)—Allied soldiers and marines today staged a dress rehearsal covering every detail of the exchange of sick and wounded Korean war prisoners, which begins next Monday.

United Nations and Communist staff officers earlier today settled final details of the exchange. The agreement was signed Saturday at Panmunjom.

At the signing the Reds submitted their latest request for renewal of full-scale armistice talks, broken off by the UN last Oct. 8. The UN has not replied.

Peiping radio announced the first convoy of sick and wounded Allied prisoners would start for the exchange site Tuesday. The 23 vehicles will arrive at Kaesong Thursday and remain there four days before the actual swap begins. The UN pressed for an earlier start but the Reds refused.

PLAN DETAILS

U.S. marines, British and South Korean troops played the part of sick and wounded prisoners as UN medical and security personnel held a realistic dress rehearsal for the exchange.

Lt.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, 8th army commander, headed an array of high officers who witnessed the drill near Panmunjom.

At the truce village earlier, the Communists handed over a further breakdown of nationalities of the 600 ailing PoWs they said they would exchange.

The Reds said a group of 15 not previously identified would include prisoners from Turkey, Canada, Greece, Holland, the Philippines, South Africa, Australia and Colombia.

REDS RETURN 590

The Reds previously announced the prisoners they would return include 450 South Koreans, 120 Americans and 20 British soldiers. The Allies will return 5,800 sick and wounded—5,100 North Koreans and 700 Chinese.

Today's dress rehearsal included both the giving and the taking of Confesses Plan To Spy On U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Otto Verber, an Austrian-born former United States army intelligence officier, pleaded guilty today to conspiring to spy on U. S. defence secrets for Russia.

Verber, 31, entered his surprise plea before U. S. district judge Alexander Holtzoff who said he will impose sentence later. Verber faces a maximum of 10 years in prison.

James C. Toomey, court-appointed counsel for Kurt Ponger, 39, Verber's co-defendant and brother-in-law, told reporters Monger intends to stand trial.

Verber pleaded guilty to one of the two charges in the indictment against him and Ponger.

This count alleges that he and Ponger conspired together and with others to collect information concerning the U. S. army and air force in Austria and in the U. S. for transmission to Russia.

18,000 Gunless Hunters Capture Over 1,000 Rattlers In Single Day With Forked Sticks

WAYNOKA, Okla. (AP)—An estimated 18,000 gunless hunters Sunday stalked drowsy but deadly rattlesnakes in the hills around here and brought back more than 1,000 wriggling reptiles—alive.

The hunt, which kicks off the rattlesnake "season" in Oklahoma, will be followed next week by the famous annual Okeene, Okla., rattler roundup, considered the daddy of them all.

As certain as the coming of spring, each year thrill-seekers and experienced snake-handlers from many parts of the U.S. pack the little northwestern Oklahoma communities to bursting point to track down their venom-laden quarry.

Dangerous? Yes, but not as bad as it may sound.

Rattler-wise hunters who wouldn't come within miles of their fangs in summer and fall know they can battle it out on even terms in April and come out ahead, alive, and usually unbitten.

The snakes are emerging from a winter-long sleep and are groggy.

So the hunters stalk the dens with their forked sticks—snake-bite serum and suction cups standard equipment with every group—and catch the reptiles near the head, pinning them.

No one was bitten on the hunt. No one has been bitten in the seven years of hunts at Waynoka.

British More Hopeful Of Tax Reductions In Butler's Second Budget

LONDON—(Reuters)—Budget time in Britain this year finds the nation's breadwinners counting on another cut in taxes, perhaps even larger than the income-tax cuts which Winston Churchill handed out in the budget a years ago. Churchill's treasury chief, Richard Butler, will announce his decisions in the House of Commons Tuesday. Though the economic outlook for Britain is far from rosy, many experts believe Butler's news will be popular. Many are confident that the standard income-tax rate will be cut to 45 per cent. It now stands at 9s 6d in the pound—47.5 per cent. This is the tax rate Britons pay after allowances for dependents and other "sliding-scale reductions.

Others see high hopes for a reduction in the gasoline tax and the sales tax.

If these predictions prove true, the average Briton can thank Russia's Georgi Malenkov as much as anyone.

RUSSIAN MOVES HELP

Russia's current moves toward a relaxation in world tension have already brought upsets in the financial world. The economics as well as the political pointers are for more incentives to Britons to work harder against a shrinking export market and falling material costs—a standby which Britain normally counts on to bring in much dollar revenue.

It was the prospect of shrinking export markets which prompted the administration to cut taxes a year ago.

Butler and his supporters believe the plan worked; that the 1952 budget struck a fair balance between inflationary and deflationary tendencies and kept the economy on an even keel.

The income taxes introduced then meant that thousands of British workers had to pay no income tax at all. A recent statistical survey placed the national basic average weekly wage at £9 11s ($26.75). Such a wage-earner with a wife and two children now pays only 21 cents a year income tax.

But if his earnings were twice as high he would pay £113 tax and someone earning £1,965 a year—a fat wage in Britain — would pay £447 in tax if he had two children.

PROBLEMS TOO

But Butler also faces plenty of problems suggesting a need for more belt-tightening. He wound up this year with a budgetary deficit of nearly £430,000,000 instead of the even balance he had planned.

The country's export sales abroad have dropped sharply in recent months, even though sales on the U. S. market remain good and the national reserve of dollars and gold

Two Canadians Go On Trial For U.S. Murder

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Two Canadians went on trial today on first-degree murder charges in the holdup-killing of a Buffalo jeweler.

Maurice (Digger) O'Dell, 27, and Walter F. Griffin, 26, are accused of killing Donald F. Hurd, 46, in his downtown store Dec. 9. Both are from Hamilton, Ont.

The police said Hurd was dropped by a pistol bullet after three men held up the store and took about $40,000 worth of jewels.

The third man named in an indictment returned to an Erie county grand jury still is at large. He is Ralph J. Grubisich, 30, of Hamilton and Kitchener, Ont.

CAUGHT DEC. 11

Justice William H. Munson presided as selection of a jury got under way in state Supreme Court.

O'Dell and Griffen were captured in Hamilton Dec. 11, less than 48 hours after the killing. They were extradited here Feb. 9.

The indictment charges O'Dell and Griffen with killing Hurd during commission of a felony. Witnesses at an extradition hearing testified O'Dell fired the fatal shot.

The police said about $25,000 worth of jewels still have not been recovered.

AL Opener Rained Out Moved To Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rain forced postponement today of the Washington-New York game which was to have opened the American League baseball season.

The game waas resecheduled for Thursday at 2 p. m. EST and opening ceremonies planned for today will be carried out then. The Thursday game will be part of a day-night doubleheader, with the second game at 8:30 p. m., as originally planned.

Eight Killed As Plane Crashes Hill

Wreckage Of Craft Scattered, All Die Instantly

SEPT ILES, Que. —(CP) — Eight men were killed Saturday when their twin-engined Beechcraft failed on a take off from a frozen lake, 65 miles northwest of this iron ore mining centre and crashed into a mountain side.

Dead are: Marcel Carbonneau, 31, of Levis, Que., pilot; Jack Brawle, 40, Pickering, Ont., prospector; Eddy Corriveau, Montreal, prospector; William Wright, 23, of Lac Moisie, Que.; John Poulin, 25, of Lac Moisie; Emile Gagne, 50, Sept Iles, restaurant operator; Georges Regis, 20, and R. Volant, 23, both of Sept Iles Indian reservation.

The men left Sept Iles April 5 in the plane, property of Ailes du Nord Limited, on a titanium iron ore and uranium prospecting tour near a four-mile lake, about 3,000 feet above sea level.

NEAR IRON MINE

The lake is south of the $200,000,000 iron ore mining operations, 300 miles east of Quebec City.

Wright and Poulin left the group to work at a fishing club near the lake.

Saturday all gathered on the lake's ice for the return trip to Sept Iles. The plane failed to clear the surrounding mountains.

The craft was ripped and debris was widely scattered. The eight occupants, two of them still wearing safety belts, were not thrown from the plane.

The craft's panel clock was stopped at 9:58 a.m. A crew of a scouting Norseman aircraft sent out by officials of the company who became worried when the Beechcraft became overdue found the wreck.

Rescue workers were flown in by Norseman and a helicopter Sunday. The Norseman remained on the lake while the helicopter flew to the mountainside and removed the bodies from the wreck.

Dr. R. B. Marchildon, coroner, said all eight died instantly of fractured skulls when the plane hit the mountain.

Carbonneau, a former RCAF pilot, was a veteran of bush flying. He had been with Ailes du Nord since the firm was founded in 1945. With him in the pilot's cabin was Wright.

High Tides Flood Dutch Lowlands

BRUINISSE, The Netherlands (Reuters)—High tides brought new floods to the Dutch coast today. The 1,200 people of this village fled to upper rooms as the patched dikes gave way.

Workers had struggled all night to plug three breaches made in the old dike between Bruinisse and Oosterland Sunday. One gap was 40 years wide and three deep.

The repairs did not hold and the high tide swept in, re-flooding the 2,000-acre polder (reclaimed land), dry only a month after the disastrous February floods.

This time there were no casualties.

Some streets in Zierikzee, evacuation centre for devastated Schouwen-Duiveland Island last February, were only briefly flooded during Sunday night but it is feared the water will come back there at high tide this afternoon.

Doctors Declare Danger Past, No Complications

MONTREAL—(CP)—Armand Couillard, 23-year-old carnival worker, today was reported out of danger by doctors who treated him for a snake bite that might have proved fatal. Couillard, bitten Sunday by a water moccasin, one of a number of snakes on exhibition, was treated with a rare serum flown here from Hamilton, Ont. Doctors at St. Luke's hospital noted immediate improvement in Couillard's condition shortly after the serum was injected into his swollen arm. Shortly after noon, the doctors announced Couillard was recovering and would be released from hospital before the end of the week.

They said he will get another injection later today and will need a shot a day for a couple of days. They said he had a little fever and suffered pain in the wrist, where he was bitten as well as in his arm and back. However, there was no blood clot formation.

Doctors were forced to use an anti-rabies treatment until this morning and said then that Couillard was "putting up a gallant fight for his life."

The Trans-Canada Air lines plane landed here at 6:45 a. m. EST and the serum was taken to hospital by police escort.

The antidote should be injected within 30 minutes after the bite. Couillard was bitten by the 4½-foot water moccasin at 2 p.m. Sunday.

GALLANT FIGHT

Dr. Harold Tetrault, medical superintendent of the hospital, said Couillard had been treated with the serum minutes after it arrived. He said only: "He is putting up a gallant fight for his life."

The arrival of the serum ended a 24-hour search that stretched into many hospitals in Canada and the United States.

When none was available in Eastern Canada, a call was put through to the Rockefeller Institute to locate the serum in any of the northern states. They said the only place it could be obtained was from a snake farm in Florida, but ruled out hope because of the long delay.

However, shortly after midnight Robert Lang of Hamilton heard a radio broadcast of Couillard's plight and offered the serum. It

Refuse To Budge On Wheat Price

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said today in the Commons the British are "shrewd and hard bargainers" but Canada will not come down to the $2-a-bushel maximum requested by Britain as the basis for a new international wheat agreement.

"It should be clear now," he said, "that after 15 weeks of negotiation, an international wheat agreement is possible on the basis of the prices recommended by the council and on no other basis."

The council proposed a $2.05-bushel maximum, up from the current ceiling of $1.80, and a floor of $1.55, up from $1.20. Britain balked at any ceiling above $2.

Mr. Howe, spiking rumors that Canada might finally agree to reduce the ceiling to get Britain back into the wheat agreement, said Canada will sign the pact under the proposed terms—and not at Britain's price.

"The Canadian delegate has already been authorized to sign on behalf of Canada and will do so today," he said.

"We hope the United Kingdom will also sign.

S. African Vote To Decide Racial Policies

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—White South Africans decide in a fateful election Wednesday whether they intend bossing the black man with the gloves on or off.

That choice has been posed before the country's 1,200,000 voters by Prime Minister Daniel tionalists and the opposition led by Jacobus Gideon Nel Strauss.

Racial peace may be at stake in the outcome, not only in this troubled southern land but also in the restless territories to the north where primitive Negro millions are awakening into the 20th century.

Hinging on the outcome is whether the tough ideas of the Dutch-descended Boer or middle-road British ideas will triumph in the future of this 43-year-old British Commonwealth state.

Despite slogans revolving around high living costs, housing shortages and the constitutions, the election is being fought over race and color policies.

WANT WHITES BOSS

Malan's government and the United Party, which the late Field Marshal Jan Smuts helped create, agree that the white man must remain boss in South Africa. They differ on how this is to be done.

The Nationalists have made it plain they are ready to cold-storage traditional forms of parliamentary rule if this will insure white supremacy.

The opposition argues that the same objectives can be achieved by less drastic means and has pledged to restore basic freedoms which Malan's men threaten.

The bitterness of the campaigning has caused all police leave to be stopped.

In some places the people, when they speak about politics, look over their shoulders, police-state style.

ODDS FAVOR MALAN

Against this background the odds seem to be on the stern, crusading 78-year-old Malan narrowly winning back power over the country.

Saloon Owner Slays Burglar

CHICAGO (AP) — A two-gun saloonkeeper dueled a robber early Sunday in an unlighted northwest side tavern.

The saloonkeeper, Raymond G. Strobot, 35, was taken to a hospital with bullet wounds in the leg and hand.

The robber, about 22, was taken to the morgue. He was shot in the heart. He is still unidentified.

Strobot, who shot and wounded another robber in a similar incident two years ago, told police the prowler opened fire when Strobot investigated a noise. Strobot returned the fire with two guns he had kept under his pillow.

Police found $107 cash and a $50 cheque Strobot said were taken from his cash register in the pockets of the handkerchief-masked robber.

SLIPPER SLEEPERS—These spaniel puppies would rather sleep in slippers now than take them to their master. Owned by Eethel McFadyen, 539 Bethune St., the puppies come from a long line of blue bloods. Their grandfather is Bobb's Master Showman, one of the four top dogs in the United States three years ago; their father is Robbie Bruce. These partis-colored pups, the red and white variety, are only six weeks old. They'll bring a neat profit into the McFayden kennels, for they sell at a minimum of $50 each.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Inventor Of Bedspring

Town Bounces Out Of Bed To Honor Man Who Turned Sleepytime To Springtime

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The town bounced out of bed today to honor the man who put the spring in the bounce.

One hundred years ago, James E. Liddy of Watertown thought of the bedspring, bless him.

The idea was a natural for Liddy, who worked for a carriage maker. One Saturday in 1853, Lidd waited in his buggy while his wife shopped. As it comes to all men, impatience came to Liddy. He jiggled up and down on the buggy seat.

Then and there, he realized buggy springs could add to the comfort of beds as well.

Liddy died without realizing any profits beyond that comfort, however. He didn't have the money to set up a business and others used his idea.

Miss Margaret Liddy, who remembers her inventive grandfather as a kind man with a long, white beard, was invited to be guest of honor at a centennial luncheon today.

And the Watertown barbershop quartet chimed in with a song written for the occasion by J. Paul Fanning.

Here's how it goes:

"Seated in his buggy, flickin' off the flies,
Waiting for his missus shopping for supplies,
Wistfully James Liddy, in a reverie,
Contemplated problems of resiliency;
Shuddered at the spectre of that tangled web of ropes
Saggin' 'neath his mattress in perpetuated slopes.
Suddenly he saw it, why of all the simple things,
Under-prop the mattresses with carriage springs. . . . . "

To show how much better off we are, the bed makers had one of the old rope beds on hand for today's festivities.

16 Deaths Mar Weekend In East Canada

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A two-engined Beechcraft plane crashed on a mountainside five miles west of Lac Manitou, Que., Saturday, killing eight persons including the pilot.

The were among the 16 persons to die violent deaths in Eastern Canada during the week-end, a survey early Monday showed. There were five traffic deaths. Twelve lives were lost in Quebec and four in Ontario.

The plane, bound for Sept Iles after a week-long prospecting tour south of the Ungava iron ore mining development, apparently crashed on taking off.

TEEN-AGERS DIE

Three United States teen-agers were fatally injured on the U.S.-Quebec border five miles south of Cantic, Que., when a Canadian National Railways train rammed their car. Bessie Prideaux, 17, Joan Bennett, 17, and Andre Nolette, about 19, all of Rouses Point, N. Y., were between the Canadian and American customs offices when the train struck them.

Ontario deaths: Everett Croft, 32, of Toronto, when part of an old church which was being demolished fell on him; Andy Ellis, 16, of Caledon East, when the tractor he was driving overturned; James L. Ranking, 39, of Wallaceburg, found shot to death with a newly-bought shotgun beside him; Norman Ruttan, 55, of Barkway, near Gravenhurst, struck by a car while he was picking up the body of a muskrat lying on the road.

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Seven members of two families were left homeless Saturday night when fire destroyed a two-storey frame house where a crude cross wrapped with paper was set afire on the lawn last Monday night at North Buxton, 10 miles southwest of here.

Loss was estimated at $5,000.

Mrs. Cecil Rhue, owner of the house, who was away at the time of both fires, said she could think of no reason why the fire broke out. She said no stove was alight and the house had no electrical wiring.

Mrs. Margaret Hutton, tenant of the upstairs apartment, had left her four small children with a neighbor while she went shopping in Chatham. Kenneth Rhue, 19-year-old-son of the owner, was also away at the time of the fire.

Mrs. Rhue said Mrs. Hutton told her that while she was away last Monday night someone set the cross afire on the lawn. Mrs. Rhue said she found the charred remains of the cross there the next morning.

Prankster Steals New Cornerstone

HAMILTON (CP)—Missing: One 200-pound cornerstone.

The cornerstone was stolen from the new Hamilton Art Gallery a few hours after the stone was declared "well and truly" laid in a ceremony Saturday.

Police said they believed the engraved stone was pried from the hardening cement and put in the trunk of a car.

Commented James Garrow, a governor of the gallery: "I didn't lay it very well, evidently."

D. C. Barber, chairman of the board of governors, said he did not think the stone was stolen for its contents—a few coins, stamps and a newspaper in a copper box.

Gallery officials and police said they believe the theft may have been done by a prankster.

Say Bowmanville Man Attempts To Suicide

OSHAWA (CP)—Charles Peters, 24, of Bowmanville is reported in grave condition in hospital with head wounds which police said were self-inflicted.

Peters was found about 9 a. m. slumped in the front seat of his car on a side road west of nearby Whitby. A .22-calibre rifle lay beside him.

Neighbors in Bowmanville said he was to have been married last Saturday.

His parents are believed to live in Fenelon Falls.

Mrs. Harry Gainey

Pallbearers at the funeral Saturday of Mrs. Harry Gainey, 368 Rubidge St., who died Wednesday were T. J. Cavanagh, James F. Dunn, Clem Galvin, Arthur Malby, William Smoothy and P. D. Scollard.

The funeral was from her home to St. Peter's Cathedral for solemn mass, the Rev. J. F. McGuire celebrant assisted by the Rev. G. J. Weis and the Rev. L. M. Dubbery. The Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, was in the sanctuary attended by the Rev. R. J. Garvey and the Rev. J. F. Coughlan.

Graveside prayers were said by Father Garvey and burial was in St. Peter's cemetery.

Old Clock Brings $425 At Auction

A grandfather's clock brought $425 at the auction sale of the household furnishings of Mr. and Mrs. A. Veneranda at the Miles sales room Saturday afternoon. Early bidders dropped out as the price moved up, leaving the field to two men who were interested in this fine piece of workmanship.

A mahogany bedroom suite sold for $330, maple bedroom suite $265; electric range $205; refrigerator $250, two small rugs brought $100 and $60, and Mr. Veneranda's flat top desk $54.

The sales room was packed for this dispersal of furnishings. Many couldn't get into the place. Mr. Miles said today "it was a very satisfactory sale. People knew and could see the value of the furniture."

Mr. Veneranda has been in the shoe repair business in Peterborough forty-five years.

"We are leaving only because we wanted to be near our two married daughters who live in Baltimore," he told the Examiner today. "I was married here, my family grew up in Peterborough, and we are very grateful for the business I received here. At the same time, I always tried to give our customers the best of value and service. I think people will understand our feelings in wishing to be near our daughters."

Mr. and Mrs. Veneranda are leaving this week for Baltimore. The long established business on Simcoe St. has been disposed of, and Mr. Veneranda said he had sold his terrace at the southeast corner of Water and McDonnel Streets. Home, property and business connections have all been severed.

300 Irish Sail For New Homes

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) —The largest single group of emigrants to leave Northern Ireland in 25 years—300 men and women—departed from here Sunday by special train for Cork where they will sail in the British liner Georgic for Canada.

For the voyage, the ship was nicknamed the "Shamrock."

The majority of the emigrants are farmers but there is a large proportion of skilled and semi-skilled workers of all kinds including those in the industrial and engineering trade. Most are bound for Alberta.

Youngest emigrant is dark-haired 19-year-old Elizabeth McMinn of Portadown, County Armagh, who was also the happiest. She is going to Hamilton to be married to her childhood sweetheart, Samuel King, who emigrated there three months ago.

With them, the emigrants took this message from James H. Norritt, Belfast lord mayor: "I wish you all Godspeed and trust that you may find success and happiness in the land of your adoption."

prisoners. The first stage was an enactment of delivery of Red prisoners. The second was the receiving of Allied PoWs and moving them to "Freedom Village" near Munsan for medical treatment and processing.

The dry run was held along the route from Munsan to the Panmunjom exchange site.

The role of the ailing Reds was taken by 225 marines, British and South Korean troops. They were loaded on a hospital train at Munsan. In the actual exchange, Red prisoners will be brought from Pusan to Munsan by rail.

SIMULATE EXCHANGE

From Munsan, the "patients" were transferred to 30 ambulances and driven to the simulated exchange point. There they were turned over in groups of 25 to an imaginery Red receiving team.

The same group played the part of returning Allied prisoners. Two supposed emergency cases were evacuated by helicopter. The rest were taken to "Freedom Village" by ambulance.

There they went through a six-step processing procedure which included decontamination - dusting with DDT, medical diagnosis, identification, and were given coffee, soup and cigarets.

The group then passed through the 45th Mobile Army Surgical Hospital for their initial medical treatments. From this point, the actual exchanged prisoners will travel by air or rail to Seoul. The non-Koreans will be flown from there to Japan.

In the actual exchange, the UN will turn over 500 PoWs daily in groups of 25 and the Reds will deliver 100 daily in groups of 25. The entire exchange should be completed in 12 days.

Meantime, the Peiping radio boasted the Reds agreed to return five per cent of the 12,000 Allied prisoners they hold, while the Allies are exchanging "only" 4.3 per cent of the 132,000 captured Communists. The broadcast asserted all Red PoWs are willing to return home.

BRICKLAYER EXECUTIVE

Edward Bailey of Peterborough was elected third vice-president of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' Union AFL Sunday in Toronto at the 37th annual Ontario Convention. The convention also decided to sponsor a bricklayers' apprenticeship competition this year at the Canadian National Exhibition, to demonstrate to the public the time, effort and skill required by an apprentice.

stand now at $2,166,000,000, highest since early 1952.

American aid is another problem Butler must tussle with. Marshall Plan aid brought Britain a total of $2,694,300,000 until the end of the plan in January, 1951. The successor Mutual Security Agency brought Britain $350,100,000 in the next year and is running at the rate of $405,000,000 for the year ending June 3, 1953.

Blanket Of Snow Covers Prairies

EDMONTON (CP) — A mid-April snowstorm frisked across the Prairies Sunday, leaving up to six inches of snow in a 150-mile belt stretching eastward from the foothills of southwestern Alberta.

The snow was accompanied by record cold for this time of year. Saturday both Calgary and Lethbridge recorded all-time low maximum temperatures for April 11. Sunday highs were in the low 20s, about 30 degrees below normal.

Cowley, in the Crow's Nest Pass area of southwestern Alberta, reported six inches of fresh snow.

The weather office reported Saturday's temperature reading of 21 at Calgary was five degrees below the previous record low maximum for April 11 set in 1928. In Lethbridge, the mark was 31, also five below the previous mark set in 1948.

Report Ogopogo Seen By Simcoe Fishermen

SUTTON (CP)—Two men fishing on Lake Simcoe Friday claim to have had a good look at the "poor man's Ogopogo," a chunky sea monster with a bulldog's head.

Nelson Hales, who has lived in this district 60 miles north of Toronto all his life, said Saturday he spotted the creature bobbing up and down in calm water. Indians claim to have seen the animal last during the autumn of 1952.

S. African Vote

The parties are contesting 136 out of 156 seats in Parliament. Two Nationalists and 18 United Party men have been elected unopposed. Out of the 156 seats, Nationalists are reported strong in 66 districts, the opposition strong in 60, leaving 30 doubtful. The opposition would have to win 17 of the 30 doubtful seats districts to clinch a hairline majority.

Malan won a bare majority of five in 1948, although he polled 100,000, or 10 per cent, fewer popular votes.

Hundreds of Strauss' followers who migrated northward to Rhodesia after the Nationalists won in 1948 are returning by organized airlift and convoy to vote in the bitter election.

TOUGH EX-PREACHER

Malan, an erstwhile preacher, has shown in five years of power that he is ready to use bare-fist methods to keep the Negro, Indian and colored or half-caste millions in what almost all whites deem to be their place of servitude.

The Nationalists have been using the battlecry of racial apartheid or separation.

Apartheid implies a white South Africa and a black South Africa, with the whites acting as guardians.

The alternative, Malan asserts, is for whites to mix with non-whites and develop a coffee-colored nation—a prospect that makes most whites here shudder.

To Build School At Lily Lake

By September trustees of SS No. 1, Smith Township, hope to have the new one-room Lily Lake public school completed. Estimated cost is $25,000.

The new school—with brick on the outside and with cement block foundations — will replace the present one which has become antiquated. It will be built on the same site though an extra acre has been bought making the school property an acre and half altogether.

After grading there will be a large level playground for the 40 or so children attending. The exact number is not known for sure. Last year there were 44 children of public school age in the school section but some of them are going to city schools.

It is on the second concession of Smith, across from the Ross Dobbin transformer station.

Cost of the building itself is estimated at $22,500 but by the time the property is fenced, furnishings bought, and other minor expenses met, the outlay will be $25,000. The trustees are expecting a 40 per cent grant from the Department of Education for the construction of their one-room school.

Plans call for a well-lighted and ventilated basement that will permit it to be used as a second classroom if there is overcrowding. Additions may be made to building without greatly altering the structure.

Smith Township Council have given second reading to a by-law to issue debentures of $25,000 to cover the cost of building and equipping the school. They require the approval of the Municipal Board before the third and final reading is given.

Pedestrian Wins Bout When Struck By Car

TORONTO (CP)—James Gallant of nearby Vaughan township came off best in an accident with an auto Sunday night.

He was talking to a motorist in a parked car and stepped back suddenly into the path of another.

Gallant was thrown into the air, landed on the hood of the car, slid down and smashed the windshield. Then he dropped to the road.

He wasn't injured, but car damage was about $50.

Head-On Crash Kills Five Near Quebec City

ST. LEON DE STANDON, Que. (CP)—Five men were killed early today in a head-on collision between their automobile and a truck between here and St. Malchie, about 35 miles south of Quebec city.

Dead are Leopold Gregoire, 26, driver of the car, his brother, Alexandre Gregoire, 24, Henri-Marc Gosselin, 22, Raymond-Marie Gosselin, 20, and Donat Fortier, 20, all of St. Leon.

15th Was Last

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Fourteen times in two years a fire department resuscitator crew revived Mrs. Josephine Scardini after she suffered heart attacks. Death won the 15th and last battle Sunday.

Egg Problem Unsolved

LONDON (AP)—Britain took eggs off the ration two weeks ago—but the egg problem is far from solved. The market is now cluttered —with eggs. The National Farmers Union Saturday charged "the country is already being choked by foreign eggs sold at prices lower than those for fresh English eggs."

Fire In Chair Causes Smoke Damage

A chesterfield chair was destroyed and there was further smoke and water damage in a fire that broke out early Sunday morning at the home of Gordon B. Doherty, 45 Morrow St. A misplaced cigarette butt is presumed to have started the chair smouldering while the Doherty's were out.

When they got home about 1 a.m. they found their new house full of smoke. Remembering publicized instructions during Fire Prevention Week they shut the door to cut off any draft and the smouldering chair never did burst into flames.

"If we had been a few minutes longer getting home we would have had a serious fire," said Mrs. Doherty.

Fireman used a booster tank on the chair.

The thick smoke penetrated into every room of the house and rugs and drapes will have to be cleaned. The walls will have to be washed.

Damage was caused to a tar-paper roof Sunday when stove pipes became overheated and a chimney fire broke out at the home of A. B. Olmstead, 212 Charlotte St. Three handpumps were used to put out the fire.

Fireman made two other runs Sunday. One was for a chimney fire at the home of J. P. Kearns, 96 Stewart St. where two handpumps were used. The other was for a rubbish fire on a lot at Gordon Ave. and Homewood Ave. where a booster line was used to put out the blaze.

Children playing with matches Saturday afternoon started a fire that caused some damage to the outside of a city-owned shack near 223 O'Carroll Ave. Fireman had no difficulty putting the fire out. They used two handpumps to do it.

Earlier in the afternoon a grass fire was started by children on the CPR right-of-way at the rear of 247 Armour Rd. Miss E. L. Beattie called the firemen when it appeared that the flames might spread and damage her property.

Plan Bell Plaque In Nova Scotia

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations are going on between the Nova Scotia government and relatives of Alexander Graham Bell for a site on which to build a national museum to the memory of the inventor of the telephone, it was learned today.

A cairn also will be erected this year at Brantford, Ont., where Bell in 1876 demonstrated the apparatus which with improvements and modifications is the modern telephone. The cairn will be of cut stone, square at the base and tapering slightly to a height of about seven feet. A bronze plaque will commemorate Bell's achievement.

The national museum to Bell will be near the Bell summer home at Baddeck, N. S., where he died Aug. 2, 1922. The home will not be used for the museum.

The Nova scotia government is expected to turn over the site to the federal government once it has been acquired. Work on the museum likely will not start before 1954.

Exchange Prices Weak In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Prices continued weak in early afternoon stock market trading today.

Base metals led the losses. Industrials also weakened. Golds and western oils traded lower despite strength in a few leaders. Volume for the first three hours totalled 2,102,000 shares.

Most uraniums gained small amounts. New Brunswick base metals and Northern Ontario rare metals slipped.

Industrials weakened on losses in paper, utilities, agricultures, foods, liquors, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues. Banks showed strength.

Higher-priced base metals led the list lower. Senior and junior golds weakened. Holding companies showed strength.

A majority of losses struck western oils but price changes were small.

Buffalo Editor W. Meldrum Dies

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—William Roger Meldrum, 74, chief editorial writer of the Buffalo Evening News, died today.

In 1912 when he was managing editor of the Niagara Falls Journal, he wrote an account of the deaths of three persons when the ice bridge between Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Canada broke up.

The story often was cited as an example of classic reporting and had been reprinted many times in textbooks on writing.

Meldrum entered newspaper work in 1905 as a reporter for the Niagara Falls Gazette. He became managing editor of the Journal in 1911 and remained at that post until 1916.

He later worked for The Associated Press in New York city, returning to Buffalo in 1917 when he joined the News as a reporter.

USE OTHER SERUM

Doctors at St. Luke's treated Couillard with the anti-rabies serum because it was the closest thing on hand to the true antidote.

They said it was hopeless to try to get the serum from Florida.

"We would have taken a chance and hoped it would have helped," authorities said. "But it's not reasonable to expect it to have any effect if we wait until we can obtain it from Florida."

Doctors said the main worry was that Couillard's nervous and circulatory systems would be affected. They said late Sunday night the nerves in Couillard's arm and hand were not responding and he could not lift his arm.

The water moccasin sunk its fangs into the back of Couillard's hand while he was cleaning out the pit at Montreal's Show Mart where about 37 snakes were on display. The exhibition was part of a show entitled "Hodge Podge" which featured a mammoth blood donors clinic.

DIDN'T SEE SNAKE

Couillard said he hadn't noticed the snake coiled at the bottom of the pit. The other snakes had been driven into an adjoining enclosure before he began cleaning out their quarters.

"I had just lifted the glass covering when the snake darted across and bit me on the hand. I pulled it loose and slammed it back into the pit, then everything grew hazy."

Couillard's arm and hand had swollen to four times their normal size within an hour. Hourly blood transfusions were given him.

Couillard had been looking after the snakes since last August. The exhibition included a boa constrictor, blue kingsnakes, brown mater-snakes and rattlers.

HAMILTON (CP)—Robert Lang's fondness for fishing in isolated spots may be a contributing factor in saving the life of a young Montreal carnival worker, bitten by a snake.

Anti-snake-bite serum owned by Mr. Lang was flown to Montreal today to treat Armand Couillard, bitten Sunday by a water moccasin, a North American snake belonging to a family of poisonous snakes which also includes the rattlesnake and copperhead.

Mr. Couillard was reported improved after treatment with the serum.

Mr. Lang telephoned radio station CHML after hearing that no antidote was available in Montreal. He said he had the serum, ordered specially through a local drug store for his fishing trips.

TCA FLIES SERUM

The radio station tried to get transport from the RCAF. None was available but Trans Canada Air Lines agreed to fly the serum. Police escorted Rod Dent, CHML reporter, 40 miles to Toronto's Malton airport where a plane was waiting. At Montreal he was escorted by city police to the hospital.

Mr. Lang said he bought the serum only a month ago for fishing trips north of Parry Sound. He and his wife were so isolated on these trips he wanted some sort of first aid in case they were bitten by snakes. He said they had seen rattlesnakes on previous visits.

Fred Killins, manager of the pharmacy where the serum was bought, said it was produced by a firm in Walkerville, near Windsor, the only one in Canada to make it.

Eden's Condition Said Good After Surgery

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today was said to be making satisfactory progress after a gall bladder operation Sunday.

A foreign office spokesman said his general condition is good.

Eden's doctors believe the operation will prevent possible recurrence of gastric trouble he developed last week, and the jaundice from which he suffered last year.

Prime Minister Churchill has taken charge of foreign affairs during Eden's absence, expected to be about six weeks.

Japanese Prince Faces Busy Tour Of Canada

VICTORIA (CP)—After spending his first day in Canada quietly here Sunday Crown Prince Akihito of Japan has a busy schedule mapped out when he arrives at Vancouver today.

The 19-year-old heir apparent to the Japanese throne landed here Saturday night aboard an RCAF aircraft from San Francisco on the second leg of a journey which will take him to the Coronation in London.

It was the first plane ride for the boyish prince and he is said to have enjoyed it "very much."

Prince Akihito was scheduled to arrive on the mainland this morning. After brief greetings by Mayor Fred Hume and other Vancouver civic officials he will be whisked away on an extended tour of the city's sights.

His crowded itinerary will allow the prince a scant 10 minutes to greet Vancouver's 3,000-odd Japanese - Canadian citizens. At night he will board a train for Toronto, where he is due Friday morning.

NO SUNDAY RIDE

The prince, a keen sportsman, had planned to go horseback riding here Sunday, but chilly weather kept him indoors.

In the afternoon, he motored with an RCMP escort to Royal Roads United Services College, where he reviewed cadets.

Lieutenant - Governor Clarence Wallace was host at a formal dinner at Government House Sunday night where the prince was guest of honor.

Among the 35 guests were the Japanese ambassador to Canada, Sadao Iguchi, and Logan Mayhew, son of the Canadian ambassador to Japan, R. W. Mayhew.

At a press conference earlier in the day, Prince Akihito said he was "especially happy to have this wonderful opportunity to see at first hand Canada's gateway to the Pacific which traditionally has had close ties with Japan and the other countries of the Far East."

Keep Out Of Cafe Magistrate Warns Man

A charge of creating a disturbance against Raymond Lester of 336 Reid St. was dismissed by Magistrate W. R. Philp today. The charge was laid Saturday morning after the accused had been ejected from a George St. restaurant, had returned and then left again.

Under the circumstances Magistrate Philp told the crown he would dismiss the charge, claiming one of creating a nuisance would have been more appropriate. To Lester, the magistrate said "keep out of the restaurant; they don't want you".

WINSTON CHURCHILL SAYS:

"If I had my way, I would write the word 'Insure' over the door of every cottage and upon the blotting book of every public man, because I am convinced that for sacrifices which are inconceivably small, families can be secured against catastrophies which otherwise would smash them up for ever. It is our duty to arrest the ghastly waste, not merely of human happiness, but of national health and strength which follows when, through the death of the bread-winner, the frail boat in which the fortunes of the family are embarked, flounders, and the women and children are left to struggle helplessly on the dark waters of a friendless world."

Ontario Silver, Gold Worth $6,852,455

TORONTO (CP)—Gold and silver worth $6,652,455 were produced by 38 mines in Ontario in February, the Ontario department of mines reports.

Value of production showed a slight decline from February, 1952, when 40 mines were operating and produced gold and silver worth $7,030,020. In January, 1953, gold and silver production was valued at $7,206,501.

A total of 768,033 tons of ore was milled in February, 1953, to produce 199,840 ounces of gold and 32,975 ounces of silver. This compared with 829,868 tons of ore in February, 1952, for 196,314 ounces of gold and 32,713 ounces of silver.

The 15 mines in the Porcupine area milled 365,678 tons of ore to produce 30,513 ounces of gold and 16,761 ounces of silver for a total value of $3,119,331.

Nine mines in the Kirkland Lake-Larder Lake area milled 229,541 tons for 66,167 ounces of gold and 10,498 ounces of silver worth $2,249,214.

Three mines in the Matachewan-Sudbury area milled 52,149 tons to produce 6,497 ounces of gold and 1,795 ounces of silver with a value of $224,672.

Eleven mines in the Patricia-Thunder Bay area of Northwestern Ontario milled 120,665 tons and produced 36,663 ounces of gold and 3,921 ounces of silver with a total value of $1,259,238.

Goes To Reformatory For Stealing Car

COBOURG (ENS)—Peter Laurie of Port Hope was sentenced to 12 months definite and three indefinite in the reformatory for theft of a car on March 23. The car was owned by Gordon Turck of Cobourg.

On a charge of breaking into Gilbert's service station at Port Hope March 17 he received 12 months, to run concurrently with the previous sentence. He pleaded guilty to both charges some time ago.

Fred Cardy of London, Ont., charged with breaking into Mathews' service station in Hope township March 31, was granted an adjournment for one week when he appeared in police court here Saturday. Also adjourned was a traffic charge against Ray Foster of Peterborough.

Quell Grass Fires

COBOURG (ENS)—The fire department had its usual rash of weekend grass fires in various parts of the town. For two weeks now the department has been called out on many occasions to put out grass fires. Now that most of the dead grass around town has been burned up, firemen expect things to ease off a bit.

Blown On Nose

HAVANA (AP)—A Mexican airliner was blown on its nose by a 63-mile-an-hour wind shortly after landing Sunday. None of the 29 passengers were injured.

PETERBOROUGH AIR CADET SQUADRON held their annual church parade on Sunday to St. Peter's Cathedral and St. Andrew's United Church. Led by the CGE Pipe Band, they made an excellent showing as they swung along the route of march on Charlotte and Rubidge Streets, preparatory to breaking off to the churches.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Arraign Three In Quebec Death

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec provincial police said Sunday night two men and two women are to be arraigned in Joliette, Que., today in connection with the death of a 26-year-old woman last year. Police said the Crown has not disclosed whether the four will be charged with murder or manslaughter.

At an inquest two weeks ago the four were held criminally responsible for the death of Jeannine D'Amour, 26, of Gogama, Ont. Arraignment was postponed until it was decided whether they would appear in Montreal or Joliette.

Charged with the woman's death are Mrs. Lucienne Tremblay, 39, Mrs. Madeleine Millette, 42, Henri Dunn, 27, and Irenee Cyr, 39, of Montreal.

The victim was said by police to have died last June following an illegal operation in a summer camp at Repentigny, Que. Her decomposed body was found six months later buried in a gravel pit near Shawinigan Falls.

Detroit Best Target In U.S., Says CD Chief

DETROIT (CP) — Mayor Albert Cobo Saturday flashed a signal which simultaneously set off 20 air raid sirens spotted throughout the city.

After the ceremony, Val Peterson, United States civil defence administrator, said Detroit was "the juiciest target in the nation."

Mr. Peterson said his office now is considering re-designating Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., as a critical target area. The designation was removed recently despite strong protests from state officials.

Air Cadet Squadron March In Church Parade

Some 60 officers and cadets of the City of Peterborough squadron 534 of Air Cadets marched in the annual church parade to St. Andrew's United Church for morning service.

The church parade marked the start of Air Cadet Week in Canada. A few of the cadets broke off from the main parade and attended church in St. Peter's Cathedral.

Squadron commander, Flight Lieutenant William A. Van Atter said today that as part of the observance of Air Cadet week, about 60 cadets will be taken to Trenton RCAF air station a week from Saturday, April 25, to take a flight in a Dakota over Peterborough.

The cadets marched smartly along led by the CGE pipe band with Flight Lieutenant William A. Van Atter leading the way, with Flying Officer Marlow Banks second in command.

In St. Andrew's Church, they heard the Rev. Henry Cotton speak about "The Changeless in a Changing Word."

VOLCANIC TIMES

He said that the people of the New Testament had lived in a volcanic land in volcanic times. "We too live in volcanic epoch-making times," said Mr. Cotton. Man lived in two worlds, he said, the physical world and the realm of the mind and spirit.

It was to the second world that Christ made his appeal. Fourteen years ago, the late King George VI and his Queen attending St. Paul's Cathedral, heard the Dean of the Cathedral remind them that although the world was shaking as Hitler's legions marched from victory to victory, "the Great Light of the spiritual firmament cannot be put out. The light of truth is not easily dimmed and we are not alone in our conflicts."

Six things are changeless, said Mr. Cotton. There is the physical world that God created and pronounced good. Radio and press, said the minister, inevitably give a distorted view of the world because only the unusual is news. Quite often the news is bad and therefore people think the world is bad.

God of course is changeless. "Only the fool has said in his heart, 'There is no God.'"

Having friends is changeless. There are personal friends and international friends "and for this we are grateful."

The Bible is changeless. "Other books may come and go but the word of the Lord endureth forever."

"We can still pray. Not even dictators can take this away from us.

"We still have a Saviour who is the same yesterday, and today and forever."

Baptists Form Congregation

HAVELOCK (ENS)— Havelock Baptist Mission whose history dates back to the summer of 1949, under the Fellowship of Independent Baptists was organized as a church on Friday night and will be known as "Fellowship Baptist Church," Havelock.

The Rev. Morley Hall of Hamilton, field representative of the Fellowship of Independent Baptists was in charge of the organization meeting. He read the church covenant and the doctrinal statement and those who accepted them became members.

PASTOR L. V. BIGELOW

The two deacons elected were E. Brummel and D. Clark.. A call was then extended to Pastor Lawrence V. Bigeelow to become the pastor of the newly organized church, and was accepted by Mr. Bigelow.

A graduate of the London Bible Institute, Mr. Bigelow took over the work of the mission in October 1949. Prior to that it was in charge of Frank Sissor of Toronto. The Sunday school departmentswhich started out with about 10 pupils has shown the largest growth, gradually increasing to the present membership of between 65 and 70.

A series of special evangelistic services commenced Sunday in the newly organized church and will continue through to Thursday. Rev. M. Hall will be the speaker at all the services, which are held at 8 p.m. on the week nights..

Restrict Lakes, Official Urges

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — A shipping official suggested Saturday that a by-product of the St. Lawrence seaway should be legislation limiting coastal shipping on the Great Lakes to vessels built in Canada and operated by Canadian firms.

Richard Lowery of Montreal, vice-president of Canada Steamship Lines urged 200 shipping, grain and other industry representatives at a luncheon following the launching of the bulk carrier, E. B. Barber, to press the federal government for laws similar to those in the United States where coastal shipping is limited to American-built and American-owned ships.

Mr. Lowery said that if laws protecting Canadian interests on the lakes were not passed the Canadian shipbuilding industry "will be ruined and in time of war the Great Lakes will be emptied of ships."

Toronto Man Charged With Sexual Offence

COBOURG— (ENS) —Charged with having carnal knowledge of an 11-year-old public school girl, Sherman Anderson of Toronto appeared in police court here and elected trial by a higher court.

Magistrate R. B. Baxter reserved his decision in regard to committal for trial. Proceedings were held in camera.

The assault is alleged to have taken place when the girl was on her way home from school on the afternoon of March 23.

SEE YOUR PHYSICIAN

for advice on your hearing!

Zenith frankly cautions you: Don't go to a hearing aid dealer for medical advice on your ear troubles. Go to your physician or otologist (ear specialist); he is the first person to turn to for advice on your ears and hearing.

A HEARING AID MAY NOT BE NECESSARY

In many cases, an examination by a physician will reveal that the ears are simply blocked with impacted wax. However, if he advises that a hearing aid is necessary, that is the time to see a hearing aid dealer. Zenith's own hearing aid dealer organization, the largest in the world, recognizes the importance of these facts!

Remember, too, always insist on a 10-day money-back guarantee when buying a hearing aid. All Zenith Hearing Aids are sold with such a guarantee. Just what do you people do?

Not long ago a member of our firm was rather surprised when a business acquaintance said to him: "I know you are in the financial business but, tell me, just what do you people do?" That set us to thinking that perhaps many of our friends and even our good clients might like to ask a similar question. Well . . . it is something that can't be answered in a single sentence. There are many sides to our business. For example . . .

We are underwriters . . :

This means that we purchase new issues of securities from Governments or well-managed business corporations, providing them immediately with the funds they require. In our underwritings, we are often called upon to act in an advisory capacity and to assist in the creation of the securities we ultimately buy.

We are distributors . . :

This means that, having due regard to the individual needs of our clients, we place with them the securities we have underwritten.

We are traders . . :

We buy and sell the securities . . . mainly bonds and debentures . . . of issues already outstanding. This assists in maintaining ready markets for outstanding issues.

We are brokers . . :

A. E. Ames & Co. are members of the Toronto and Montreal Stock Exchanges. As brokers, we execute buying and selling orders for listed stocks on a brokerage basis.

We are consultants . . :

Many of our clients lean on us for investment advice. For them we provide regular investment checks, valuations and advisory service.

Our head office is in Toronto, where Mr. Ames started this business in 1889. There are now 16 Ames offices in Canada, the United States and London, England, staffed by several hundred people.

All this adds up to a pretty comprehensive investment service . . . a service which is available to you. We are experienced in our business and believe you will find us the type of people you like to do business with.

Labrador Ore In '54

The first ore from the Quebec-Labrador iron development should start to flow out in August, 1954, when the railroad is expected to be completed to bring it to ship at Sept Isles on the lower St. Lawrence. This is the prediction of the chief geologist of the Iron Ore Company of Canada, which is developing the mine. He said that between two and three million tons should be put out in 1955 and that this should increase gradually to ten million tons annually.

* * *

This is good news to Canadians. Not as good is the fact that nearly all the ore will go to the U.S.A. for processing and use, chiefly to the Pittsburgh area. So the States will get our iron ore and Canada will import it back again, we presume at something like the present rate of seven hundred million dollars a year for iron and its products, shipped in from the States.

* * *

Canadian industry and workers will, it seems, be bilked of their right to profit from the processing and manufacture in Canada of the Labrador iron. It is an old story. Canada sells her raw materials abroad. There it is manufactured. Then Canada buys the goods back, leaving the profit on the process in foreign hands. But because it is a traditional practice makes it no less damnable, from the point of view of Canadian self-interest. Are we selling our birthright only to buy scraps of it back in American prams and girders?

* * *

The ore will be shipped from Sept Iles to the eastern American seaboard. If the St. Lawrence seaway is completed, it could go to Lake Erie ports—but ports on the American side of Lake Erie.

How People Disappear

Between the end of the war and July 31st, 1951, more than 535,000 immigrants entered Canada. In the week preceding July 31st, 1951, census takers were busy knocking on doors and asking questions. They could find only 385,000 persons who had entered Canada as immigrants during the period. Thus 150,000 immigrants had been lost. Where did they go?

It is very likely that a lot of the missing ones went nowhere but Canada, and that when the census-takers were on their rounds, they preferred not to say that they had been immigrants. Anyway, some people resented the many prying questions of the people poised on the doorstep with pencils that summer, and deliberately led them up the garden path. Others, away from their residences when the census-takers called, were reported on by all-knowing landladies, boarding-house keepers, and fellow-lodgers whose facts were probably as garbled as their gossip. One must take the census findings at less than their face value. They are supposed to represent a "fair sampling." How fair, we dare not guess.

Some of the immigrants did disappear, and most of us have a pretty good idea where. So have U.S. immigration authorities. For nearly a century the U.S. has been the land of opportunity in the imaginations of many Europeans. When they sought freedom and a new life, and could not gain admittance to the U.S. under their racial quotas, they looked to the back door of the States, to Canada. After a year or two here, what would be easier than to slip across the border? And after five or six years, if they patiently endured Canada that long, they could get Canadian citizenship, and have the freedom of access to the U.S. which native-born Canadians have.

U.S. authorities say that illegal traffic of immigrants from Canada to the States has been very heavy. We suspect that it is less heavy than they assert.

The U.S. had draft laws. The U.S. has a Red scare. And thriving Canada itself is appearing as the new-found land of honey and opportunity. We are not worried about immigrant emigration from Canada to the States. If some immigrants are so all-fired anxious to get out of Canada and into the States, let them go, if they can.

Refugees In West Germany

Dr. Konrad Adenauer's visit to this continent which began Monday marks the complete return of the Federal Republic of Germany to the diplomacy and friendship of the western world. Dr. Adenauer has been Chancellor since 1949 when the three western occupying powers merged their authority and the Federal Republic was created.

One of the problems besetting the new Germany is the German refugees from East Germany and other Communist countries. The truncated Federal Republic was already crowded by 1949. Since then there has been a monthly flow of thousands of expelled Germans and refugees from the areas of Germany under Soviet Control, to further strain the limited housing and economic resources which shattered West Germany had. Approximately ten million persons have escaped from behind the Iron Curtain and entered the Federal Republic. Almost 70,000 entered in the first two months of this year and they continue to come in at a rate of more than two thousand persons a day.

The Federal Republic has appropriated some two hundred million dollars to house these people, and about a quarter of the housing units built during the last three years were handed over to them. The industrial rejuvenation of the country since the war has been remarkable; its busy economy has been able to provide jobs and food for hundreds of thousands of the refugees, but this small, heavily-populated country about the size of the Great Lakes is quite unable to provide out of its own resources for all the ten million refugees. Outside money, food and material have been needed; much has been supplied by the U.S. and U.N. has helped.

Chancellor Adenauer is expected during his visit to the States to urge increased U.S. help, particularly for those refugees who have been pouring into Berlin. West Berlin is an economic anomaly. The old German capital is split in two; West Berlin is surrounded on all sides by Soviet-supported Communist Germany. Industries, utilities and food for West Berlin must be artificially provided, and yet it is to this segment of a city that hundreds of thousands of refugees have escaped, there needing work, shelter and food. Since West Berlin has survived only because of American military support and foreign policy, Chancellor Adenauer's plea for more help in dealing with refugees in West Berlin should receive a sympathetic hearing in the U.S.

The Villain Of Saskatoon

A curious thing happened in Saskatoon in March, and although we said nothing about it at the time, it has been bothering us, off and on, ever since. A man named Melvin Eissenzimmer, who was visiting that city, was brought before Magistrate B. M. Wakeling on a charge of speeding, and was fined $15, and $2 costs. Mr. Eissenzimmer appeared to pay his fine carrying a sack in which there were 1,700 pennies. Thereupon Magistrate Wakeling became extremely indignant, and told Mr. Eissenzimmer that he was transgressing the Criminal Code by offering money which was not legal tender, and that he was also obstructing the course of justice by making the court count 1,700 pennies—an offence for which he might be given ten years in jail. What was more, the 1,700 pennies might well constitute contempt of court. Magistrate Wakeling, in fact, swelled himself up until he was nearly the size of a Supreme Court Justice.

What bothers us about this incident is that it shows a spirit on the part of the magistrate which has no place in Canada. A magistrate, or a judge, holds all the high cards in his court, and he ought to be generous toward those who have no recourse against him. His dignity is safe unless, like Magistrate Wakeling, he destroys it himself by an exhibition of pettiness. Mr. Eissenzimmer had not, after all, done a very dreadful thing; a traffic offence which brings a $15 fine is not very serious; he had tried to have a little joke, which was not a very good one. A man big enough to be a magistrate ought to be big enough to take such a joke without worrying.

It is a good thing for a country when officials do not take themselves with iron seriousness, because it means that they are sure of their authority and of their dignity. Nothing so quickly makes officialdom hateful as a humourless and punitive attitude toward the public. And 1,700 pennies is, after all, seventeen dollars; why lose $1,700 worth of dignity because a fine is paid in a somewhat unusual form?

New Method Of Blasting

One of the reasons usually given for the failure of Montreal to provide itself with a subway system is that the subway would have to be blasted through rock for most of its length, and that would be too costly and too shattering. The cost of blasting has not come down, we believe, but the blow of the blast has. Last week in Montreal the largest rock excavation explosion ever recorded in a Canadian metropolitan area smashed 5,700 tons of solid limestone without causing a quiver.

Four blasts were needed in the excavation for a large new store. When the dynamite was set off in each of the four areas, a dull thud was heard, a 6,000-square foot of area heaved into the shape of a well-filled apple pie, and settled. That was all. There was no flying debris, nor even a loud explosion. Yet such a blast used 2,200 pounds of dynamite, equivalent to the amount in the "block-buster" of war days.

The reason for the quietness and perfect control of the excavation by dynamite is a new type of blasting—new to us, at any rate. Known as delayed action blasting, a series of explosions actually occur at intervals of one-twenty-five-thousandths of a second. And 5,700 tons of solid limestone were shifted, with only a ripple around the side of the intended excavation where a wide crevice was created. Who says a subway can't be blasted through Montreal, even though the city is built on solid rock?

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

WE ARE PERHAPS a little too ready to think of music as a matter of composer, performer and listener. The roles of the publisher and the impresario are too often overlooked. When they are mentioned at all it is usually in derogatory terms. Yet without them music would never get a hearing at all. Gone are the days when published music was scarce and dear and the majority of music was performed from manuscript copies. It is hard to imagine what it must have been like in those days.

✧ ✧ ✧

PICTURE to yourself the situation in Peterborough, for example, if the local organists were expected to write most of the anthems and cantatas for their churches. Naturally they would get help from their pupils and choristers in copying out the parts. Teachers, too, would compose the bulk of pieces for their pupils, who would in turn copy them out in their own dictation books. They might even have to rule their own lines! Certainly things are made a good deal easier for us nowadays, and for that we must thank the enterprise of our publishers. They have a most important role to play.

✧ ✧ ✧

UNLESS a composer's work is taken up by a publisher the chances of his becoming known are virtually nil. Once his work is published the public have the opportunity of exercising their choice, but it is for the publisher to decide in the first place whether to give a composer a hearing at all. Publishers have come in for some pretty sharp criticism throughout the years. Naturally there are many who have been unscrupulous and short-sighted, but the majority of them do not deserve the harsh things that have been said of them by embittered musicians.

✧ ✧ ✧

AT TIMES the boot has been on the other foot. Beethoven went so far as to sell the same composition to two different publishers. Many publishers have as a matter of fact deliberately foregone quick and relatively easy profits by sponsoring works which they must have known would never reap much financial gain. It must not be forgotten that publishing is a business, and no business can operate indefinitely at a loss. Nevertheless the artistic side has been by no means neglected.

✧ ✧ ✧

MISS JEAN HOWSON of BMI Canada, who recently received a citation at a Town Hall concert in New York "for her insight as mentor and friend of Canadian composers" put the matter in a nutshell when she wrote: "the criteria of acceptability are musical worth, performance value and sales value—preferably all three together. But, as you can imagine, sales value will sometimes win out with a smaller ratio of musical value, whereas musical value with a small ratio of sales value presents an insurmountable problem to the publisher".

✧ ✧ ✧

I HAVE at hand the order of music for the forthcoming Coronation service. There will be a choir of 400 voices, consisting of the complete choirs of Westminster Abbey, the Chapels Royal, St. Paul's Cathedral and St. George's Chapel, Windsor, together with representatives of a number of other choirs. I understand that representatives from Canada will be also included. There will be an orchestra of 60 players drawn from the leading English orchestras, and the fanfares will be played by the trumpeters of the Royal Military School of Music.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE music will remain substantially the same as at the last Coronation and will of course include that indispensable masterpiece, Handel's "Zadok the Priest", but there are a number of new anthems to be used. Of particular interest to us will be of course Dr. Willan's new anthem "O Lord our Governor", inasmuch as this will be the first occasion that Canada will be represented musically at the Coronation. Other new works by Howells, Harris, Dyson, Vaughan Williams, Walton and Bax will also be performed.

✧ ✧ ✧

I MUST CONFESS to a vague disappointment that the younger generation of composers is not represented at all. William Walton, has, after all, developed rather precociously (most of his development has been that way, so one should not be too surprised!) into a sort of "elder statesman" of British music. In fact Vaughan Williams, the oldest in mere years, is without a doubt the youngest and most adventurous in spirit. A great opportunity was missed in not inviting Benjamin Britten, who would, I feel, have risen splendidly to the occasion. Thank goodness they were not influenced unduly by questions of seniority when they invited Handel, who was about the same age as Britten is now and had only just been naturalized, to write his brilliant series of Coronation anthems. Present-day officialdom is, I fear, over-timid, especially in artistic matters; one might have expected a little more enterprise in this new Elizabethan era.

✧ ✧ ✧

I HEARD a very interesting lecture last Monday on the teaching of the violin, with special reference to children. I was surprised to hear that the lecturer started teaching vibrato from the fifth lesson. She felt that it was better to introduce this at the earliest possible stage, before the habits and muscles of the pupil had time to get set. It is strange that a good deal of time is taken to inculcate a vibrato into the technique of string players, while at the same time vocal teachers endeavour to eliminate it from their pupils. Yet if one listens to both the reason is not so far to seek.

✧ ✧ ✧

A SINGERS' "wobble" is not a pleasant thing: in extreme cases the pitch may vary as much as a whole tone on either side of the right note in such a way as it is almost impossible to distinguish any definite pitch at all. The violinists' vibrato, on the other hand, consists of much smaller fluctuations of intonation, and definitely enhances the singing quality of the tone. It is claimed that it has been known to stringed-instrument players for over three centuries. Grove's Dictionary quotes Mersenne's Harmonie Universelle of 1636 in support of this view, where he praises "Les Sieurs Bocan Lazarin" and others, who played with a "tremblement qui ravissent l'esprit" (French scholars please note that the syntactical error is not mine). But could Mersenne have referred to the tremolo, consisting of rapidly alternating bowing? The sense is not quite clear.

✧ ✧ ✧

I WAS SPEAKING with one of Canada's foremost choir trainers, who ought to know what he is talking about. He said that as one travels West Canadian voices have a sweeter quality. I would like opinions from my readers on this topic. If it is true, what could be done by us effete Easterners?

No Credit Like Social Credit

(CALGARY HERALD)

A dusky little cloud labelled Social Credit, no bigger than Premier Manning's hand, drifted harmlessly before the Alberta Legislature as it dutifully headed for prorogation dead on schedule.

It was harmless, of course, and it was purely academic, because it dealt with one of those majestic-type financial schemes which Social Crediters find it politically useful to talk about from the safe position of not being able to do anything about it. The mean old Dominion government and the law courts of the nation prevent them from leading us all into the promised land, a fact for which, we often think, Social Crediters are no less grateful than the rest of us.

The CCF engineered the opportunity for Mr. Manning and Harper Prowse, the Liberal leader, to get into an argument on high-level economics. The CCF brought in a motion urging that a Dominion-provincial conference be assembled to set up national marketing systems for agricultural products, along the lines of the wheat board and complete with compulsory features, of course.

Neither Mr. Manning nor Mr. Prowse though much of the idea, said it would serve no useful purpose and besides the farmers themselves weren't asking for it. We agree with both of them. But Mr. Manning is no person to let such a fortuitous opportunity to get in a few licks for old-time Social Credit slip through his fingers. He said extension of Canadian national credit to customer countries "offers the greatest advantages as a means of stimulating or creating foreign markets". That means, of course, that you can sell vast quantities of things if you first lend the money to the people who want to buy.

And then the Premier added that "no harm would result if the credit were held indefinitely, as it would be created by the federal government out of the national credit."

That means, as we see it, that we lend the buyer the money, sell him our goods, he pays for it with our money, and we tell him there is no hurry about paying us back the money, no hurry at all. Any time, or no time, will do. Oh happy day! The dough has just been "created" out of thin air, and everybody's tickled pink.

Beverage Rooms May Serve Meals

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

AN amendment to the liquor Licence Act introduced in the Ontario Legislature last Friday will allow meals to be served in beverage rooms. Under the present law, a public house operator may serve sandwiches, but not meals, unless a dining room licence has been obtained, and a dining room licence could not be granted to a public house.

This amendment will remove a stupid restriction from the liquor laws of the Province. It has long been contended, and with reason, that the serving of food should be permitted in establishments where beer is served. It is true that it might reduce the consumption of beer to some extent, and perhaps thus help to promote a greater degree of sobriety, but these appear to be desirable ends. Earlier regulations, however, seemed to prefer to restrict beverage rooms to the consumption of beer, without benefit of food or music, although it was permissible for patrons to read while drinking.

We are inclined to doubt that many beverage rooms will make arrangements to serve meals. We are informed that comparatively few of them took advantage of the permission to serve sandwiches, when that was granted. Fewer still are likely to make provison for the serving of meals— but, as we noted above, the revision will at least eliminate one of the stupid regulations remaining in the act.

Lions To The Congo

(Branford Expositor)

Four lions have been shipped from Antwerp, Belgium, to Africa. This may appear, at first glance, to be like bringing coals to Newcastle. As it turns out, however, the animals belong to a circus which will tour the Belgian Congo. As another point of perhaps surprising interest, some of the best-bred lions for exhibition purposes come not from Africa but from the Phoenix Park Zoo in Dublin, Ireland.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And, behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself. And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou are loosed from thine infirmity. And he laid his hands on her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God.

And the ruler of the synagogue answered with indigation, because that Jesus had healed on the sabbath day, and said unto the people, There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the sabbath day.

The Lord then answered him, and said, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering? And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen year, be loosed from this bond on the sabbath day?

And when he had said these things all his adversaries were ashamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him. (Luke 13: 11-17.)

✧ ✧ ✧

There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it . . . I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say. (1 Cor. 10:13,15.)

Reactionary Legislators

(Brantford Expositor)

George T. Gordon, MPP for Brantford, and three of his fellow members of the Ontario Legislature are deserving of commendation for having both common sense and the courage of their convictions in voting for a bill to legalize the sale of coloured margarine.

The fact, however, that there were only four who saw the situation rationally and clearly and refused to be swayed by pressure elements, prejudice or mere thoughts of pussyfooting for the sake of conserving votes, reflects little credit on the majority. It is possible that this same majority, irrespective of party adherence, will find that a good many constituents share this newspaper's opinion.

Whether the members of the House are terrified by the bogey of a largely mythical anti-margarine vote, we cannot say. If so they may be deceiving themselves, as, for instance, are the politicians who imagine they are securing their election by catering to what is commonly called "the foreign vote." There have been times when such a bloc was actual, but when the "foreigners" grasp the intent of the politicians in trying to capitalize on it, they are generally resentful and decline to be herded like sheep into this or that party pen.

At the moment, the belief commonly held by the MPP's seems to be that by doing anything more than barely permit the manufacture and sale of margarine they are mortally offending "the farmers."

That is nonsense. The farmers themselves are heavy purchasers of margarine.

Those really concerned are the ones who would like to have the butter monopoly restored and who remain themselves rather inconspicuous, while allowing legislators and others to think it is "the farmers'" interests that are being hurt. Unhappily some farmers themselves fall for this deception.

A BRITISH OPINION

LION ON YOUR LAP

Brazil Plans Move Capital Into Interior

WASHINGTON — The government of Brazil has revived a plan to move the capital inland from its "temporary" seat in Rio de Janeiro.

Brazil's first independent constitution, written after she freed herself from Portugal in 1822, called for a new capital near the country's geographical centre.

Past action toward this aim has established a tentative "Federal District" in the state of Goias, some 600 miles northwest of Rio. This year a new law has made $1,500,000 available for government departments to develop relocation plans.

EXPANDING FRONTIER

Relocation in or near the designated "Federal District" would put the capital, tentatively named "Brasilia," on a vigorously expanding frontier next to some of the nation's greatest mineral wealth.

Goiania, the state capital of Goias, was itself a dream less than 25 years ago. Now it is a bustling city of more than 50,000, with a major airport, broad boulevards, and planned parking space—a city designed for expansion with the air and motor traffic of the century.

Goiania is a product of the petroleum age. The city was built not as a railhead—the railroad stopped miles away—but at a crossroads airport. Supplies were brought in by truck and airplane. The same is true of the state, whose rail lines are inadequate for expanding traffic.

New farms and ranches spring up around bush-country airstrips. Bulldozers, hand and animal labor, convert winding mud tracks into truck roads. Farm villages appear where there was nothing but wilderness before.

Goias, the frontier state, is slightly smaller than Texas and lies for the most part in Brazil's central plateau. Its altitude of 1,500 to 3,000 feet tempers the tropical-zone climate. The flat bush and grasslands of the eastern and central parts of the state give way to rolling country supporting valuable timber in the west.

Crops grown in areas not devoted to ranching include rice, bananas, corn, beans, sugar cane, potatoes, tobacco, citrus fruits, green vegeatbles, pineapples, and peanuts.

On the east, bordering both Goias and the proposed Federal District, is the state of Minas Gerais, heartland of Brazil's mining wealth. Here are whole mountains of rich iron ore, and deposits of manganese, bauxite, gold, diamonds, quartz and other minerals.

Charge London Man With Wounding Wife

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 23-year-old London mother of four children was shot through the hip late Sunday and her husband, Gordon William Steward, 28, has been arrested and charged with wounding with intent.

Doctors said Friday night the woman's condition was not considered serious, though severe injury might have been caused internally.

Steward has lived most of his life in London. His wife' came from Brockville.

Order More Study Of Lake Levels

OTTAWA (CP)—Further investigations looking to regulation of the water levels of Lake Ontario have been ordered by the Canadian-American international joint commission, the external affairs department said Saturday:

The commission, which has just met in Washington, said the international Lake Ontario board of engineers "has been directed to prepare a program of investigations necessary to develop the possibilities for regulation of the lake levels to the benefit of all concerned."

This body, appointed by the commission some time ago, has been instructed to give priority to the problems in the area of the Gut dam, situated at the outlet of the lake into the St. Lawrence river, which has been removed as a first step in the program.

Home Show Has Strong Appeal To Domesticity

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

A strong appeal to the home instinct in Canadians is being made at the current national home show in Toronto (April 10-18).

One builder is getting a lot of attention with a three-bedroom bungalow, erected on the show premises, which he will build for $7,900, including basement—the buyer to supply the lot and pay for connection to outside services.

The show features, in the words of a press release, "all the products and services that go, firstly, into the actual construction of Canadian homes, from basement to roof; and, secondly, the equipment and services that go to shape that house into a home."

The show is sponsored by the Toronto Metropolitan Home Builders' Association, and more than 170 Canadian manufacturers are participating.

SALE ADDRESS

Rhys M. Sale, president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., has caught a lot of attention with a recent address entitled "A Planned Journey to Greatness," Canada and Canadians being the travellers.

Here are a few quotes:

"What puzzles me is the fact that while hundreds of young Americans come to Canada to seek their fortune, thousands of young Canadians swarm across the border into the United States to scratch for opportunities not half as good as those which lie right under their noses at home. . . .

"Are they so blinded by the fabled gold bricks that lie in the streets of New York and Chicago that they cannot see the precious opportunities of Leduc and Kitimat, of Lynn Lake and Burnt Creek, to name but a few?

"Or are our boys getting so soft they prefer the gaudy comfort of a New York office to the rugged, adventurous and infinitely more rewarding life on Canada's new economic frontiers?. . . It is painfully evident that we need a generous reinfusion of the pioneering spirit that made Canada great.

"We seem to be smothered by over-caution. We don't seem willing to take chances. . . Security in some guise has been crammed down our throats for so long that a good many Canadians have fallen into the idea it is the most important thing in the world when, as a matter of fact, the kind of security they are thinking about is as unattainable as the abolition of taxes."

Admits Drunkenness

REGINA (CP)—E. B. West, who spent his lifetime writing cheques, has retired after 37 years as a clerk in the city finance department. He estimated he made out more than 1,000,000 cheques during his career, the largest being one for about $1,000,000.

Oldest Chemical Firm Bought By St. Maurice

MONTREAL (CP) — The recently-organized St. Maurice Chemicals Limited has purchased control of the McArthur Chemical Company, Ltd., it was announced today.

McArthur Chemical, founded in 1842, is Canada's oldest chemical company. Included in the sale is McArthur's wholly-owned subsidiary, Chemicals Limited.

Robert Berry, president and major shareholder of the company since 1947, will continue as president.

A special general meeting of shareholders has been called for April 16.

St. Maurice, owned jointly by Shawinigan Chemicals Limited and Heyden Chemicals Corporation of New York, is completing construction of a plant at Varennes, Que., to produce formaldehyde and pentaerythritol.

Temporary Halt

DIGBY, N.S. (CP)—The big Canadian Pacific ferry Princess Helene which plies across the Bay of Fundy between Digby and Saint John is getting her annual overhaul. She will be in drydock from April 11 to April 27.

Hint At Amnesty For Hungarians

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungary's Communist-led peoples front hinted Sunday that an amnesty may be declared for those who have committed "mistakes" against the regime.

Holding out a promise of "reconciliation and forgiveness," it also threatened a crackdown on officials who have abused their power.

A similar amnesty, releasing many categories of prisoners from jails and places of detention but excluding political offenders, was declared in Soviet Russia on March 27 following Premier Georgi Malenkov's succession to Stalin. Romania followed suit April 4.

The Hungarian promise was in the form of an appeal, published on the front pages of newspapers for votes in the general parliamentary election April 17.

The Peoples' Front, a bloc of Communist and government parties and mass organizations such as labor and women, supervised the nominations and drafted the final list of candidates for the election of a new Parliament which will replace the one chosen in 1949.

The appeal said:

"There are authorities who treat people rigorously, abuse their power and violate the law.

"We will see to it that such abuses are punished.

"The law is equally binding for the authorities and simple citizens."

Demolition Worker Killed By Wall Falling

TORONTO (CP)—Everett Croft, 32, was killed Saturday when a 16-foot section of an old church, being demolished at the east-central Regent Park housing development, fell on him.

Croft was operating a front-end loader near the partially demolished church Police said he drove the machine too close to the wall and knocked part of it down on himself.

Record Blood Donations

MONTREAL (CP)—A world record for one clinic has been established by Montrealers who donated 2,551 bottles of blood during a five-day, 40-hour blood donor marathon which ended Saturday. A steady line-up of donors gave blood at a rate of more than a bottle a minute. Dr. Cecil Harris, medical director of the Montreal blood bank, termed the marathon a "huge success."

Pioneer Miner Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Edwin Clifford Davis, 81, active in the mining industry for many years, died in his sleep at his home Friday. Born in Wiarton, Mr. Davis first joined the staff of a mining company at Lake of the Woods and served as supervisor of prospecting parties. He was at Cobalt at the time of the silver boom and later went to Kirkland Lake.

TWIN SOLES for Twice the Comfort

One of the biggest major improvements in hosiery since the Reverend William Lee invented a machine for knitting stockings in 1589 is PENMANS 2-SOLE SOCKS . . . now ready for the man on the street.

For 84 years, PENMANS have pioneered improvements in comfort and quality in knit underwear, hosiery and outerwear.

Developed after years of study and experimentation, PENMANS 2-SOLE SOCKS actually have two layers of fabric in the soles . . . yet the socks are no heavier than the conventional type, and may be worn with any regular style shoe. The rough pebbly surface of the conventional sole is now reversed to give you a smooth comfortable surface next to your foot.

PENMANS exclusive method uses a finer, softer thread for greater comfort for tender-soled feet. The sole fabric has a new elasticity that stretches with foot movements when you walk.

PENMANS 2-SOLE SOCKS are resilient, porous and self-ventilating . . . cooler in summer, warmer in winter.

Patents, embracing some twenty claims, have been applied for to cover new, exclusive comfort features . . . available only in PENMANS 2-SOLE SOCKS.

Local Soccer Reorganized For City And EOL Schedule

Shall soccer create a revival or not, is the question of the local "fit-bal" moguls. Two weeks ago, President A. Arnold and Secretary William Simpson of the Ontario Football Association visited the city in an endeavor to stimulate enthusiasm that was lacking in the old commission of Reg. Cox and J. Anderson of Lindsay. Art O'Halloran and A. E. Featherstone who quit after one year as secretary-treasurer. OFA ruled the foregoing commission null and void. They stated two alternatives—either quit and affiliate with the nearest association or form a new commission to re-organize soccer in the city.

President Arnold of OFA, accepted the temporary commission of James Craig, Jack Chamberlain and Jack Adams. Jack Chamberlain acted as secretary recently. They can add to their commission to make five members; also requesting that Ben McMaster and Stroyen Leith be interviewed to complete the commission. They both declined.

At a meeting on Saturday afternoon, J. Adams was appointed president. James Craig secretary-treasurer and J. Chamerlain on the commission. The executive recommended Edward Woodcock and Art O'Halloran as the new members of the commission.

THREE IN CITY

UE and Peterborough Merchants teams are in the Eastern Ontario League, composed of Trenton (two teams), Belleville, Bata and Kingston. There will be no local Sunday games in the city but local boys will play in other cities on the Sabbath. The E.O.L. schedule will be released Tuesday of this week.

After many years of absence, the local Scots will return to the soccer field, to play only in the city schedule and cup ties. Preliminary organization is still in its infancy to permit the heather boys time, and they be an asset to the sport.

All referees are requested to regitser with local body through James Craig. They have increased the "dough." Art O'Halloran has intimated that he will be an official referee. UE and P. M. teams were given 14 registering forms each; registering will be $5; entry fee $10; and transfers $5 each player; forms at 30c each will register the player with the D.F.A.

An open meeting will be held on Thursday evening in the "Y" at 8.00 o'clock so that local fans may attend and give suggestions and appoint two commission members.

Quebec To Meet Barrie Flyers In Eastern Final

QUEBEC (CP)—For the second time in three years Quebec will meet Barrie in the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup hockey final. This time the Citadelles hope to eliminate Barrie and go on to win the Canadian junior championship as the Flyers did in 1951.

Citadelles qualified for the final Sunday when they trounced Timmins-Porcupine Combines, Northern Ontario champions, 11-1, to win their best-of-five semi-final in three straight games. Cits won the first two games 6-2, 8-1.

Flyers reached the final which which starts in Toronto Tuesday night by eliminating Toronto St. Michael's.

The 1951 series between Citadelle and Flyers went the limit.

The series almost was not completed when, after five games, Frank Byrne, Citadelles' owner, withdrew in a dispute over the venue of the last two games, and then re-entered after losing his point in a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association telegraph vote.

In the inter-locking schedule between the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association and the Ontario Junior Hockey Association, Quebec won 4-2 here, and lost 9-2 at Barrie.

SCORES FOUR

Quebec team captain Camille Henri scored four goals—his second such performance in the last two games with Combines—and three assists in the Citadelles-Combines finale Sunday.

Bertrand Lepage and Roland Leclerc each scored two while singletons went to Gilles Thibault, Michel Labadie and Ray Cyr Bruce Jones robbed goalie Marcel Paille of a shutout late in the game.

Henri, who has scored 170 goals and 140 assists in his three-year junior career, centres tall, speed Aggie Kukulowicz on left wing and scrappy Thibault on right.

Leclerc and Labadie flank Cyr, voted rookie-of-the year in the JAHA. Hard-working Gaston Pelletier centres Jean-Jacques Pichette on left and Lepage on right Goalie Paille has four strong defencemen in front of him: Butch Houle, Moe Collins, Gilles Lapierre and Bob Chevalier with Leo Amadio in reserve. Reserve forwards include Gaby Alain, Jean-Gu Gignac and Clermont Doon. Jacques Marcotte is sub-goalie.

Henri and Labadie were named on the first all-star JAHA team while Paille, Houle, Collins and Leclerc were listed on the second squad.

Charltons Star Badminton Club Playoffs

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Charlton won in all events Saturday in the Peterborough Badminton Club championship tournament at the Market Hall before a fair-sized crowd. Last year's ladies' and men's champions were defeated in keenly contested matches, the ladies' doubles going to three games.

After the games, the annual meeting was held with R. Baker and E. Johnston re-elected to the executive, along with R. Johnston, R. Lindb2erg, B. Brignell, Miss D. Smedmor and Mrs. G. Graham. The prizes were presented by Leo Copp, and the social convener arranged the lunch.

THE SCORES

In ladies' singles, Mrs. R. Charlton defeated Mrs. R. Baker, 11-7, 11-4. R. Charlton took the men's singles over W. Elsmley 15-4, 15-2. The ladies' doubles went to Mrs. R. Charlton and Miss V. Rose over Mrs. R. Baker and Mrs. V. O'Donoghue 9-15, 15-4 and 15-6. In men's doubles, R. Charlton and W. Elmsley downed R. Baker and E. Johnston 15-4, 15-13. Mr. and Mrs. R. Charlton took the mixed doubles from Mr. and Mrs. R. Baker 15-8, 15-8.

Consolation results: Mrs. J. Fletcher beat R. Brindle 11-4, 11-3 in ladies' singles, while H. Jung took men's singles over A. Conlin 15-5, 15-10. Ladies' doubles went to Mrs. J. Fletcher and R. Brindle over M. Lundy and M. McKee 15-6, 15-1. L. Copp and H. Collingwood won the men's doubles from M. Brodie and J. Fletcher 15-6, 4-15, 15-4. The mixed doubles went to Miss M. McKee and M. Brodie over Mr. and Mrs. L. Copp 15-5, 18-14.

Hamilton Blind Win In Bowling

TORONTO (CP)—A team of blind bowlers from Hamilton Saturday won the annual national bowling tournament of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Five-man teams in 20 Canadian cities were entered in the competition. Each team played on its home alley and scores were telegraphed to CNIB headquarters in Toronto.

The Hamilton team scored 2,892 points in three games. Regina was second with 2,572 and Toronto was third with 2,542.

Vancouver won the ladies competition with a three-game score of 2,814, while Toronto took second with 1,919 and Oshawa was third with 1,836.

The blind bowlers are guided by a hand rail at the foul line and are directed by a sighted coach.

Timmins Takes Lead Over Bisons

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Timmins Lions, Northern Ontario Hockey Association juvenile A champions, took a strangle-hold on defence of the All-Ontario title Saturday night when they defeated St. Catharines Bisons 7-5 in the first game of a best-of-three series for the victory cup.

Down 3-0 before the half-way mark of the first period, Lions capitalized on a Bison penalty to score twice in eight seconds. Timmins scored all three goals in the second, to take a 5-3 lead.

They made it 6-3 at the start of the final period, then split goals with Bisons.

Bill Pirie was top scorer with two goals and two assists. Gord Onotsk, with two, Butch Kemball, Walt Yara and Bill Hooper were the other northern scorers.

Don Nash with two and Mitch Plata, Ches Warchol and Tex McPherson were Bison marksmen.

Regina Bowlers First Champions

REGINA (CP)—Regina bowlers won the first Canadian five-pin bowling championship Saturday, defeating Toronto, eastern champions, by 47 pins in a 10-game series.

In the first five-game block rolled off Friday under western rules, the Ontario bowlers took a narrow lead of 33 pins. Going into the final game of another five-game block Saturday under eastern rules the Toronto bowlers were out in front by 32 pins. But the Regina entry ran up a count of 1,133 against 1,054 by the visitors to take the title.

Tommy Mallon of Toronto captured the Canadian singles crown with a tally of 2,393 in two five-game blocks.

Sparkling 274 Wins For Hogan

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Ben Hogan the little man who has made golf a science instead of a game, won his second masters tournament Sunday and broke the tournament record with a 72-hole score of 274. Hogan shot a final round of 36-33—69 over the soggy, par 72 Augusta National course to win by a five-stroke margin.

Ed (Porky) Oliver of Palm Springs, Calif., tied the long-standing record of 279 to finish second. Oliver wound up with a 35-35—70.

Lloyd Mangrum, top money winner of the pro circuit this year, fired a 69 on the final round to take third place with 282.

Sam Snead, the defending champion and a two-time winner of the masters, never was a contender and posted a 292 total after a 75 on his final round.

The record of 279 was set by Ralph Guldahl in 1939 and equalled by Claude Harmon in 1948.

Siam Foot Boxers On Mat Card Here Wednesday

"I Get a Kick Out of You." Cole Porter probably didn't have Siamese boxers in mind when he wrote those lyrics, but he should have.

Coming to the Brock Arena this Wednesday are three young gentlemen by the names of Woradheb Khoonwongase, Chalerm Amatayakul and Banchong Chiapiphat, all exponents of boxing Siamese style.

The Siamese aren't restricted to any weapon so unlethal as the human fist. They can use their feet, knees, elbows, head and any other part of the anatomy that might be available at an opportune moment.

The main bout sees the return of the big German grappler, Hans Hermann, who will tackle Timothy Geohagen. Although Tim failed to gain a decision over the Mask in their last bout, his Irish Sleeper had the hooded one in a bad way as time ran out. A win over Herman by Geohagen will certainly boost his stock.

Popular Pat Flanagan takes on a newcomer, Benny Sherman, in the opener.

DO YOU OWN A CAR?

When the man who developed Bardahl Rad Conditioner brought his car to a garage for repairs, the garage owner phoned to ask him what on earth had he put in his radiator. He said that when they drained his radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The Bardahl Rad Conditioner had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by a popular brand chemical cleaner. The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of car owners in Canada and the United States have used Bardahl Rad Conditioner. If you own a car you should try it too . . . If your car is new it will keep your radiator in permanently new condition . . . if you have been running your car for a few years you'll be amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove. Bardahl Rad Conditioner keeps radiators clean . . . eliminates rust formation which can insulate a motor, causing harmful overheating . . . and it also lubricates and stops squeaky water pumps. Bardahl Rad Conditioner costs only 89c. Ask for it at your Service Station.

CLUB CHAMPIONS — Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Charlton captured championships here Saturday in every club badminton event they entered. They were successful in ladies' and men's singles, ladies' and men's doubles and in mixed doubles. Miss Verna Rose and Wally Elmsley also were victorious in ladies' and men's doubles when pairing with Mr. or Mrs. Charlton. The 1953 club champions are shown above, left to right: Ralph Charlton, Maurice Charlton, Verna Rose and Wally Elmsley.—(Choate Studio Photo).

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Doug Mowry of St. Catharines and Bill Harris of Toronto are baseball scouts in Ontario for Brooklyn Dodgers. Doug is a local boy who caught for the senior Petes a few seasons before the last war, moving later to St. Kitts. He played down there, also, and managed the senior club for a year or two. Since then, he has been scouting that district and was even interested in Peterborough prospects a year ago. Apart from George Brabin, the Oshawa lad who played a summer for the locals, Doug didn't find anyone here just good enough for a pro tryout. Nevertheless, the Dodgers now have 21 Canadians on the rosters of their farm teams. Brooklyn is just one major league team keeping a sharp lookout on Canadian ball prospects.

While the chances of a Canuck youngster making the big time in ball is not nearly as good as that of youngsters here clicking in pro hockey ranks, yet there is a chance. Our climate is dandy for hockey, whereas the States—with a far larger population—has a clime suitable for baseball most of the year. But some Canadians have made good in the past, more are doing so now and still more are likely to make the grade—on account of the interest major league scouts are taking in the diamond sport in this country. It's a long climb to the top in organized ball but the rewards are greater than professional hockey can offer, if one goes all the way. The reason? Top NHL crowds are about 16,000, a great many thousands below good major league ball turnout. They have the population in the U.S.A.

Alumni vs. Undergrads

Frank Tindall recently resigned as grid coach of Queen's, a short time after he attended the Orfuns' football dinner here. Frank Gnup was supposed to be in line for the job. Now it comes out that Tindall has been offered a two-year contract at Queen's after a big signed petition was received from undergrads. But 'tis said that Queen's alumni in Hamilton are raising hail and high water over this two-year offer, and threaten to cut out aid to the university in various ways, including the sending of gridiron talent, as they've been doing. They claim Tindall is too nice a fellow and too lenient with players to field a winning squad. Frank Gnup will watch with interest these developments. So will the Orfuns who had hoped to get Gnup as coach here this year.

Siamese boxing will be seen at the pro mat program in the Brock Arena this Wednesday eve. After a prelim grapple bout between Pat Flanagan and Benny Sherman—and before the main bout of horrible Hans Hermann vs. popular Tim Geohagen—these Siamese boxers will perform. Kou Kit and Bangehon do everything in the ring that U.S.A. and Canuck boxers and wrestlers do, plus a whole lot of kicking and elbowing. It is quite a rough game, popular in Thailand. They punch with fists, and use the foot, knee and elbow on opponents all the way from the feet up. No "below the belt" barrier in this game. Sounds like new and sizzling action on a local pro mat card.

Those Fitba' Fellows

Despite high winds Saturday, two good soccer drills were held here. Jim Buchan had his bunch going at King Edward Park preparing for the opening game two weeks hence. UE players were out in force at Morrow Park getting ready for an exhibition this Saturday against Toronto Nationals here, the Eastern Ontario League commencing play the following weekend. UE will play some Sunday games in other centres but not in Peterborough. New 20-foot crossbars were installed at the King Edward Park goals, the old ones being broken as usual in the Hallowe'en blitz. Jack Downer and Jimmy Buchan did the work after receiving the crossbars as gifts. Art O'Halloran plans to referee soccer matches this summer.

Looks like a hard, see-saw Stanley Cup final series, fourth game being tomorrow night on Boston ice.. Teams split even in weekend tilts, Bruins winning 4-1 Saturday in Montreal, and Canadiens taking a 3-0 verdict last p.m. in Boston. Gerry McNeil returned to netminding duties Sunday for the Habs and earned the shutout.. Canadiens lead by 2-1. In the AHL Calder Cup sawoffs, Pittsburgh beat Cleveland to sew up that set at two wins each, the tussle being marked by a wild free-for-all in which Ike Hildebrand was one of the main combatants. Even the coaches were out there on the ice throwing punches, and no doubt they'll be disciplined by the league.

Sedgman Whips Kramer

OTTAWA (CP)—Frank Sedgman, former world's amateur tennis champion, Saturday night defeated big Jack Kramer to clip the world professional champion's lead in their barnstorming tour to 39-28. Aceing Kramer frequently with his smashing service, Sedgman took th big American in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5. Ecuador's Pancho Segura was extended 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 by Australia's Ken McGregor.

Flyers Stagger To Jr. Title With 4-2 Win

TORONTO (CP)—With a pick-up goaltender and one of their top sharpshooters on the limp, Barrie Flyers staggered to the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A title Saturday.

The Flyers whipped Toronto St. Michael's College 4-2, sewing up the best-of-nine final by a 5-3 margin and qualified to meet Quebec Citadelles for the Eastern Canada junior crown.

It will be the second time in three years that the Flyers meet the Citadelles in the Eastern Canada final. The Flyers defeated Quebec in 1951.

Flyers open their series against Quebec here Tuesday night. The second game will be in Barrie Thursday and the series will continue in Quebec Saturday and next Monday.

Marv Edwards, the goalie the Flyers had to borrow from the fourth-place St. Catharines Teepees when Bill Harrington was injured in the fifth game of the series, made his best showing of the playoffs as he lifted Barrie to their third straight victory.

Warming up after a month's layoff, Edwards was called on to handle 24 shots while Ed Chadwick had 20 fired at him by the Flyers, weakened by a leg injury that slowed down high-scoring Orv Tessier.

But Barrie forced the pace throughout. Doug Mohns shot them into a first-period lead, the Irish tied it up briefly in the second, and then dropped behind for keeps.

Jim Robertson, Larry Thibeault and Don McKenney were the other Barrie marksmen. Paul Knox and Bill Lee counted for the losers.

Saturday's triumph topped off the Flyers' stretch drive to cop the title and the Flyers played it as if it were the Memorial Cup finals.

Mohns and Orin Carver combined on a perfect passing play and Mohns clicked with a short backhand shot to put the Flyers into the lead.

Knox tied the score while his team was a man short but goals by Jim Robertson and Larry Thibeault within two minutes put the Flyers into a 3-1 lead going into the final period. Bill Lee counted shortly after the opening of the third but Don McKenney got that one back a few minutes later to clinch the game for the Flyers.

It was the second OHA Junior A title for the Flyers in three years and Barrie was showing its appreciation long before the victors came home.

Hours before the team's arrival, residents marched gleefuly along the main thoroughfare, blowing horns and cheering. The Flyers' chartered bus was met at Bradford, 22 miles south of Barrie, by hundreds of cars and a police escort. A band met the team at the southern outskirts of town and on arrival at the municipal building, the team was met by Mayor James Hart and the members of council.

Barons Regain Lead In Calder

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons regained the lead in the American Hockey League Calder Cup playoffs, three games to two, by defeating Pittsburgh Hornets 2-1 at Cleveland Sunday night.

Pittsburgh took a 1-0 lead in the first period on a long dash by Bob Solinger when each side was two men short.

Cleveland tied it early in the third period when Cal Stearns, knocked a short shot past goalie Gil Mayer on assists from Bob Bailey and Ike Hildebrand.

The winning goal was fired by Eddie Olson at 13:52, with Steve Wochy and Gus Karrys assisting.

At Pittsburgh Saturday night, the Hornets racked up a 4-1 victory.

Baseball Season Open Again Yankees, Dodgers Favored

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Washington and Cincinnati, noted for their early starts and lagging finishes, beat the gun again today as they pried off the lid of another major league baseball season.

The world champion New York Yankees and defending National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers favored by both the experts and betting commissioners, are heavy favorites to repeat. Cleveland and Chicago in the American League, and New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis in the National, are given outside chances to pull an upset.

Although the Yankees and Dodgers will take the field with little or no change, the over-all line-ups will undergo a tremendous revamping as only 44 per cent of last year's starting line-ups will be back. Thebatting orders will present 22 freshmen faces excluding the pitchers.

ONE IN AL

In today's only American League game, Washington is scheduled to engage the Yankees at Washington, where Vice-President Richard Nixon will sub for President Eisenhower and throw out the first ball.

A crowd of 30,000 is expected to see whether the Yankees can get off on the right foot in their bid for an unprecedented fifth-straight pennant victory. Allie Reynolds (20-8) the Yankees' brilliant righthander, will oppose Bob Porterfield (13-14) who once toiled for the New Yorkers.

A capacity crowd of some 30,000 will fill Cincinnati's Crosley Field to welcome the Milwaukee Braves back into the big leagues. Milwaukee, with an astonishing franchise shift from Boston, returns after an absence of 50 years. It was a member of the American League back in 1901 only to relinquish its franchise to St. Louis Browns the following year.

Manager Charley Grimm of the Braves planned to pitch righthander Max Surkont (12-13) against Cincinnati while Rogers Hornsby of the Redlegs decided on Clem (Bud) Podbielan (5-5).

ALL BUSY TUESDAY

All teams swing into action Tuesday when eight games are expected to attract some 231,000 spectators, to bring the total attendance up to 291,000 for the 10 openers. The record opening-day attendance was set in the lush days of 1948 when 331,783 watched the 10 inaugurals. Last year, the eight openers drew 172,322 fans.

Tuesday's largest crowd is expected in Cleveland where 55,000 will watch a righthanded duel between Saul Rogovin (14-9) of Chicago White Sox and Bob Lemon (22-11) cf the Indians. Cleveland, which finished second to the Yankees by two games, will open with the same line-up as last year, but the White Sox have added Ferris Fain, the league's leading hitter, at first base and Junior Stephens, former home run champion, at third base.

The National League's biggest turnout will be at Milwaukee where 36,000 will see the improved Braves take on Eddie Stank's St. Louis Cardinals.

A change in the schedule resulting from the franchise shift will pit Pittsburgh against the Dodgers in Brooklyn. Some 25,000 are expected to watch the Dodgers open their defence of the National League title with righthander Carl Erskine (14-6) on the mound, rookie Jim (Junior) Gilliam at second and Jackie Robinson at third. Veteran Murray Dickson (14-21) will be on the hill for the Pirates.

FIRST NIGHT OPENER

St. Louis Browns will have their first night opener in history, meeting Detroit Tigers. Some 15,000 will have to get accustomed to the new line-ups. No fewer than seven players were on the opposing team last year including righthander Ned Garver (8-10) of Detroit who last year pitched the opener for the Browns and shut out the Tigers 3-0. Virgil Trucks (5-19), traded by Detroit to St. Louis last winter, will hurl against his former mates.

The stand-pat Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics will clash at Yankee stadium. Vic Raschi (18-6) who holds a 24-4 edge over the A's will be on the mound for the Yanks. He will be opposed by lefthander Alex Kellner (12-14). Mel Parnell (12-12), who has whipped Washington 18 times in 31 decisions will try to maintain his magic over the Nats in Boston. A turnout of 15,000 is expected to watch Lou Boudreau's youngsters hit against righthander Walter Masterson (10-9).

Penguins Win Hoop Fray Over Mimico

Penguins of the YMCA house league edged past Mimico Recreation Club Saturday night 41-38 in an exhibition basketball game. Two weeks ago the Penguins eked out a 51-49 victory over the Mimico cagers in the first game in Mimico.

Neil Thompson and Bill English paced the Penguins to a 9-5 first quarter lead and Hurrle and Wyatt built the lead up in the second quarter, giving Penguins a six-point margin at the half, 18-12.

CAME BACK

Kirby sparked the Mimico lads to a comeback in the third quarter. Along with Dicks, Howe and Christie, Kirby rallied the Toronto quintet enough to take a slim one-point lead, 24-23, at three-quarters. The Penguins could muster only three successful foul shots and a field basket during that quarter.

Then in the fourth, the game's best quarter, both teams emphasized offence. Thompson and England again led Penguins, followed by Wyatt and Gandy, towards the basket. They whipped in 18 points. Meanwhile Kirby and Dicks attempted to keep Mimico in the game but they fell short by four points, allowing the Penquins to win by three.

Thompson led the scoring with 13 points, closely followed by Mimico's Kirby with 11.

Will Name Czar Of Intercounty

GALT (CP)—Ernie Goman of Waterloo, chairman of a special committee selected to investigate appointment of an administrator to govern the Senior Intercounty Baseball Association, said Saturday the administrator would be named within a week.

It is believed the field has been narrowed down to John Gillies of London and Ronald Reid of Kitchener. The applicant named will administer the senior constitution and his decision will be final and binding in the administration and interpretation of senior affairs.

Of six proposed amendments to the constitution, three were withdrawn and one was defeated.

The annual spring meeting of the association passed a motion that players of juvenile classification, or over, who have been under a contract or signed to a certificate the previous year by a club operating in any city in which a senior club also operates and who are advancing into the senior series, shall be considered property of the senior club only if the senior club has been financially responsible for the minor club.

The other motion passed was one permitting the senior clubs to appoint an administrator. The motion received no opposition.

McNeil Regains Confidence To Blank Bruins 3-0; Canadiens Lead Series 2-1

BOSTON—(AP)—Now that veteran goalie Gerry McNeil has regained his confidence, Montreal Canadiens' Stanley Cup hopes are soaring as a result of his brilliant 3-0 comeback shutout over Boston Bruins Sunday night. McNeil's white-wash job, turned in before 13,909 fans at the packed Boston Garden, gave Canadiens a 2-1 lead in games in their best-of-seven series for the National Hockey League's most prized laurel.

The Bruins, on the other hand, have a serious goalie problem. Sugar Jim Henry, a stonewall while Boston was eliminating Detroit's championship forces in their semi-final series, is sidelined with an ankle injury.

Sugar Jim was replaced Sunday night by unrelated Gordon (Red) Henry, one of the Bruins' Hershey farmhands in the American League.

The red-head has turned in several impressive relief performances for the Bruins in recent seasons, but despite that Canadiens were able to out-skate and out-shoot the Bruins by a wide margin.

TO MISS FOURTH

And, to add to the Boston woes, Sugar Jim, who suffered the ankle injury while the Bruins were taking the second game by a 4-1 margin in Montreal Saturday night, probably will be out of Tuesday night's fourth game here.

McNeil, who asked to be relieved during the fifth game of the semi-final series with Chicago Black Hawks, had been replaced by Jacques Plante. That rookie was sensational as Canadiens reeled off three consecutive playoff victories, two against the Black Hawks and the other against the Bruins at the Forum last Thursday.

But coach Dick Irvin turned sour on Plante after Bruins evened the series with a 4-1 victory Saturday night in Montreal. After stepping out of action, McNeil suffered an ankle injury during practice late last week. But he had the ankle frozen for Sunday night's game and was able to perform in highly efficient fashion.

Canadiens' Ken Mosdell set up the first goal for defenceman Tom Johnson, who blazed in a 15-foot angle shot.

During the second period, Paul Masnick scored from behind the Boston net. He fired against the metal base of the cage, and the puck traveled in a semi-circle, hit one of Bruin defenceman Hal Laycoe's skates and went past the startled Boston goalie.

AND ANOTHER

In the finale, Mosdell ended the scoring by batting in the rebound after Butch Bouchard had driven a 40-footer against the left post of the Boston cage.

The Bruins' vaunted defence, something Montreal seldom could cope with during the regular season, was brought into full play Saturday night as they took the second game of the Stanley Cup final.

They struck with enough offensive forays to keep Canadiens off balance, set up a working lead early, then harried, harassed and bumped the over-anxious Montrealers.

Ed Sandford scored two Boston goals, running his string to eight in as many games of the semi-final and final series.

Leo Labine opened the scoring for the Bruins and it was fitting that Milt Schmidt, 35-year-old veteran who played a cool, crafty game at centre, should close it out.

Bert Olmstead, rifling in a 30-footer, scored Canadiens' lone goal.

Roberts To Face Giants

Robin Roberts, the majors' biggest winner at 28 triumphs, will make his fourth opening-day start in Philadelphia against New York Giants. Roberts dropped only seven gamse last year, but three were against the Giants, the only club that holds a lifetime edge over him. Some 20,000 are expected to see Larry Jansen (11-11) oppose their favorite.

Chicago Cubs, winners of their last three openers, will face an old jinx in Cincinnati's Kenny Raffensberger (17-13) who has whipped them 27 times while losing only 14 times to them. Some 25,000 will see righthander Bob Rush (17-13) try to snap the Redleg southpaw's hex.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 1-0 after eight minutes of overtime to win the Stanley Cup, 20 years ago today. New York won the series by three games to one. Leafs were the aggressors most of the way but couldn't score. The winning goal was fired past Lorne Chabot by Bill Cook, now Rangers' coach. The Rangers have won the cup once since then—in 1940.

Toronto Girls Intermediate HoopChampions

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Cliftons scored 103 points in a two-game total-point series to take the ladies' intermediate A Canadian basketball championship over Cornwall Golds during the week-end. The Golds had a total of 65 points.

Toronto took the first game Friday night 50-33 and the second Saturday 53-32. It was the second straight Dominion title for the Toronto squad.

Toronto Globetrotters won the junior girls' Dominion title, downing Montreal Verduns 48-28. Toronto had a 91-point total in the two-game, total-point series against 64 for Montreal.

Teresa Jones sparkled in both games for the Cliftons, netting 18 points in the second match. Olga Romanko added 11 and Dorothy Unroe sank eight. Cornwall's points were spread fairly evenly among four players. Lorraine Richard was tops with seven, Jean Murkley had one less and Jean Douglas and Charlene Kaneb each netted five.

HELD IN CHECK

Cornwall held the Toronto team in check early in the first quarter but some fine long shots by Jones set Toronto up with a 12-9 margin at the interval. Cornwall improved in the second and picked up 10 points. Toronto's attack was also strong in the period and it counted 13.

In the last half the Cliftons continued to stretch their lead and were never threatened. Cornwall's effort to break through the Toronto defence resulted in a number of fouls and it lost Charlene Kaneb late in the third and Marcelle Howard in the fourth. Barbara Downer was banished on the Toronto team.

Report Unrest In Albania Not Strong Enough To Overthrow Government

(Editor's Note: Recent reports have referred to guerrilla activities in Albania, and even an alleged revolt against the Communist regime there. Sam Modiano, Reuters correspondent in Athens, has questioned Greek general staff intelligence officers, Albanian political refugees, and experts of the Greek Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Here is the latest position as seen in Athens):

By SAM MODIANO

ATHENS (Reuters) — Albania, the smallest country in the Balkan peninsula and Soviet Russia's "isolated satellite," is a "headache" for the diplomats and a puzzle to intelligence officers of the general staffs of her three neighbors—Greece, Yugoslavia and Italy.

Post-war Albania is ruled by Enver Hodja, prime minister and commander-in-chief of an army of 65,000.

Gen. Hodja is said to be "supervised" in his task by some 3,000 Russian advisers led by the Soviet ambassador to Tirana, Clement Levinshky.

Some 1,000,000 Albanians live scattered over about 11,000 square miles of mountainous land stretching along the eastern bank of the Adriatic.

FIERCE HIGHLANDERS

Albania is generally described as a country of fierce highlanders and poor peasants where "brigandage and bloody vendettas are more characteristic than schools."

Recent reports about Albania from unquoted sources have said that following Stalin's death, Albanians revolted and gained control of one - third of the land, threatening Hodja's regime.

Greek general staff officers, keenly interested in Albania, could find no substantiation for these rumors.

The Greek foreign ministry said it seriously suspected motives behind the reports.

When I toured the Greek-Albanian border recently, there was no sign whatsoever of any unusual activity.

NO UNUSUAL EVENTS

Commanders of the local Greek army units, who constantly watch the border, told me that they had not heard of any unusual event on the other side of the frontier.

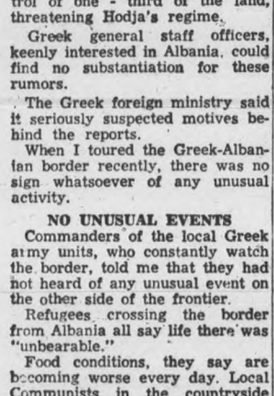
Refugees crossing the border from Albania all say life there was "unbearable."

Food conditions, they say are becoming worse every day. Local Communists in the countryside exert an oppressive tyranny. The SIGURIMI, the counterpart of the Russian secret police, is ruthless.

Information given by the refugees is listened to with suspicion by investigating intelligence officers. Some dwell on the rivalry between Hodja and the minister of the interior, Mehmet Shehu, to "show" that the Communist regime is on the verge of collapse.

From such contradictory and incomplete reports, this general picture of what is happening in Albania was outlined for me by one expert in Athens:

1. There is definitely popular discontent in Albania with bad food conditions and clothing shortages.



2. In the northern and western area, near the Yugoslav border, feudal chieftains bedevil Hodja's government, and tax collectors and police fearfully keep their distance.

3. In these areas, recent attempts by the central government to impose its laws were met by local revolts by peasants using 50-year-old rifles and salvaged Second World War ammunition.

4. Hodja's regime remains unchallenged in all the main towns.

5. There is no reliable indication of the existence inside Albania of any serious resistance movement with a sound leadership.

My informant said anti-Communist Albanians are afraid that even if a successful revolt occurred Yugoslavia, Greece and Italy might put in claims for parts of Albania.

HEADS TRADERS — John H. English, 51, Canada's commercial counsellor in Washington, has been appointed as head of all Canadian government trade commissioners. The Edmonton-born trade veteran, who has held foreign trade posts in New York, Dublin, London, Johannesburg and Washington, succeeds George R. Heasman of Ottawa. Mr. English joined the trade department 27 years ago and during the Second World War helped build the Canadian foreign trade service.

Auditors, Mrs. M. C. Tucker, Mrs. W. Lean; librarians, Mrs. O. Montgomery, Mrs. C. Smith; pianist, Mrs. W. Lean. Mrs. W. Lean, who had taken the chair for the election of officers, installed the officers.

For her work at the Library, Mrs. Owen Montgomery was presented with a fountain pen from her fellow members. Mrs. Montfomery thanked the members for their gift.

Mission Circle Holds Meeting In Motel

MARMORA (ENS). — St. Andrew's Mission Circle met at the Belle Vista Motel on the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn. The devotional period was taken by the vice-president, Mrs. R. Barton. The president, Miss Dorothy Airhart, took the chair for the remainder of the meeting.

The members joined in a study of Africa chiefly in respect to Angola, where the people, through missionary effort, are displaying more self-reliance and assuming leadership more readily than in the past.

The May meeting will be an open one in the church parlor. A miscellaneous program will be arranged, and it is hoped to show slides on Africa. Tentative plans were made for the June meeting at the summer home at Crowe Lake of Mrs. Gordon Jarvis.

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer. A short program followed, consisting of a piano solo by Miss Barbara Meiklejohn, and two contests. The hostess served refreshments.

Sound Proof Baby Room

TORONTO (CP)—The Waverley Road Baptist Church has a sound proof baby room for mothers who want to attend church but are woried about fidgety infants spoiling the service. Built at a cost of $1,000, with local firms and individuals giving equipment, the room runs the full width of the church at the back of the auditorium. It has chairs and cribs, a refrigerator, free milk, cookies, baby powder and disposable diapers. The service is piped into the room through a public address system.

Fire Destroys Inn

AJAX, Ont. (CP)—The saddle and Bridle Inn on No. 2 Highway was destroyed by fire Sunday. Damage was estimated at $50,000. Firemen from Ajax, Pickering and East Woodlands fought the blaze, believed to have started in the basement, for two hours. No one was in the building at the time.

Make Pottery 24 Years In Small Home Factory

OAXACA—Pottery made in Oaxaca is noted for its beauty and whether it is fashioned in a small home factory or in a larger one where moulds are used, all of it is handmade and a work of art.

* * * *

Sr. Gustavo Ramos, who has fashioned vessels from clay for 30 years turns out dozens of pieces for the small Castillo home factory. It took him 10 years as an apprentice to acquire the skill which is his today.

* * * *

Jugs and vases take shape under his hand, all beautifully proportioned. While working the wheel with his feet, he moulds the article with his hands, shapes it and fits the pieces together.

* * * *

The Castillo factory, whose head is Sr. R. Castillo, started 24 years ago and employs six workers, most of them his family. It is the more primitive type factory. Their industry is not too big and they have a small export business with the United States.

* * * *

WORK IN COURTYARD

The factory operates in and around the courtyard of their home. In the patio men were busy packing pretty green and blue pitchers, dishes and vases in strong, barrel-like baskets for shipment.

* * * *

From Sr. Ramos, the articles go to the kiln which is an interesting affair. The chimney is improvised from 50-gallon oil drums. The articles are put inside in a little room on wooden shelves. Holes in the floor underneath allow the process of drying. It generally takes nine hours, although some things are done in seven hours. The temperature which is more than 1,200 degrees keeps the smoke from damaging the articles. Small pieces of quartz are put below in the furnace and formerly they used quartz pieces to start the fire. Huge stocks of wood are piled around the kiln.

* * * *

ARTIST DOES JOB

After the first baking the artist goes to work Sr. Ernesto Canseco sits at the big table surrounded by pottery bowls filled with lovely colors. The day I was there he was making multi-colored ware. So he would paint so much of each article yellow and then after a while start over with green etc., till he had the whole piece of pottery painted. At the time they are painted the colors are dull, but after they are baked again they come out with a beautiful glaze and polish.

* * * *

The clay for the pottery comes from a mine near San Felipe, just outside Oaxaca. The process of getting the colors has been simplified at the Castillo factory. There are five big vats and two stones suspended on each end of a bar turn slowly and constantly for 30 hours in each one. Water is added, the mixture churns slowly. The yellow vat mixture is a dark grey in appearance yet it is a lovely off-orange shade when the finished product is used. The yellow color is iron oxide and the green, copper oxide. They don't import any colors because they can get everything they need in the city. They used to melt the colors and then take off the lead oxide but it was too toxic, Sr. Castillo explained.

* * * *

At the Brena factory, a bigger concern, the work is done in a more advanced fashion with the use of moulds. Much of their pottery is beige in color and quite attractive. The workshops are open galleries facing on a patio with a fountain, bright flowers and fruit trees. Their kilns and other pieces of equipment are more elaborate and modern than the Castillo plant, though everything is still hand done.

* * * *

Pottery is only one thing made at Brena. Weaving is one of the biggest items. Fine table cloths, luncheon sets, robozos and serapes are made on clumsy wooden looms, operated by men and boys. The looms have four pedals, something like those on an organ. The operator uses one foot for each two pedals and operates them with his heel and toe. From the man's waist to the top of the loom there are stout cords which are pulled with a quick jerky motion. They need good strong arm muscles to run them.

* * * *

FINE TEXTILES

Because it was Saturday, only part of the staff were working. Some were weaving articles of all white, blue or navy. Others were making serapes of several colors and doing intricate designs. I bought a fine luncheon cloth for only 34 pesos ($4.50) and the workmanship is lovely. It has a small design which takes a lot of extra time for the operator to put in.

* * * *

But the finest pottery is made at the Jiminez factory, according to Oaxaca people. Much of it is done in the style of the geometric designs at Mitla. It is most intricate and difficult.

* * * *

The women who were doing the work here sat around a patio bright with flowers. An older woman who was very skilful was working on the lid of a big bowl. On the white pottery she drew the design with pencil, freehand. Then she had something like a small knife or chisel and she chipped out parts leaving the design. A daughter of about 15 who was working on cups got into difficulty and had to come to her mother for help.

* * * *

50 WORKERS

There are about 50 people employed at this plant and they do lovely green ware, and replica designs of Monte Alban on dishes, ash trays, jars etc. All the work is very fine and the designs much more detailed than those used at the other two places.

* * * *

In these factories you are permitted to go in and wander around, watching the artisans. There is one room which is kept as a showroom. You are under no obligation to make a purchase, though most people cannot resist buying when they see the fine work. The cost of the article does not begin to repay the workers for the time and effort they put into it.

* * * *

The most primitive pottery work is done in mountain villages beyond the capital.

NORWOOD UNITED CHURCH'S HISTORY was enfolded Saturday when the cornerstone was raised and newspapers dating back to 1890, announcing laying of the stone, were uncovered. The church was gutted by fire March 15. R. T. Scott (left, top), present at the laying of the cornerstone, recalls the ceremony with G. A. Brethen and the Rev. H. K. Wright. Mrs. James Blakely, Fred Gardner and Mrs. G. A. Hamblin (left to right, lower) examine papers which they saw placed during the laying of the stone in 1890. Papers were too damp to unfold after the stone was raised. George Carter (right), 87, was the oldest church member attending the raising and remembered the large crowd which attended the cornerstone ceremony.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Church Cornerstone Is Lifted, Old Records Read

Newspapers dating back to 1890, announcing the laying of the cornerstone of Norwood United Church which was completely gutted on Sunday morning, March 15, were uncovered at the ceremony of raising the stone Saturday in Norwood.

The cornerstone of the church was laid in 1890 and the official opening of the church was in June of the following year. Plans are already underway for the rebuilding of the church, which should start in the next couple of weeks.

The Rev. H. K. Wright, minister of Norwood United Church, opened the service and welcomed the congregation. Especially he welcomed those who were present at the laying of the first cornerstone in 1890 and at the official opening, in June of the following year. Some were: Robert Scott of St. Catharines, Mrs. James Blakely of Warsaw, Richard Kirk, Harry Fife, Harry Wildman, Miss Mina Carter, Mrs. Robert Leeper, Mrs. Andrew Knox, George Henry Parker, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Brethen, Robert McMillan, Mrs. J. F. Elliott, W. A. Montgomery and Fred Gardner, all of Norwood.

Mr. Wright went on to say that this was a milestone in the history of the church and it was fitting that congregation members were present to pledge themselves anew to the church. Following Mr. Wright's address the fitting hymn, The Church's One Foundation, was sung by the congregation.

The cornestone was uncovered by George Millet and Gordon Parker of Norwood. Tho green jug in which several newspaper announcements about the laying of the cornerstone and a Sunday school paper called the Sunbeam were contained, was broken. The rumor that there was also a gold coin entombed under the stone proved to be false.

After the papers that were found under the cornerstone had been dried out; the church records and a list of the members who contributed to the building of the stone church could be read.

The service was brought to a close with the singing of "O God Our Help In Ages Past."

Auto Rolls Driver Slightly Hurt

Clipped Parked Car Turned Over On Warsaw Road

Earl Cooper, 23, of RR 2, Warsaw was bruised and shaken up but otherwise uninjured Saturday night when his car rolled over in the ditch after clipping another car that was parked by the side of the road.

It was one of two accidents reported to the provincial police Saturday night.

The accident occurred seven miles east of Peterborough on the Warsaw Rd. as Cooper was driving west. He didn't see a car that had been parked on the north side of the road, owned by Mrs. Helen Condon of RR 10, Peterborough, and he clipped it on the left side damaging both left fenders.

His own vehicle rolled over in the north ditch, coming to rest on its right side facing east. Damage to it was $300 and to Mrs. Condon's car, $150.

OPP Constable Wallace Mohns investigated.

Trying to pass another motorist Thomas Kelly, 31, of Indian River on Saturday night had his car go out of control. It sideswiped the car he was trying to pass, owned by Ray Pearson, 36, of 288 Lake St., grazed two guide-rail posts, wheeled 275 feet along the west shoulder, and ended up in the west ditch facing south.

The accident was four miles north of Peterborough on Highway 28.

About $25 damage was caused to Pearson's car but the Kelly car, though it had struck both the other vehicle and guide-rail posts, received no apparent damage.

OPP Constables Don Lacombe and John Cawood investigated.

EASTER SEALS

The Peterborough Rotary Club has collected $6,277 to date in its 1953 Easter Seal campaign. This is $300 more than was collected in 1952, but is $3,700 short of the club's objective.

Union Members Demonstrate At Raybestos

Members of Local 527, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Indep.), demonstrated for a quarter of an hour outside the main entrance to the Canadian Raybestos Co. plant at noon today and displayed a petition calling on the company to "commence collective bargaining in good faith."

The present one-year contract between UE and the company ends May 14.

Local 527 have already submitted their proposls to the company. They include a package increase of 30 cents an hour. This works out to about 14 cents an hour to maintain take-home pay and another 16 cents as a general wage increase.

The union wants a reduction in the work week from 43¾ to 40 hours; sick-pay benefits from $18 a week to $35; a pension plan; and an improved vacation plan (three weeks' vacation after 15 years' service, four weeks' after 20 years).

IN BACKGROUND

In the background of the negotiations is the fight by the two electrical unions for the allegiance of the 127 production workers at Raybestos Co. The UE have the present contract but the rival IUE have applied to the Ontario Labor Relations Board for certification.

The hearing is Wednesday morning in Toronto, exactly a week before a similar hearing on an IUE application for certification at the Peterborough plant of the Canadian General Electric Co

At noon today some 40 UE members demonstrated outside the plant, ostensibly asking the company to comply with their petition (signed) by 76 employees, and begin collective bargaining "in good faith." Some of the UE faction also carried placards telling the IUE to "stay away" as their presence "only obstructs negotiations."

Amid a certain amount of good-natured ribbing both IUE and UE factions handed out leaflets. The UE leaflets urged the Raybestos Co. to sit down and negotiate an agreement as required by the present contract. And the IUE leaflet quoted Joe Wirtz, IUE Canadian Co-ordinator, as saying in Brockville that the UE was "diseased with Communism." Wirtz accused C. S. Jackson, George Harris Leonard Velleman and Bill Cambers with being Communists.

Not Summer Yet

Citizens who were looking for an unbroken series of warm lush spring days, each more pleasant than the last, have had their dreams disturbed just a little. Most of the days have been bright, but there has been a chill in the air that makes it clear that the year is yet young. Today the local thermometer registered 44. Sunday was just about as cool. The warmest it reached was 49. Other spots in Canada were just as cool. Edmonton was chilliest with a high of 28.

Youth Jailed 26 Months On 4 Charges

Arrested In Store Asks Penitentiary Has Long Record

Edward Brooker, 23, of Mimico, was sentenced to 26 months in the Kingston Penitentiary today by Magistrate W. R. Philp on two charges of break, entry and theft, one charge of theft and one charge of attempting to break and enter with intent of theft.

The charges were laid following offences on March 25 and 26. Brooker was apprehended in Ostrander's Jewellers and pleaded guilty to the charges last Thursday. He asked for a penitentiary term.

He was sentenced to 26 months on charges concerning a theft from Vince Crowley's men's store, and one from Ostrander's. Further he was handed a one year count for attempting to break into Kresges and stealing articles from a parked car.

Both terms will run concurrent.

Brooker's record dates back to 1943. He has had convictions registered against him in British Columbiai, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Ontario.

FEW FLAKES

Uneasy comments over the weekend by the glooms who were saying "there's still snow in the air" were slightly verified by flake blown about under street lights Sunday night.

BORN IN BOBCAYGEON, DIES

Helen L. Hamilton Hughes, 36, wife of F. Norman Hughes, dean of the Ontario college of pharmacy, died Saturday after a long illness. A native of Bobcaygeon, she later moved to Sarnia where she was educated.

WINNIE, the crippled goose that turned out to be a gander, has a wary holder in the person of Dr. Leonard J. Goss, left, chief veterinarian of the Bronx, N.Y., zoo as Canadian Consul-General Ray Lawson bands the bird with a gold ring. The ceremony was preparatory to Winnie flying—via aircraft—to Canada where wildlife officials hope he will take to the air on his own steam after recuperating from injuries suffered at the hands of a hunter. With tail feathers shot off, the gander was unable to fly north with the rest of the flock.

Winnie The Gander Finds Peace At Miner Sanctuary

KINGSVILLE (CP)—Winnie, the crippled gander who flew home from the United States by plane, has found peace and contentment at the famed Jack Miner bird sanctuary here.

Manley Miner, a son of the founder of the sanctuary about 25 miles southeast of Windsor, said Sunday the gander is eating well, spends hours preening his feathers and takes frequent advantage of the pool provided in his private, 25-foot-square coop.

Capt. Amos Horst of the wild life restoration foundation, New York, who accompanied Winnie on the flight, said he is "convinced now more than ever that we did the right thing in bringing Winnie to the Miner sanctuary."

The gander caused a slight international to-do when a dispute arose as to what should be done with him after he was found stranded at Greenwich, Conn., several weeks ago.

Canadian interests finally won and before the bird left New York he was presented with a gold leg band inscribed: "Winnie, U.S.A.-Canada."

"Winnie will be far more happy here than he would be in a zoo," Capt. Horst said.

"To place him in an open sanctuary with other geese would have surely brought about his early demise. Now he should live to a ripe old age."

Winnie may will never fly again. It is believed an old shot-gun wound injured the nerve which controls the tail feathers. Because of inability to move these feathers, Winnie cannot get airborne.

Mr. Miner believes good care can work wonders. Winnie will remain under the protection of the sanctuary, he said, until the bird is recovered and able to take care of himself.

Tactical Error

TILLSONBURG (CP) —George Harold Kenney, no fixed abode, made a mistake here Saturday night when he allegedly tried to sell stolen men's socks in a local restaurant to a provincial police constable in plain clothes. Kennedy was charged with theft of the socks from a local department store and will appear in court here Friday.

Offer Prizes For Best Letters

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario high school students who can tempt tourists with original and interesting letters about the province are eligible to win $2,000.

Travel and Publicity Minister Cecile announced Sunday that the contest is being sponsored by his department to encourage students to write letters inviting friends and relatives who live in other parts of Canada or the United States to come to Ontario this year.

First prize is $400; second, $250; third, $100 and there are 50 prizes of $25 each.

All students enrolled in grades IX to XIII or their equivalent are eligible. Letters are not to exceed 200 words and may be written in English or French.

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Margery Lowes of Welland Junction died in a Toronto hospital Sunday from injuries received in a traffic accident near Welland Junction Feb. 15.

Competition Poses Problem For Atom Power Production

OTTAWA (CP) — Science has learned a lot about the atom but it still doesn't know whether it will be able to compete commercially with coal for power production.

"That's the big problem ahead," says Dr. Warren C. Johnson, who headed an American delegation to the three-country atomic declassification conference at Chalk River, Ont., last week.

"There are more than a dozen American public utilities interested in producing commercial atomic power and I believe we shal' be running our first industrial atomic plants in the next five or 10 years, probably closer to 10," he told a reporter Saturday.

"The future for atomic energy looks good. But the only way we can find out whether it will be able to compete with coal for the production of power is to build the plants and find out.

"Eventually, of course, the atom may compete with coal, but it may take many years."

Dr. Johnson, associate dean of physical sciences at the University of Chicago, was reluctant to talk about the Anglo-Canadian-American conference, except to say that the discussion were encouraging" and that recommendations dealing with certain classified atomic information will be made to the governments of Canada, the U.S and Britain.

"Industry," he said, "will have to have a certain amount of information now classified in order to proceed with atomic plant construction. Otherwise it won't be able to get ahead with commercial atomic power."

South African Election Results May Chart Country's Course For Years To Come

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — On April 15 South Africans will go to the polls to make decisions that may chart the course of their country for years.

Their vote in elections for the lower house of Parliament will either keep in power Premier Daniel Malan and his Nationalist party or return to power the United party of Jacob Strauss.

If Malan wins, South Africa probably will become a republic, either inside or outside the British Commonwealth. If that were to happen, liberals fear the country would be made to conform to the pattern of a few "white supremacy" extremists.

If Strauss should lead his more internationally-minded party back to power after 4½ years in opposition, independent observers predict there will be a world-wide wave of confidence in the Union of South Africa, which could be expected to follow the liberal traditions of the late Gen. Jan Christian Smuts.

Socially South Africa is one of the world's most complicated countries. Not only are there differences between white persons and colored, but also between extreme Afrikaaners (descendants of Dutch settlers) and other white citizens, largely of British extraction

Many moderate Afrikaaners deplore "dictatorial" tendencies in Malan's nationalist party hierarchy, and try to uphold the more liberal outlook of past Afrikaaner statesmen like Smuts.

Both sides agree in principle that racial segregation is necessary. But observers wonder whether Malan's uncompromising laws against "passive resistance" to his apartheid (strict racial segregation) policy will provoke more disturbances if ruthlessly applied.

The color bar already is breaking down in some industries and some observers predict that this tendency, if continued, would ultimately put an end to complete racial segregation.

The increasing role of colored labor in South Africa's expanding industry could have a major affect on the nation's economy if the non-whites ever organized as a united bloc.

This already has been shown in South Africa's lucrative gold mines which are dependent on a large native underground force for production.

That Malan has few friends among workers was shown in the recent annual congress of the 82,000-member South Africa Trades and Labor Council at Port Elizabeth.

The council passed a resolution blaming the Malan government for "failing the workers" and condemning its interference in trade union activity. It said the government had "forfeited its right to govern."

Despite political ferment South Africa has advanced economically with good profits. Government figures show an increase in over-all production and higher exports, although reflecting great rises in the cost of living.

Industry's main complaint against Malan is that his policies have frightened away international investors.

The most stimulating factor in the post-war economic boom has been the new goldfields in the Orange Free State and recent moves to extract uranium from gold ore.

The new fields are estimated to have some £3,350,000,000 worth of gold in them.

These enormous new gold resources give South Africa a strategic importance which her government could exploit internationally.

However, South Africa's aid in Korea and support for the proposed Middle East defence pact under Malan reassures the world that the Nationalist government is aware of the benefits of such international co-operation.

No matter who wins the election, South Africa's continued support of and strong role in Western defence appears assured.

Her domestic future is not so easy to predict.

East German Recruiting Reported Very Poor

By VINCENT BUIST

BERLIN (Reuters)—Young East Germans are not anxious to jump into jackboots and grab rifles.

The glamor which Hitler built up around the German soldier has gone with the years—and with defeat, East German "police-army" refugees say.

United States officials here who have questioned these refugees claim that the East German government is "deeply concerned" at youth's reluctance to join up.

They say the East German government is thinking of scrapping present recruiting methods and will introduce a universal military service plan, aimed at raising an additional 150,000 men — making 300,000 in all—by next fall.

At the end of February a conference between the East German general staff and members of the Communist central committee concluded that owing to the indifference towards voluntary military service, some form of conscription was inevitable.

POOR ENLISTMEN.

Independent observers and Allied officials here agree that the millions of words written every month in East German publications urging youth to join up indicate poor enlistment.

Allied officials base their views chiefly on the testimony of thousands of deserters from "army" units built up "secretly" in East Germany.

These units, embracing over 100,000 men, are "secret" in that no one in East Germany has officially announced their existence, though East Germany's leaders have frequently talked about "national defence forces."

The 2,500 deserters from the peoples police and "alert" police who have fled to West Berlin for asylum in the last 18 months put forward several reasons, why the recruiting sergeant's job is so difficult in East Germany.

But the chief complaint is "too much political indoctrination."

One 18-year-old East German who was selected for an officers' training course, but fled to West Berlin in December 1952 after seven months in the ranks said:

"We never had any classroom work except political indoctrination."

Even pay days had a political significance for him.

"I picked up 280 marks (about $56) at the pay window each month. On the way out, I had to walk down a corridor with a row of officers at tables.

"First came a voluntary subscription for the reconstruction of Berlin, then the FDJ (Froolgerman Youth — Communist mass youth group) dues, then a contribution to the Society of Soviet-German Friendship, then a subscription to at least one newspaper, and finally the contribution for pictures of Stalin to decorate the barracks. We even had to buy those."

HARSH DISCIPLINE

Discipline was harsh and the men hated their new-style uniforms—a blend of German and Soviet patterns (now often seen publicly in East Berlin)—which often made them, they said, the butt of ridicule from civilians.

East German newspaper reports, however, paint another side of the picture.

The Communist Volksstimme wrote recently: "Police barracks are pleasant and comfortable with a small bedside table next to each bunk. Cooking is excellent.

"On the playing field, sports enthusiasts gather. There are films, legitimate theatre, dances, lectures —and everything is free."

Claxton Visits Clinton

CLINTON (CP)—Hon. Brooke Claxton, minister of national defence, paid an informal visit to the RCAF station here Sunday to note progress of one of the country's largest defence training centres.

Accompanied by Mrs. Claxton, he arrived early in the morning and attended church service.

SCIENTISTS MARRY—Sir Alexander Fleming, 71-year-old discoverer of Penicillin, and his 40-year-old bride, Dr. Amalia Coutsouris, photographed shortly after their civil marriage ceremony in London, Eng., this week. Lady Fleming, a Greek war heroine and a scientist herself, met Sir Alexander in 1947 when she was a bacteriologist on his staff.

In 1944 we said:

"Make no little plans when you think of Canada's future ... For Canada, when this war is ended, will stand on the threshold of a splendid and challenging opportunity. The need will be there, the time will be ripe, for vast, unprecedented development ... By planning today, we purchase ready-made markets for tomorrow, markets which will absorb our fullest productive effort and thus create gainful employment for everyone."

—The above is an extract from an advertisement we published during March, 1944, in a wide list of publications.

IT WAS during the dark days of the last war that we wrote those words. Can anyone looking at Canada today, say that our confidence in the destiny of this country was misplaced?

Canada's Amazing Growth

The expansion in every phase of our national life since that advertisement appeared is a matter of record. The gross national product (the total value of all the goods and services Canada produces in a year) has risen from approximately $12 billion in 1944 to $23 billion in 1952 while the annual value of our manufactured goods alone has doubled during the same period.

From 12,000,000 in 1944, our population has increased by over two and a half million—which is like saying that more than three-quarters of the population of Norway, or more than one and a quarter times the population of New Zealand has been added during those years.

Despite the fact that Canada still has approximately only one-half of one percent of the world's population, she ranks third among the trading nations. Of the ten leading trading nations, on a per capita basis, she is first.

It is estimated that by 1960 our population will have reached sixteen and three quarter million and by that year some economists believe the total value of our goods and services will have passed the $30 billion mark.

Electricity Plays a Vital Part

Since 1940 Canada's output of electric power has more than doubled. This extensive development of our power resources undoubtedly accounts, in part, for this country's rapid expansion. It is significant, for example, that we use about three times as much electric energy as the thirteen countries of South America combined, although we have only about one-eighth of their population.

Working Hand-in-Hand with Industry

We of Canadian General Electric are proud of the part this Company has always played and is still playing in Canada's remarkable development. Our great family of workers has increased from 8,500 in 1944, when the above advertisement appeared, to over 14,000 today. And since that time we have spent some 45 million dollars on new plants, new offices and warehouses—as well as on new equipment and extensions to existing plants.

Because it believes that "the best is yet to be" where Canada is concerned, this Company is even now stepping up the expansion of its manufacturing and distributing facilities to meet the increasing demand for its products resulting from Canada's phenomenal development. And so today, we again say confidently: THINK BIG ... when you plan for Canada's future.

1534 Case History Of Scurvy First Case Written In Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's first medical case history—an account of an attack of scurvy in 1534—will be presented to delegates at a medical convention here in August.

The account was written by Jacques Cartier and outlines an effective, if primitive, treatment for the disease that struck the explorer's crew while they were camped at Stadacona, near Quebec City.

Cartier's account will be reproduced in a program to be given delegates attending a physiological congress opening here Aug. 31. The story first was told by Dr. B. L. Frank of Montreal in a recent issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

DEFINITE HAZARD

Scurvy, resulting from lack of fresh meat, was a definite hazard in early ship travel. It struck with such severity that Cartier wrote of his crew of 110: "There were not 10 whole, so that one could not help the other, a most horrible and pitiful case considering the place we were in. . . ."

Cartier had a post-mortem examination performed on the body of one of his men who died of scurvy the first autopsy ever performed in Canada. He reported with such accuracy that the "mal de terre" which he fought was easily recognized by later doctors as scurvy.

Cartier also left the first report of an effective remedy for the disease. He noticed that one Indian who had suffered seriously from the disease had recovered. He questioned him and learned of the Indian remedy "annedda" a brew made from the bark and leaves of the "annedda" tree.

RECEIVED RELIEF

He said his crew took the remedy and "shortly after they had drunk of it, they received benefit which was found to be real and evident miracle."

"For all the sick, after having drunk of it two or three times, recovered health and vigor. After this was seen and understood, there was such strife for the said medicine that they would have killed themselves to see who first should have it. . ."

Unfortunately, Cartier's description of the "anneda" tree was insufficient and medical authorities are not agreed on whether it was the hemlock spruce, white spruce or cedar or sassafras.

FAMILY HAS LONG SERVICE—Sgt. Isabel Millen, of the RCAF station at Halifax, will represent her Halifax family, which has a record total of 85 years' service in the armed forces, at the Coronation. Sgt. Millen has served five years; a twin brother, WO1. Horace J. (left), of the RCEME, has served 13 years; another brother, Lieut. D. H. (centre), has been 13 years in the Royal Canadian Navy. Their father was in the army 44 years and a third brother, Alex, has just retired as an army major after 10 years. Sgt. Millen will be the senior NCO of RCAF servicewomen in the Coronation parade.

Colorful Canadian Army Contingent Sails On Coronation Trip

OTTAWA (CP)—A colorful Canadian Army contingent of 403 officers and other ranks will sail from Quebec City within the next month for the Coronation.

Details of the make-up of the group, which will be equally divided between the active and reserve army and represent every province, have been releasd by the army.

The group will be assembled at Valcartier, Que., later this month, issued with kit and special dress uniforms, and embark from Quebec in four ships. A small advance party sails on the Scythia April 25, with other groups leaving on the Columbia April 29, the Franconia May 1 and the Atlantic May 7.

VETERANS CHOSEN

All are veterans of theatres of action, many having served both in the Second World War and the Korean campaign.

All ranks will wear the blue dress uniform, already compulsory for officers on state and social occasions, and now being made up for other ranks. This uniform consists of a blue tunic with high, close-fitting collar, and blue trousers with a colored stripe down the side to denote different army corps.

Warrant officers and senior non-commissioned officers will add a touch of color with crimson shoulder sashes, while lower ranks will wear black web belts, black boots and black leather gloves. The word "Canada" will be written in gold leaf below the shoulders of the uniforms, and the men will carry rifles with chrome-finished, old-style bayonets.

Headdress will range from colored corps berets of the men to the blue forage caps of officers and the Kilmarnock bonnets on Glengarrys of highland units. Officers will wear gold shoulder cords and their sword scabbards will be carried in gold sword slings. White gloves, a crimson waist sash, and gold epaulets with silver badges of rank will complete their uniforms.

As previously announced, two Victoria Cross winners will head the reserve contingent which will line the streets near Canada House. Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, VC, of Vancouver and Lt.-Col. Paul Triquet, VC, of Quebec City, will be commander and second-in-command respectively.

PLATOONS FROM GERMANY

The active army contingent, which marches in the procession, will be joined in England by platoons from the 27th Canadian infantry brigade now serving in Germany.

The active group will be headed by Lt.-Col. J. R. Stone, DSO, of Salmon Arm, B.C., commanding officer of the 2nd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. With him will be a platoon from his own unit, one from the Royal Canadian Regiment, one from the Royal 22nd Regiment and a composite platoon formed from other corps in the army.

When the contingent reaches England it will assemble first at Pirbright Camp, Brookwood, Surrey. There the troops will perfect marching and drill. About the end of May the reserve army detachment will move to Kensington Gardens to train with other Commonwealth reserve troops, while the active group, including the band of the Royal 22nd Regiment, now in Germany, will join troops from many parts of the empire at Earlscourt.

A team from the 2nd regiment of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery will ride as part of the Queen's escort. It will sail May 1 on the Franconia and in England will be stationed and train with the RCMP detachment at Knightsbridge.

The army units will return to Canada between June 16 and July 3.

New Refineries

NEW DELHI (CP)—Agreement was signed between India and a United States firm for construction of an oil refinery at Visakapatnam which will have a capacity of 500,000 tons of crude oil annually. This is one of three new refineries in India which will supply the bulk of India's gasoline and oil.

Westminster Abbey Gets 6 Tons Of Carpet

LONDON (Reuters)—More than six tons of the world's finest carpeting will be laid in Westminster Abbey for the Coronation June 2.

There will be 31 carpets valued at more than £6,200 and covering an area of 2,320 square yards.

Of this, 770 square yards of gold colored carpet will be laid in the retiring room and Coronation theatre and 1,550 square yards of blue in the annexe and nave.

David Eccles, British minister of works, says that after the Coronation the carpet will be sold to churches.

Coronation Ties Made In Japan

TOKYO (Reuters)—Factories in Hachioji City, near Tokyo, where 60 per cent of Japanese neckties are made, are working day and night to turn out Coronation specials.

Makers believe that Coronation ties will be best sellers about the time of the Coronation June 2.

Most concentrate on crown and sword designs and "coronation colors."

This year necktie manufacturers expect to earn a total of 800,000,000 yen ($2,240,000).

Deborah Kerr Cast In Film As "Sexy Dish"

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Look who's playing a sexy dish now—Deborah Kerr.

The same cool queen of MGM who has floated lady-like through many a film is playing an easy-to-get sweetheart of the soldiers in the film version of James Jones' lusty novel, "From Here to Eternity."

The English actress is going all-out for the role. She happily posed for the first bathing-suit photos of her Hollywood career.

"No, I've never done cheesecake before," she admitted. "For one thing, nobody at MGM ever asked me to. I'm not sure I would have done it anyway. I don't see much advantage in my posing for photos in all kinds of scanty attire.

"But in this picture it's different. I actually have some scenes in shorts and bathing suits. There is a reason for it in the script."

Miss Kerr remarked that she got typed from the start of her Hollywood career in the queen-like kind of role. Her first film here was "The Hucksters" opposite Clark Gable.

GET TYPED FAST

"Any actress who comes over here from England has something of a disadvantage, as far as the choice of roles is concerned," she said. "As soon as you arrive, they place a tiara on your head and expect you to act like royalty at all times."

Asked how she managed to break through the typing barrier and the "Eternity" role, she said:

"I changed my agents. I told my new one, 'I am going to sack you if you don't go out and get me a role that will prove I have some red blood in my veins, not ice water.'

"He's an imaginative fellow and dreamed up the idea that I should play in 'From Here to Eternity.' When he suggested the idea to (Columbia boss) Harry Cohn, Cohn ordered him out of the office. Two days later, Cohn said, 'can we get her?' "

"In this town, you play two of the same kind of part and you are forever thought of in that kind of role," she said. "But when you consider the films I did in England, you'll find that I have done just about every kind of part."

Starch Co. Chairman, G. F. Benson, 88, Dies

MONTREAL (CP)—G. F. Benson, 88, chairman of the board of the Canada Starch Co., died Saturday. A native of Montreal, he was long associated with the Montreal Board of Trade.

In 1885 he became a partner in W. T. Benson and Co., founded by his father, and the following year, with the incorporation of the Edwardsburg Starch Co., became a director of the new company and later president. When the Edwardsburg Company absorbed the Brantford Starch Co., and the Imperial Starch Companies to form the Canada Starch Co. in 1906, Mr. Benson became president and managing director, posts he held until 1933 when he became chairman of the board.

RISING SUN FLIES AGAIN from post-war Japanese "Navy," called Coastal Safety Force. These are U.S. LSSLs on loan-lease.

"SPECIAL VEHICLE BATTALION" is current designation for tank units in Japan's new National Safety Force. This crew, like others, is being trained to use tanks for home defence.

Japan Rebuilding Forces Posing Under New Name

By EDWARD R. KENNEDY

TOKYO (NEA) — Out here, where the Japanese chain of islands is right next door to Communist arsenals, weakness could be fatal. But the Japanese Constitution, dictated by the MacArthur occupation, expressly forbids rearmament in any form.

Nevertheless, the Japanese are rearming, slowly but surely. With U.S. help, they've created a face-saving masquerade, and their "Army" and "Navy" go under the names of "National Safety Force" and "Coastal Safety Force."

Neither are yet potent powers in the Pacific, although the "Army" is already up to 110,000 men, well-armed and well-trained. But the nucleus is there, and the potential is obvious.

The U.S. wants Japan to rearm and take over the defense of her homeland. The U.S. also wants Japan to tool up for war production to support the United Nations war effort in Korea and to act as an arsenal for Western Allies in Asia. Many informed Japanese are favorable to these ideas, but more are not. The U.S. idea clashes head on with a pacifistic move born of bitter experience.

Leading the opposition to rearmament are university students, who foresee a national draft act, and mothers, who bitterly contemplate their sons marching off to another war.

The Japanese Communists encourage these conceptions of the well-intentioned groups in order to keep up opposition fervor. So public opinion lags behind the reality of defense.

Moreover, Australia, New Zealand and Southeast Asian countries, for whom the U.S. must also show great consideration, are opposed to Japanese rearmament.

So, currently, the U.S. is giving only token help and hoping that the Japanese work out for themselves a program favorable both to their own defence and to the western anti-Communist countries.

The Japanese National Safety Force is the one real power today in Japan to be accounted as a true defensive unit. Although small, it is a tough little corps, well-trained and high-spirited. Working with two U.S. divisions stationed in Japan for defence, it could give a good account of itself should Russia attack the islands.

The Japanese "Navy" is another story. The U.S. Navy has not taken a similar "big brother" attitude toward the fledgling sea force and it is obvious to an American observer.

DESIGNED FOR INVASION

To date, 10 of the 17 ships turned over to the Japanese government on a loan-lease basis are LSSL type—rocket firing support ships, ironically enough designed for invasion of Japan's home islands in World War II. The other seven ships are frigates, six of which were loaned to Russia during the war and returned to the U.S. last year in far from shipshape condition.

In the air, Japan has less than 100 light planes, all typed for artillery observation and rescue spotting. That comprises the air force. And Japanese now dread air attacks above all others. They generally support a proposal for a goodly number of top notch Japanese interceptor planes that would be ready to meet any invader who might challenge Nippon skies. For such a defence wing, there is an ample cadre of pilots who would require only refresher course training.

To tool up for increased war production, the Japanese industrialists want firm commitments. So far, the U.S. can promise only short term orders to support the Korean effort. Therefore, Japanese industry is unwilling to abandon manufacture of civilian consumer goods, fearing that a cessation of hostilities would leave them stuck with mortgaged war plants and no customers.

Without the fanfare accompanying NATO rearmament, leaders of the U.S. and Japan are quietly plodding along, paving the way for a day two or three years from now when Japan will be able to defend itself.

The progress shown by the National Security Force is due both to U.S. help and to the head start it got when it was first organized, under the MacArthur occupation. Now functioning strictly according to the tables of organization of the U.S. Army, it is the basis of a real fighting force.

It came into being soon after the Korean War broke out, and was designed to fill the defense vacuum left when U.S. troops were rushed to the front.

DEFENCE FORCE

Ultimate hope of the U.S. is that Japan will support 300,000 ground soldiers in 15 divisions. This is deemed adequate for defense, as firepower is stressed over manpower—a new concept of Army strategy in Japan. For instance, the present NSF divisions, trained and equipped by the U.S. Army, have five times the fire-power of a former Imperial Army unit the same size.

Although the U.S. tables of organization and mechanization are not particularly well suited to Japan, the Japanese have faithfully followed them to the letter. It is predicted, however, that soon the Japanese will change over, retaining the best of what Americans have taught them and resurrecting some of the old Imperial Army manuals that have methods best suited to Nippon terrain.

Because the corps is not termed an army, the units are not given true army designations. For example, a tank battalion is called a special vehicle battalion; an artillery battalion is a special battalion, and an infantry regiment is an ordinary regiment.

Today, Japan is defenseless. But the National Safety Force is making a bid for rapid growth into a strong line of national defense.

Plan To Change Designation Of Canadian Soldiers

Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff correspondent with the Canadian forces in Korea since 1950, has spent three weeks in Germany with the 27th Canadian brigade. In this story, last of a series he describes plans to redesignate battalions under which the constituent companies would lose their parent-unit connection.

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HANNOVER, Germany (CP) — The army is expected shortly to change the designations of its foot soldiers here.

Announcement is expected soon that the battalions comprising the 27th Canadian infantry brigade will be redesignated and that their constituent companies will lose their separate identities.

When the force was raised in 1951 its three infantry battalions were built around a framework of companies from 15 parent units, each retaining its identity. Its armored squadron was drawn from 10 armored units across Canada, while six reserve army field regiments provided troops for the gunner regiment.

The idea was that diversifying the manpower sources would facilitate recruiting. Unit commanders acquired unprecedented administrative headaches as a result.

CONNECTION IGNORED

In practice the parent-unit connection is being increasingly ignored. Instead of being called the Victoria Rifles company or the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry company, for instance, companies are referred to in the usual army way—'A' or 'B' company or whatever the designation might be.

Lack of liaison between the parent units and their companies in Germany actually is contributing to their fusion into proper battalions.

Lt.-Col. John Delamere of Toronto, commander of the 1st Canadian Rifle Battalion, reports that only the Queen's Own Rifles (Toronto) and the Victoria Rifles (Montreal) maintain connection with their companies in his unit.

"We never hear from the Regina Rifles, the Winnipeg Rifles or the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry —our letters aren't even acknowledged."

He added that only his QOR company had a one-locality flavor. "The soldiers in the other companies may come from anywhere in Canada, regardless of the company's nominal affiliation."

BELONG TO BATTALION

Hence the men are beginning to feel they belong to the 1st Canadian Rifles, he said, and not to just one of the companies.

When men are posted from one company to another they have the headache of changing badges and shoulder flashes, and local feeling now has so disappeared that they accept such postings without demur. This is important as most units insist on a man changing his company on promotion.

The business of changing flashes and badges is minor in the infantry and rifle battalions compared to the highland battalion, where kilts and bonnets also are involved.

Lt.-Col. H. A. A. Parker of Toronto said: "I have officers who are North Nova Scotia Highlanders by day and 48th Highlanders by night. That's because when they bought their serge dress and mess kits they were 48th Highlanders. Next week they may be Seaforth Highlanders. I can't expect them to spend $250 to $300 every time I have to cross-post them."

Parker said integration of the battalions as battalions was frustrated last year by an inferior type of major-grade company commander and their captain seconds-in-command.

DIFFICULT JOB

He said it had been difficult to clean up some brigade companies, in which even gang rule prevailed, because of the poor quality of officers and NCOs the recruiting policy produced. "This showed in poor man-m a n a g e ment, which was doubly unfortunate because of the poor quality of man they had to work with."

Another complication of the multi unit system, said RSM. R.H. Finnie of the Highlanders, was that to arrest a man two others from his own company had to be found to escort him.

With the progress of the weeding-out, the infusion of superior-type officers and NCOs, discipline no longer is a problem, Parker said.

"Basically it depends on the officers and the sergeants. If they're good it's good. I'm proud of the unit now."

ADDED PROBLEM

The composite system has an extra complication for Lt.-Col. G.M.C. Sprung, who commands the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion. One of his companies is from Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, and poses the language problem.

Because few of the men speak English they are not suitable for cross-posting to other companies should those fall under-strength.

Their NCOs do not command enough English to go to other companies on promotion, nor to attend the brigade's senior NCOs' school to prepare for advancement. Nor are there enough of them to warrant setting up a school especially for them.

Sprung has another uniform complication. He has officers who come from Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry—not one of the units contributing companies to his command. By day they're in the Loyal Edmonton Regiment Company, by night Patricias, and maybe next week Algonquins.

Brig. John Pangman, brigade commander, says there "is no problem from the point of view of making the thing function."

Rescue Aged Patients

WATERLOO, N. Y. (AP) — Twenty-three bed-ridden patients, ranging from 80 to 97 years, were rescued Saturday from an explosion and fire that damaged the Seneca Nursing Home. Frederick Houtenbrink and his wife, who operate the 15-room home, and four employees carried all the patients to safety.

Assistant fire chief George Jarvis said an oil stove in the basement exploded. He estimated damage at $25,000.

COMMANDER — Lt. - Col. John Delamere, of Toronto, commander of the 1st Canadian Rifle Battalion at Hannover, Germany, says that only the Queen's Own Rifles (Toronto) and the Victoria Rifles (Montreal) maintain connection with their comapnies in his unit. He said: "We never hear from the Regina Rifles, the Winnipeg Rifles or the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry — our letters aren't even acknowledged." When the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade—now in Germany—was raised in 1951, its three infantry battalions were built around a framework of companies from 15 parent units, each retaining its idnetity. The idea was that diversifying the manpower sources would facilitate recruiting. In practice the parent-unit connection is being increasingly ignored.

New Brunswick Claims Brigham Young

HALIFAX (CP)—Was Brigham Young a native of New Brunswick?

There is some evidence, and a lot of speculation, that the American Mormon leader was not born at Whittingham, Vt., in 1801, as his biographers claim, writes K. A. Baird in the Dalhousie Review.

The author says strong supporters of the Maritimes' theory are the older residents of Young's Cove on Grand lake, who believe Brigham Young was a grandson of the Dutch blacksmith and United Empire Loyalist who gave his name to the New Brunswick settlement.

They claim the man who led a band of Mormons half way across a continent was the son of Abraham and Catherine MacLean Young, born on their Grand lake farm in 1801. He was baptised, the story runs, at Gagetown, but there is nothing in the church records to support it.

Abraham Young, who may have been the source of his son's roving spirit, pulled stakes and moved his family to a farm on the Saint John river above Fredericton. They later sold the farm and left the transaction to Brigham, who, if the story is true, moved across the border.

Dr. Baird, a Saint John physician, sees some evidence of authenticity in the fact that a version of the story was published the year before Young's death and the author appeared to have discussed the matter with Catherine MacLean's brother, who believed the Mormon leader was his New Brunswick-born nephew.

But the chances of proving the story? "Doubtless impossible," concludes Dr. Baird.

Do we use all our nickel in Canada?

"No, son, we don't. Right now a great deal of our nickel is going into defense equipment. Here in Canada we produce about 90 per cent of the world's nickel. So we share it with Great Britain, the United States and other peace-loving countries to keep the defense program going in those countries as well as in our own."

"But when the threat of war is over, will we keep all our nickel at home?"

"We can't do that either, son. If we did, this country could use only about 10 per cent of the nickel we produce. There's another reason too. We bring in a lot of things we need from other lands—things like cotton, oranges, china, tea and coffee. The nickel we export helps provide the money to pay for these things."

MR. AND MRS. RALPH C. BRAUND are quietly celebrating today the 60th anniversary of their wedding which took place at the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe St., in the evening of April 13, 1893. To Mr. Braund that was the happiest day of his life and also the most fortunate in blessing him as he has said with a wife who has been a treasure, the gentle and charming May Greene, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greene, of Peterborough. Their romance began at Stirling when Mr. Braund was a lieutenant in the Salvation Army and secretary to the Divisional Officer, Staff-Captain William A. McIntyre, afterwards Commissioner of the Army in Canada, and one of its outstanding officers. During their 60 years of married life, Sergeant-Major and Mrs. Braund have both been prominent in the progress of the Peterborough Corps. —(Examiner Staff Photo).

Mr., Mrs. R. C. Braund Married 60 Years, Worked For Stores, Salvation Army

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Braund, 330 Sherbrooke St., are celebrating this evening the 60th anniversary of their wedding. They will be at home from 7:30 to 9 o'clock at their residence, and it is in character with their deep and abiding appreciation of friendship that they have sent a special invitation to their neighbors.

The marriage of Ralph C. Braund and A. May Greene, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greene, was solemnized with felicitous ceremony at the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe St., on April 13, 1893, by Commissioner William A. McIntyre of Toronto.

As a youth of 17, Mr. Braund volunteered for officership in the Salvation Army in a sense of vocation which in eventual circumstances affected the whole course of his life. He was appointed temporarily to the Lippencott St. Corps in Toronto, and was later assigned as secretary to Staff Captain W. A. McIntyre. Their association in field work, mainly in organizing and developing local Corps, was the beginning of an attachment that brought the former Staff Captain to Peterborough, then with the highest rank of Commissioner, for the occasion of the nuptials of his former assistant.

IMPAIRED HEALTH

Mr. Braund had been promoted to a Lieutenancy, but the Divisional work, touring about in an old second-hand buggy at one stage, impaired his health, resulting in a weakened condition of his lungs which forced him to give up his hopes of continuing as an officer of the Army. Periods of rest were of no avail in recovery for the strenuous demands of continuous travel throughout the two Divisions, and Mr. Braund had to relinquish his officership.

Ill and with only $2.50 in his pocket, he arrived in Peterborough with a letter of recommendation from Commissioner D. M. Rees. In the course of his visitings in the Kingston Division, he had met the family of Henry Greene at Stirling. Mr. Greene, who was afterwards accountant with the J. J. Turner & Sons, here, his wife, daughter and two sons, all played musical instruments. Meanwhile, Mr. Braund had learned instruments, the cornet and concertina. With the Greene family he organized a small band, playing second cornet.

Staff-Captain McIntyre commandeered them for a whole season. His plan was to clear the division of debt that had accumulated over some years. Revival meetings were held, including a five weeks' camp meeting, with the band prominently providing the hymnal and other music, and in the end the division's liabilities were wiped out.

It was in that phase of his field work that Ralph Braund met May Greene, a graceful, talented lady. Then, when he arrived in Peterborough, to walk its streets in quest of work, the Greene family had preceded him and were soldiers playing in the twenty-five piece Temple Band. But, one member was missing. May Greene had remained in Stirling where she was employed as bookkeeper in a large drygood store.

Mr. Braund's first work was in the home of the Corps commander. His health gradually improved, but otherwise his fortune had reached the low ebb. It was difficult to find work even at the meagre wage of about 50 cents a day. Henry Greene, by that time, had opened a tinsmith's store on Simcoe St. Ralph Braund offered to work for him "for his board". Finally he secured the position of night operator with the Bell Telephone Co., on the second floor of part of the old city hall building on Simcoe St., now only a memory. That was the turning point of his business career, although the telephone job was paying him only $25 a month.

STARTED AS SALESMAN

Mr. Greene chanced to mention that the tinsmith business was discouragingly slow. With part of the daytime to himself, Mr. Braund volunteered to fill up a wagon load of the merchandise and try to sell it on the market square. He cleared out everything the first Saturday afternoon, by cash and barter with farmers, exchanging washboards, buckets, stove pipes and other goods for apples, turnips potatoes and other farm produce.

Matthew Carton, a wholesale grocer, saw young Braund in action, and later offered him job at seven dollars a week.

A collateral inducement was the evening time to himself, for band practices, meetings and so on. Mr. Braund hesitated with the reply: "I don't know anything about groceries and clerking."

And Mr. Carton clinched that brief argument with the commendatory, "I saw you selling tinware on the market, and you'll suit me."

In three months, the Braund salary was boosted to $7.50 a week. That was an earnest of security, and so the wedding was arranged. But, the Salvation Army corps officer had not been able to meet the Temple fuel bill. He suggested that tickets be sold for the wedding at ten cents.

Receipts of $71.10 intimate the attendance, and the further happy coincidence of amply settling the account with the coal dealer.

One day the delivery man at Carton's said to the grocery clerk: "If I knew as much about the grocery business as you do, I'd go down to Albert and Park Sts. and rent the new building on the corner, and start up a grocery business of my own." Three years later, that suggestion was put into effect. From that venture stemmed the remarkable success of R. C. Braund, first as grocer and subsequently as proprietor of a departmental store with an annual turnover of $70,000. At the outset, however, he remained as clerk with Matthew Carton, while Mrs. Braund served customers during a short testing period of the potential of the first retail business of any promise and importance on what was then the outskirts of the town.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S GROUP

Another chapter of the Braund story, and others could be included in this account of accomplishment, returns to the Salvation Army and the development under his leadership of its junior department. For 30 years R. C. Braund was Young People's sergeant-major, a non-commissioned rank, eventuating in the bestowal upon him of the Order of the Founder by Commissioner Benjamin Orames, on behalf of General George L. Carpenter, in Massey Hall, Toronto, May 31, 1940.

In 1935, Commissioner McIntyre paid the Peterborough Corps and Sgt.-Major Braund this compliment: "Peterborough today, as far as I know, has one of the best all-round junior corps in the Army world. A year ago, I had three of our most able officers visit a number of outstanding Army young people's corps, the centre of interest being Peterborough. The "On to Fifty Thousand" campaign in the Central Territory was based upon the pattern of the Salvation Army young people's work in Peterborough, over which Sergeant-Major Braund presides."

More than one history affirms that the Braunds of Devonshire was one of the old families of the western county and Cornwall. Seamen of that name helped defeat the Spanish Armada, and were with Sir Francis Drake on his voyage of discovery around the world on board his ship the Hawkins. First of the family to come to Canada was Joseph Braund, who settled on a farm near Newcastle where R. C. Braund was born Christmas Eve, 1869. When he was 12 years old, he moved with his parents to a 150 acre farm near Pickering, now the site of Ajax, the community that sprang into existence during the war for the manufacture of munitions. The owner was W. J. Reason.

Seven years later the Braund family returned to their first location at Darlington with sufficient funds to buy it.

By that time the youthful Braund had heard about the evangelistic methods of the Army from a baker of the Newcastle area who had seen them in Toronto, became a convert at Newcastle, and departed from home to devote his life to the Army's cause for God.

WORKED ALONE

"In one appointment, Lieut. Braund would stand alone in the streets, playing his cornet, singing, and then march off to the little hall which had been built by a friend of the Army. There he had to conduct the meetings and also keep order among young "hoodlums," bent on breaking up the services. Week after week this occurred; the young Lieutenant was almost beaten, but prayed for guidance. Then he turned the seats around to face the door, so that anyone who came in had to pass him. There was no more trouble from the boys."

Before he made the decision to leave for Toronto and offer himself for active service, it came about that Army officers had occasionally visited his home and prayed with the family. It was about that time that the other members of the family of eight Braund children became Salvationists.

Of R. C. Braund's contribution in the rebuilding of the Simcoe St. Temple after the fire that destroyed most of the work of renovation, he would be the first to acknowledge the valuable aid of his brothers, one of whom was a contractor. The work was carried through by a corps committee at a cost of $75,000 plus $7,000 for officers' quarters, and new and instruments were paid for in full.

Commenting on the changes he had seen in those 60 years, Mr. Braund mentioned the Corps and its band used to walk in the mud and deep snow of the streets that are nowadays paved and cleaned by plows.

"The first concrete walk was laid at the present Bank of Commerce. All the sidewalks were of wooden planks, and they were kept in repair by the late J. J. Cunningham's father. He was one of the few town employees at that time."

"I am not sure whether the young people today appreciate and make the best of the facilities developed for them. We used to work until 6 p.m. and think nothing of being at meetings by 7 o'clock. The hour is now mostly 8 o'clock, and I don't think people turn out as they used to."

One of Mr. Braund's observations from a long life is that spirituous beverages are not conducive to success in business and happiness in family life. He is convinced that sobriety is the better way.

Mr. and Mrs. Braund have been of indifferent health during the winter, but since the change of weather they, like so many other people, are grateful for improvement the new season has helped to bring about.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD GORDON, following their wedding on Saturday in Melville Presbyterian Church, Westmount, Que. The bride was formerly Miss Norma Hobbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hobbs of Montreal. Donald Gordon, C.M.G., LL.D., is chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways. They will honeymoon on the French Riviera.

Artificial Flowers Fashioned By Club

HAVELOCK — (ENS) — The Rush Point Devotional and Handicraft Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pollock.

The junior committee presented the program. The lesson theme was "Christ in Gethsemane." Joan Embleton, vice-president gave the call to worship. Doris Pollock read the scripture lesson. A quartet comprising Misses Marie Newton, and Roberta Cook sang "Willing to Take the Cross was He," with Mrs. Earl Cook as organist. Joan McGowan read a poem and the interpretation of the painting "Christ in Gethsemane" was read by Mrs. Earl Pollock. Following the hymn, "When I Survey the Wonderous Cross". Doris Newman led in prayer and the Rev. R. G. Newman pronounced the benediction.

During the craft period Mrs. Albert Robinson gave a demonstration of making artifical flowers, and instructed a class on the rose, daffodil, jonquil and sweet pea. The finished examples made a beautiful floral display.

Following lunch and a taffy treat a vote of thanks was extended to the hostess and Mrs. Robinson. An invitation from Mrs. Earl Cook to hold a meeting at her home on April 30 was accepted.

Coldsprings Girls Form Garden Club

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — The organization meeting of the Girls' Home Garden Club was held at the home of Elaine Minifie, with the leader, Mrs. Hilton Minifie, and assistant, Mrs. Carl Bowman, in charge.

Nine girls have formed the club namely: Norma and Margaret Lang, Jean Denny, Dorothea and Jean Bowman, Marlene Turk, Elaine Minifie, Sheila Ritchie and Marilyn Snelgrove.

Officers elected were: President, Sheila Ritchie; secretary, Elaine Minifie; press reporter, Dorothea Bowman.

A general outline of the season's work and the distribution of literature and seeds was given. The girls plan to hold their next meeting at Dorothea and Jean Bowman's home, May 30.

Tin Production Up

THE HAGUE (AP)—World mine production of tin concentrates in January was 13,300 long tons, 100 more than in the previous month, the international tin study group reports. The long ton is 2,240 pounds.

Bancroft Hospital Gets County Grant

BELLEVILLE—Hastings county council Friday approved a grant of $1,000 to the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital.

The grant request had been presented at the January session but was laid over until more information regarding the financial condition of the hospital could be obtained. This information was available at Friday's session.

While the operating expenses of the hospital are looked after by the Red Cross, it is up to the municipality to purchase and take care of insurance, maintenance and other incidentals.

During the past year there were 2,900 patient days provided by the hospital, patients coming mostly from North Hastings municipalities with a few from outside the county.

Pravda Comment

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Communist party newspaper, Pravda, said today that the United States gave a much warmer welcome to West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer than to the British and French ministers who visited Washington earlier. It was clear that Adenauer's visit had led to a "definite agreement" on speeding the rearmament of Germany, the newspaper said.

Widower Held In Wife's Death

ST. ISIDORE DE LAPRAIRIE, Que. (CP) — Fortunat Dubuc, wealthy, 53-year-old widower, was being held by police today pending a coroner's inquest into the death of Mrs. Dubuc.

Dubuc was arrested Friday by Quebec provincial police shortly before he was to have wed a 16-year-old girl. Police said they were holding Dubuc for questioning in connection with the death of his wife who died Jan. 12 in their farmhouse in this small centre 17 miles from Montreal.

Police said death was first attributed to natural causes but they exhumed the body Friday when village gossip reached them.

An autopsy was performed Saturday and Lieut. Ubald Legault, head of the homicide squad, bluntly put it this way:

"Mrs. Dubuc died of strychnine poisoning."

The village gossip started, police said, because Dubuc made plans to marry the young girl only a short time after his 52-year-old wife was buried.

The Dubucs had been married 28 years and had no children.

Six Planes Carry Load

Men Of Arctic Weather Stations Get Annual Airlift Of Supplies, Equipment

OTTAWA (CP)—The men of the lonely, year-round weather stations in Canada's far-north arctic islands will soon have their annual spring visits by supply planes.

The airlift operation to the joint Canadian - United States weather stations is scheduled to start about Wednesday, the RCAF announced today.

Four RCAF planes and two U. S. Air Force C-54s will be used to carry the hundreds of tons of mail, food and equipment to the isolated stations which message weather reports several times a day to the south. The stations are manned by an equal number of Canadian and and American personnel.

The RCAF will fly from a northern base at Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island, about 150 miles northwest of Baffin Island. The planes — two North Stars from transport squadron at Dorval, Que., and two C-119s from 435 transport squadron at Edmonton—will take supplies to Mould Bay on Prince Patrick Island and Isachsen on Ellef Ringnes Island.

The U. S. planes will operate from Thule air base, on the northwest coast of Greenland, to fly supplies to stations at Alert and Eureka, both on Ellesmere Island, Canada's farthest-north possession.

At this time of the year there is enough daylight for flying operations and runways are still frozen hard enough to carry the weight of the aircraft.

During the brief summer period the bulk of supplies for the weather station is transported by sea in icebreakers, cargo ships and tankers.

Besides their regular reports on surface weather, the stations also report on upper air conditions. Basic meteorological data sent from the Arctic are used both for short - range weather predictions and for research in long - range forecasting.

2,000 Claims Said Staked

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Uranium City in Saskatchewan's far north offers a rough and tumble life, high wages and rising prices.

Joe Suchorab of Prince Albert, who spent four months working for a mining company near Uranium City says 2,000 claims have been reported staked in Beaverlodge, Athabasca and Uranium City districts and laborers from Saskatchewan and Alberta points are flocking in to make quick money.

He says if a miner watches his expenses, has fewer haircuts and drinks less beer, he can average from $175 to $275 a month clear each month.

Joe says he made out all right financially but it was a rough life. "People there are living and working very fast," he says. "Everything seems to be going against time."

Prices are extremely high with soft drinks costing 25 cents and movies $1. The population is about 2,500.

Joe says the town is growing quickly with plenty of construction ready to go ahead with the spring thaw. A new theatre is just about completed and another will be moved in from Goldfields. The town also boasts a modern bank.

Mail service and radio-telegraph communications are outstanding, Joe says. But there is a lack of recreational facilities and there isn't much to do after working hours. Nevertheless, Joe says he intends to go back.

This year these girls earned 62 badges, 45 chevrons and four stars for studies in missions, churchmanship, handicraft and physical fitness. Accompanying the girls were leader Mrs. W. C. Boate, Mrs. T. H. Floyd, Mrs. P. D. Windrim, Mrs. Frank Biddle and Mrs. A. Ball.

Miss Helen Fallis Bride Of Paul Elson

Wedding vows were exchanged between Helen Charlotte, daughter of Mrs. Fallis and the late Wilfred R. Fallis of Millrook and Paul Chalmers Elson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Elson, Fraserville, in St. Andrew's United Church Millbrook on Saturday. The Rev. A. M. Butler officiated.

Chancel of the church was banked with daffodils, tulips and ferns. Before the bride entered, Miss Edith Elson, sister of the groom, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register she sang "Through The Years." Miss Beverley Patton played the wedding music.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Melville Johnston. She was charming in a ballerina length gown of white net over satin made with tight fitting bodice and full gathered skirt. Over her gown she wore a redingote of white lace and net with Peter Pan collar and long sleeves. Her shoulder length veil of embroidered net fell from a coronet of stiffened lace and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Leona Ball, the bridesmaid, was in a lime green net over taffetting strapless gown, with tight fiting bodice, over which she wore a jacket of net with crepe sleeves. She wore a band of matching flowers in her hair and carried a rosegay of yellow roses.

Mr. James Elson, brother of the groom, was the groomsman, and the users were Allan Hutchison of Millbrook and Russell White of Ida.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother who received in a gown of navy orlon crepe, wearing a navy straw hat trimmed with white, and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother who also received, wore navy taffeta gown, navy hat and corsage of red roses, assisting in serving were Misses Betty North, Marily Palmer, Yvonne Richards, and Glenna Graham.

For the honeymoon trip to points east, the bride chose a navy gabardine suit with red hat and accessories, a corsage of red carnations and a white shortie top coat.

On return they will live on the groom's farm, RR 1, Fraserville.

Guests were at the wedding from Toronto, Smith Falls, Morrisburg, Dresden, Peterborough, Fraserville and Colborne as well as Millbrook.

Barrett-Mahoney Wedding

The marriage took place in St. Alphonsus' Roman Catholic Church Saturday of Frances Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon J. Mahoney, 768 Duffus St., to Kenneth Patrick Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Barrett of Peterborough.

The Rev. Robert MacDonald performed the ceremony.

The church was decorated in white lilies and baby 'mums. Mr. Herbert Michel played the music and Mrs. P. J. Conlin sang Mozart's "Ave Verum" and "Panis Angelicus".

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a bouffant gown of Chantilly lace with long sleeves coming to points over the hands and a skirt of embroidered layers of net over satin. Her veil was of tulle illusion and was cathedral length and caught in a tiara of pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses with ivy leaves.

Mrs. Agnes Wellshaw, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. Her gown was a strapless model of yellow lace with matching short sleeve jacket and the skirt in layers of net over satin. Miss Jacqueline Mahoney, sister of the bride wore a similar frock in pink. Both wore garlands of matching flowers on their heads and carried ring bouquets of yellow and pink roses.

Misses Barbara Ann Collins and Carol Whiteside as flower girls were dressed in mauve and green taffeta trimmed in white lace. They carried ring bouquets of mixed pastel flowers.

The groom was attended by John Mahoney, uncle of the bride. Ushers were John Harrington, cousin of the bride, and Robert Whiteside, the groom's brother-in-law.

The reception was held in the Empress Hotel Kawartha Room. The bride's mother received in a gown of beige crepe and wore beige accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of navy sheer with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses also.

For travelling the bride chose a suit in cocoa brown and forest green accessories. She wore a corsage of white 'mums. After a trip to the United States Mr. and Mrs. Barrett will live in Peterborough.

Mineral wool has been found by engineers to provide greatest insulation efficiency.

Spring Flowers Setting Of I.O.D.E. Tea

Purple and mauve were the predominating color themes for the Col. Agnes Neil Chapter, IODE, annual spring tea held in the green room of the YWCA Saturday afternoon.

The tearoom and bazaar was attractively decorated with bouquets of iris and narcissus. The tea table was covered with a beautiful linen, with lace inserts, cloth and was centred with a bouquet of iris and narcissus. Ivory tapers completed the table decorations.

The tea was convened by Mrs. G. Carruthers and the social conveners were Mrs. K. Wilson and Mrs. R. Beck.

During the afternoon, draws were made and Mrs. M. Thompson, Aylmer St., won the special prize and Mrs. H. Benson, Burnham St., won the flower draw.

The many guests were received by Mrs. William Durant, regent; Mrs. G. Ardern, vice-regent; and Miss Mary Medd, Municipal Chapter regent.

Mrs. E. Graham, Mrs. H. C. Benson, Mrs. W. Pogue and Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald poured tea.

The servers were Mrs. A. Lacey, Mrs. B. Roberts, Miss Nora Gabbutt, Miss Helen Boyer, Miss Doris Finnie, Mrs. L. Morrison, Mrs. K. Kidd, Mrs. W. Sawyer, Miss Joan Gardiner, Miss Zeta Jamieson, Mrs. G. Spicer, Mrs. N. J. Bennett, Mrs. D. Hough.

Plate replenishers were Miss Betty Pogue and Miss Helen Thompson and helping in the kitchen were Mrs. A. Gertley, Miss Corinne Coones, Mrs. S. Adamson, Mrs. P. Wellwood, Mrs. A. Marshall and Miss Joan McGee.

Pianists who provided the background music during the tea were Miss Eleanor Taylor, Mrs. H. C. Redmond and Mrs. William Messervey.

The bazaar conveners and helpers were: Home baking, Mrs. W. Cuppy, Mrs. H. Shaw, Mrs. L. Routley; plants, Mrs. W. Wright and Mrs. G. Robinson; candy, Mrs. D. Cutmore, Mrs. D. Tanney and Mrs. R. Huffman; talent, Miss Isobel Shearer and Miss Dorothy Franks; touch-and-take, Mrs. J. Stark.

Miss Muriel Adams was in charge of tickets and the special draw and Miss Hazel Wilson was in charge of the flower draw.

Down-Mouncey Nuptials Held At Roseneath

ROSENEATH (ENS).—A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Mouncey at Roseneath, Saturday at 3 p.m., when the Rev. J. R. Wheeler united in marriage Adelaine Leita, their youngest daughter, and Aubrey Emerett Down, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Down.

The house was tastefully decorated with white streamers, white bells and vases of spring flowers. An arch, under which the ceremony was performed, was of white streamers and pink roses.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Miss Grace Showden of Grafton, the bride entered in an ivory satin and Chantilly lace gown, fashioned on long lines with a bouffant skirt. She was carrying a bouquet of pink Delight roses. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a Queen Anne cap of satin and Chantilly lace.

Miss Doreen Nichol as bridesmaid, wore a gown of yellow net over satin and carried a cascade bouquet of mauve sweet peas. She wore yellow net mittens and a yellow floral headdress. Flower girl Jean Heaper, niece of the groom, was sweet in a green nylon dress with net and lace trim. She wore a white flower halo and carried a nosegay of yellow 'mums.

Mr. Clifford Down, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

The bride's mother, wearing a charcoal grey suit with white accessories and a corsage of pale pink carnations, received the guests. She was assisted by the groom's mother who wore beige printed nylon. Her corsage was of deep pink carnations.

During the signing of the register Mr. Ambrose Atkinson sang "I'll Walk Beside You."

A dainty buffet luncheon was served by Misses Pauline Down, Doris Robin, Betty McMillan and Barbara Sherwin, friends of the bride. Misses Marion Coyle and Elisa Burd poured tea.

The bridal couple left afterward on a trip to Detroit and other points. For travelling, the bride donned a grey ensemble with blue accessories. Her corsage was of blue iris.

They will live on the groom's farm, north of Roseneath, on return.

Wedding guests were from Midland, Foxboro, Wellington, Lakefield, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Cobourg, Hastings, Fenella and Roseneath.

St. John's GA Wins Challenge Cup 3 Receive Rings

The Girl's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church has won the Toronto Diocese Silver Challenge Cup of merit. The cup was presented Saturday at the annual Diocesan Girl's Auxiliary Festival of the Church of England at St. Barnabas' Church in Toronto.

Mrs. A. R. Beverley made the presentation to the leader, Mrs. W. C. Boate, and the GA president, Beth Conley. She commented on the outstanding accomplishments of this branch. The St. John's GA placed second for this high honor last year. This is the first time the challenge cup has ever been won by a Peterborough branch.

Representatives from nearly 50 churches in the Toronto Diocese attended the festival. Forty-one GA members from St. John's, St. Luke's and All Saints' Anglican Churches of Peterborough attended. At the roll call St. John's Peterborough had the second largest attendance with 30 members present. All but 5 members went to Toronto.

One of the highlights of the festival was the presentation of the Ring of Honor to GA members 16 years and over who are outstanding in the GA and church activities and who are recommended by the leader and the rector. In an impressive service the Right Rev. A. R. Beverley, Lord Bishop of Toronto, made the presentations and among the recipients were three girls from St. John's Peterborough: Josie Ann Hendren, Eleanor Biddle, both GA members for 5 years and Beth Conley a member for 3 years. The year's work of all branches was on display, including dorcas work, handicraft and missionary projects. Mrs. E. R. Bagley, Diocesan Girl's Secretary, was in charge of the festival. Members of the Senior Girls' Council, all Ring of Honour girls, presented a splendid short pageant.

Transportation of Peterborough girls to Toronto was arranged by Mrs. Boate and prior to the festival they enjoyed various tours in Toronto.

Jean Hills Is Lovely Bride In Billowing Taffeta Gown

Tall urns of white snapdragons, Easter lilies and pussy willows graced the altar of St. John's Anglican Church for the candlelight wedding service of Jean Hamilton Hills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hills, and Alexander Fleming, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Richard Fleming of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Venerable Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, rector, assisted by Dr. Joseph Wasson of Toronto.

The bridal party was preceded to the chancel by the boy's choir singing "Praise My Soul The King of Heaven" and while the register was signed the choir sang "Oh Perfect Love".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of feather white taffeta, fashioned with a moulded basque. Tiny buttons accented the bodice from the long torso, edged with a double beaded flange to the round beaded collar. The skirt flared in deep billowing folds to a back sweep, beyond which swept her long veil edged with heirloom Guipure lace. Her veil was held by a beaded taffeta coronet and she carried a white prayer book, topped with gardenias, white heather sent from Scotland and trailing ivy leaves.

Miss Judith Strickland, maid-of-honor, and Mrs. William Rankin of Toronto, Mrs. Zolton Temesy and Mrs. Hugh Graham, bridesmaids, were charming in dresses of seafoam bombaine. The low round necks of the fitted bodices were inset with heavy white Venise lace and the full skirts billowed out over crinolines. Their coronets were of Venise lace and they carried cascades of white sweet peas and buddlia.

Tiny Daphne and Lucinda Rogers were flower girls. The short skirts of their seafoam dresses were held out by daintily embroidered organdy petticoats. They wore headbands of pink sweet peas and carried pink nosegays.

Mr. Trevor E. Clarke was groomsman. The guests were ushered by Bruce L. Upper, William Aird of Stratford, William Rankin, S. E. Dinsdale, William Brydon and K. E. Howie, all of Toronto.

Following the service the many guests were received at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club by the bride's mother, who wore a gown of softly draped Wedgewood blue Chantilly lace and chiffon with a Wedgewood blue hat, and the bridegroom's mother, who was in shadow pink lace over taffeta with matching hat and corsage of sweetheart roses.

For travelling the bride chose a tailored taupe suit with a beaded collar, dark brown shirred purse and shoes and topcoat of blue and beige tweed. On their return from a motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Fleming will make their home at 580 Murray St.

DOROTHY DIX:

Playboy In Some Men Difficult To Squelch

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband claims to love me dearly; we've been completely happy in our twelve years of marriage, yet when we're out for an evening's entertainment he makes a fool of me. He fancies himself a Casanova, and is most attentive to every woman present—except his wife. We have three children and a very happy home life, except for this one failing of Roy's.

He claims he means nothing by his behavior, that he just loves a good time and wants to see everyone else have fun, too. He accuses me of being a jealous wife, so I have stopped nagging him about the problem. When our friends comment on his conduct, I laugh the whole thing off and say I'm glad he has a good time. Would it help if I behaved as he does some evening to see if he can take it?

MRS. E. J.

ANSWER: The playboy in some men simply cannot be squelched and, if it carries no sinister overtones, one wonders why it should be. Your letter makes no mention of romantic interests in your husband's life, you reiterate his devotion to his family several times, and apparently he has no failing as husband or father apart from his tendency to overdo the "life of the party" role.

If he contrasted his party mood with an inclination to sulk at home, or if his conduct definitely overstepped the bounds of good taste, there would be reason for taking, or at least attempting to take, drastic reform measures. Your husband, however, seems to be content with livening things generally, and perhaps his presence does add gaiety to a social occasion.

SMILE, OR NO SMILE

Trying to change his disposition might have the undesired effect of restraining him too much. Then you'd never see a smile or hear a joke from him. Don't you agree that a slight excess of exuberance is preferable to an overdose of gloom?

You, apparently, have trouble entering into the spirit of fun, and it would be a good idea if you'd try to overcome this difficulty. Try to create an atmosphere of comradeship yourself, even if it's only in a small way, and you won't feel so left out when your husband embarks on his evening career of making the party a success.

You're very wise to laugh off comments as you do, instead of making a big to-do over them; by minimizing your husband's exhibitionism to yourself and your friends, you'll overcome your own consciousness of it as a major fault.

As for his attentions to other women, which seem to be the chief bone of contention to you, they probably are nothing more than his desire to please and amuse, as he claims. If they are carried no further than the party, and if they remain within the bounds of decorum, accept them as I am sure they are meant—a contribution to the general party spirit.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'd like your honest opinion of my sister-in-law on my husband's side. When her brother was killed last year we did everything possible for her and her family. We stayed with them and helped with the children for a whole week. When her baby was born we went to her and helped out again. Then, when my mother passed away recently, all she did was telephone me. She didn't even bother to come to see us. A recent misfortune in my family gave her another chance to repay the debt, but she made no attempt to help us.

R. O.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your sister-in-law is undoubtedly an ungrateful person who is out to receive but not to give. You can't change her disposition; there's no use brooding over the situation, or even going in for endless discussions about it. So it would be best to consider the past a closed issue. Forget the favors you did, and expect nothing from her. There's no reason why you should help out again. Her thoughtlessness may be deliberate, or due to sheer ignorance. In any case, don't look for apologies or reciprocal kindness. Be friendly when you meet her, but don't go overboard to encourage future companionship.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Two months ago, Billy, who is 19, gave me his graduation ring, but never said anything about going steady. I am 16, and know he likes me, but don't know if I should go out with other boys or not.

CONNIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The bestowal of a graduation ring usually means that a boy expects a girl to go steady, but perhaps Billy has a different interpretation of the gesture. Better ask him before you create ill feeling by going with other boys. If you care enough for Billy you'll be willing to go steady, otherwise it would be very foolish to tie yourself down when your own feelings are uncertain. Why not return the ring until you are more sure of your affection?

Marabelle West Becomes Bride Of William Clare

STIRLING (ENS)—A beautiful wedding took place in St. Paul's United Church when Miss Marabelle West, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William West of Stirling was united in marriage to Mr. William Clare, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Clare of Oak Lake. Easter lilies and spring flowers formed a lovely setting. Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, ARCT, played the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Harold West who sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and during the signing of the register "Because."

The bride looked charming in a white nylon bridal gown over satin with finger tip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses, white hyacinth bells and satin streamers adorned with rose buds.

Mrs. David Duffin, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing mauve nylon net over taffeta. She carried a Colonial bouquet of roses, sweet peas and white hyacinth bells.

Mr. Allan Bertram of Toronto was groomsman and David Duffin and James Dowsett acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare left for Virginia, U.S.A. The bride travelled in a red suit with black and white accessories. On their return, they will reside in Stirling.

YWCA Camp Girls Hold Reunion

Nearly 100 campers, councillors, leaders and prospective campers from Peterborough, Cobourg, Port Hope and Millbrook met at the YWCA Saturday afternoon for the YWCA Camp Kawartha annual reunion.

The afternoon was spent in games, sing-songs, film showings, and swimming. Refreshments were served at the close of the activities.

The camp director, Mrs. John Campbell, was in charge of activities and she was assisted by the camp nurse, Mrs. Dion Snelgrove. Also assisting were the following councillors: Miss Barbara Ann Cowin, of Cobourg, Miss Jane McIntyre, Miss Jane Estlick, Miss Margaret Dobson, and Miss Libby Cutmore, all of Peterborough.

Camp Kawartha is situated on Clear Lake and was operated by the YWCA last summer for 10 days in August.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Herbs Add Zest To Meals Interest Ever-Increasing

There is an ever-increasing interest in herbs in cookery, and some of the readers of this column are reminding me of my neglect of them, with their knowledge of some of the lesser known but most exotic herbs.

Occasionally I mention bay leaves and basil and thyme and marjoram and oregano. This is because grocers are stocking these herbs, and because I like them.

They are not in the least expensive and you can open up entirely new fields of flavor in your cooking if you will put them to discriminating use.

I have been justly accused of being heavy-handed with onions and garlic in my cooking. Two families that I know intimately never use onions, but they do like garlic and chives. I have to be careful to shun onions when they visit us.

Until recent years a beef stew without onions in it was unknown in my kitchen and then I tasted Garny's Beef and Noodle supper, simply flavored with salt and pepper and bay leaves and found it delicious.

A recipe for a meat loaf that I gave you last week suggested using oregano.

Today I am going to give you the method I used for sauteing some fresh fillets of pickerel, and a few other herb ideas that are specialties of this house.

SAUTEED PICKEREL
(For Gourmets)

To do justice to this you should provide about three pickerel fillets for each person to be served for it is very popular. Dip the fillets in milk. Then while they are dripping wet dip them in flour to which you have added salt and pepper and 1 teaspoon crumbled marjoram (to each ½ cup flour). Have ready a frying pan with 2 or 3 tablespoons butter melted to a pale gold and carefully saute the fillets in it — adding any extra flour containing the marjoram to the sides of the pan after fish is turned. Transfer fillets to hot platter. Add another tablespoon fresh butter to pan and another teaspoon crumbled marjoram (or less) and 1 or 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Mix this and heat it, then drizzle it over the pickerel fillets and serve at once. Isn't it mouth-watering?

Of course, no one wants to overdo herbs all at one meal, so don't be tempted to serve the next dish with the fish above, for it will take away from its piquancy. (Isn't that a lovely word?)

SAVORY FRESH GREEN BEANS

Chop or shred 1 lb. fresh green string beans and boil or steam until barely tender. If boiled add only one cup water and save the liquid for the soup pot. Saute in 2 tablespoons butter or cooking oil or fresh bacon fat 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion and ½ clove of garlic chopped as finely as possible, until onion is limp and soaked with fat. Add 1 medium tomato or ½ cup thick canned tomato, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon each finely chopped green pepper, parsley and celery, and ¼ teaspoon crumbled or fresh chopped savory. Add pepper and salt to taste. Simmer this herb brew gently for 10 minutes, then pour it over the beans and simmer a few minutes longer. This is a delicious new way to serve the beans, and I think they make an ideal vegetable to serve with ham.

If you have a clump of chives in the garden you are probably bursting to snip off the little shoots and use them in your cooking. We like them mixed with the cottage cheese to accompany a tomato jelly salad; also liberally sprinkled over scrambled eggs, finely chopped of course; and added to the dinner salad with an equal amount of parsley, both chopped.

If you like this herb talk, let me know, and we'll go into the more exotic ones like chervil and rosemary and oregano. Even their names make them tempting, don't they?

WA Works on Quilt at Pot Luck Dinner

WARKWORTH (ENS). — The Women's Association of Codrington United Church held its fourth pot-luck dinner of the season on Wednesday in the church basement. During the afternoon a quilting was held.

Mrs. D. Woof presided over a short devotional and business meeting. The hymn "There is a green hill far away" was sung, with Mrs. John Goodfellow pianist, and the Rev. W. F. Fletcher led in prayer.

Mrs. J. Wright read the Easter story from the 24th chapter of St. Luke. The Good Cheer convener reported the thank-you notes received from those who had received cards from the association.

Mrs. Grant Goodfellow read a letted from Mrs. D. R. Clare, a former minister's wife, who had sent a donation. The Rev. W. F. Fletcher read a letter in regard to the organization of a WA Presbyterial.

The next meeting is to be held at the church, and a quilting is to be held. All members were requested to donate for the sale of plants, slips, bulbs, and shrubs.

IT MAY BE YOUR LIVER

Did You Ever See a Sheep's Hair Uncurl in the Rain?

Did you ever ride past a farm on a rainy day and see sheep huddled together? If you went up real close you'd see that in spite of wind and rain, the natural curls and waves of the sheep were not undone by the elements. Yes, the harder it rains, the curlier the sheep's wool becomes. And what happens to your hair in the rain? A slight drizzle and it looks like a dust mop. Now, science knows what makes the sheep luckier than humans. It's LANOLIN, the natural oil that most resembles the oil of your own hair, the life-giving oil that most of us have washed away or dried-up by too many artificial treatments.

NIL-O-NAL Dressed Hair Stays Dressed Even In the Wind and Rain

Now you can replace this vital natural oil with amazing NIL-O-NAL. It's the closest you can get to pure LANOLIN. All stickiness and odor has been refined away. NIL-O-NAL is clear and greaseless, is absorbed by the hair and scalp and helps keep hair handsomely dressed and neat—and softly radiant, too—even in wind and rain. Try it today! Only $1.79 for 2 oz. jar . . . $3 for 4 oz. jar.

6—In Memoriam

DAFOE—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Wellyn Dafoe, who passed away April 13th, 1952.
With tears we watched you sinking, Dad,
We watched you fade away,
We attended you with loving care,
And prayed for you to stay,
We watched beside your bedside,
As lonely hours passed,
But how our hearts were broken,
When we saw you breathe your last.
Calm and peaceful he is sleeping,
Sweetest rest that follows pain,
We who loved him sadly miss him,
But trust in God to meet again.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

EASTBROOK— In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. H. Eastbrook who died April 12, 1949.
The depth of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well,
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Sadly missed by her daughters Jean, Dorothy and families.

HOPKINS— In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Milton Hopkins, who passed away April 13, 1950, in his 31st year.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who though absent is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by wife and children.

7—Card of Thanks

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to the doctors and nurses who attended me, to all my friends who sent cards, flowers and fruit and to Rev. H. Scuse for his kindness during my recent stay in Civic Hospital.—Lynda Nichols.

Mere words are inadequate to express our gratitude to each and every one who has helped us through these days of sorrow with beautiful flowers, words of sympathy and deeds of infinite kindness. We can only say thank you so much. We specially thank the nurses of St. Joseph's Hopsital, our doctors, Rev. Boyd, Kaye funeral home and memers of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co.— The Barrick family.

Mr. C. E. Coleman desire to express his sincere thanks to all those who so very kindly sent flowers, fruit, etc.; also for the many cards of good wishes and so many acts of kindness beyond my expectations which helped towards a speedy recovery. I would like to express my greatest thanks to Canon Gilling, attending doctor and all the nurses who attended me for their many kindnesses also to my many friends for their lovely gifts of plants, flowers, cards, etc., sent to me during my recent stay in hospital and at home—Shirley Kilborn.

This almost new, five-room Bungalow offers a very complete home with its L.R. 20 x 12 large modern kitchen with D. area, 3 bedrooms and 4-piece bath, copper plumbing, laundry tubs, fruit cellar. It is financed under N. H. A. at 5%; monthly payments, including taxes, $62.05.

$3,000 DOWN
Here we offer the roomy 1½-storey Home which gives its owner a L.R. 18 x 12, modern and spacious kitchen, one large bedroom and 4-piece bath down. The two large bedrooms up have been bringing in $50.00 monthly rental (available to owner if they so desire). Fine high basement with laundry tubs. It's financed through N.H.A. at the low rate of 4½%. Monthly payment including taxes $60.00.

DO SEE THIS ONE
If you are looking for a fine tapestry brick bungalow with cement dr. and garage we suggest this select one. It offers five nice-sized rooms. The combination L. R. and D. R. is 27'. It is oil tinted throughout, storms, screens, venetian blinds, and oil heated. Reasonable terms arranged. Price $10,500.

WAS IT YOU?
Who has been seeking a small bungalow in a choice west-end district. Set on a well landscaped lot, this frame bungalow features a large L.R. with open fireplace, generous-sized kitchen with D. area, 2 bedrooms and bath. With oil heat, it makes an ideal home for an older couple, $8,900.

1½ STOREY NORTH WEST LOCATION
This unusual centre-hall home is set on a generous well-landscaped lot. Down you will find large L.R., modern kitchen bedroom and den plus 4 pc. bath. Up, two fine-sized bedrooms. Recreation-room in basement, laundry tubs, garage with sundeck; and that's not all, stair carpet and L.R. drapes included for only $13,000.

Youths Fined For Speeding But Not Racing

Though released on charges of racing, two Peterborough youths were nicked in Magistrate's Court today for fines of $20 and $2.50 on speeding charges. The accused were Dennis Williamson of 28 Aylmer and David Ferguson of 126 Lansdowne.

The charges were laid by PC William G. Scott who chased two cars on February 25 from the corner of George and Lansdowne a distance of 4½ miles out of Peterborough.

With his speedometer recording speeds between 40 and 45 miles per hour in the city and up to 88 on the highway, Constable Scott caught Williamson first two miles east of the city on Highway 7. He had to drive 75 to catch Williamson.

HIT 88

Recording the licence and continuing on, the police officer said his speedometer registered 88 before he finally caught up to Ferguson, estimating the accused's speed at "well over 80".

On the stand, however, Ferguson said he doubted his 1949 model car would reach 75 miles per hour, let alone 80. Ferguson said he hadn't known Williamson before the incident.

Satisfied there was insufficient evidence to warrant convictions on racing charges, Magistrate Philp found them guilty of speeding, levying a total of $45 in fines on the pair.

Canada Agrees To Wheat Quota

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has agreed to provide 250,000,000 bushels of wheat a year for the next new international wheat agreement, the Commons was told today.

The new quota is 15,000,000 bushels higher than Canada's 235,000,000-bushel quota under the current agreement. However, increased exports won't meet all demands of importing countries.

Trade Minister Howe, detailing terms of the proposed new pact, said that many of the current pact's 42 importing countries requested more supplies.

Australia one of the exporters, had to cut her exporting quota because of a series of short crops. Canada agreed to boost exports, but because of Australia's shortages, "It was impossible to meet all the requests for increases.

If all countries, including Britain, joined, a total of 600,000,000 bushels would be moved into export channels by all producers each year. This would be up from 581,000,000 this year.

Britain's import quota—if she finally decides to come into the pact—would be 177,000,000 bushels —unchanged from this year.

Millbrook Choir Presents Spanish Operetta

BETHANY (ENS).— The town hall was packed to capacity on Friday evening when the choir of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, presented their operetta, "The Belle of Barcelona" to a very appreciative audience. The cast of 30 members were directed by Mrs. G. A. Spicer, choir leader.

The scene is laid in the Plaza Del Ray in Barcelona, Spain, during the time of a spring festival of the Toreadors. The costumes were colorful and the stage setting of a plaza complete with grapevine- hung stone wall and a castle in the background.

Singing the title role as Senorita Margarita de Montero was Miss Betty North. Playing opposite her was Fraser Carr, tenor soloist, as a young Canadian naval officer, Lieut. Harold Wright, who has been sent to Spain as a customs inspector; falls in love with the Senorita and breaking down all the old Spanish traditions finally wins the consent of her parents to their marriage. Bruce Ingham plays the part of Louis de Montero, a wealthy plantation owner. Doris Ingham is his aristocratic wife. Velma Guthrie is their second daughter Mercedes. Francisco de la Vega, a scheming Spanish nobleman, suitor to Margartia is played by Ernest Powell. Pedro, plantation manager to the de Montero estate is Lawrence Winslow. Emilio, the favored toreador and suitor to Mercedes, is Gordon Might. Comedy roles are taken by Jean Winslow as a prim English governess; and Rev. M. Butler as a young Irishman. Captain Colton of the cruiser Montana is played by Donald Spicer. Luella Kellett and Frances Elson are Dona Marcela and Dona Anita, companions to the de Montero's daughters.

Special dances were solo numbers by Margaret Hobbs and Betty North and a group of eight girls: Frances Dawson, Margaret Guthrie, Dianne Hogoboam, Katherine Newell, Luella Kellett, Jessie Lunn, Leone Fallis, Francis Ellson, do dance routines and choruses as Spanish senoritas.

Others singing in the choruses were Jean Burnham, Edith Clarke, Mariel North, Eileen Powell, Colleen Bremmer, Doreen Todd, Yvonne Richards and M. McDowell.

Accompanists were Miss Mabel Clarry and Mrs. Spicer. Mrs. B. Ingham directed the speaking parts. Miss Ellen Kent was in charge of costumes. Donald Spicer was stage manager and Aubrey Fallis in charge of the stage lighting and curtain.

PRETZEL-PULLING PET—It's a battle to the finish, as Charles Seawood, Jr., of New Hyde Park, N.Y., and his pet cat, "Tawny," have a pretzel pull. Tawny has a passion for pretzels and Charles has to hide if he wants to eat a pretzel in peace.

Group Urges Law Protecting Test Tube Children's Rights

OSLO (AP) — A committee appointed by the Norwegian Parliament to work out a law, to regulate artificial insemination in human beings, wound up a three-year study today by proposing strict rules to protect the legal position of "test-tube children."

The committee—composed of a bishop, a doctor, a woman professor of psychology, a housewife and an under-secretary in the department of justice—concentrated its study around the problems of heterologous insemination in married women—cases where the donor is not the woman's husband.

The committee dismissed homologous insemination — where the husband himself is the donor—as no problem at all.

The ticklish problem of artificial insemination in unmarried women was deferred for "later study."

The full committee, including the bishop, held that artificial insemination, both heterologous and homologous, is fully legal under present laws, and opposed any law to prohibit the process.

But the panel split when it came to propose concrete legal regulations on the practice. A majority tabled detailed proposals for a law, while a minority faction of Bishop Johannes Smidt and Mrs. Siri Thoresen held that no law was necessary.

The majority proposed a law with the following main points:

1. Artificial insemination may only be carried out by a doctor-specialist, licensed by the department of health.
2. Both husband and wife must be more than 25 years of age.
3. An application for artificial insemination must be submitted in writing to the doctor, and the husband must give his unreserved consent.
4. A husband may demand divorce if his wife submits to artificial insemination without his knowledge.
5. Children born as a result of artificial insemination are to receive the same legal status as a normally-conceived child and there will be no legal ties with the anonymous donor.
6. The identity of the donor is to remain unknown to the couple concerned and vice versa. The doctor must ascertain that the donor is in no way related to the prospective mother.
7. It is left to the discretion of the doctor to determine whether the couple wanting a test-tube baby are mentally, physically and materially fit to have the child.

Miss O. McGill Is Given Shower

BETHANY — (ENS) — A miscellaneous shower was held on Thursday evening in the Orange hall for Miss Olive McGill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman McGill, whose marriage to Mr. Howard Perkins of London takes place on Saturday. Miss Marie Carr read the address of congratulations and good wishes and Mrs. Verne Mulligan assisted in opening and presenting the many lovely gifts.

A brief program included two songs by Mrs. T. Jennings, "Frankie and Johnny" and "Shine On Harvest Moon" with her own guitar accompaniment. Readings by Mrs. Ralph Preston "Advice to The Bride" and "Go Wash Your Face." Everyone joined in a song contest and Mrs. H. Rayson and Mrs. E. Lamb sang "Forever and Ever" and "The West a Nest and You Dear."

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing progressive euchre with prize for high score awarded to Mrs. Ina Palmer; consolation prize to Miss Verda Porter.

Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Easter Service Of Mission Band

COLDSPRINGS (ENS)—The Mission Band, under the leadership of Mrs. William Maughan, held an Easter worship service on Sunday afternoon. The president, Douglas Alderson, presided. There were 28 members and two visitors present. Assisting with the worship service were Roger May, Nadene Morrison, Kathryn Harper, Jean Bowman, Ewart Timlin and Margaret Lang. The leader, Mrs. Maughan, told the story of "The Awakening of Mr. Lonesome."

Play Featuring Three Canadians Folds In UK

LONDON (CP) — "Stalag 17" a Broadway stage success which came to London with three Canadians in the cast, has been withdrawn after only 11 performances.

The play, about life in a German prison camp, ran more than two years in New York. British critics, however, gave it a sour reception, though many praised the acting. It was withdrawn after Saturday's performance.

One of the leading roles was taken by 24-year-old Lee Patterson of Vancouver and Oshawa, Ont. Other Canadians in the cast were Vernon Gray of Elk Point, Alta., and Bill Nagy of Hamilton, Ont.

Mrs. Mary Sullivan

The funeral was held today for the late Mrs. Mary Sullivan from the Duffus funeral home to Immaculate Conception Church, where requiem mass was said at 9 a.m. by the Rev. J. Greenan.

Mrs. ullivan, who died in hospital here Friday, lived at 109 Sophia St.

Present in the sactuary of the church were the Rt. Rev. P. P. Butler, the Rev. Dr. C. O'Donoghue, and the Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan.

Pallbearers were Wilfred Kennedy, Vincent Sullivan, Alec Murdock, Edward Allen, John Vincent and Joseph Conway.

Interment was in St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro. The Rev. J. J. McCarthy said the graveside prayers.

F. G. Hutchinson

The funeral service for Frederick Bruce Hutchinson, 72, of 543 George St., who died Thursday following a short illness, was held Saturday at the Comstock funeral home.

Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, minister of St. John's Anglican Church, officiated at the service. The pallbearers were: Gordon Valley, William McGee, Lloyd Patterson, Frank Jobbitt, Wilbert Regan and E. E. Warne. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Shimmering With Pure Gold Ball Gown Makes '53 Debut

LONDON (CP)—A ball gown, shimmering in pure gold, makes its debut this year.

The gown is the result of a new process which prints gold on cloth. After years of research, a British firm of silk printers (Cresta Silks) has perfected a method of beating gold leaf on cloth so that the garment can be washed or dry cleaned without the gold being spoiled or tarnished.

The gown, makers claim, should have "great endurance," lasting in its existing form for several hundred years. Also available soon will be a ball dress, a sheath of pure gold in "as high a carat as the wearer's bracelets and rings."

At present, only a test length of material has been used, a pure silk charcoal-black organza beaten with gold leaf as slim as 1-250,000th of an inch. The smoky material, patterned in gold floral sprays, was styled by the Queen's designer, Norman Hartnell, into a wide-skirted ball gown with ruched, strapless bra and floating stole.

A pastel, pure-silk head square printed in Coronation pattern, the coach, crown and royal initials gleaming in beaten gold, now is on the market and several orders have been placed by firms in North America. Printers claim the gold can be handled in delicate lines, minute dots or large masses, giving the designer a wide scope ranging from arabesques to block designs.

County Tables Request For Arena Grant

BELLEVILLE—A request for a grant of $1,000 to assist in installing artificial ice in the Marmora arena was laid over until the next session by Hasting county council on Friday.

Fear of establishing a precedent was expressed by Reeve Bill Davis who pointed out that Marmora's was not the only rink in the county. His opinion was that council should await possible donations by other municipalities.

Reeve Rollins termed the application by the Marmora and District Artificial Ice Fund committee a "second round request," pointing out that the county had made a contribution at the time the arena was constructed four years ago.

GIVES SUPPORT

Reeve Irwin McCoy, of Marmora township, was a strong supporter of the request. He said the project would be on a "pay as you go" basis and if the plant could not be paid for in advance it would not go in.

Reeve Verney Heath urged that the request not be let out of hand. "After all, we should consider the taxpayers," he said.

Reeve Tryon, of Bancroft, thought the Marmora request reasonable. He said the contribution asked would be small compared with the results obtained. Reeves Hunt and Sprackett approved the grant, the latter claiming the money could not be spent to better advantage. This was the attitude of Walter Kincaid who complimented the Marmora people for the spirit shown in getting the project started.

Reeve Graham, of Tweed, referred to the fact that their arena had collapsed last winter and the people still did not have the spirit to get it rebuilt, but when they did he would be asking council for a grant. On that basis he approved the Marmora request.

GIVES GUARANTEE

Reeve Wells, of Marmora village, said that if the grant was approved and the ice plant was not installed he would guarantee return of the money.

Reeve Harry Morrow, of Sidney, felt grant requests were getting a bit too heavy, noting that one-fifth of county taxes were paid by his township.

Reeve Fred Mitchell felt the matter should be laid over and said he was disappointed that Marmora and Lake townships had not made a grant towards the project. Reeve Buskard, of Deloro, said these two townships would undoubtedly make a contribution. This was borne out by Reeve McCoy who said his municipality would undoubtedly be called on to make a grant "to clean up the tail end."

The amendment to hold the matter over was carried by a slim margin and the original motion was declared lost.

OBITUARIES

MRS. PERCIVAL WALTER FISK

Mrs. Percival Walter Fisk of 539 Gilmour St., died Sunday in city hospital, following a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Fisk was born and raised in Peterborough, the former Phyllis Goldie, daughter of the late Thomas Goldie and the former Margaret Lilley. She was a member of Trinity United Church, and belonged to the Missionary Society and the Women's Auxiliary and at one time was quite active in church work. She served for several years as president of both organizations.

Mrs. Fisk was married to late Aledman Walter Stocker who predeceased her in 1940. She is survived hy her husband, Percival Walter Fisk, two sisters, Mrs. O. B. Eaton (Grace) of Toronto and Mrs. J. A. Wolstenholme, (Eva) of Peterborough.

The funeral service will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Comstock funeral home. The Rev. G. S. Maxwell, minister of Trinity United Church will officate at the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. AGNES BUCHANAN

A resident of Peterborough for most of her life, Mrs. Agnes Buchanan of Edmonton died Saturday in Edmonton after a short illness. She was the widow of the late Malcolm Buchanan, one-time building contractor.

Mrs. Buchanan was the former Agnes Sullivan, daughter of the late Michael Sullivan and Anne Golden. She was born and educated in Peterborough and lived here until six years ago when she moved to Edmonton to live with her daughter Ruth.

She leaves three sons: Harry and Frank of Peterborough and Malcolm of Edmonton; four daughters: Mrs. J. H. Conroy (Ruth) of Edmonton, Mrs. J. L. Killoran (Irene) of Drummondville, Quebec; Mrs. Edward Wallwin (Helen) of Welland, and Mrs. W. J. Smoothy (Dorothy) of Peterborough; also a sister, Mrs. J. J. Duffus.

Her husband, the late Malcolm Buchanan, died 12 years ago.

Mrs. Buchanan was a member of St. Peter's parish, a member of the Catholic Women's League and the Altar Society.

The body will arrive in Peterborough on the noon train Wednesday and the funeral will be from the Anglesey funeral home for requiem mass at 9 a.m. Wednesday. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

Here And There In Sports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

OLD NHL GREATS BACK

TORONTO (CP)—Old-time professional players, the color guys and ice cuties of another era, puffed and huffed through 60 minutes of hockey Sunday, and it was one time when fans needed a program to tell them apart.

Forty-six players, many of whom were a byword in the National Hockey League years ago—guys now with thinning hair and bulging waistlines—clambered over the boards at Maple Leaf Gardens to bring back nostalgic memories to a few of the 5,600 crowd. They did it for charity and 75 per cent of the net proceeds, about $6,000, went towards cost of building an arena for youngsters of East Toronto.

The teams were called the Reds and the Whites and the line-up was studded with names that will live long in the game. The Whites, with such former greats as Nels (Old Poison) Stewart, Roy Worters, Dit Clapper, Flash Hollett, Butch Keeling, Herbie Cain, Holey Smith, Bill Cowley and Normie Smith defeated the Reds 6-4. The losers' roster had the Toronto Maple Leafs famous kid line of the early 30s of Joe Primeau, Charley Conacher and Harvey Jackson and John Ross Roach, Lionel Conacher, Cy Wentworth, Syl Apps, Jumping Jackie Forbes, Black Jack Stewart and Turk Broda.

Every NHL club was represented by players who in their way were the best in the business.

Cowley, the 41-year-old Boston Bruin centre of a few years ago was the smoothie with his nifty stickhandling and passing. The 52-year-old Lionel Conacher and Normie Smith played their hearts out and the whole crew were out of gas at the final whistle.

Cain and Hollett scored two each for the Whites and Hollett also assisted in the game's opening goal by Butch Keeling less than two minutes after the opening whistle. Joe Carveth, former Detroit Red Wing and a comparative youngster of 35 on the ice, also scored for the winners.

Charley Conacher, who kept his shots around ankle-high all day, scored two for the Reds. Apps and Rhys Thompson scored the other two.

SAINT JOHN CAGERS WIN

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Coach Dave Stothart led Saint John Atlantics to a 68-58 triumph over the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association Saturday night and Saint John took the two-game Canadian intermediate basketball semi-final series 130-112. The Atlantics, who won the opener 62-54, will play St. Francis Xavier University at Antigonish, N.S., in a final series starting Monday night.

MONTREAL CAGERS ADVANCE

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal YMHA juveniles came from behind Saturday night to down the Marcus Miners of Saint John, N.B., 57-53, and win the two-game, total-points series of the Eastern Canada basketball semi-finals 111-99. The YMHA now goes to Windsor to meet Shaar Hashomayin for the Dominion championship finals starting tonight.

Turks Join Anzacs

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Turkey, whose men fought the Anzacs at Gallipoli 38 years ago, will send soldiers from her Korean fighting force to join the Anzac parades April 25. April 25, 1915, Australian and New Zealand forces battled Turks at the battle of Gallipoli in the First World War.

Dangerous Drinking

VIENNA (Reuters)—It's getting so you can't offer a friend a drink in Czechoslovakia. The Czech newspaper Rude Pravo quotes an automobile accident case in Prague, where a man was jailed for giving the driver a drink beforehand, although he was nowhere near the scene of the accident.

Kenya Missionary Speaks To Large Group

MILLBROOK (ENS) — The Women's Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Anglican Church held a special thankoffering meeting to which members of the other missionary groups of the village and from Centreville, Bailieboro and Ida had been invited.

There was a good attendance with representatives from Grace, Millbrook and Centreville Presbyterian WMS groups, the WMS and Mission Circle of St. Andrew's United and St. John's, Ida, and Christ Church, Bailieboro, Anglican WA's.

Mrs. Charles Richmond, the rector's wife from Omemee, who with her husband served for a number of years as a missionary in Africa, was the special speaker.

She told of the climate of Kenya Colony where she served, where wheat, oranges, lemons, bananas and mangoes were grown, of the native tribes with whom they came in contact, and of work in a girls' residential school. Some girl students sought refuge in the school to escape being forced into marriages against their wills.

The natives pick up new languages readily but are passive about trying to better their conditions. They have a saying which means "Things are the way God wills it."

Although missionaries have had to withdraw because of trouble in Kenya, Mrs. Richmond felt there was a strong indigenous church there and that it would survive.

She spoke of the Dr. Laubach method of teaching the Bible where each one who learned to read promised to teach one other. People who learned to read were anxious to read everything that came into their hands. The Communists realized this and were anxious to keep them supplied. The church must combat this with its own literature, she said, and asked for continued prayer for African Christians.

The service was conducted by Mrs. Reginald Fallis, the president, who introduced the speaker, Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke moved a vote of thanks and was at the piano for hymns. The offering was received by Miss Muriel Smith and Mrs. Douglas Sheppard. Refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Ellen Kent.

Babe To Undergo Major Surgery

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Babe Didrikson Zaharias, who never was stopped by anything on the athletic field, met her match Saturday when physicians found she had a malignant condition, obviously cancer, and must undergo a major operation.

It may mean the end of the greatest athletic career of any woman—a career that spanned two decades and took her from teenage stardom in the Olympic Games to the pinnacle of golf and excellence in any sport she ever tried.

Mrs. Zaharias heard the fateful words when the results of tests by five physicians were announced—that she has a malignancy of the lower rectum and must undergo surgery. The operation is to be performed this week and the physicians said they thought it would correct the condition "but whether it will return is something else again."

5 Of Mission Band Present WMS Program

HASTINGS (ENS).—The Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church met at the home of Mrs. R. Runnels with an attendance of 20. President Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe presided and opened the meeting with hymn 97.

Five guest from the Misison Band were on the program. Robt. Jones, president of the Mission Band, read the scripture lesson of Easter. Breada Thompson and Elizabeth Runnels sang a duet with Elaine Hess as pianist. Thomas Fairman gave a reading "Mr. Lonesome."

"Seek Ye First" was the stewardship message by Mrs. Collins. The meditation was read by Mrs. Metcalfe.

Highlight of the meeting was the address by Mr. Rigby on the theme "We Must Be Faithful," using many quotations from "The Robe."

The closing prayer was given by Mrs. H. Oliver. Tea and a social hour followed.

To Hold Reception For New Minister

HASTINGS (ENS).—Mrs. Wellington Chryster was hostess to the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church with 15 present, the theme being "The Easter Massage."

The president, Mrs. Max Humphries, offered the Easter prayer. Hymn 209 was sung and the scripture was read by Mrs. J. C. Taylor followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Easter messages were read by Mrs. G. Wellman, Mrs. H. Fife, Mrs. S. Fife, Mrs. J. McMillan, Mrs. G. Dickey, Mrs. C. Dodd, Miss L. Humphries, Mrs. J. Stevenson. Mrs. W. E. Wilson read "The Faithful Few."

A reception will be held to honor the new minister, the Rev. T. Kennedy, and Mrs. Kennedy on April 22. Plans were made to hold a coronation tea at the manse, May 21.

Mrs. S. Fife expressed the regret of the Ladies' Aid at losing Mrs. Wilson who was presented with a small remembrance. Mrs. Wilson is leaving the village to reside in Toronto.

The Mizpah benediction was pronounced and the hostess, assisted by the committee in charge, served refreshments. Mrs. C. Dodd moved a vote of thanks to the hostess.

Lots Of Women

FRANKFURT (Reuters) — West Germany, with a population of 48,500,000, has 3,000,000 surplus women, statistics show. Of these, nearly two-thirds are between 28 and 53. Figures also showed that 10,700,000 men and 11,100,000 women are registered as being married. The difference of about 400,000 more married women is explained by the fact that their husbands are still missing as a result of the war.

Reds Seek China Oil

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Russia and China are sending more than 12 geological teams into Sinkiang province to investigate oil deposits, the New China News Agency said Sunday. Prospectors last year proved rich deposits in areas of Sinkiang, the agency said.

Parleys Open On Federation Of West Indies

LONDON (Reuters)—Conferences on federating Britain's scattered island colonies in the West Indies open here today.

The purpose is to weld isolated and relatively underdeveloped territories in a strong British Commonwealth unit that can stand up to the political and economic strain of the modern world.

The project will be debated with Britain by the elected representatives of the 3,000,000 persons of varied races in Trinidad, Barbados, Jamaica and the Windward and Leeward Islands

There is no question, however, of the British government imposing federation on the islands of the Caribbean.

The view of a regional conference three years ago, that only federation affords a reasonable prospect of achieving economic stability and is "the shortest path towards real political independence," has been accepted in principle by the governments to be represented at the conference.

Federation would enable the West Indies to speak with one voice in Commonwealth and world affairs. It also would provide a new sense of unity among the complex plurality of races.

The main difficulties in the way of federation are the long distances between the islands—Trinidad is 1,000 miles from Jamaica—poor sea communications and inter-island rivalries.

Cars Collide Broadside 1 Hurt

LINDSAY (ENS)—Damage of $700 was sustained by two passenger cars, and one driver suffered minor facial cuts in a broadside collision at the intersection of Kent St. West and Albert St., Saturday night.

According to the investigating officer of the Lindsay police, Constable W. M. Mosley, a car driven by Wilbur Heslop of Lindsay was proceeding north on Albert St., crossing Kent Street, when it was struck broadside by another vehicle, being driven west on Kent St. by Roy Jordan, 19, of Cambray.

The collision took place just north of the centre of the intersection and the Heslop car came to rest on the northwest corner against a hydro pole and a tree, after clipping off a guy wire. It was facing south-west.

The Jordan vehicle after the collision, travelled further west on Kent Street, turned completely around and mounted the curb. Damage to the Jordan car, an old model, is about $300. According to police it is not worth repairing. The Heslop vehicle was damaged to the extent of about $400. Dr. J. C. Arnold treated Mr. Heslop's cuts.

Sued For Presents

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican movie star Marie Felix has been sued for payment for presents she bought her husband, Jorge Negrette, last Christmas. The gifts, 28 Italian ties, four sweaters, four scarves and an English robe, were valued at 4,630 pesos ($530). The store ordered her to stay in Mexico pending the outcome of the suit.

Expert Predicts Extremes For Next 100 Years

NEW YORK (NEA)—Weather forecase for next 100 years: whew and brrrr.

The man who makes this daring prediction is Arnold Court, graduate meteorologist at the University of California. Using a mathematical formula, he has predicted the probable highest and lowest temperatures for 100 spots in the U.S. in the next century.

Sometime between now and 2053, the mercury in Death Valley, Calif., will bubble up to a tepid 130 degrees. And the coldest we'll see, if Court's computations are correct, is a brisk 64 below, which is expectable in northern Montana. The Montanans can hardly wait.

Court sets forth his conclusions in an article in the American Geographical Society's Geographical Review. It has all the fascination of a horror story.

Pick your location and hear the worst. New England? A high of 107 (in Massachusetts) and a low of 38 below (in Vermont) will be recorded in the coming 100 years. The South? Up to 114 (in Arkansas) and down to 22 below (in Tennessee) make this coming century charming.

WORST IN MID-WEST

There is no escape. The plains states are probably the worst off, with Court anticipating a high of 116 along a belt extending from Montana through the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas and on to the Oklahoma-Texas border, with a chilly 60 below in Montana and North Dakota.

In the battle between Southern California and Southern Florida, there's not much to choose. Los Angeles will get warmer (112 to Miami's 99), but Miami will be a touch colder (21 to LA's 23). As a matter of fact—or prediction — Northern California looks like a better bet than Southern California. San Francisco's expectable extremes are 108 and 28.

Court bases his figures on a complicated bit of business called the statistical theory of extreme values, which is the work of a mathematician named E. J. Gumbel. This includes such phrases as "the extreme of a sample from a distribution of the exponential type," so let's not get involved with it.

BASED ON PAST

Boiled down, it sets forth that by considering the extremes of any past set of figures (like weather), you can predict future extremes. Court takes the 30-year period from 1901 to 1930 and applies the theory to predict the coming 100.

He carefully points out, however, that the computation is purely mathematical and cannot take into consideration the climatic changes taking place. Such changes are so gradual, however, that they would only add a degree or so here and trere.

Court's calculations produce some surprising results. New Yorkers, who swarm upstate to escape the city's summer heat, will be running away from a 107-degree high to an area of 109-degree extremes. And San Francisco's low of 28 is the highest low (if you are still following) in the nation.

The lowest highs are recorded along the northern Pacific Coast, from about Eureka, Calif., on up through Oregon and Washington. It won't get higher than 90 there, which is strictly small-scale sweltering compared to the 109, for example, predicted for the theoretically cool upper Michigan peninsula.

So you'd better stock up on both bathing suits and ear muffs. It looks like a long, cold, hot, century.

Niagara Victorious At Queen's Tourney

Queen's University ended its eighth annual high school basketball tourney with Niagara Falls again the "A" winners, while Albert College won the "B" division, and Perth the "C" division.

Play was close enough in the finals, but no upsets occurred. Niagara was much too strong over KCVI in the final to win 71-31. Albert College downed Brockville 57-42. Perth trimmed Port Perry 42-30.

Introduced by tourney dirrector Al Lenard, the players of the winning teams received engraved belts. Alex Edmison said he hoped some of the 250 athletes would play for Queen's in the future. Most valuable player awards went to Niagara's Howie Triano, Jim Faulkner of Albert College, and Stu Steward of Perth.

Ask Halt To Arms

LONDON (Reuters)—A conference of British Jewry called on Britain today to stop supplying jet planes and heavy armaments to the Arab states. The resolution was approved by some 900 delegates attending the 52nd annual conference of the Zionist Federation of Great Britain and Ireland.

Lindsay Erased In Playoffs By Collingwood

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay Muskies came to the end of the OHA intermediate "A" playoff trail, and the Collingwood Shipbuilders advanced to the finals for the third year in a row, as the result of a 5-3 win for the visiting Shipbuilders here Saturday night. Collingwood won the series 4-1.

Eddie Bush took almost complete command of the final game of the series, scoring two goals and leading his team on defence. The burly coach kept his men hustling throughout and made them good enough to run up a 5-1 count early in the third period, and then weather a final Lindsay attack that netted them two goals. The Muskies battled the visitors on even terms for the first and third periods of the game, but a bad second period, in which they were outscored 3-1, led to their downfall.

Over the whole game Muskies outshot the shipbuilders 4-1 and most of their chances were much more dangerous than those of the visitors, but they lacked the finish to turn their chances into goals After a tight, scoreless first, in which Truax, young replacement netminder of the Muskies, was the standout, the visitors went ahead 3-1 in the second on goals by Keith, C. Fryer and Bush. Coombs scored the Muskies' goal in the final minute of the period.

LENGTHEN LEAD

In the final frame, Collingwood added to their lead on goals by Bush and R. Fryer, but the Muskies came back strong in the final half of the frame, Lewis scoring first, and Corley adding the third.

Referees Crombie and Walsh ruled with authority, handing out 12 minor sentences, nine to the visitors. Cochrane, Keith, Walmsley and Sandell were best for the visitors, with Bush, C. Fryer and Wheeler leading the defence in front of Westbrook, who played a strong game in goal.

For the Muskies, out for another year, Sixty Coombs was most effective with Stew Hicks, Bob Lewis and Ken Kelly close behind. Burns and Green were best at the blue line. Goalie Truax was outlucked by defensive lapses on three of the goals that beat him.

it's IMPORTED ...So what?

Side by side on the merchants' shelves—Canadian materials and "imported" goods. Do you get any advantage when you go for "imported" products?

In textiles, at least, the answer is simple. Canadian mills turn out fabrics and yarns that match or better the production of any other textile country of the world in quality.

They are made by Canadians who are paid good Canadian wages; they are designed to please Canadian tastes, meet Canadian needs.

This is no plea to shun "imported" materials. They should be considered along with domestic products by every Canadian consumer, but on a strict what-do-I-get-for-my-dollar basis.

Ask for Canadian textiles if you want the best for your money.

Ford Profit Up 28c A Share To $15,342,920

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., had net profit in 1952 of $15,342,920, or $9.25 a share, compared with $14,885,848, or $8.97 a share, in 1951.

Other 1952 figures with 1951 in brackets, as given in the annual report, include:

Income from sales $267,683,969 ($253,008,356); costs of goods sold, including selling, general and administrative costs $245,062,688 ($231,232,477).

Operating profit, after all charges but before income tax, $22,621,281 ($21,775,879); other income $5,264,639 ($5,137,969), including dividends (less tax withheld at source) received from overseas subsidiary companies, $4,615,161 ($4,415,934).

Total profit before income taxes $27,885,920 ($26,913,848); provision for income tax $12,543,000 ($12,028,000).

Out of net profit, $4,976,880 was paid in dividends compared with $5,806,360, and the remainder was retained in the business.

Total wages and salaries were $52,376,067 compared with $45,382,973, and average employment for the year was 13,835, compared with 13,591.

Current assets at year-end were $89,707,743 compared with $89,382,843 and current liabilities were $40,248,886 compared with $26,906,707, indicating working capital of $49,458,857 against $62,261,760, and reflecting "the increase in sales and excise taxes payable and in accounts payable, arising from the substantially greater volume of business in December, 1952, as compared with December, 1951."

Vehicle production set a peak of 132,190 units, an increase of 13,334 units. The Canadian markets accounted for 85.1 per cent of total sales volume, compared with 83.1. Value of shipments to overseas markets declined by 6.7 per cent to $39,826,617.

The company's land, buildings, machinery and equipment, including plant under construction, were carried at 184,710,367 at year-end, an increase of $29,912,460 during the year. Depreciation reserves on these assets were increased by $2,091,821 to a total of $43,128,471.

The company's expansion program, inaugurated in 1950 is expected to be completed in 1954. When assembly operations are transferred to Oakville, Ont., the present Windsor assembly plant "will be converted into a modern engine plant." The foundry and machine shop will also undergo "important changes" as part of the current expansion and modernization program, "the total costs of which are estimated at $66,740,000."

THE NEW AND THE OLD—Dag Hammarskjoeld, right, new UN Secretary-General, is greeted by his predecessor, Trygve Lie, upon his arrival at New York's Idlewild Airport. The 48-year-old Swedish diplomat told newsmen, "We all share the hope that we are entering a period of less tension."

Australia Drastically Cutting Intake Of New Settlers

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Underpopulated Australia on the fringe of teeming Asia is drastically cutting its intake of new settlers from overseas this year.

The flow of immigrants, badly needed for the development and defence of this sprawling country, had to be checked last year when its export income was reduced by 30 per cent mainly as a result of a 50 per cent drop in the price of wool.

The threat of serious unemployize, the export trade is bouyant again and the Australian government is facing up once more to its immigration problems. Nearly 750,000 persons have settled in Australia since the end of the Second World War, helping to build the population up to near the 9,000,000 mark.

Immigrants have been coming into the country at the rate of 150,000 a year, during the last four years, until the program was curtailed. This year, the target is only 80,000.

An influential section of the federal cabinet would like to see an annual intake of 250,000 new settlers after the present period of readjustment has passed.

Expert estimates on the population which Australia could absorb range from 20,000,000 to 50,000,000. But to make any substantial increase it would be necessary, they say, considerably to expand the country's export industries.

At the same time, there would need to be substantial and continuing amounts of overseas capital available for development.

Economists, on the other hand, point to Australia's high cost structure as a check to expansion in many fields of production. In the past, Australia has always tended to swallow its immigrants in gulps.

Thirty-two nationalities are represented in Australia's post-war immigrants. They have brought with them language difficulties and added considerably to the country's already acute housing shortage.

Yet Australia took more war-weary and displaced people seeking citizenship than any other country except the United States.

However, care was taken to make sure that about 50 per cent of the new settlers were British. The bulk of the remainder were Italian, Dutch and Polish.

Some of Australia's new settlers have gone back to their home countries disgruntled and there has been some dissatisfaction among immigrants, particularly where housing was concerned.

But to overcome the reluctance of certain elements in the Australian community to accept the newcomers, a concerted "good neighbor" drive was conducted throughout the country. And today there is ample evidence that the assimilation drive has been successful.

Few Australians are hostile any longer when they hear immigrants talking in public places in their native language.

Trade union and employer organizations have joined forces in helping skilled workers among the immigrants into jobs at the full rate of pay and insure that they have also the other rights enjoyed by Australian workers. Nevertheless, immigrants who have sought to buy farms have had little success.

Officials say that professional people among the new Australians have met with both frustration and unfriendliness.

Medical, dental and veterinary boards, lawyees' institutes and similar groupings of Australian university - trained people in the various states have refused to grant professional status to new Australians.

One fifth of the workers engaged in the production of steel in Australia are skilled workers from Europe.

Last year, Australia spent over $168,000,000 on steel from overseas. This year, she will be exporting steel products.

Since December 1945, there has been an increase of more than 500,000 in the Australian work force.

Bulls Too Small Horns Filed, Say Aficionados

By HENRY BUCKLEY

MADRID (Reuters)—The bullfight as a national institution is passing through an acute crisis in Spain. Fans complain the bulls are too small and their horns are filed down.

Consequently, the government has ordered that fighting bulls must be four years old and weigh at least 1,034 pounds. In addition, the tops of the bulls' horns must not be removed to make them less dangerous.

As a result, Spain's some 200 matadors feel bitterly that "Death in the Afternoon" may pass from being merely the title of Ernest Hemingway's study of bullfighting to a reality.

For the last 10 years, expert bull fight fans (aficionados) have been complaining about bulls being each year smaller and thinner and weaker.

"Bullfighting," they said, "is going to the dogs."

The real trouble is that since the "good old days" before the Spanish Civil war began in 1936, the style of bullfighting has changed.

As the outstanding British authority on bullfighting, John Marks has written: "The modern bullfighter is a melodramatic dummy, with an unearthly knack of thrilling the audience because contemporary audiences as a whole are utterly uninterested in the bull and unappreciative of the skill which is needed to play each brutish partner according to its nature."

Fans have paid 1,000 pesetas ($28) for a seat to see El Litri kneeling on the ground with his back to the bull or tweaking its nose, or steering it past his body at full speed with literally only a fraction of an inch between bull and man.

Now, all these tricks which have kept the crowds howling with emotion during the last 10 years, must become things of the past. They cannot be done with well-fed, half-ton bulls bursting with vitality, and with their sharply-pointed horns intact as ordered by the new rules.

Bullfighting stands at a crossroads. Will it go back to the classic, pre-1936 days? Will some bright youngster think up some new tricks against stalwart bulls? Or will the crowds stay away and leave the rings to the purists who want to put the clock back?

Meanwhile, some of the wealthier matadors are leaving the ring.

Twenty-three-year-old El Litri, said to have made more than 20,000,000 pesetas (about $560,000), said quit last fall.

Luis Miguel Dominguin, 26, believed to have earned 10,000,000 pesetas more than Litri, has just followed suit. "I have been fighting since I was 14, and I am unutterably tired of it all," he said. "I think I shall go to Paris and perhaps study a little. I must catch up on my schooling."

First Red Purge Under Way In New Russian Regime

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK (NEA).— The frist purge of the Malenkov government is under way in Russia.

It seems so far to be directed at followers and policies of the late Joseph Stalin.

Latest Stalinist to be reported to have "disappeared" is Alexander N. Poskrebyshev, who was the dictator's personal secretary.

And now comes information that Poskrebyshev has not been seen publicly since Stalin died. He was the only man Stalin trusted completely. He handled Stalin's secret file of compromising data on Soviet prominents.

He worked closely with Molotov and Nikolai Yehovz in planning the great purges of 1935-1938. At the Congress of the Russian Communist Party last October he was re-elected to the party central committee.

Jacques Pollack, once a high official in the Soviet hierarchy, told me that every detail of Yezhov's purge in the '30's was planned by Stalin personally. After the purge established Stalin firmly, Yezhov was accused of exceeding his authority and shot.

The man who purged Yezhov was Beria.

It seems likely that he has been purged, like Semyon D. Ignatiev, the goat in the fantastic "plot of the doctors." Ignatiev, a faithful follower of Stalin, chief of the Ministry of State Security, is charged with concocting false charges against Jewish doctors to inflame "nationalist hostilities."

I write immediately following the death of Stalin that we must look to the first purge to give us a clue to the direction Russia would take. Doubtless these are not the last victims of the initial "cleansing" but already certain policy lines are appearing.

1—The followers and policy of Stalin are being treated by the new rulers of Russia with something less than reverence. In fact, there appears almost a pattern to cut Stalin's Father Image down to mortal size.

2—Lavrenti Beria, chief of the secret police, is emerging as a strong man—perhaps the strongest man—in the new setup.

Beria's rise is all the more astonishing when it is realized that he was on the decline when Stalin died. Some close students of Soviet history are already saying that Stalin died just in time to save Beria's skin.

Beria had been marked originally as the goat in the doctors' plot. His police were castigated by Stalin's press for failing to apprehend the doctors who were allegedly plotting to kill Soviet leaders.

Recent events even put a question mark on Stalin's death for some observers. Did Stalin die a natural death, or did Beria have a hand in his sudden passing?

Fantastic? Not if you know the history of Red Russia. The late Leon Trotsky once charged that Stalin, in his ruthless climb to power, actually poisoned the ailing Lenin. Trotsky was assassinated in Mexico at Stalin's behest.

Beria seems to have put the finger on Ignatiev, who had acquired enormous power in Russia under the guidance of Stalin. Ignatiev was chief of the MGB, Ministry of State Security, which was closely connected with the Red Army. Officially he was Beria's subordinate but actually, with the help of the army and Vyacheslav M. Molotov, he had begun to challenge Beria's power.

Bonus Hog Has Extra Ribs Yields More Pork Chops

PULLMAN, Wash. (NEA) — Now science has come up with a hog with extra pork chops.

A hog with nearly two extra ribs has been developed by Washington State College researchers. Besides more pork chops, it means longer bacon, less fat.

So far this "bonus" hog has only a number—No. 61. Dr. R. E. Christian of the college's animal husbandry department says the paper work now is under way to get No. 61 registered. Meanwhile, No. 61 is causing considerable excitement among hog raisers.

"Nobody wants fat meat," Dr. Christian points out. "Even the market for lard is being gobbled up by vegetable oils. So why raise fat hogs? Our new hog will dress out only 19.88 pounds of fat as compared with 25.18 pounds for the conventional breed."

The average pig has about 15 pair of ribs. No. 61s will average 1.2 extra pair. Furthermore, this new breed is 1.91 inches longer; has one-third less back fat and will produce about four per cent more cuts of hams, loins, picnics and bacon.

The breeding of hogs for lean meat isn't exactly new. The U.S. Department of Agriculture first imported the Danish Landrace strain in 1934 and from the strain have come six lean-type hogs, but none with the extra size. The college here got three boars from the U.S.D.A. in 1945 and started its project with 18 Chester White hogs.

In the successive breedings, only the most desirable was chosen. After 240 litters, No. 61 was obtained, which is similar to other cross breeds except that it is white and has extra ribs.

Dr. Christian says only time will tell how exceptional his new breed is. He estimates there are between "25 and 30 co-operators in the Northwest who must have 200 sows bearing the No. 61."

"We wanted to test them under actual farm conditions," he said. "It won't be too long before we have some of the animals for general distribution."

Africa's General Election Shaping Up As 'Boer War'

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — South Africa's general election for the House of Assembly on April 15 is shaping as a "Boer war" battle between Afrikaners and English - speaking South Africans for control of the country.

Beneath the surface of all issues runs a strong current of the old rivalry between the two white communities who have never really merged since the early settler days.

Broadly, Premier Daniel Malan's Nationalist party draws its support from Boer descendants and the Afrikaans - speaking half of the country, while most English-speaking South Africans want government by the United party, headed by Jacobus Strauss.

Intermarriage, political, economic and social circumstances, party loyalties and patriotic motives have blurred the differences between the two European stocks but even so ong antipathy remains.

Their differences are over South Africa's ties to Britain and the rival rights of English and the Afrikaans (Dutch-based) language.

Many Afrikaners, slow to forget their defeat by the British in the Boer war, are irked by continuing subservience to the crown. To some, anything English is still anathema.

MORE 'AFRIKANER'

English - speaking peoples fear that if the nationalists are returned to power for another five years, they will seek to turn South Africa more and more "Afrikaner" and further from Britain, toward the old dream of an Afrikaner republic.

Many leading Nationalists want to make South Africa a republic, either inside or outside the British Commonwealth and some definite move towards it is expected if they win the election. The United party opposes changing South Africa's present status as a dominion within the Commonwealth.

Malan has assurances about remaining in the Commonwealth but he may retire in favor of one of his more extreme followers.

Under the Nationalist regime, the demand for the Afrikaans language has been pursued and pressed.

English and Afrikans are the joint official languages of the Union of South Africa, protected by the constitution. Serious efforts have been made to bridge the difference between the two peoples by bi-lingualism, but the English are inclined to regard Afrikaans as unnecessary.

Many government posts now require bi-lingual ability, all government notices are in both languages and an increasing number of publications once accpeted in English alone now must give translations in Afrikaan. More Afrikaners qualify for bi-lingual jobs than English, so the civil service is becoming steadily more Afrikaner.

Newspapers in the Afrikaans language support the Nationalist party. The United party is backed by the English-speaking press.

Lakefield Boat Factory Razed By $150,000 Fire

LAKEFIELD (Staff)—Fire broke out in the sanding room of Lakefield Boats Ltd. at 12.15 a.m. today and within an hour the modern factory was destroyed in a loss estimated at $150,000. At the peak of the blaze it was feared that a nearby storage warehouse would also go up in flames along with its contents of 500 cedar-strip boats valued at $200,000. A dozen or so houses on all four sides of the boat company property were also threatened. Cause of the fire is not known.

Three or four houses had shingles burned off their roofs in minor fires started by showers of sparks from the burning factory. Two men were slightly injured.

Paul Richer, one of the three owners of the boat business, had his face burned while he desperately tried to snuff out the blaze in its first stages with fire extinguishers. Thick smoke and the intense heat of the rapidly-spreading flames drove him out of the building. After brief medical treatment he returned to the scene and helped direct fire-fighting operations.

Oscar Schlienger, Lakefield artist, had a nail driven through the upper part of his left hand while he was helping remove kegs of nails from the storeroom.

HOUSES IN DANGER

Fire Chief Allan Clark of the Lakefield volunteer brigade said that if the old rink, in which the 500 finished cedar boats were stored had caught fire, the houses would have been destroyed as well.

A pumper truck was despatched from Peterborough with an officer and five men. It arrived shortly after 1.30 a.m. and helped the Lakefield brigade of two pumpers and 25 volunteers quell the flames which were already sprouting from two dozen places on the roof of the old rink.

"Frankly I expected the old rink would go," said Chief Clark, "and if it had the houses nearby would have gone too. As it was a couple of the houses had roof fires where the shingles caught.

"I think the men did a good job. It was the biggest fire the brigade has had to fight and they came through. I'm proud of them."

Pessimistic over the chances of the firemen to cope with the spectacular blaze a number of residents in nearby houses removed their valuables and sent their children to sleep with friends and neighbors some distance away from the fire. Residents within a radius of two blocks from the burning factory kept on the alert until after 3 a.m. in case flying sparks should start roof fires.

SMELLED SMOKE

First inkling of fire came at 12.15 when Cecil Darling, caretaker at Lakefield Boats Ltd., smelled smoke in the vicinity of the sanding room at the front of the building which faces Queen St. He immediately went up to the second storey and roused Paul Richer who sleeps in a room over the office.

"It wasn't much at the time," said Mr. Richer as he tenderly felt his singed face. "It seemed to be under the floor of the sanding room. I used five extinguishers and I think I could have had it out but the thick smoke and the heat drove me out."

He dismissed his personal injury as of no importance and said that he was glad for the sake of the village that the old arena with the

Report Victim Of Snake Bite Now Improving

MONTREAL (CP) — A 23-year-old victim of a bite by a deadly water snake early today was reported improving steadily after hourly injections of snake-bite serum, but doctors would not commit themselves by stating he is out of danger.

Armand Couillard, a Montreal carnival worker, bitten Sunday by a water moccasin, was given a good chance to survive after responding quickly to the serum, obtained from a Hamilton, Ont., fisherman.

His chances of recovering from the bite on the back of his left hand were slim before Robert Lang heard of Couillard's plight and offered the serum, which he had purchased for possible use on fishing trips.

When Couillard was rushed to Montreal's St. Luke hospital, his arm swelling many times its normal size, he was treated with anti-rabies serum, the closest thing on hand to the true antidote, and given blood transfusions.

COULDN'T GET SERUM

Doctors frantically called Rockefeller Institute, New York, but were told there was no snake-bite serum in the northern United States, but that it could be obtained in Florida. Doctors said it was too late to bring the serum from Florida. Then came Lang to the rescue.

Lang told radio station CHML of Hamilton that he had the necessary antidote and the station arranged to have it flown to Montreal early Monday. Couillard responded soon after the first injection.

An additional supply of the serum was obtained from a firm in Walkerville, Ont., the only place in Canada to make it.

Couillard was bitten as he lifted the water moccasin's watering trough from a glass case at the Montreal Show Mart, where an exhibition was being held. He said he failed to notice the snake.

Leonce Boulanger, manager of the show, charged Couillard was bitten while "showing off" by holding the snake by the middle

Pleads Guilty On Spy Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kurt L. Ponger, Austrian-born former American soldier, pleaded guilty today to conspiring to spy on U. S. defence secrets for Communist Russia.

Ponger, 39, entered his plea 24 hours after Otto Verber, his co-defendant and brother-in-law, pleaded guilty to the spy conspiracy.

Ponger pleaded guilty to a charge which government lawyers said carried a possible death penalty. But the prosecutors, in effect, waived any possibility of the extreme penalty for Ponger.

As a result, Ponger faces a maximum sentence of 20 years, twice the time Verber could receive.

Verber and Ponger are former residents of New York. They were living in Austria at the time of their arrest last January. They were flown here for trial.

Ponger pleaded guilty to conspiring with Verber and a former official of the Russian embassy in Washington and in Austria to transmit to Soviet officials in the two countries information concerning U. S. defence secrets.

Man On RCMP List Picked Up In Buffa'o

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today the arrest of one of the 10 most-wanted men on the list of the RCMP. The man was identified as Harry W. C. Hedderson, 46.

Leonard Blaylockk, agent in charge of the FBI's Buffalo office, said Canadian authorities wanted Hedderson in connection with the theft of $90,000 worth of gold at Sudbury, May 29, 1952.

The specific federal charge against Hedderson is unlawful flight to avoid prosecution in California, Blaylock said. The FBI agent said Hedderson was wanted in connection with at least three robberies in the San Bernardino area and four in San Francisco.

Hedderson was picked up early today in a Buffalo hotel. With him was a woman identified as Rita Rose Giroux, 22, of Arnprior, Ont. She was charged with harboring a federal fugitive.

Accept Broad Federation Plan For West Indies

LONDON (Reuters) — Delegates representing nearly 3,000,000 persons of many races and colors reached broad agreement here Monday on the principles of federating Britain's scattered island colonies in the West Indies.

But throughout the first long day' session of their private London conferences the delegates differed considerably on the practical way this federation could be accomplished, it was learned.

Each delegation in turn, from Trinidad, Jamaica, Barbados and the Windward and Leeward Islands, had its say on the proposals.

SILENT ON DEBATE

Observers from the two mainland colonies of British Guiana and British Honduras, which have rejected the plan, listened to the debate in silence.

Among them, the delegates represent people of African, European, Asian and mixed blood descent in an arc of islands extending 1,000 miles into the Caribbean sea from the coast of Venezuela to a point south of Cuba.

When the general discussion ends, the conference will divide into two committees, one on constitutional matters, the other on financial questions.

Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttleton Monday urged the colonies to develop their economies, based on sugar, rum, bananas and spices, jointly by means of federation.

Decide Marketing Bd. Will Handle Cheese

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Directors of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association decided Monday to leave the marketing of all cheese produced in the province during 1953 in the hands of the Ontario cheese marketing board.

They instructed the marketing board to seek a price of 30 cents a pound for the 30,000,000 pounds expected to be left as surplus over domestic requirements. The rest of the 1952 surplus also would be taken care of by the marketing group.

The meeting suggested circulars be handed to United States tourists when they enter Canada, telling them where Canadian Cheddar cheese can be obtained in quantity.

Report Stalin Doctor Has Died Suddenly

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Prof. Arsenia V. Rusakov, one of the nine doctors who signed the post-mortem report on Stalin's death, died suddenly on Sunday, it was announced today.

An obituary signed by Health Minister M. A. F. Tretyakou called him one of Russia's "most prominent specialists in pathological anatomy." He had been associated with the Muscow City Research Institute of Medical First Aid for 30 years.

Red-Led Troops Strike Across Border Of Laos

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—The French-backed Indo-Chinese kingdom of Laos ordered general mobilization today as Communist-led Vietminh troops struck across its northeastern border and encircled the little town of Sam Neua, 100 miles southwest of the big French base of Hanoi.

The French high command announced Monday night it had evacuated Sam Neua. French and Laotian forces apparently were falling back toward Luang Prabang, residence capital of the little country's ailing King Sisavang Vong.

The French said they ordered the evacuation because of the difficulty in defending the little mountain-encircled town.

Laos called up all able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 35 to fight alongside the French against the guerrilla invaders. The state's regular forces number only 13,000 men but mobilization is expected to boost them to about 60,000.

A French high command spokesman said Monday night the Vietminh has about three divisions and an army of coolies totalling about 50,000 men, including 30,000 combatants, in the area.

French officials viewed the Vietminh drive into Laos as a bid for a "prestige success," the capture of a large opium-producing area and the terrorization of the peaceful Laotians.

Most French officials thought it likely that the Vietminh would attempt to drive across Laos to the borders of Burma and Thailand, giving them an opportunity to "exert pressure" on those countries.

UN Planes Guard PoW Route

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Allied planes flew guard today over the route of the first Red motor convoy carrying sick and wounded UN prisoners slowly toward freedom. An air force spokesman said the air sentinels and special, secret precautions made a mistake bombing virtually impossible. The reconnaissance planes patrolled through the day over thick clouds hiding North Korean roads. The Reds said the 20-vehicle convoy was the first to start the long trip from North Korean prison camps to Panmunjom, where 600 Allied PoWs including at least one Canadian will be traded for 5,800 Chinese and Communists beginning Monday.

Two more convoys were to leave North Korea Wednesday at daybreak.

The UN probably will start moving its 700 Chinese and 5,100 North Korean sick and wounded by train this week-end.

TO BE REINDOCTRINATED

A South Korean defence ministry spokesman said the 450 South Koreans being returned will have to be "reindoctrinated" possibly for six months to free them from any effects of Communist teachings.

The Communists here, meanwhile, awaited a UN reply to their latest request for resumption of full-scale truce negotiations at Panmunjom.

There was no indication when Gen. Mark Clark, UN Far East commander, would answer. He had told the Reds earlier that a renewal is the "second order of business" to the disabled PoWs exchange.

In Pusan, South Korea's foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tai, told the National Assembly, "South Koreans prefer death to an armistice without the unification of South and North Korea." There has been speculation about possible settlement without unifying Korea.

The Red convoys, totalling 68 vehicles, were to be on the way from the Yalu river on the Manchurian border to Kaesong, the Red prisoner holding point and truce headquarters six miles from Panmunjom, by Wednesday morning.

The convoys probably carry no more than half of the 600 UN prisoners.

About 120 are Americans. Another 20 are Britons. The Communists have not announced the order of delivery.

The first Communist convoy departed from Chonma, just below the Yalu river in extreme northwest Korea.

The convoy is marked with red crosses on the hood and red flags on the rear of each vehicle. Convoys on both sides have been guaranteed immunity from attack.

Plane Missing In Mountains 25 Soldiers, Crew Aboard

SEATTLE (CP)—A non-scheduled twin-engine airliner bound from Washington, D.C., to Seattle with 25 persons aboard vanished before dawn today in the rugged Cascade mountain area east of here. A Miami airline official said all 22 passengers were military personnel, apparently bound for Seattle for embarkation to the Far East. The plane carried three crew members, a pilot, co-pilot and stewardess.

He said 12 of the passengers boarded the aircraft at Washington. The plane left there at midnight Sunday. Ten additional passengers were picked up at Scranton, Pa.

Charles Chester, Washington state director for the civil aeronautics board, said the plane—a C-46—was between Spokane and Seattle when it radioed at 2:07 a. m. PST that one of its engines had failed and that it was down to 4,500 feet.

Youths Burned Fiery Crosses

NORTH BUXTON (CP) — Police said today they know who burned fiery crosses in front of three houses in this largely negro hamlet last week.

They said no charges have been laid, pending the outcome of an investigation by the Ontario fire marshal's department.

One of the houses before which the cross appeared was burned Saturday night, leaving seven persons homeless. An inspector from Toronto is expected to arrive today to look into the cause of that blaze.

Five days before fire levelled the house, owned by Mrs. Irene Rhue, a crude paper-wrapped cross was burned on the lawn in front of it.

Police said the crosses were made and burned by youths in the village 10 miles southwest of Chatham. The officers would not say whether they think there was any connection between the burning of the crosses and the fire at the Rhue home.

1 Dead, 20 Hurt In Tehran Riot

TEHRAN, Iran (CP) — One man was reported killed and 20 others were injured today when troops with fixed bayonets broke up demonstrations in various parts of the capital over Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's attempts to wrest control of the army from the shah.

At least 60 persons were arrested.

The Majlis—lower House of parliament—failed by one member to raise a quorum and thus delayed until Thursday any legislative action on Mossadegh's proposal to curb the powers of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, including army control.

An atmosphere of explosive excitement gripped the city after an announcement by a group of army officers Monday night threatening an armed revolt to protect the monarchy.

The crowds defied a military ban on demonstrations. They included supporters of both Mossadegh and the shah.

Plan To Test Umpires' Eyes

LONDON (CP) — Let's not have any more nasty remarks about the eyesight of Ontario Intercounty Baseball League umpires!

Marshall Ariss, president of the Intercounty Umpires' Association, said today that when the Intercounty season gets under way, there'll be a pair of professionally-tested optics behind every batter in the league.

Arrangements had been completed to have every Intercounty umpire undergo an eye test by an optometrist. The association would be sure that every man had "average or better" eyesight.

Savage Fighting Erupts Along Front

SEOUL (AP) — Small-scale but savage fighting erupted along the Korean battle front today while Allied planes streaked through cloudy North Korean skies to blast Communist communication and supply lines.

Eight B-29s bombed the 30-acre main rail yards at Pyongyang, North Korea's capital, in the day's biggest strike.

South Korean infantry smashed two Communist attacks gainst Texas hill in central Korea, focal point of bitter fighting for the last week. The South Koreans recaptured the strategic knob and beat back three Red counterattacks Sunday.

Other South Koreans killed 68 Communists in smashing a two-prong attack by 150 to 175 Reds on sister outposts north of the punchbowl on the eastern front.

Officer To Document Any Canadian PoWs

IN KOREA (CP)—Lieut. Peter McLeod of Ottawa arrived Monday at the headquarters of the 25th Canadian brigade to await a call to Munsan.

There he will document any Canadians in the exchange of sick and wounded Korean prisoners of war, scheduled to begin next Monday.

He didn't attend Monday's "dry run"—a dress rehearsal at Munsan covering every detail of the exchange.

Lieut. McLeod has the official records of all Canadians missing in the war. Ottawa last week cabled a list of one Canadian prisoner and 28 missing men.

Sugar Rationing Will End Soon, Purchase Tax Cut

LONDON (CP)—Britain today reduced income taxes and slashed taxes on many consumer items in a sugar-coated "incentive" budget that even promised the end of sugar rationing soon. The chancellor of the exchequer, Richard A. Butler, announced the reductions, most of them effective immediately, to a crowded House of Commons. To prolonged government cheers, he said: "We step out of the confines of restriction to the almost forgotten but beckoning prospect of freer endeavor and greater rewards for everyone."

In a budget showing that for the first time since the war Britons will be free from new taxes for the coming fiscal year, Butler announced a cut in the standard rate of income tax.

The standard rate of income tax—at present nine shillings and six pence in the pound after all allowances—will be reduced by sixpence in the pound.

COST TO TREASURY

The income-tax cut will cost the treasury £73,000,000, Butler estimated.

The budget reduced by 25 per cent the purchase tax on a wide range of consumer goods including cars, refrigerators, washing machines and other household articles. This tax now varies from 33 1-3 per cent to 100 per cent.

Butler estimated the total reduction of taxation would cost the treasury £169,000,000.

The chancellor told of Britain's strikingly different position from the gloomy picture of last year.

PURCHASE TAX CUT

One of the first tax changes he announced was a cut of about 25 per cent in the purchase tax covering a wide range of articles.

The purchase tax cut will apply to all items on which the tax was not reduced in the last budget.

The purchase tax on cars and radios will be cut from 66 2-3 per cent to 50 per cent, he said.

The reduction also applies to television sets, refrigerators, washing machines and vacuum cleaners. pianos were freed of tax.

Butler exempted cricket from entertainment tax. His announcement was greeted with cheers.

In contrast with the 1951-52 fiscal year when Britain recorded an over-all deficit of £436,000,000, Butler this year budgetted for a surplus of £279,000,000.

ABLE TO END RATIONING

One more form of relief for hard-pressed Britons was forecast by the chancellor when he said that the government soon will be able to end sugar rationing.

SUGAR RATIONING

Budget Highlights

LONDON (CP). — Highlights of the budget brought down in the British Parliament today by the Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard Butler:

No new taxes will be imposed in the fiscal year which began April 1.

The purchase tax covering a wide range of articles will be cut by about 25 per cent.

The excess-profits levy will end as of January 1, 1954. The tax was imposed last year to skim off 30 per cent of everything over a standard reckoned on the previous three years' earnings.

Income tax will be reduced from its present level of nine shillings and sixpence in the pound after allowances, to nine shillings.

Tax Troubles Over Two Win $210,000

LONDON (Reuters) — Two men lost interest this morning in today's British national budget. Their tax troubles were over.

They are William Foyle, a construction worker, and George Meakin, electric welder, both winners of $210,000 in soccer sweepstakes.

Each had forecast correctly eight drawn games in last Saturday's professional soccer games.

Such winnings are not subject to income tax in England.

Foyle, 55, and his wife have brought up a family of seven children, five of whom now are married. Meakin, 35, is single and lives with his parents.

Commonwealth Division Back In Korean Front Line

OTTAWA (CP)—An Army casualty list issued Monday the first in more than seven weeks, was the first official indication that the Commonwealth division is back on the fighting line in Korea after 10 weeks in reserve.

It was understood the division, which includes the 25th Canadian infantry brigade group, returned to action about three days ago. However an army headquarters spokesman said there is no official word on this.

The United Nations high command pulled the division out of the line at the end of January. The move was not made public, however, until censorship was lifted in mid-March.

Its return to action, however, could not be kept secret because of the policy of informing next-of-kin as soon as possible of casualties.

The casualty list reported one man killed and one officer and two men wounded in action.

All four are members of the 1st battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment. Their unit is due to return shortly to Canada, replaced by the regiment's 3rd battalion which left Valcartier, Que., March 21 and has already reached Japan.

The 25th brigade now is composed of the 1st battalion, Royal 22nd, and 3rd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, and the 3rd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

The 1st battalion, RCR, is on its way home, having been replaced by the 3rd battalion while the Commonwealth division was in reserve.

The 3rd battalion, PPCLI, arrived in Korea last fall and is not due for replacement until next fall.

Monday's list brought to 1,301 total casualties suffered so far by Canadian troops in Korea, including 248 dead, 939 wounded, 26 missing, 87 injured and one captured. In addition, the navy has reported three dead and three injured, and the air force has reported one missing.

Expect Canada Meet Objectives

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will meet military objectives for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on schedule and will largely fulfill her three-year defence program, Defence Minister Claxton predicted today.

In the opening speech of a Commons defence debate, the minister also forecast that all Western countries including Canada will come to the point where they consider "deliberate stretchouts" of defence production in order to keep production lines in existence. A stretch out would be a decision to take longer to produce a given number of things than originally planned.

Canada had so far done this only in two cases, affecting the production of the CF-100 and F-86E jet fighter. In both cases production was slowed to allow the factories to get set for production of better types of the same plane.

Of Canada's program for NATO, Mr. Claxton said the army already has completed its one-brigade commitment, that the air force has three-quarters of its air division in Europe and should have the last of four wings there later this year, that the navy will have the ships available it has promised. The deadline, he said, is the end of June, 1954.

As for the general $5,000,000,000 defence program announced in February, 1951, the government expected it would be completed on schedule "subject to one or two exceptions."

Suggests Sending Indian To Coronation

OTTAWA (CP) — George Hees (PC-Toronto Broadview) said today in the Commons that no Canadian Indian delegation has been named to attend the Coronation and asked whether consideration would be given to sending one to London in full regalia.

Prime Minister St. Laurent replied that he did not have knowledge of all the groups going to the Coronation. However, now that the question had been asked publicly it would no doubt come to the attention of the Coronation committee in charge of arrangements.

Investigate Possibility Of Leaving County

MERRITTON (CP)—Town council Monday night appointed a committee to investigate the possibility of secession from Lincoln county.

The committee will look into the town finances and county levies for the last 10 years, the period which it was stated that Merritton's payments to the county had increased threefold.

It also was stated that the question of secession might be put to a plebiscite later.

Brig. Allard Reaches Seoul, New Brigade OC

SEOUL, Korea (CP)—Brig. Jean Victor Allard, describing himself as "a new boy," arrived at Seoul today to assume command of Canada's 25th infantry brigade in Korea.

Brig. Allard, who is from Nicolet, Que., flew from Kure, Japan in a Royal Australian Air Force plane after inspecting Canadian base units there.

He was met at Seoul by Brig. M. P. (Pat) Bogert of Toronto, his predecessor in command. Bogert flew from the Canadian brigade area in a light aircraft.

Spotting a group of Canadian soldiers near the airstrip, Brig. Allard strolled over to meet them. They were Cpl. Jean Perron, Quebec City, of the Royal 22nd Regiment; Cpl. Bill Hfil, Regina, of the Canadian Dental Corps and attached to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and Gnr. Dan Henry, Prince Albert, Sask., of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery. All are Canada-bound.

SOLDIERS DELIGHTED

The soldiers chorussed their delight at the prospect of going home.

"After flying over this country, I can't blame you," Allard replied. "I am one of the new boys who have come over to take over from you."

He drove with Bogert to 8th army headquarters where the present Canadian commander introduced him to Lt.-Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, 8th army commander.

Brig. Allard embarked at once on an intensive five-day program during which Bogert will introduce him personally to all units in the brigade. Working forward from Seoul, they are due to reach the brigade late Wednesday night.

The actual turnover of command is scheduled for April 20—the day the Canadian brigade commander may be summoned to Panmunjom to meet sick or wounded prisoners of war under the exchange agreement arrived at by the Allies and the Reds.

Prices Still Decline On Toronto Market

TORONTO (CP)—Prices continued to decline in early afternoon stock market trading today.

Industrials and western oils led the drop while base metals followed. Golds held firm. Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,545,000 shares.

Uranium showed minor losses and New Brunswick base metals weakened slightly.

Steels, banks and miscellaneous issues led the losses in industrials. Foods, papers and liquors also slipped.

Senior golds were firm on small gains and juniors mixed. Holding companies traded slightly lower.

Noranda led base metals downward with a sharp loss. Other leading losers were Dominion Asbestos, Ontario Pyrites and Fenimore.

Western oils weakened on a long list of small losses.

Quebec Crash Ruled Accidental By Coroner

SEPT ILES, Que. (CP)—The crash Saturday of a twin-engined Beechcraft, killing all eight men aboard, was accidental, Dr. R. B. Marchildon, district coroner, ruled Monday.

The accident apparently occurred when pilot Marcel Carbonneau, 31, of Levis, Que., attempted to take off from a frozen lake, 65 miles northwest of this iron ore mining centre on the St. Lawrence river north shore, and crashed into the side of a mountain.

The federal department of transport is scheduled to investigate the crash.

Eisenhower Urges Sale Of Rubber Plants

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower today recommended sale of $550,000,000 worth of government-owned synthetic rubber plants to private industry.

In a special message to Congress from his vacation headquarters here, Eisenhower asked the lawmakers to enact legislation authorizing disposal of the facilities.

The security interests of the nation will best be served by the development of a free competitive synthetic rubber industry, and I believe that now is the time to undertake plant disposal," the President said.

Find Basement Shelters Survive A-Blast

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, director of civil defence, said in an interview Monday that basement bomb shelters such as recommended by Canadian civil defence authorities can survive an atomic explosion.

Gen. Worthington said that during a recent visit to civil defence officials in the U.S. he discussed the types of shelters used in the atomic tests in Nevada. The U.S. officials said emergency shelters similar to those recommended by Canadian civil defence authorities proved the safest.

"The shelters were occupied by dummies but the test did definitely indicate that the type of shelter we are recommending for Canadians will survive a blast," he said.

SIMPLE SHELTER

Canadian civil defence authorities recommend that a simple shelter be built in the corner of a basement with supports to reinforce the basement roof and a window protected against blast.

Gen. Worthington also said a joint Canadian-American civil defence scheme is planned for the near future at Niagara Falls. Canadian mobile rescue teams will move into the U.S. and a U.S. column will move into Canada.

This scheme is designed to test the ability of teams to converge on communities on either side of the border.

Lakefield Boat

highly-inflammable lacquered boats didn't go up in flames.

"They could never have been able to save the houses round about and the elevator on Concession Rd. would probably have gone as well," he said.

SPREAD QUICKLY

Abandoned by Mr. Richer the fire swept rapidly into the main section of the factory which contained inflammable materials such as varnish, wood-dust, dried timber, sawdust and shavings and cedar strip boats in the process of being manufactured.

Within a few minutes the whole west end of the factory was ablaze and it was beyond the ability of firemen to cope with it.

"I heard the siren go," Garnet Samis, former Lakefield police chief, said later, "and I saw the glow in the distance. I jumped in my car and when I got to the factory there were only a couple of others around. At that time it was only a small fire in the sanding room but in a couple of minutes the flames seemed to be coming from all over."

Mr. Samis helped a couple of other men—Earl Prentice and Bill Croft—salvage valuables from the office and storeroom.

The flames also destroyed the workshop owned by John Sanderson. It was being used mainly as a storeroom.

The loss includes the hulls of several hundred outboard motorboats and canoes, a fresh shipment of B.C. cedar valued at $12,000 and all the machinery such as stickers, cleaners, sawing machines and sanders. Most of the office records were saved.

The building was covered by insurance.

Hundreds of spectators gathered to watch the flames shoot high in the air from the doomed building. And they watched, occasionally lending a hand to shift hose, as the volunteer firemen and the Peterborough detachment fought to save the arena.

FIRES IN ROOF

At one time the arena was spotted with roof fires and fire also got in under the eaves. Seven hoses were concentrated on the inside and the outside of the frame building and by 2.30 a.m. it was realized that the building was saved.

"I wouldn't have given a nickle for its chance when those fires broke out on the roof and under the eaves," said one Lakefield fireman. Even Chief Clark frankly admitted that he thought it was a vain fight.

"It would have needed just one flaming piece of wood to fall down inside among those finished boats jammed in the arena and nothing could have saved the situation," said Mr. Richer.

Somehow the firemen managed to stop the fire from getting through into the building and the wind gave them a break by suddenly dying down.

At the east end of the arena on Colborne St. a quantity of hay and the side of the building were set on fire. This too was quelled by firemen before it could do serious damage.

USE CISTERN FILLER

By another stroke of luck Stanley Richardson, who fills cisterns, came along Colborne St. with his tank truck that has a gasoline-driven pumper. With two helpers —Earl Robinson and Vivian Payne —he kept the fire from spreading at the east end of the building.

At the height of the blaze sparks ignited a large area of shingles on the roof of a frame house owned by Mrs. T. Moran, just across the road from the arena. Gordon Blake, another Lakefield resident, climbed a ladder and put the fire out using Mr. Richardson's hoseline.

The Peterborough pumper crew were under the direction of Master Mechanic Budd Cruikshank, and the others were Firemen Fred Murphy, Joe Martell, Barry Kilborn, Cliff Perry and Percy Gould.

They stayed through the night playing water on the smouldering ruins and returned at 6:15 a.m.

HAS HIGH PRAISE

Master Mechanic Cruikshank had high praise for Chief Clark and his Lakefield volunteer brigade.

"They really did an efficient job," he said. "There was no confusion. The minute we showed up Chief Clark knew exactly where we fitted in and gave clear directions. Our main effort was to try and save the arena. At one time the roof was burning and the front but the fire didn't get inside."

The pumper crew from Peterborough got the call at 1.20 a.m. and in 19 minutes they were hooked up in Lakefield and pouring water under 200 pounds pressure on the fire. Water was drawn from the Lakefield docks, some 700 feet away.

Numerous people came up to Reeve W. C. Grant who was watching the fire and said he had the right idea in advocating a waterworks system for the village.

NEED SPRINKLER SYSTEM

"If there had been a sprinkler system the fire would have been put out before it really got going," commented Mr. Richer.

Mr. Richer, his brother Dee, and his aunt Mrs. Fernande Bell, own the boat business. It was started by Mrs. Bell's husband, the late Captain Richard Thomas Bell, in 1945.

When fire broke out early today they had in a heavy supply of raw materials and were in top production, building boats for the summer season. The destruction of the factory will temporarily put 30 employees out of work.

Women of the village prepared tea, coffee and sandwiches for the firefighters who found the wind cold as they continued their watch after the remains of the fire had burned themselves out.

May Investigate McCarthy's Investigators

LONDON—(Reuters)—Senator Joseph McCarthy's two special investigators in Europe themselves may be asked to submit to an investigation by members of parliament when they come to Britain, the London News Chronicle reported today.

The paper said that many legislators are peeved that investigators Roy Cohn and David Schine plan to inquire into the workings of the BBC Overseas Service, possibly to compare it with the Voice of America or Radio Free Europe.

Both Conservative and Labor MP's are definitely going to ask the government in the Commons why McCarthy's men are being allowed to make the inquiry, the Chronicle continued.

SECOND SUGGESTION

"Another suggestion being considered," the paper said, "is that Mr. Cohn and Mr. Schine should be invited to a private all-party meeting at the Commons where they should be questioned on the exact purposes of their inquiries and hear some . . . views about such investigations."

The two members of McCarthy's committee on government activities investigating U.S. information service facilities in Europe reportedly plan to visit here en route back to Washington.

Wants U.S. Have Share In Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was told today it would be a mistake to let Canada build the St. Lawrence seaway without help from the United States.

Brig.-Gen. Bernard L. Robinson deputy chief of army engineers, testified before a Senate foreign relations sub-committee the seaway would have strategic value to U. S. national security and to "our present and future economy."

He was the first witness heard by the committee as it opened a hearing on legislation that would authorize the U. S. to join with Canada in construction of a seaway permitting ships to travel between the Atlantic ocean and the Great Lakes.

Similar proposals have been debated in Congress for many years. Canada has said that if the U. S. won't join in the project, it will build a 27-foot-deep channel on its side of the St. Lawrence.

Robinson said U. S. use of the seaway would be greater than that of Canada "or any other nation."

"We should not assume that our interests would be fully protected and our needs adequately taken care of if we merely accept use of a waterway built, operated and maintained by another nation."

St. Paul's WA Hears Report On Juniors

BETHANY —(ENS)—Mrs. Effie Morton entertained St. Paul's Church Woman's Auxiliary. There were 16 present.

Mrs. Allan Gribble presided. Two minutes silence was observed in memory of the late Mrs. Charles Stevenson, who had been a valued member of the Auxiliary. A number of articles of the Junior Girls' Auxiliary, mentioning that in future meetings would be held twice each month. Delegates were appointed to attend the annual Diocese meeting to be held in Toronto in May.

Several letters of thanks were read from shut-in members who had received gifts of fruit and flowers at Easter. Mrs. T. S. Gault read a chapter from the current study book.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Miss Winnifred Nesbitt, Mrs. Emory Smith and Mrs. T. S. Gault.

10,000,000 Bus. Grain Waiting For Shipment

MONTREAL (CP) — Ten million bushels of grain are waiting in port of Montreal elevators for overseas ships.

More than 20 lakeboats arrived with another 1,500,000 bushels of grain, bringing elevators to near capacity of 14,000,000 bushels.

Harbor officials said deep-sea vessels will be arriving for some of the grain in a few days.

"By this time next week the movement of grain should be operating in a normal manner," said an official.

The grain glut, he said, was caused by an unusually early opening of lake navigation.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 1⅝ per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Monday's noon rate was 98⅜ cents. Pound sterling $2.77 1-16 against $2.77⅛.

Sugar Rationing

Cheers greeted the chancellor's optimistic statement as he opened his speech. The galleries were filled with members of the public and foreign diplomats.

He said the story at last year's budget was a bleak one of mounting trade deficit overseas and of inflation at home.

"The difference today is very striking."

He said that Britain's national economy has pulled itself up from a trade deficit with the rest of the world of £398,000,000 $1,114,400,00) in 1951 to a surplus in 1952 of £291,000,000.

This, Butler declared, came close to his goal of a surplus of £300,-000,000.

"When I opened my first budget some 13 months ago I began, as is customary, with a review of the previous year," he said.

"The account I gave, which was as objective as I could make it, was inevitably a bleak one—a story of mounting deficit overseas and of inflation at home.

"The difference today is very striking."

Butler said he is not content with this improvement.

"We must keep up the progress. We must not forget that last year we were helped by U. S. defence aid. We received £120,000,000 and we are very grateful for it."

Britain's improved financial position is reflected in the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves, the backing for the sterling area's trade with the dollar world. The sterling area includes Britain and her commonwealth and empire, except Canada, and a few other countries with currency linked to the pound.

Butler said that at the end of March the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves stood at £774,000,-000. That represented an improvement over the last 12 months of £167,000,000 ($467,700,000).

"This is an achievement of which Britain can be proud," the chancellor said.

"There is a most welcome improvement in the state of our gold and dollar reserves from the desperately low level they had reached. The drain on them ceased soon after the last budget."

Last year Butler slashed imports, raised the interest rate for bank loans and got an excess-profits tax levied against industry. These policies, he said today, had worked.

"The general easing of our demands transformed the aspect of our economy. The menace of inflation from excessive demand was lifted. With our monetary policy and other policies working . . . we have brought a new flexibility into our affairs."

GOVERNMENT EXPENDITURES

Butler estimated government expenditure for the 1953-54 financial year at £4,259,000,000 ($11,925,000-000)—an increase of £108,000,000 over the 1952-53 figure. He estimated revenue at £4,538,000,000, an increase of £99,000,000.

The chancellor said the food ministry has arranged to buy 1,000,-000 tons of surplus Cuban sugar "at an advantageous price."

"Our purpose is to end sugar rationing and we shall now be able to do that soon," he declared.

The government subsidy on domestic sugar also will end, he said.

"We got rid of price control over many articles without seeing a runaway rise in prices. The index of retail prices has since last June kept remarkably steady.

"All this has been helped by that most intangible of our assets—confidence in our policy and in the pound sterling."

Government supporters hailed the budget with delight and many supporters of the Labor opposition grudgingly conceded it to be a "popular" one—particularly with the lower middle class, whose fickle vote can swing an election.

Some Labor observers suggested it might herald Churchill's intention to call an election this fall hoping to ride back to power with an increased majority. The Conservatives were elected in October, 1951.

The reduction marks the second trimming of income taxes since Churchill's Conservative party came to power.

Official Denies U.S. Headed For Depression

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Homer Capehart (Rep. Ind.) replying to Democratic suggestions that the Eisenhower administration may be heading the United States toward a depression, said today the country's economy is on a sound footing.

Capehart, chairman of the Senate banking committee, spoke out after a new Democratic blast at higher U. S. bond interest rates.

Treasury Secretary George Humphrey defended the higher interest rate on a new $1,000,000,000 bond issue which, from signs in Wall street and Washington, appeared likely to be heavily over - subscribed.

Capehart said he sees no factors in the present economic situation that should bring any recession and none indicating an increase in inflationary pressures

BIGGEST PAYROLLS

"Parolls are the biggest in our national history, the government still is spending about $1,000,000,000 a week on the defence program and while farm prices have dropped, they seem to have levelled off," he said in an interview.

However, Senator John Sparkman (Dem. Ala.) joined eight other Democrats and independent Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon in declaring that a boost in interest rates on government bonds, ordered by Humphrey, already is operating to tighten credit for farmers and small business men and may bring an economic recession.

"Because of the treasury's action, interest rates are going up all over the country," Sparkman said. "That means it not only is going to cost more for the farmer or small business man to borrow money but in a great many instances it means that the banks won't make the loans at all."

ACCOUNTS FOR INCREASE

Sparkman said he estimated the increase in private lending rates, as a consequence of the treasury's action in offering 30-year bonds at 3¼ per cent interest, would cost the average small home buyer $8.33 a month more on his instalment paments.

Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem. Minn.) was a leader of the group of nine senators who issued Monday a statement denouncing the interest rate, highest on such an issue since 1933.

Senator Humphrey told the Senate the treasury's action "contains germs of a new depression."

Youth Admits Stole Tractor From Employer

LINDSAY (ENS).— A London, Ontario, youth, Gerald Wilson, pleaded guilty in police court on Monday of stealing a $1,200 tractor from his farmer employer, Ernest Burgess of Dunsford, last week. He was remanded a week for sentence and for mental examination.

Wilson told the court that he had taken the tractor to make his way from the farm. He had not been paid enough, he said, and wanting to find another job, he had taken the tractor, a leather jacket, one dollar in cash, and two pounds of honey, and started from the farm towards Bobcaygeon.

He was found some hours later on the Fenelon Falls road, three miles north of Bobcaygeon, after he had telephoned a garage at the latter village for a tow for the tractor which had stopped. Constable George Mountsteven of the Lindsay OPP, testified that the alarm had been sent out on Thursday night, when Burgess had missed his tractor. Officers had scoured the Bobcaygeon-Dunsford area and later that night found that the youth had tried to sell or trade the tractor in the village. Garage operators in the village were alerted, and later a call to Poole's Garage for a tow for the tractor brought the provincial officers to the scene, where Wilson had taken the tractor.

According to the officer, the fuel pump had clogged, stopping the motor. Wilson, in his testimony, said he hitch-hiked from his London home, worked for a week in Newcastle, then came north to Burgess' farm, where he had worked for another two weeks before deciding to take his departure. After taking the tractor, because his feet were sore, he said he had driven north. He had tried to sell or trade it, and then started toward Fenelon Falls. During the night he had tried to go to sleep, he said, but the "birds scared away." Wilson did not remember his London address, and despite speaking with a strong "American" accent, denied being from the U.S. Magistrate Gee remanded him a week in order to establish his place of residence, and contact his parents.

Muskrats Scarce

COBOURG — (ENS) — Eldon Smoke of Alderville, who has been trying to raise the money for a fine on a drunk charge, was given until Thursday to raise the money. Smoke hoped to get the money from trapping muskrats but apparently the muskrat harvest was poor and he was unable to capitalize on that venture. Magistrate R. B. Baxter told him that Thursday was the absolute limit.

PRINCE FLIES PLANE—While flying to Victoria, B.C., to begin his Canadian tour, Crown Prince Akihito of Japan sat in co-pilot's seat of the C5 RCAF aircraft. This was the first flight that the Prince has made and he sat in co-pilot's seat for 12 minutes. Today he began to travel east.

Admits Intoxication Given Job At Lodge

LINDSAY (ENS) — Dr. J. C. Arnold of Lindsay proved a Good Samaritan to the Lindsay police department and court here Monday when he took off their hands a man who had pleaded guilty to two charges. Edgar Weaver pleaded guilty to the charges of intoxication and having liquor in a place other than his residence.

But before Magistrate Gee passed sentence, Chief John Hunter volunteered the information that Dr. Arnold had offered to take the man to Elim Lodge, the resort Dr. and Mrs. Arnold operate on Pigeon Lake for the summer months.

He asked that Weaver be released to his custody. Weaver promised to stay at lodge during the period of his probation and Magistrate Gee remanded him "until called for."

Cobourg Harbor Busy

COBOURG— (ENS)—Cobourg harbor was a busy place Monday. Work started on the unloading of a cargo for the ordnance depot from the freighter "Weyburn." During the day another freighter, the "Windsor" came into port with a load for the depot and will be unloaded next.

Meanwhile the oil tanker "Transinland" 'arrived with about 800,000 gallons of gasoline for the Sun Oil depot.

Father, Son Charged Speared Fish

Crown and defence evidence was heard Monday on three charges under games and fisheries regulations against a Hastings man, William J. Emmorey and his son, Elmer Emmorey. Both have been charged with possessing fish in a closed season while the elder Emmorey has been charged with having a gun, not dismantled or encased, during night hours.

All charges were laid as a result of an incident in the early morning of March 12. Conservation officers Reginald McCulloch and Victor Harris appeared as crown witnesses.

McCulloch and Harris testified they were patrolling the banks of the Trent about a mile east of Hastings when they saw a light on the river. Opposite the light was a panel truck bearing Emmorey's name parked on the road.

The officers continued their patrol, rounding the rural block and returning close to where they had spotted the truck. They parked on the road where a hill separated them from the vehicle. As they left their truck they saw headlights coming over the hill. They signalled the driver to stop with their flashlights but he passed them. It was Emmorey's vehicle.

VEHICLE STOPPED

He continued down the road about 25 yards where he stopped. As the vehicle came to its stop, both officers saw a sack rolled out the right front door. Harris went to retrieve it as the truck backed up to where McCulloch was standing.

In the truck were Emmorey and his son. In the sack were 14 fish which bore the marks of being recently speared.

They quoted the accused as saying he found the fish on the ground in front of his father's cabin, a short distance away. Both officers also testified Emmorey had pleaded to be let off: "This is the first time I've speared fish in my life."

Searching the defendant's vehicle later, they found the gun and some lights in the rear. The conservation men offered the gun, a lantern, a flashlight and the fish as exhibits.

As the crown's case ended William J. Emmorey took the stand. He testified he had returned from work in Peterborough early that morning around two o'clock. He had roused his 19-year-old son from bed and together they went to his father's house..

TALK TO FATHER

Purpose of the visit was to talk with the seriously ill father. The two Emmoreys talked with the elder man until close to four o'clock when they left.

With his son asleep in the front seat, Emmorey said he drove down the road and as he topped a hill was blinded by lights on the road. He thought it was a car. Past the lights was a bag by the roadside. As he passed the lights he saw two men and so stopped and backed up. When he saw the officers' truck by the roadside he gained the impression he had inadverdently forced the truck into the ditch.

He backed up and was confronted by the fish held by officer Harris. Emmorey concluded his testimony with the subsequent confiscation of his gun and lights.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw questioned Emmorey on his visit to his father. As the defendant repeated his testimony regarding the seriously ill older man the crown demanded: "Do you expect anyone to believe that?"

The defence case will resume Thursday.

Fear Safe-Crackers

COBOURG — (ENS)— Stolen the night before from the CNR toolsheds, some crow-bars, axes and sledge hammers were found Monday, near the office of the Sun Oil depot. Police think the thieves who stole the tools had planned to break a safe at the Sun Oil Co. but had been frightened off by one of the constables on night patrol.

Farm Laborer Pleads Guilty To Car Theft

COBOURG (ENS) — George Brown of Toronto pleaded guilty Monday to theft of a car and not guilty of stealing a watch and other articles on March 30. The car was owned by Violet Rogers, sister-in-law of Stanley Nelson of Haldimand Township, for whom Brown had been working.

OPP Constable F. Clough of Cobourg testified that the car and Brown disappeared at the same time, and that later Brown gave himself up to Sudbury police. The car was recovered at Toronto.

The magistrate reserved sentence on the car theft charge pending hearing of the other charge next Friday.

Would Lick Regiment Goes To Jail Instead

COBOURG (ENS)—Irwin Wright of Brampton was sentenced to seven days in jail, his car impounded and license suspended for three months when he was convicted of a drunk driving charge Monday.

He was arrested last week near the recreational centre, under the influence of liquor, his car stuck in the mud.

When Chief H. Pearse took him out of the car, Wright vowed he was going "to lick the whole Irish regiment." When he sobered up some hours later he said he had no recollection of the affair.

Defence counsel H. Richardson sought a dismissal on the grounds that Wright's car was immobile, but there was evidence that he was intoxicated before the car became stuck in the mud.

Runs In Front Of Car Boy, 6, Injured

COBOURG (ENS). — Richard H. Clarke, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Clarke, Haldimand Township, was brought to Cobourg Hospital Monday afternoon with head injuries.

Provincial Poilce said he ran in front of a car driven by Ankeri Jensen of Toronto, who was eastbound. His injuries are not serious.

Swerved To Miss Broken Road Court Decides

LINDSAY (ENS) — A twenty-six-year-old Toronto man, Gerald Hall, of Craighurst Ave., was acquitted in police court of careless driving when he appeared Monday following an accident March 28 in which his car went into the ditch on County Road 4, east of Little Britain.

Hall, who has driven for 11 years with one arm, told the court it was his first accident.

The mishap occurred early in the morning, and Hall told the court he had had no sleep the previous night.

Travelling toward Little Britain, from Lindsay, he rounded a right angle curve on the slippery pavement swerved to avoid a broken section of road as he finished making the turn and went into the ditch on his own side of the road.

According to constable eGorge Mountsteven of the Lindsay OPP, Hall travelled some 130 feet in the ditch before striking a telephone pole.

Damage to the car was estimated at $500. Hall was unhurt.

Defence counsel Richard contended that Hall had tried his best to avoid hitting the broken road which might have thrown his car completely over. In doing so his wheels left the pavement, and he was unable to bring the car under control again.

Magistrate Gee contended that the accident had occurred because of the condition of the road and was unavoidable under the circumstances the measures Hall had taken to avoid more serious mishap.

City Couple Honored By Nova Scotia Group

Mr. and Mrs. William Jobe residents of Peterborough were honored recently by the Milton Baptist auxiliary of Liverpool, Nova Scotia, who held a special meeting in honor of the Jobe's 50th wedding anniversary. But the couple were not present.

Mr. and Mrs. Jobe visited the auxiliary a number of years ago while guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coombs and since that time have always shown a keen interest in their activities.

Mrs. Coombs brought the greetings of Mr. and Mrs. Jobe who expressed their appreciation and also their regrets that they were not able to be present in person. But said they would be their in spirit.

Mrs. Coombs gave a reading in their honor, summing up the lives of the old couple from their first meeting, when they were six years old, their first day in school, on through their youth, their marriage, their family of four sons and one daughter and finally the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary March 23.

Blind Woman, 94 Flies From West

TORONTO (CP) — A 94-year-old blind woman arrived at Malton airport Monday night after a 6¼-hour plane trip from Saskatoon.

Mrs. Ida Goold said on landing: "Well, my dears, it was a fine trip." She made the journey without any help except from the hostess.

Mrs Kay Goold, her granddaughter-in-law, explained that the old lady had come from her daughter's home in Tisdale to live with her other daughter, Mrs. Robert Tivy, in Cannington, Ont.

Convicted On 2 Charges After Accident

LINDSAY (ENS) — A Toronto salesman, Lloyd Dancey, was convicted of careless driving and failing to report an accident when he appeared in police court here Monday.

The charges arose from an accident on March 15 on the Bobcaygeon highway at the east end of Lindsay.

According to the evidence given by police officers and another witness, Dancey's car, driven by himself and carrying his wife, left the road at the outskirts of town, after failing to negotiate a sharp curve from Queen into the highway.

It had travelled in the ditch for a considerable distance before striking a telephone pole. Then it hit a culvert at a driveway and jumped from the ditch on the east side of the road, travelled to the west side, descended an eleven-foot ditch and came up the other side, resting against a wire fence. Mrs. Dancey, according to evidence, was thrown from the car when it hit the culvert, and Dancey himself suffered deep facial cuts about the eyes, nose and lips. Damage to the car was about $128.

REFUSED TO REPORT

A witness for the crown, Dave Brazier of Lindsay, told the court that his tow-truck had been called to the scene. When he arrived he said he advised Dancey to notify the police, since the damage to his car exceeded $50. Dancey refused to go to police, he said, and also refused to pay towing fees.

The next day, according to Constable John Henley of the town police, Dancey called at the office and asked to be allowed to take his car, which had been towed in at police orders. He gave a statement to police, stating that he had been travelling too fast to negotiate a curve and had gone into the ditch.

Defence counsel W. R. Allen contended that the evidence adduced by the crown was wholly circumstantial, but Magistrate Gee contendd that there was enough to convict of careless driving. He fined Dancey $10 and costs of $22 on the first charge. The same evidence brought a fine of $10 and $17 costs on the second, failing to report the accident "forthwith" as called for in the Highways Traffic Act.

Rotarians Hear Radio Man On Advertising

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Donald Lawrie of Peterborough, a graduate of the Canadian Electronics Institute and a veteran of the naval intelligence service during the war, was guest speaker at the Rotary Club on Monday. He is employeed in th advertising department of radio station CHEX and spoke on advertising.

"Advertising," he said, "whether we believe it or not, affects all of us. No one knows its origin, but we all recognize its scope.

"A man advertises to get more customers for his product, to help keep his present customers, to give his establishment prestige or merely as a good-will gesture.

TAX EXEMPT

"A business man is allowed to exempt advertising costs from his income for tax purposes because they are classed with wages and purchases as a cost of doing business.

"Contrary to the ideas of many people, advertising does not increase the price of an article to the consumer. The effect is usually the reverse. Because of the volume of business created by national advertising campaigns, the manufacturer can produce for less. The first automobile was built at a cost of $19,000.

"Advertising creates volume of business and consequent volume of employment. It is good business for everyone, makes jobs for many and keeps the wheels of industry rolling."

The speaker had various Rotarians read humorous advertisements which were recorded on tape and played back to the club.

Mr. Lawrie was introduced by Rotarian Frank Linton and thanked by President Frank DeCarrol.

Square Dance Contest Winners Perform

BETHANY —(ENS)— A dance in the town hall was sponsored by the local Orange Lodge. There was an exceptionally large attendance.

A party of 20 came from Oshawa and among them were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith, both of whom are 71 years of age and were recent winners in Brading's square dance contest in Oshawa. A special number was played for them and they received hearty applause as they did an old time waltz.

Ernest Youngman called the square dances.

Is this an EXECUTOR?

Time was when many people did think vaguely of an "Executor" as something out of their world . . . a necessity only in settling very large estates.

But what a difference today! Thoughtful people realize that the smaller the estate, the more important that it be expertly administered to make it stretch over the years. The steadily increasing number of such estates placed in our care indicates that our services in this field have won public approval.

One of our Trust Officers will be pleased to discuss plans for your estate with you.

Peterborough's Homogeneous Population

Some time ago we commented on the fact revealed by the 1951 census that Peterborough continues to have a remarkably homogeneous population, as regards racial strains. Of the city's 38,272 people in 1951, 33,083 were of British Isles origin. This is one of the highest ratios in Canada of British stock to others. A glance at the figures for cities of comparable size shows it.

	Total Population	British Isles Origin
Brantford	36,727	26,103
Fort William ..	34,947	17,964
Kingston	33,459	28,411
Kitchener	44,867	14,538
Oshawa	41,545	31,788
Sarnia	34,697	26,262
Sudbury	42,410	15,502
Saskatoon	53,268	31,377

Only in Newfoundland, the Maritime provinces and Quebec is the racial solidarity of Peterborough approached or surpassed. For instance, St. John's (N'fl'd) with a total population of 52,873, had 50,560 of British Isles origin. Three Rivers, with a total of 46,074, had 43,444 of French extraction.

* * *

Another indication of the homogeneity of Peterborough's citizenry has been given by recent Bureau of Statistics census figures, those on immigration. According to what the census-takers discovered, only 4,964 people in Peterborough in 1951 had been born elsewhere than in Canada. All the rest—33,308—were born in Canada. Thus 87.3 per cent. of Peterborough's population was Canadian by birth. Figures for comparably-sized other Canadian cities show that this is a high percentage of Canadian-born to foreign-born (British, American, Hungarian, etc.) Peterborough had 4,964 persons who were immigrants; Brantford had 7,894, Fort William 8,736, Oshawa 8,289, Kitchener, 7,969, Sarnia 5,215, Sudbury 6,657, Saskatoon 12,305. Kingston had a higher percentage than Peterborough of native-born people, for only 4,641 were listed as having emigrated to Canada. In Newfoundland, the Maritimes and Quebec there were high ratios of native-born to foreign-born. St. John's (N'fl'd) had only 1,148 persons not born in Canada (Newfoundland). Three Rivers had only 1,149 foreign-born persons in a population of 46,074.

* * *

Our readers may be interested in the details of Peterborough's 4,964 "immigrants". Of them, 1,286 came to Canada before 1911, 1,215 in the decade 1911-1920, 1,094 in the decade 1921-1930, 207 in the decade 1931-1940, 145 in the five war years 1941-45, and 1,017 between 1946 and the first five months of 1951. Here are their ages in 1951: 565 were 70 or more, 381 were 65-69, 2,799 were in the middle years between 35 and 65, 905 were 20 to 35, and 314 were under 20.

* * *

Thus we have the picture of Peterborough's population as being 86.4 per cent. British Isles stock and 87.3 per cent. Canadian-born. It is an extraordinary homogeneity in an industrial city of this size in Canada. While this solidarity of racial background and Canadian birth and conditioning undoubtedly makes for a stable, integrated and intuitively self-knowledgeable society, one questions whether its uniformity is not too great to ensure the vitality of the place; whether there is sufficient variety in backgrounds, blood and experience to give it hybrid strength as well as colour and emotional poise. When one adds to the uniformity of race and birth the fact that a great majority of Peterborough people were born in Peterborough and schooled here, the inbreeding seems even more intensive.

* * *

The answer to these conjectures is in what Peterborough and its society are. No city in Canada is more socially and politically conservative, yet more solidly progressive. None has provided better for itself (notably in these post-war years) in houses, streets, hospitals, other public buildings, schools, churches and entertainment. And Peterborough people have done it themselves and not at the behest of outsiders; nor have they gone running to governments for subsidies. The city has grown well above the Ontario average since 1941, but it has kept its balance.

* * *

It is apparent that the homogeneity of Peterborough people has been a strength, not a weakness. The stock must therefore be good, must have multiplied favourably and trained and conditioned itself well in a good environment it has developed.

Cornerstones Mislaid

How "well and truly laid" are cornerstones which can be filched a few hours later by pranksters with strong hands? The new Hamilton Art Gallery now abuilding mislaid its cornerstone on Saturday. Some Canadian university halls farther west have also had their cornerstones pilfered shortly after they were declared well and truly laid. It must be disconcerting to the dignitaries laying the stones to have their words given the lie so promptly and effectively. Perhaps they will pay more attention in future to wielding the trowel than to polishing their marmoreal prose. They might take Viscount Alexander as an example; he spent almost as much time laying the stone at Peterborough Civic Hospital as he did in speaking. Went right down on his haunches to do the job, and used the mason's trowel, not the little silver one handed him. When he declared it well and truly laid, it was. Nobody could steal it thereafter.

Architects and builders have long since ceased to have any Biblical faith in cornerstones and cornerstone layers. Hinge their building to one of those amateur jobs? Never; no, never. The function of a cornerstone nowadays is to provide an opportunity for ceremony, sometimes windy, and to stop a hole in a wall. Not for a moment do we believe that the new Hamilton Art Gallery will shatter and fall even if it never gets its cornerstone back.

Symbolism At Ottawa

Apparently there has been a rumour in Ottawa that the large Eddy plant in Hull was to be moved to another position; this has been authoritatively denied. We understand, however, that the Government's plans for the beautification of Ottawa include the removal of this large lumber mill at some distant future date.

It cannot be too distant for our taste. As we have shown many times in these columns, we are strongly sympathetic toward the beautification of Ottawa, for we want Canada to have the finest capital that can be devised. But we have long admired the view from the terrace behind the Parliament buildings, which looks across the river toward Hull and which has, as one of its most prominent features, the huge accumulation of logs at the Eddy plant. In that scene we have two of the elements which have made Canada great—a great river, and a log-boom. And just as Britain's Lord Chancellor sits on a woolsack because wool is one of the bulwarks of British finance, we think it appropriate and symbolic that the gardens and the hushed chambers of our Parliament should look out upon the river and the logs.

The beautification of a city consists, to a great extent, of the removal of whatever is mean and unworthy. Mean streets, rickety and misshapen buildings and dowdy wastelands—these may fittingly be widened, razed and converted into gardens. But there is nothing mean or unworthy about the biggest log-boom that visitors to Canada, and the majority of Canadians, will ever see. It is as Canadian as the wheatfields, the orchards, or the fishing fleets; it is more Canadian than the vast forest from which it came.

Not everyone will share our fondness for this spectacle, and we have no doubt that in time the log-boom will be cleared away and a park or something of the sort put where the big factory now stands. But so long as it is there, we shall trudge up Parliament Hill to take a look at it whenever we are in Ottawa.

Relief Freely Given

The seas subsided which laid waste great reaches of the British, Dutch and Belgian coasts and took a grievous toll of life and property. Now the coasts are recovering their features and contentment, thanks to great personal and governmental efforts in the countries affected, and to generous material help from tens of thousands of outsiders. The work of reclamation and reconstruction is well in hand.

On this page today we print a facsimile of a letter of thanks written by Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, and addressed to those who came to Holland's aid. We print it here because it carries the Dutch people's thanks to, among others many of our readers. They contributed to the Governor General's Flood Relief Fund and through other agencies assisted the distressed Dutch. Money and material went from this district, directly and indirectly, through the banks to this Fund, through the Red Cross, and through various churches at their central offices. Peterborough people has always shown sensitivity to other people in distress and a generous eagerness to help. It is a good characteristic.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A recent tornado in the U.S. blew one man out of his overcoat, and lifted another into a graveyard without hurting him. Practical jokers, these tornadoes.

At a Dublin festival designed to welcome visitors to Eire there was a fight which sent some to the hospitals and others to jail. But it was strictly a family affair; the visitors were treated with the usual Irish courtesy.

The American Scene:

Prison Scoop For TV

By KENNETH HARRIS

UNTIL a few days ago if anybody had asked me what had been the most striking television programme I had seen in the United States, I think I would have named the wonderful coverage of the Atomic Explosion at Yucca Flats on March 17. Now, however, I have changed my mind.

The other afternoon I was sitting in front of a television set when I heard and saw the announcer say, "And now we are taking you to the jail, Dubuque, Iowa, where our correspondent, Jack Angell, is going to interview Marine Fred McManus who is being held there pending trial for the murder of five persons." Next moment we were all in jail, watching Mr. Angell, microphone in hand, leaning on the door of the cell, while Fred McManus, a good-looking youngster of eighteen, with his head sticking out through the bars, began to answer questions.

The interview, in which the boy explained how and why — in so far as the poor twisted mind of him could — he had shot these innocent people, lasted about five minutes. It was, of course, a tremendous tele-scoop, and though a news agency tried to get a counter-scoop the next day by getting permisison to run a temporary telephone line into the jail so that its correspondent could interview the boy by telephone, the tele-interview with a confessed murderer goes down in history as one more feather in the telemen's already feathered-teeming cap.

THEY SAY over here that the best rough guide to the state of the American economy is a look at the motor-car market. I have been trying for four weeks to sell my motor-car. I have now sold it. At least, they tell me I have sold it. My own opinion is that I have given it away for a slight consideration.

My car is in very good condition. A friend of mine bought in new in 1950 for a little over two thousand dollars. He sold it to me a year and eight months ago for 1,300 dollars —a bargain from my point of view. If I traded it in to a dealer and bought a new one, I could get somewhere between 1,100 and 1,200 dollars allowance on it. The dealer would re-sell it for 995 or perhaps 1,050 dollars.

I do not want a new car, however, since I am returning to Britain shortly. So the dealer from whom it was bought three years ago will give me — oh boy! wait for it — five hundred dollars.

* * *

AFTER ADVERTISING, talking about motor-cars to all my friends, and ringing up everybody I ever heard of who might like to buy one, I have persuaded a solid but not very enthusiastic citizen of this great republic to fork out 795 dollars for it. And in order to get him to come and see, I had to offer him a drink, which meant going out and buying a bottle of both gin and Scotch, to make sure I did not upset him by offering him what he didn't want, and lose him.

As it is, he wanted a new cover on the front seat, and a new mat on the floor. Then he said he thought his wife wouldn't like the colour, which was grey, and wondered how much it would cost me to have it repainted. I persuaded him that his wife might like grey — it is a very feminine colour — and urged him to let us both drive round to his wife's house, taking what remained of the bottle of Scotch in order to get her in the right frame of mind.

So here I am with 795 dollars, less about thirty dollars for advertising, fifteen dollars for a seat cover, ten dollars for a mat, twenty-five dollars for my 1953-54 licence, which I have to take out even though I needed it for only ten days and on which I get no rebate, ten dollars for greasing, cleaning and odd jobs to make it look smart, plus goodness knows how many dollars I shall have to pay to the doctor for keeping me in sufficient mental health to be able to negotiate and, finally, two dollars to a little man who has to "notarise" the exchange of title.

If the motor-car market really is a rough guide to the American economy — "rough" is right — then the American economy doesn't look in too good shape.

PARTICULARLY in those countries which have somehow to increase their labour force, the question of how the older worker regards the prospect of retirement is a very important one. A group at Columbia University (New York) has just reported the conclusions of a long and wide programme of research into this subject.

The young industrial worker, they report, nearly always looks forward to retiring from his job. The elderly industrial worker, however, generally tries to put off retirement for as long as possible, mainly because his work brings him the bulk of the social contacts which give character and direction to his life, which, in fact, make his life worth living.

* * *

I HAVE JUST SEEN in the Washington Evening News a reader's definition of some of the more prominent "isms" which are discussed from time to time on the American continent. They are as follows:

SOCIALISM (British and Scandinavian variety)—You have two cows; you give one to your neighbour.

COMMUNISM—You have two cows and give both to the government and the government gives you some of the milk.

FASCISM—You keep both cows and give the milk to the government and the government sells part of it back to you.

NAZISM—The government shoots you and takes the cows.

NEW DEALISM (Policies of Roosevelt Administration) — The government shoots one cow, milks the other dry and pours the milk down the sewer.

AMERICANISM—You keep both the cows and give a reasonable proportion of the milk to the government to insure your undisturbed right of ownership.

ONE of the most diverting features of the American popular newspaper is its habit of putting a snappy eye-arresting headline of the kind usually associated with a big hot news story on to a quite leisurely discursive essay or article. I came across a delightful piece recently describing how Queen Elizabeth would distribute silver to the poor on Maundy Thursday (April 2) — a ceremony commemorating the ancient custom of washing the feet of the poor and giving them gifts. This was the heading: "Elizabeth Gives to Poor — Won't Wash Their Feet,"

SO FAR President Eisenhower's only recreation has been golf. One of the things that has struck his staff about his game is that, though his performance is not particularly striking, he gets through it in remarkably short time, a round which would normally take three-and-a-half hours takes him well under two-and-a-half.

This week they have discovered the secret of this record-breaking speed: all the time the President is moving along the links, two of his Secret Service guards are well ahead of him, one on each side of the fairway. Though their job is to detect potential assassins, they naturally notice where the President's ball drops. Recently the President remarked, "Well, there's one thing about being President of the United States: you don't have to waste time looking for lost golf balls."

LATEST GADGET on America motor-cars: an electric eye which when spot-lighted at night by the headlights of an approaching motor-car automatically dips the headlights of its own motor-car, and keeps them dipped so long as a certain degree of approaching light continues to shine on it.

THE PRINCE'S THANKS

B

Soestdijk, 31th March 1953

To the friends of the Netherlands -

Next to our solemn thanks to the Almighty, Who did not forsake us in that fatal night, we wish to express our deep-felt thanks to our friends all over the world who hastened to our rescue with their sympathy, their material aid and their personal help to enable us to loosen the grip of the water on the inundated areas of the Netherlands.

Our country had hardly recovered from the damage caused by the war when, one cold night, the waters suddenly swept over our south-western districts in a rush of terror, suffering and death.

You came to us in prompt assistance and support in overwhelming abundance, continued for many weeks, in answer to the appeal: Inundation in the Netherlands!

The waters have not yet receded from the devastated areas but the first results of the repair work are already visible. Rescue workers of many nationalities are standing shoulder to shoulder and, together with our men and women, they plug the gaps in sea and river walls. We have learned the truth of the proverb: a friend in need is a friend indeed - and we have many friends!

As President of the National Disaster Fund I must convey to you the heart-felt thanks of the Netherlands people for your friendship. It has deeply touched the whole nation.

Death of Dr. Joad

By PHILIP TOYNBEE

IN HIS STRANGE way Cyril Joad (who died April 9th at the age of sixty-one) was a figure who belonged intimately to his own time. He began life as a moderately successful academic philosopher, telling his students not about "the truth," but about what other and greater philosophers had decided about the truth. It was his job to explain that Plato, Aristotle and Descartes had written, not to recommend what he himself believed. This is a strange role for any man, and it must have been a peculiarly irksome one for so flamboyant a teacher as Dr. Joad.

When he became a foundation member of the original B.B.C. (British Broadcasting Corporation) Brains Trust, he also became the British public's neatly simplified notion of the intellectual. It must be admitted that his beard helped. But his great merit on that excellent programme was that he continually and incisively demanded that his colleagues should express themselves in a way which was both logical and intelligible. His phrase, "It all depends on what you mean by . . ." became a war-time joke, yet it was also recognized as a sensible prerequisite to discussion.

Nothing could have suited Joad better than to be the eccentric philosopher for the British public, and he performed admirably in this role. He had no philosophic originality, but he was, in the best sense, a philosophical popularizer. That is to say that Joad never presented a point of view in order to please his listeners with it. He pleased them by his confident assumption that they would understand his illuminated common-sense, even when it led them into fields of speculation with which they were quite unfamiliar.

Nothing could have been sadder than the all-too-human accident which removed him from the microphone. He made the mistake, on a West Country train, of trying to travel beyond the stated limit of his ticket. Because he was a left-wing figure, and a professor of moral philosophy, his misdemeanour became headline news, and he was ruined as publicist of "the good life." It contribtued to his destruction that he was a confessed sensualist, who never denied that he enjoyed the pleasure of life.

An avowed disciple of Shaw and Well, Joad had been, until four or five years ago, a defiant atheist of a rather simple-minded sort. His conversion to Anglican Christianity was sudden, and, like most of his actions, dramatic. But to anybody who read his apologia, it was clearly an intense and genuine change of heart. One of the most striking things about Joad's conversion was that he never made use of the fact that his doctor had already condemned him. He had known for several years that he was going to die of an incurable disease, and under the appalling strain of this knowledge, he behaved like a good Christian, or, for that matter, like a good Pagan.

Joad was a lively conversationalist and a good companion. His death will not deprive us of any great unwritten work, but it is also true that there is nobody to take his place. He was an important intermediary between the public and the intellectuals, and a great part of our present social trouble springs from the fact that there are so few intermediaries of Joad's quality. A foolish politician, an unoriginal philosopher, a confused, though honest man, he was unique as a midwife for other peoples' ideas. He will be missed.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

I, even I, am the Lord; and beside me there is no saviour. I have declared, and have saved, and I have shewed, when there was no strange god among you: therefore ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, that I am God. (Isa. 43: 11, 12.)

* * *

Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw night to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double minded. (James 4: 7,8.)

* * *

For we know that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal, sold under sin. For that which I do I allow not: for what I would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I . . . Now then it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me. (Rom. 7: 14,15,17.)

Letters To The Editor

ENJOYS IRRITATION

Sir: I noted with interest your remarks about syndicated Editorials. It is obvious of course that you don't even intend the idea to be considered seriously. The vanity of editors is well known. In any case what human would relinquish without a struggle the opportunity to present his opinions to the world, especially when he shares with Royalty the right to use the first person plural "we" thereby suggesting that the opinion expressed is also held by others. Besides such editorials would of necessity deal with broad topics like World Affairs, the Atom, etc., while most readers are more interested in the state of the Buckhorn Road or what happened to the $2.50 they gave to the Memorial Centre ten years ago. No sir, no syndicated Editorials please— Peterborough needs its Parish Pump!

Easter was marked in your paper by the printing of two illustrations on the Resurrection theme, both in my opinion extremely depressing and ill-chosen. I suppose I ought to like the Durer print on the general principle that anything that is old must be good, but the cherubs with heads and wings but no bodies, or the attitudes of the soldiers reminding one of drunkenness rather than fear, together with the ungraceful central figure, certainly do not induce any but feelings of irritation in this reader.

The modern I liked even less. A crude mixture of Grandma Moses and Salvador Dali with little of grace or beauty to commend it.

I have no desire to see your paper full of frisky lambs and Easter eggs but surely there are illustrators working (perhaps even on your own staff) who could produce something, perhaps not so "clever" but more in keeping with the beauty of the Easter theme.

Despite the general tone of this letter I would hasten to add that I like your editorials, and enjoy being irritated by your attempts to raise my artistic standards.

Your truly,
ROSA DARTLE.

Won't Interfere In Strike: Gregg

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is not planning to bring disputants in Vancouver's grain-elevator strike to Ottawa now, Labor Minister Gregg said in the Commons Monday.

"I do not think at this time that would be of value, he told Howard Green (PC-Vancouver Quadra).

The 250 employees of five elevator companies at Vancouver and New Westminster have been on strike eight weeks, tying up grain-loading facilities at the port.

Mr. Gregg today gave the House a review of latest developments in the dispute, including the employees' Saturday rejection of a labor department proposal for arbitration of some of the points at issue.

The minister said his department is continuing efforts to bring the parties together.

Visibility And Invisibility Problems For War In Arctic

By RENNIE TAYLOR

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — How can you make a man invisible, or nearly so, against a background of arctic snow which is so glaringly white that a white-clad or white painted object shows up as a shadow?

And how can you make a man visible in an arctic "white-out"—a pall of frozen fog which limits sight to a few feet?

In search of the answers, Researchers at the University of California have rigged up an instrument which can detect a human being 100 feet away by the amount of heat his body gives off.

The instrument is an offshoot of the wartime "snooperscopes" and "sniperscopes" which made tiny amounts of infra-red or heat radiation visible. The Germans used them to detect their enemies working under cover of darkness. Toward the end of the last war the United States also developed such an instrument.

The gadget produced here was made for a research team including Prof. R. V. Dunkle, J. T. Gier, A. J. Test and J. T. Bevans. They are working on a phase of the arctic survival problem assigned by the snow, ice and permafrost research establishment of the army corps of engineers.

Infra-red rays given off by objects, visible or invisible, are broken down into their component wave lengths by a rock-salt crystal. This breakdown tells the experimenters whether material such as clothing, paint or metal radiates too much or not enough for a given purpose, and whether anything can be done to regulate its heat loss by radiation.

For camouflage or invisibility they look for materials that will radiate at a minimum in cold weather. For arctic "white-outs" they want something that will radiate enough to make a person visible in the frozen fog.

Jail 505 Merchants

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The national price control agency says 505 merchants have been jailed in the government's crackdown on alleged price ceiling violators. The campaign began April 9 when President Juan Peron put new price ceilings into effect and ordered strict enforcement. The move followed a 50-per-cent jump in food prices during the previous two weeks.

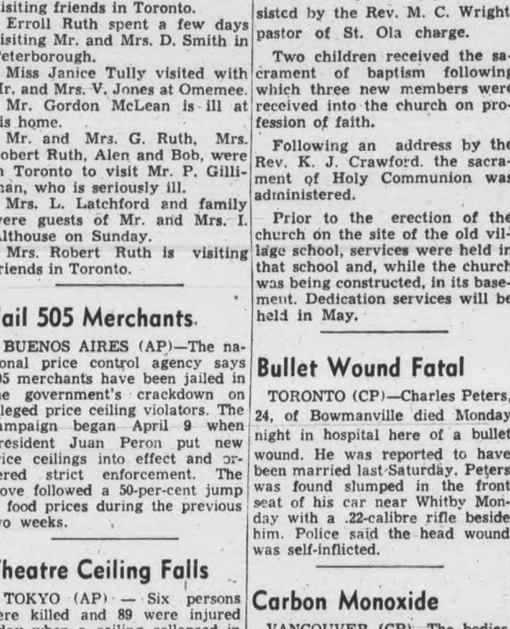
First Services Held In New Church

MARMORA —(ENS) —The new Gilmour United Church was well filled on Sunday afternoon for its opening service conducted by the Rev. K. J Crawford, BA, BD, of Marmora, supervising pastor, assisted by the Rev. M. C. Wright, pastor of St. Ola charge.

Two children received the sacrament of baptism following which three new members were received into the church on profession of faith.

Following an address by the Rev. K. J. Crawford, the sacrament of Holy Communion was administered.



Prior to the erection of the church on the site of the old village school, services were held in that school and, while the church was being constructed, in its basement. Dedication services will be held in May.

Bullet Wound Fatal

TORONTO (CP)—Charles Peters, 24, of Bowmanville died Monday night in hospital here of a bullet wound. He was reported to have been married last Saturday. Peters was found slumped in the front seat of his car near Whitby Monday with a .22-calibre rifle beside him. Police said the head wound was self-inflicted.

Carbon Monoxide

VANCOUVER (CP)—The bodies of a man and woman, victims of carbon monoxide poisoning, were found in Vancouver's Stanley Park Monday. Police said the victims were Anita Simister, 20-year-old mother of three children, and 37-year-old Leonard Keast. The car's exhaust pipe was broken when it was backed against a rock and fumes apparently seeped into the car.

Market Price Determines Damage Amount

TORONTO (CP)—Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court reaffirmed Monday a Supreme Court of Canada decision that "the market price of goods determines the measure of damages and not the cost price to the shipper."

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Edwin Fagan of Kingston were found by a Kingston jury to be 25 per cent negligent in their collision with a Kingston Transport Limited truck and trailer on No. 2 highway, 13 miles east of Kingston April 30, 1952. But they will have to pay $6,947 damages to the transport company which was found 75 per cent negligent.

Chief Justice McRuer assessed the transport company's damages at $27,787. Mr. Fagan's damages were set at $530 and Mrs. Fagan's at $407. Each party sued the other in the action.

The jury found that Donat Proulx, driver of the truck, was largely to blame for the accident.

Art Gallery Cornerstone Found In Dundas Creek

HAMILTON (CP)—Saturday, in a fitting ceremony, the cornerstone of Hamilton's new art gallery was laid before a crowd of civic dignitaries.

Saturday night, with little ceremony, the 220-pound block of granite was tossed into a creek at nearby Dundas.

The missing stone was discovered Monday by Robert Marshall. It was resting in about three feet of water. Hamilton police have it under guard until a second laying ceremony can be arranged.

However, D. C. Barber, chairman of the art gallery, said the second "laying" would not be public. He said every precaution will be taken to see that it is not stolen a second time.

Police said they thought the theft Saturday night was either the work of a prankster or someone who had a spite against the builders.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A piece we had in this pillar Saturday on distance running of years ago in Peterborough brought back fond memories to Charlie Telford, who took part in the 10-mile races around 1911-12-13. He recalled the gruelling grinds "away back when" as strictly amateurs. Charlie would like to see these races revived this fall and is willing to help in any way, as coach, etc., if there are enough fellows here interested. Older chaps wanting to see the sport re-organized and younger guys wanting to compete might contact him by phoning 2-5908 any evening between 6.30 and 8.00. This is the time to get started if a meet is to be staged in the autumn.

Stanley Cup finals resume tonight in Boston with the fourth game of the best-of-seven set, Canadiens now leading by 2-1. Fifth fray will be back in Montreal on Thursday. The surprising Bruins, who knocked out the favored Detroit Wings 4-2 in semi-finals, may upset the classy Canadiens, which would make Dit Clapper of this borough most happy. George (Red) Sullivan didn't see action in the last tilt but may be on the ice tonight. The strategy of Coaches Lynn Patrick and Dick Irvin is in a state of flux from game to game, so the Ashburnham redhead is quite likely to be in there again before this hot series is over. A great competitor, Red hates to sit out any game.

Culture In Boston, Eh?

Scribe Baz O'Meara writes in the Montreal Star: "Boston is a most interesting spot. It has a rabid hockey following who, when excited, have a habit of tearing chairs off their moorings, hurling them from the top gallery, while playfully punctuating the performance by tossing lead slugs or rivets. They are courteous enough not to heat the rivets with matches, a concession to the culture that hems them in when they leave the Gardens. There was a time in the long ago when they used to hurl beefsteaks on the ice. A good round steak could be had then for a trifle, perhaps four bits or so, and they were expendable, as the old bean and cod was the favored dish of the multitude."

Manager Shockey Mein and Coach Howie Dalton of the local junior entry — known as Liflocs — in the Lakeshore Baseball League expect to hold nightly workouts from now on, if the weather is okay. The season opens in another month and there's a lot of weeding out of prospects at these open workouts and then plenty of training to start the squad off in top shape. Some good material here and this team was knocking off some of the better intermediate clubs in the circuit regularly toward the end of the season. Showing how interested the boys are, pitcher Jerry Frizzelle last fall had Frank Whitehouse out showing him a type of straight drop which the former pro southpaw used years ago to good effect. Jerry will try that out this summer.

Petes Make Application

As mentioned elsewhere tonight, the senior ball Petes are taking in a Port Hope meeting Thursday to apply for entry in the Lakeshore League. Local junior club is in now. Seniors hold an open meeting at 7.30 tomorrow eve in the "Y" to discuss plans if the entry is accepted. While they'd have to enter as a senior club and later go into senior playdowns, this schedule would supply them and fans with some good competition for three months or so. As a matter of fact, the Petes might find other clubs in the lakeshore setup plenty tough as the locals haven't too many seasoned seniors available this semester. Anyway, they'll discuss all angles of it at the Wednesday huddle.

Annual OLA meeting is Saturday in Toronto and after that there'll be plenty of lacrosse chatter. Senior clubs have been playing it close to the vest for the past few months as they try to line up top talent for the campaign opening in May. A couple of proposed amendments to the OLA constitution call for moving the last day for signing players up from Aug. 15 to Aug. 1, and making July 15 the last date in which any player may be released. They also suggest changing the date for the residence rule from May 1 to March 1, to take effect in 1954. Another suggestion is that a player in 10 senior games cannot play for another senior club that year. Some of these proposals may cause considerable argument when tabled.

Senior Ball Petes Apply To Lakeshore League For Play In '53 Schedule

The Peterborough senior baseball club will have representatives at Port Hope meeting of the Lakeshore League executive Thursday night to seek entry into this circuit. Meantime, the Petes are holding an open meeting at 7.30 Wednesday night in the YMCA to discuss such an entry. At a local meeting last week, players present were reluctant to suspend operations for this year without seeking some loop in which to play. The outcome was that Cy Whatley phoned President Roy Dodge of the Lakeshore League and was advised to make application in person at the next league executive meeting. It will then be up to the executive and representatives of all the clubs whether or not the local senior entry will be accepted.

Peterborough juniors (known as the Liflocs) have already been accepted for this year, after playing in the Lakeshore League last summer. Oshawa is expected to field either one or two teams in the circuit this year, while Whitby, Bowmanville, Colborne, Cobourg, Port Hope and Lindsay are other starters. Play will commence by the middle of May.

If the senior Petes are accepted, they will have to take a bye into senior "A" playdowns after the league schedule is over. Other teams in the league will play intermediate "A" and "B" and one or two will later go into junior "A" playdowns. The circuit is affiliated with the Ontario Baseball Association.

The senior Petes' trouble so far this spring is that they have no league in which to play, though they also need a certain amount of rebuilding among players to field a contending club again, after taking the COBL crown last year. They have lost a number of good players since.

LOOP SUSPENDS

The COBL is suspending operations this year after going along with a three-club loop in 1952. Latest reports are that Kingston and Belleville, along with Smiths Falls and Brockville, will play in a border league this summer with three U.S.A. teams, Watertown, Pine Camp (an Army team) and Carthage, N.Y. Meantime, Oshawa has been accepted into the Intercounty League. The TABA circuits don't want any out-of-town teams this year. There has been some talk of a revival of the Bay of Quinte League to include Point Anne, Napanee, Trenton and Picton, with possibly a junior club in from Belleville.

Black's Victors In Bowling For City League

Black's captured the championship of the Girls' City Bowling League last night, finishing up the schedule with 57 points, six more than the runners-up Cardinals, the latter having just one point more than Arcos, third-place money winner. They were followed by Marines with 48, Bassel's 41, Curtin's 39, Collis 37, Aces 34, Austin's 27, and Sevenaires 22. Prizes will be given at the windup dinner April 20.

Cardinals led teams on the last night of the bowling season with 3105 pinnage and a single high of 1135. B. Morrow had best individual single of 295 and A. Stinson led lasses in triples with 702. The blind score of 546 was tied by H. Wilson and F. Kokesh, who hit that count exactly.

WHITEWASH DABS

Arcos blanked Marines, Cardinals whitewashed Austin's, while 2-1 victories were racked up by Aces over Curtin's, Black's against Collis, and by Bassel's over the Sevenaires.

Good singles were: B. Morrow 295, B. Pogue 285, M. Selkirk 278, D. Mason 274, A. Stinson 272, and R. Akers 262 neat threesoms included A. Stinson 702, M. Selkirk 675, B. Morrow 663, J. Castle 660, and J. Snape with 656.

Toronto Group Plans Association With OBA

TORONTO (CP)—Walter Young, president of the Toronto Amateur Baseball Association, announced Monday his association will affiliate its senior series with the Ontario Baseball Association for the current season.

Young said the association felt the OBA affiliation was necessary for the dual purpose of protecting Toronto players and also making it legal for Toronto senior clubs to play either league or exhibition games with OBA senior clubs Young said Toronto senior clubs will not be obliged to enter the OBA playdowns unless they so desire by July 15.

Pair Ruled Off Tracks For Life

TORONTO (CP)—Harry Swartz and Jon Perron, former jockey and jockey's agent, were ruled off Ontario tracks for life Monday by the Ontario racing commission.

Perron was described as "Mr. Fix-It" in the Ontario racing scandal, working with Swartz to fix races by bribing jockeys. They both were fined and sentenced to jail terms following the breaking of a jockey ring during the Fort Erie meeting in 1951.

Watson Not Optimistic About Finals

TORONTO (CP)—Phil Watson, fiery coach of Quebec Citadelles, doesn't give his team much hope in its Eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals against Barrie Flyers.

The best-of-seven series, which opens here tonight, will be wrapped up in four straight games, Watson predicts.

"I had some scouting done on the Barrie-St. Mikes series and I hear we're not in the same class," the former New York Ranger forward moaned. In that series the Flyers eliminated Toronto St. Michael's 5-3 in the best-of-nine series for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A title.

Watson praised Hap Emms, Barrie coach.

Said Watson: "That Hap Emms is the greatest coach junior hockey ever produced. He should be in the National Hockey League, although it would be a great loss to junior hockey."

EMMS' PUPILS

Watson mentioned Jerry Toppazzini, Jim Morrison, Leo Labine and Real Chevrefils, all now with NHL teams, whom Emms developed with his 1950-51 Memorial Cup Barrie team.

Emms, obviously surprised by Phil's complimentary statements, snapped back: "I think that's ridiculous and so does he."

"Phil Watson and I have never been close at any time. The last time he was in Barrie he said his players would take on mine one by one and that he'd take on me," Emms said.

"Something is radically wrong here. I feel lucky to be in Barrie. I've had no national or American League offer."

CHALLENGES RIGHT

Emms challenged Quebec's right to be in the Eastern Canada final. "They've won nothing. We shouldn't even be playing them."

He was referring to the unorthodox fashion in which the Citadelles reached Memorial Cup play.

Suspended, together with the entire Quebec branch of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association during a player dispute, the Citadelles withdrew from their outlawed league and applied for reinstatement in the CAHA.

Although they finished second in their group and were engaged in the finals against the first-place Montreal junior Canadiens when they pulled out, the CAHA allowed them to proceed in the junior playoff.

Watson reported that physically the colorful Citadelles are in good shape after a soft series against Timmins - Porcupine Combines, Northern Ontario Hockey Association junior A champions.

"Our chief worry is the lack of competition," he said.

Major Baseball Leagues Now Commence Playing For Keeps

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Major league baseball clubs take off their spring training wraps and start playing for keeps today after giving their newest partner, Milwaukee Braves, a one-game head start.

About 225,000 fans are expected to sit in on the eight opening games. The weatherman predicts passable conditions everywhere.

The return of big league baseball to Milwaukee after 50 years is expected to draw a sellout crowd of 36,011, considerably above anything else in the National League

The Braves came to their new home after beating Cincinnati 2-0 Monday in a National League preview. The American League half of the special opening program between Washington and the world champion New York Yankees in the United States capital was rained out.

AUSPICIOUS START

Veteran Max Surkont and rookie Bill Bruton got Milwaukee off to an auspicious start.

Surkont held the Redlegs to three hits—two ground-rule doubles and a single—and contributed a double and a single to the Milwaukee attack. Bruton singled to open the game, stole second and scored the first run. Later he doubled and twice he snared long drives.

Lefty Warren Spahn, who lost to Brooklyn by one run in the Braves' opener last year, drew the home assignment against the Cards' Gerry Staley.

The washout in Washington cost Vice-President Nixon his chance to toss out the first ball. President Eisenhower said Monday night he would be back for the rescheduled Washington opener Thursday. Eisenhower left for a golfing holiday in Georgia and had tossed the opening day job to Nixon.

BIG CLEVELAND CROWD

Today's largest crowd, some 50,000, was expected at Cleveland to watch the Indians and Chicago White Sox, the two clubs figured to have the best chance of ending the Yankees' four-year reign in the American League. Bob Lemon got the opening nod against Saul Rogovin.

Casey Stengel raises his fourth pennant at Yankee Stadium and then sends his charges into action against Philadelphia Athletics, Vic Raschi facing Alex Kellner.

At Boston, the Red Sox meet Washington. Mel Parnell goes against Bob Porterfield.

Ned Garver, who shut out Detroit while wearing a St. Louis uniform in last year's opener, will try to reverse the trick this time in the only night game on today's schedule. Garver was traded to the Tigers early last season. Virgil Trucks will open for St. Louis.

JUGGLE SCHEDULE

The Boston-to-Milwaukee shift juggled the opening day schedule in the National League and brought Pittsburgh Pirates into Ebbets Field, home of Brooklyn Dodgers. The Dodgers, heavy choice to win their second straight flag, started the chase with Carl Erskine on the mound against Murry Dickson.

Just as in the American League, the two teams the experts pick to challenge the current champion start the season by meeting each other. New York Giants, Larry Jansen pitching, face the Phillies in Philadelphia. Robin Roberts, a 28-game winner last year, will go after No. 1 of the 1953 season.

Cincinnati pits lefty Ken Raffensberger against Bob Rush and Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field.

St. Boniface 8-5 Favorites

WINNIPEG (CP)—St. Boniface Canadiens will be about 8-5 favorites to make it three straight when they meet Lethbridge Native Sons tonight in their best-of-seven series of the Western Memorial Cup hockey final.

Back in their own backyard after two wins at Lethbridge, Bryan Hextall's Canadiens are injury free, while the Sons still are struggling along without three regular defencemen.

Canadiens, who arrived back in Winnipeg Monday morning, went through a brisk one-hour workout Monday night at the Amphitheatre, scene of the remaining games. Buster Stewart, coach of the Canadiens' juvenile club, put the team through the paces while Hextall went straight to his Poplar Point, Man., home.

ONLY ABSENTEE

Defenceman Ron Heindl was the only player absentee from the practice. Manager Larry Desjardins said Heindl was "a little peeved" at being left off the line-up in the games at Lethbridge.

Coach Butch McDonald sent his Native Sons through a light skating workout shortly after they arrived in Winnipeg.

He had little comment, other than:

"We've got to work hard now. We're behind the eight-ball."

McDonald said Howie Yanosik one of his injured defencemen, is back on skates, but still is wearing a partial cast on his broken ankle and is not expected to play.

The other two, Don Smith, with a broken ankle, and Gerry Sorenson, with a broken wrist, are definitely non-starters.

Vancouver Takes Lead

TORONTO (CP) — Defending champion Vancouver Eilers Monday night took a 1-0 lead in a best-of-five Canadian senior women's basketball championship final by downing Toronto Benn's Maids 60-38.

GERRY McNEIL, Canadiens' goal tender, returned to Stanley Cup action Sunday night at Boston and came up with a 3-0 shutout which sends the Habs into a 2-1 game lead. The teams clash at Boston again tonight and return here Thursday. McNeil is shown in this wirephoto kicking aside a shot (arrow indicates puck) from Johnny Peirson in Sunday night's third period. Rocket Richard is on the far left with Butch Bouchard alongside him.

Aces, Trojans Get Wins In "Y" League

Semi-finals of the YMCA Floor Hockey League played on the high school floor last night resulted in keen contests. Trojans won over the Friday Night Club by 9-6, while Aces cashed in on Huskies' penalties to win 10-4, the games being closer than the counts indicate.

The first was a wide-open game with better shooting on the part of former ice hockey players in the Trojans' lineup making the difference They led 2-1 in the first period, each side scoring two in the second, but Trojans finishing stronger. Banks and Heffernan scored three each for them, Hill getting two and Caddigan one. Northcott led the losers with three, as Eastman, Williamson and King got singles. Teams:

Trojans: Hill, Caddigan, Payne, Heffernan, Magee, Sheeham, Banks, Kirkwood.

Fri. Night Club: Huffman, Northcott, McGibbon, Crossman, Eastman, Cordell, Williamson, King, Wallace.

SECOND GAME

Penalties spelled disaster for Huskies in the second tilt. With Burns chased, and then Dundas, Aces struck hard to cash in on the shorthanded Huskies and rap in five quick markers. Joe Pearson played an outstanding game in goal for them. Aces led 6-1 in the first period, they outscored their rivals 2-1 next heat, while the teams divided four goals evenly in the third. Seabrook and Belsey led the winners with three each, Longo having two, and Mongraw and Noble one each. Burns banged in three for Huskies, and Rowley got the other. Teams:

Aces: Belsey, Longo, Mongraw, Pearson, Noble, Seabrook.

Huskies: Brooks, Rowley, Rice, Twist, Dundas, Burns, Speirs, Marino.

Ontario Boy Promising Tiger Rookie

LAKELAND, Fla. (CP)—Peter Gazzola of South Porcupine, Ont., is one of the more promising young hurlers now training at Tigertown, the camp here where rookies of the Detroit Tiger farm system learn their inside baseball.

Gazzola is currently on the Jamestown roster, but he may not pitch for the class D Pony League team as numerous player shifts are expected among the Tiger farm clubs before the season opens.

Gazzola, a husky youngster, will be 20 in October. He was born in Italy but moved with his family to South Porcupine in 1937. His father, Angelo, works in a gold mine there.

Gazzola, like most Canadian boys, grew up on the hockey rink and gave up the sport only this winter. He played baseball in the summer and late last summer reported to the Tiger tryout camp in Detroit—the tryout being arranged by sportswriter Dory McMullen.

ATTRACTS LOWE'S EYE

Gazzola soon attracted the eye of Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, former Tiger pitching great and now in charge of the Tiger scouting system. Rowe worked with the youngster and Gazzola was signed to a contract and assigned to Jamestown.

Gazzola was given added attention when he reported at Tigertown early this month. Said Rowe of the Ontario righthander: "He's a good young prospect with a live fast ball and a delivery like Ewell Blackwell. I think he might become a real good pitcher after a couple of years of seasoning."

Gazzola, six-feet, 1½ inches tall and weighing 184 pounds, is a right-handed thrower and batter. Tiger observers seem certain he can't miss.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Monarchs won the Memorial Cup and the Canadian junior hockey championship 18 years ago tonight by beating Sudbury Wolves 4-1 at Winnipeg, in the deciding game of the best-of-three final. Winnipeg won the first game 7-6, and Sudbury took the second by 7-2.

Hermann Tackles Irish Strongman

Hans Hermann, the strutting German, will face stern opposition in the feature wrestling bout at the Brock Arena here on Wednesday night, when he mets Timothy Geohagen, the Irish strongman.

The big, rugged Hermann, with his Prussian Squeeze may find Geohagen's amazing strength and Irish Sleeper grip too much for him.

The Siamese foot fighters will be an added attraction on the same card. These Oriental fighters are permitted to use fists, knees, feet and elbows in combat. In fact there are no fouls of any kind in this hardy competition.

The first match will be Pat Flanagan against a newcomer, Ben Sherman.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

The other day we happened across a reminder that February 10 was the 15th anniversary of the occasion on which Aurel Joliat played his 700th game for Canadiens in the National Hockey League.

Could this be a mis-print? we wondered. For 700 games is a lot of hockey games. Was it possible that a sickly little fellow, whose ailing stomach often revolted at food, whose weight dropped down, on occasion, to a puny 135 pounds, could have survived that long in a gruelling, hard-hitting game played mostly by men whose weight ranged, on the average, from 160 to beyond 200? Was it possible that starting in the days of 24-game schedules, he could have squeezed in that much competition?

Yes, all this was possible. For Aurel Joliat was one of the wonders of hockey. He came into the N.H.L. in 1922, a virtual unknown. On Canadiens' roster was Newsy Lalonde, famous from coast to coast, a player of tremendous craft and skill, whose feats were legion, his name a household word. And so, when it was announced, in the summer of 1922, that Canadiens had traded the great Lalonde to the Saskatchewan club for an unknown youngster, whose only hockey experience had been in the junior ranks, the sports world was stunned, unbelieving. It seemed impossible. But then, as it turned out, everything about Joliat seemed impossible.

From the start, this little pale-faced left-winger, who invariably wore a black peaked cap pulled over his eyes, was sensational. A pygmy among giants, he became the elusive will o' the wisp of hockey. He could spin on the traditional dime. His stick-handling baffled his opponents. And when, in desperation, his foeman sought to eliminate him by body-checks, they found him to be the little man who wasn't there.

A great goaler of the era once told me that Joliat was the most dangerous sniper of his day, because of his accuracy, rather than speed of shot. The records support this. For in 16 seasons of League play, he scored 270 goals, exactly the same number as compiled by his illustrious team-mate, Howie Morenz.

A strangely-contrasting pair, Joliat at left wing, Morenz at centre. The silent, tight-lipped Joliat was smooth, skilful, but unobtrusive, Morenz a flaring bundle of spectacular speed. For eleven consecutive seasons they formed a remarkable partnership. Usually, the centre makes the plays in hockey. But so great was Joliat's skill and craft, that at left wing he was the play-maker who fed Morenz the puck for the rifling drives fired by the Stratford Streak.

A paradox of hockey was the Magnificent Mite Joliat, physically handicapped, but one of the great instinctive artists of the game, one of the Great Little Men who furnish brilliant chapters in every sport.

Rideaus Leave For Kitchener Minus Thomson

SMITHS FALLS (CP) — Smiths Falls Rideaus were without defenceman Don Thomson Monday night as they held a last-minute workout before leaving on an after-midnight train for Kitchener and the third game of their Eastern Canada senior hockey finals.

Thomson, ill with influenza, may leave today if his doctor permits. If he is unable to play Wednesday night he will likely be replaced by Alf Webster.

About 100 Smiths Falls fans are expected to attend the Wednesday night game in Kitchener against the Dutchmen. Smiths Falls won the first two games in Ottawa, 6-2 and 2-0.

Fourth game of the series will be played in Kitchener Friday night with the fifth, if necessary, Saturday night at Guelph.

SEDGMAN DOWNS KRAMER

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—Frank Sedgman, former world's amateur tennis champion, Monday night defeated Jack Kramer, 6-3, 6-1, in a match of their current professional tour. The Australian's win cut Kramer's lead in matches to 39-29. Ken McGregor of Australia outlasted Pancho Segura 12-10, 1-6, 6-4.

Bruins Hoping Jim Henry Will Help Them Tie Up Stanley Cup Series

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Bruins, hopeful of the return of regular goalie Sugar Jim Henry, attempt to pull even with Montreal Canadiens tonight in the fourth game of the National Hockey League's best-of-seven final Stanley Cup series at Boston Garden. The Bruins, still smarting from a one-sided 3-0 setback that gave Canadiens a 2-1 lead in the series Sunday, anxiously awaited word on the condition of Henry's left ankle. "There has been an encouraging improvement in the last 24 hours, but at best he'll be a question mark until just before game time," Dr. Thomas Kelley, team physician, reported.

Henry, a seasoned campaigner who has performed brilliantly in the goal throughout the entire season, attempted to hasten his return by taking whirlpool bath treatments for the injured ankle.

If Henry is still out, Gordon (Red) Henry, up from Hershey of the American League, again will tend to the Bruins' netminding. Red, no relation to Sugar Jim, took over after the Bruins' regular goalie was injured in the first period of the second game at Montreal Saturday.

NOT SUFFERING

"I don't think we are suffering one bit by having Red in there," declared coach Lynn Patrick. "As far as the rest of my players are concerned, I am disappointed they haven't played the hockey they are capable of in this series. But I'm sure they can come back to win the three of four we need now."

Canadiens, who displayed a marked lift in their first Boston playoff game, appeared calmly confident of going on to win hockey's prized Stanley Cup.

Coach Dick Irvin ducked out of the Montreal camp, but it seemed certain he again would call on goalie Gerry McNeil, who performed flawlessly behind good protection Sunday.

BRUISES ANKLE

McNeil asked to be replaced "for the good of the team" in the sixth game of Montreal's successful semi-final series with Chicago Black Hawks. He later suffered a badly bruised ankle during a practice session.

His successor, rookie Jacques Plante, turned in three successful performances against the Hawks and the Bruins before disappointing Irvin Saturday when the Bruins gained a 4-1 victory.

McNeil had his foot partially frozen and well taped for his return in the goal the next night. He reported no adverse effects after the game.

Commons Approves Law To Ban Job Discrimination

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons has given approval in principal to legislation breaking new ground in the federal labor field—the barring of discrimination in employment on grounds of race, origin, color or religion.

The government measure, sponsored by Labor Minister Gregg, Monday was welcomed by spokesmen for all parties before being given second reading and sent to a committee for further study. Only criticism was that it did not go far enough.

Mr. Gregg said the bill will make it an offence for an employer to discriminate against employees or prospective employees because of race, creed, color or religion. The same ban will apply to trade unions regarding membership, but the minister made it clear that unions will not be forced to accept a person with a record of subversive activity. This point had been raised by the Rev. Dan McIvor (L-Fort William).

Enforcement of the law will depend largely on conciliation, but fines up to $500 are provided. It will apply only to those industries under federal jurisdiction in labor relations including railways, shipping, aviation and communications.

Similar legislation already is in effect in Ontario and Saskatchewan. A number of members expressed the hope other provinces would endorse similar legislation.

Mr. Gregg said he is confident the bill "can be made an effective ally to Canada's main effort for equality in employment opportunities."

"This main effort must continue to be by individuals," he said.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC-Hamilton West), labor specialist for her party, approved the bill but suggested a permanent commission should be set up in the labor department to carry out its intent through an education program.

CCF spokesmen, including Alistair Stewart (Winnipeg North), Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre) and Angus MacInnis (Vancouver-Quadra) urged that the bill should go farther.

The fair employment practices measure produced one of the longest debates of the day as the Commons began morning, afternoon and night sittings in an effort to finish work by early May. Several other pieces of government legislation advanced towards adoption.

Trade Minister Howe reported on negotiations for a new international wheat agreement which ended in Washington last week. He said Canada will not come down to the $2-a-bushel maximum price sought by the United Kingdom, which declined to approve the agreement on a $2.05-a-bushel basis. He hoped, however, that Britain would sign eventually.

DEFENCE PAPER

Defence Minister Claxton tabled a white paper on defence showing a "substantial increase in the emphasis on the defence of North America against air attack." The 40-page booklet serves as a prelude to a major military debate scheduled to begin when the minister's $2,000,000,000 departmental estimates for 1953-54 come up today.

Final approval was given amendments to the Fisheries Research Act. The regional representation on the fisheries research board would be enlarged and a scientist appointed as chairman.

Two measures dealing with veterans affairs were introduced and given first reading. One would provide federal aid for university education for children of deceased Second World War and Korean veterans. The other would extend to the end of the 1954 parliamentary session the Veterans Benefit Act which gives Korean war veterans the same benefits given veterans of the Second World War.

Final approval was given Finance Minister Abbott's 88-clause bill implementing the income tax changes he made in his 1953-54 budget. Spokesmen for opposition parties again criticized the fact the 10-per-cent sales tax had been left intact and no relief was provided for hard-pressed municipalities and school boards.

FINAL APPROVAL

The House also gave final approval to a government measure by which most gold mines eligible for federal aid would get an additional $2 an ounce in financial assistance—to $13.50 from $11.50 an ounce—for 1953.

Finance Minister Abbott, explaining the Emergency Gold-Mining Assistance Act, said some mines might be forced to close without further aid. They already had been getting about $11,000,000 a year in assistance which the new measure would boost to between $15,000,000 and $16,000,000.

Mr. Abbott said 11 mines last year had elected to sell their gold on the free market. But five had reverted to taking the fixed gold price of $35 (U. S.) an ounce plus the government assistance.

Mr. Abbott said the free market had developed as he had expected. Any substantial offerings of gold resulted in a drop in the price.

Eight Jurors Seated In Trial

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — Eight jurors were seated Monday in the first-degree murder trial of two Canadians accused of the holdup-slaying of Donald F. Hurd in his downtown jewelry shop Dec. 9.

Justice William H. Munson of the State Supreme Court adjourned court until today after urging speedy selection of the jury. Two of those selected Monday are women.

On trial are Maurice O'Dell, 27, and Walter F. Griffen, 26, both of Hamilton, Ont. The two were arrested within 24 hours after Hurd, 46, was shot and killed during a $40,000 robbery of his store by three men.

The third man, Ralph J. Grubisich, 30, of Hamilton and Windsor, Ont., is aiso named in the first-degree murder indictment by an Erie county grand jury but has not yet been apprehended by police.

Police Release Bodies Of Father And Son

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The bodies of Gordon Kellow, 50, and his eight-year-old son, Richard, who died last Wednesday as they slept in their tiny home with two other members of the family, were released Monday for burial.

Mrs. Kellow, 38, was released Saturday after being held by police for questioning. Another son, John, 10, was in custody of the Children's Aid Society.

Crown attorney Bruce J. S. Macdonald said investigation by police and fire department officials supported the belief the two died from coal gas poisoning.

"There seems to be little doubt," he said, "that the deaths were accidental." However, an inquest will be held later.

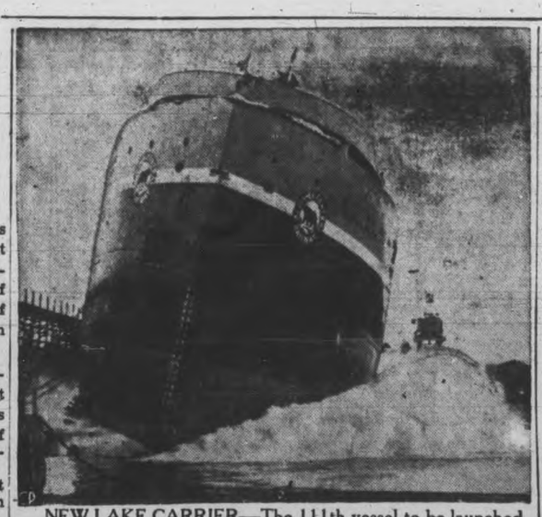
Jet Propulsion Outlined To Rotary Club

Jet propulsion — what it has meant to air travel and what it will mean in the future—was outlined by Roy N. Leadbeater, of Weston, sales aviation manager of the CGE, at the Rotary luncheon meeting Monday.

The speaker traced the development of the jet engine since it made its advent in 1940 until its present point, "on the verge of being ready for transport aircraft."

The chief assets of jet aircraft were illustrated by comparison with the piston engine aircraft.

From a passenger point of view these assets include the practical non-existence of vibration and the minimum of noise. As a result of this, and other factors, which almost eliminate the sense of altitude, travel fatigue is rapidly becoming a thing of the past.



LOWER COST

Economically, the jet, because of its simplicity, requires simple maintenance which results in lower costs. Although its fuel costs are relatively high this is offset by the reduction of hours in the air.

Mr. Leadbeater showed a film to illustrate the principles of jet propulsion.

The speaker was introduced by J. E. Girven and thanked by Thomas Taylor.

Three new members were welcomed into the club at Monday's meeting. They were W. B. Gordon, Myer Cherney and Robert Aspinall.

B.F.Goodrich Tubeless Tire

Because IT HAS NO TUBE

It may save your life...

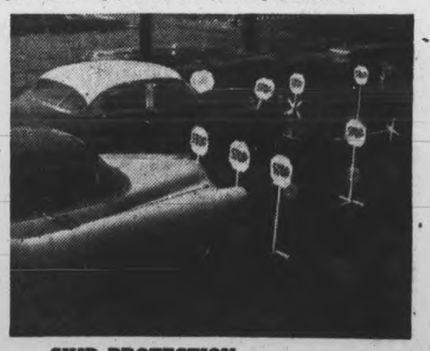
The B. F. Goodrich Life-Saver Tubeless Tire gives you maximum protection against the hazard of blowouts and dangerous skids, that frequently result in serious injury, and even death.

It can save you trouble...

The B. F. Goodrich Life-Saver Tubeless Tire seals punctures on running wheels . . . protects against the annoying trouble caused by flat tires.

It will save you money...

The B. F. Goodrich Life-Saver Tubeless Tire provides greater safety than any tire and tube, yet it costs less than the conventional safety tire-tube combination.



Automobile accidents caused by tire blowouts account for the loss of many lives, and an even greater number of serious injuries. Blowouts are caused when the inner tube explodes through weakened or broken tire cords. Because it has no inner tube, a B. F. Goodrich Life-Saver Tubeless Tire changes a sudden, dangerous blowout to a safe s-s-s-slowout — allowing you time to stop your car safely, with perfect control.

PUNCTURE PROTECTION
A gummy rubber compound under the tread immediately seals around puncturing objects, and permanently seals the hole when the object is removed. Inconvenience and delays are eliminated.

BLOWOUT PROTECTION
Instead of a tube, the Life-Saver has a patented inner lining that's part of the tire. In event of damage there's no sudden blowout, only a small break in the liner, a s-s-s-s-slowout that lets you stop safely.

SKID PROTECTION
The Life-Saver tread is cross-cut into thousands of tiny rubber grip-blocks, spaced 16 to the inch. At 30 miles per hour on wet roads, it stops you a car length quicker than regular tires . . . and gives you longer mileage too!

Your B. F. Goodrich dealer now has the Wonderful Pyramid City Uncovered At Monte Alban

MONTE ALBAN—The great Zapotec city of Monte Alban which covered not only the top of the mountain but the sides too, is the most impressive and interesting archaeological zone and set of ruins that I have seen in Mexico.

* * * *

From the top of the 1,180 foot hill you have a view for miles that is both dramatic and beautiful. There are valleys on every side backed by tall mountain ranges that seem to enfold the area. Only part of the 8-10 square mile zone has been excavated. In every direction you see grass-covered mounds that mean another building or tomb.

* * * *

The principal buildings are grouped about the Plaza of the Sun which measures 650 feet by 1,000 feet. The Plaza is surrounded by walls, tombs, terraces, temples, palaces, forts, pyramids and flights of steps and a sports arena, all built of solid masonry without aid of a wheel. There were many underground tunnels to the temples and buildings believed used by the priests.

* * * *

Many of the buildings have had constructions superimposed in two or three different epochs. The buildings and pyramids are beautifully proportioned and seem almost square. Standing at one end at the top of a high palace the full scene of the elaborate sacred city unfolds and leaves you lost in wonder and admiration. There were rows of seats for spectators to watch the rites and sacrificial altars where the living victims had their hearts torn out. These were then carried to the top of the Temple and offered to the god. The High Priest and the King had grandstand seats on a large quadrangular platform at one end. This platform is approached by a stairway 150 feet wide.

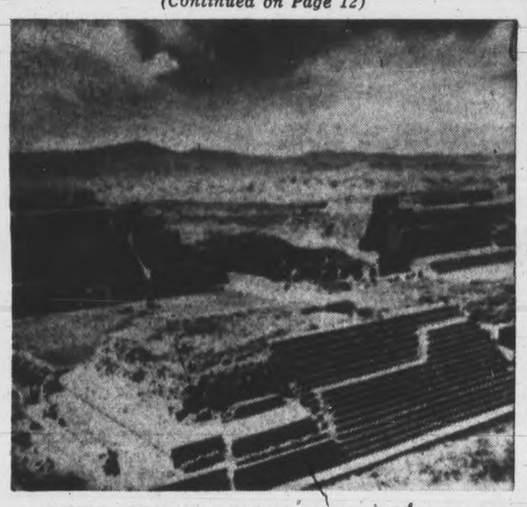
HALL OF DANCERS

The Hall of the Dancers is one of the most interesting excavations. Here are stone slabs, some in place, others lying about covered in low relief with figures entirely dissimilar to any others ever found in America. They have hieroglyphics, most of which so far have remained undeciphered. Dancers depicted are both young and old. Some of them have Egyptian-style headdresses and many of the faces have decided negroid or Chinese features. There is an excellent carving of a very old man smiling and of some young boys.



* * * *

All the pictures denote different poses of the dance and there are several hunchbacked figures carved. The Zapotecs and others seemed to revere this deformity. The city was originally built by the Zapotecs and the superimposing was done by the Mixtecs and later the Aztecs.

* * * *

I climbed up the steep steps to the top of the Pyramid of the Dancers. At the top there is a courtyard with rooms opening off for the priest and the dancers. Across the way is the observatory. It is the only building not built on the square like the others. It faces the four cardinal points. The two sacrificial pits both faced large pyramids which had steps up to the

MONTE ALBAN IS one of the most famous archaeological zones in Mexico and only four miles from Oaxaca. There are remains of elaborate buildings, foundations and terraces of several civilizations from the archaic to the Zapotecan and Mixtec from about 500 BC to the 15th century. The ruins were left practically untouched until 1931. In Tomb 7, an amazing collection of jewels were uncovered during excavations. (Cia Mexicana de Aviacion Photo)

THE PASSING YEARS have not dimmed the smiles of three of Millbrook's residents, all over 90, who recently celebrated birthdays within a few days of one another, two of them on the same day. Labor Council Criticizes City Aldermen

Alderman W. J. Beggs has received the commendation of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL) for his recent stand supporting a series of "personal security" resolutions that came up recently in City Council.

At the same time the labor council delegates rapped other members of the city council for not supporting him. The mixed praise and commendation were in a three-page report made Monday night by William Triggs, Local 293, UPWA, chairman of the municipal committee.

Mr. Triggs said that the three resolutions could have been of direct benefit to Peterborough taxpayers, "to say nothing of any humanitarian motives that might have been considered".

Following is a partial text of the municipal committee's report:

"The first resolution which Peterborough was asked to endorse, advocated that the Provincial Government increase its allowance to 'disabled persons confined to institutions'.

"We have made some enquiries, and we find that there are several persons confined to the House of Providence who are not old enough for an old age pension, but who are disabled for one reason or another. These people get no allowance whatever from the Provincial Government. There are no people over sixty-five at the Anson House, but authorities up there believe that even if there were, such people would not get any allowance from the Provincial Government.

"The second resolution asked that "disabled heads of families on mothers allowance be granted an increase scale of assistance to conform with the cost of living". According to the 'Mothers Allowance Act' a mother who otherwise qualifies for an allowance and who has a permanently unemployed husband, may be granted an allowance for her husband on the same scale as if he were a dependant child. This is twelve dollars a month, and is obviously inadequate.

"The third resolution asked that 'the Federal Government accept full responsibility for unemployment relief so as to relieve the municipalities of this burden; that unemployment insurance benefits be increased in proportion to the cost of living, and that the Federal Government be asked to institute a public works program to provide employment."

INADEQUATE BENEFITS

Hundreds of Peterborough citizens who have been unemployed could testify that the present unemployment benefits are "pitifully inadequate", Mr. Triggs said.

"The present policy of the Federal Government is that as soon as unemployment insurance runs out, the unemployed person is often forced to seek municipal relief. In a time of real crisis this would throw a big burden on the municipalities, and in any case there are always quite a few whose insurance has run out who have to be cared for by the municipalities."

Mr. Triggs said the members of the committee found it strange that "those in charge of municipal finances in Peterborough are not willing to urge the Federal Government to take this burden off the city taxpayers". He suggested that it was party politics and the majority of the aldermen don't want to embarrass the Liberal government in Ottawa.

Because municipalities have little or no influence over unemployment, or the conditions that cause it, the Federal Government should accept responsibility for unemployed people, said Mr. Triggs.

TOOK NO ACTION

"The most important thing that your committee notes about this news report, is the fact that these city councillors refused to take action because they said they do not know enough about these problems.

Three Millbrook Residents All Hearty In Nineties

When three of Millbrook's oldest residents got together Monday afternoon they had many reasons for celebration. Mrs. James Trick, who was 96 years old last Thursday, became a great-great-grandmother on April 4, when a son was born to her great-granddaughter, Mrs. James Bryant, of Oshawa. Mrs. Bryant is a granddaughter of Mrs. John Trick, with whom her mother-in-law has been living in Millbrook since 1933.

William Hilton and Robert Stone both celebrated birthdays on the same day, March 25. The former is 92 and the latter 91. All three were born in England.

Mrs. Trick was born Alice Glover in Parkham, Devonshire, April 9, 1857, and came to Canada with her husband and four sons, William, who died early in life, Thomas of Burketon, John of Millbrook, and Amos of Portage la Prairie, Man.

Seven children were born to the couple in Canada. Melvin died at the age of 10 and Alice at 14. Mrs. Cyrus Ashton (Louise) died two years ago. Henry lives at Burketon, Cyrus in Syracuse, N.Y., Herbert in Millbrook and Mrs. William Lavery (Selina) in Toronto. There are 24 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

When Mr. and Mrs. Trick came to Canada from the old country they lived for a while in a log house owned by Mrs. Trick's uncle, James Ashton, two and a half miles east of Burketon. They then moved to Haydon, north of Tyrone, where Mr. Trick worked in a sawmill for several years. When Mr. Ashton retired, they moved back into the log house where they spent the following 10 years.

In 1912, the couple moved to Millbrook where Mr. Trick followed the trade of well-driller. He died in 1933. Although bright and cheerful and an avid radio listener, Mrs. Trick has not been able to leave the house for a number of years. She is a member of the United Church.

WILLIAM HILTON

William Hilton was born in Puckeridge, Hertfordshire, March 25, 1861, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hilton, who brought him to Canada as a boy in 1870. Mr. Hilton, Sr., was employed building the early railways in the district while his son William attended school at Beechwood and Franklin.

After working on district farms, Mr. Hilton decided to try his luck in the new Canadian West and for several years farmed his own land south-east of Oxbow, Sask. He didn't care for the loneliness and rugged conditions of frontier life however, and returned to the East, settling in Millbrook, where he was a gardener and for many years caretaker of St. Paul's cemetery. He tended an extensive garden of his own right up until last year. He underwent a serious operation two months ago, however, and thinks that his gardening days are over now.

In 1920 he married Gertrude Saggers, also a native of Hertfordshire. They are members of St. Thomas' Anglican Church. He is also a life member of the Red Cross Society and belongs to the Sons of England.

Mr. Hilton still has a merry twinkle in his eye and retains a sparkling sense of humor. His trips to the business district are confined to automobile rides now, however.

Suggest Mayor Hold Meeting On Centre Site

Mayor Hugh Waddell should meet with a committee of the Exhibition Board and the Morrow Trust to see about erecting the long-awaited Memorial Centre in the exhibition grounds.

William Gunn, Local 293, UPWA, made this suggestion Monday night at the April meeting of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL). Other delegates thought it a good idea and a resolution to this effect, embodied in a letter, will be sent to Mayor Waddell.

Mr. Gunn said that he understood the land at the exhibition grounds was all right for the construction of the Memorial Centre and if it was built there the committee would receive a provincial grant and possibly a federal grant.

Lack of funds is not a real hindrance, said Mr. Gunn. It did not hamper the city council from going ahead with the building of the city hall and expropriating land to build it on. If the project once got under way people would be willing to donate, he said.

"I suggest we issue debentures and let the people who are going to use the Memorial Centre in the future help pay for it," said William Whibbs, Local 524, IUE-CIO.

Mr. Gunn said that handing back the money at this stage to the original donors was out of the question. Many of those who contributed—as long as nine years—are dead.

"It's time some action was taken," said Mr. Gunn.

CGE Asks City Build Tunnel Extend Rail Line

Anticipating this summer's paving program and also the possibility of eventual building on the former Waddell property, R. T. Bogle, works manager of Canadian General Electric Co., proposed in a letter before the finance committee of the council Monday night two preliminary accommodations.

One was for the extension of the present railway siding level across Monaghan Road, which between Wolfe and Albert Streets is included in this summer's street paving program. The other was for a tunnel connecting the main works with the new area for the purpose of carrying electricity, heating and other service communications.

The old Waddell property is on the west side of Monaghan Road directly opposite the major CGE site.

Mr. Bogle suggested to the council that, although no immediate plans of new construction were being contemplated, the railway siding connection and the proposed tunned should be considered and arranged in advance of the street paving. The railway siding, projecting from the south-west corner of the present factory site should be provided with the same level on both sides of Monaghan Road and also in its crossing. Establishment of the correct level in the siding extension could be set before the pavement grade was determined. Similar preparatory planning should be made for the tunnel under Monaghan Road.

Mr. Bogle's letter was read by the chairman, Ald. T. D. Miller. "All we can do now is receive it," Ald. Miller said. "It is being considered by City Engineer Chalmers."

THE WEST SIDE SEWER

A motion by Ald. A. B. Burrows and Ald. N. G. Graham appointed Ald. Anglesey, chairman of the board of works, Mayor Waddell and City Engineer Chalmers to bring in a full report on the plans of Westbrook Company, Toronto, in the particular of their sewer requirement for the proposed housing subdivision on the Hugh Stewart farm.

North Victoria Bush Fire Roars Through 500 Acres Of Rock And Scrub Forest

100 Firefighters, Supplies Flown In To Battle Flames Driven By 40-Mile Wind; Now Under Control

A fire in scrub bush land that broke out in northern Victoria county Monday morning, was brought under control and threatened to break away again today helped by a 35 to 40 mile an hour wind, was brought under control by noon today. Department of Lands and Forests officials of Minden said 40 men were left patrolling the perimeter of fire in case the high wind started it again.

The fire roared through about 500 acres of blueberry rock wasteland in Victoria county about two miles north-east of Head Lake and about 45 miles north-west of Peterborough.

MEN FLOWN IN

Two Department of Lands and Forests Beaver aircraft from Smoke Lake base were used for reconnaissance Helicopters from Toronto dropped about 100 men and supplies into the fire line.

P. J. Cassidy, chief ranger of Minden headquarters was in charge of organizing the fight. The area was surrounded by marsh and this helped control the fire.

It was first reported shortly before noon Monday. During the night it was brought pretty well under control, but with dawn winds sprang up and started the smouldering scrub blazing again. The firefighters chief concern was the strong wind. But they managed to keep up with the fire and to bring it under control by noon.

19 FIRES

Of the 19 forest fires that broke out in various parts of the province over the weekend the Head Lake fire is the only one still blazing and is the worst one this year in the province.

There are no cottages in the fire area. The closest ones are on the north shore of Head Lake two miles south-west of the burning section at Fishog Lake. It is blueberry scrub country.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

VISITING MASONS

The lodge room of the Masonic Temple was filled to capacity twice on Saturday to see the exemplification and dramatization of the third degree. The work was done by a team from Transportation Lodge, Buffalo. The visitors were served a dinner following the afternoon session.

CITY CHIEF GOES TO FIRE

The Peterborough Fire Department were represented by more than just a six-man pumper crew at the Lakefield fire early today. At 2:30 a.m. Fire Chief Ralph Leonard arrived to see if he could be of any assistance and he was accompanied by Inspector John Richards of the fire marshal's office, Toronto. Inspector Richards just happened to be in Peterborough, conferring with Chief Leonard, when the fire broke out.

NAME WELFARE COMMITTEE

A four-man social and welfare committee was named Monday night by the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL). Members include George Fullbrook and William Triggs, both of Local 293, UPWA; William Whibbs, Local 524. IUE-CIO; and Alfred Barber, Local 210 UPWA. The executive committee which made the recommendation reported that they thought this was a phase of union acitvity that had not been sufficiently developed.

Ross L. Dobbin To Attend June Coronation

Ross L. Dobbin, manger of Peterborough Utilites, is leavng toward the end of May for London where he will be present in Westminster Abbey at the coronation of Queen Elizabeth.

This honor has come to Mr. Dobbin as president-elect of the Engineering Institute of Canada who are paying the expenses of his trip. He assumes the presidency of the Institute during the Institute convention in Halifax May 20 to 24, and will be installed during the concluding session on May 24. It is understood that he will return by plane from Halifax to Montreal on May 25, and from there will fly to London.

Mr. Dobbin is the second citizen of Peterborough who will witness the coronation ceremony from seats in the Abbey.

Mayor Waddell has already accepted the official invitation as Mayor of Peterborough and will be accompanied by Mrs. Waddell. Most of his plans for the journey are completed. It has been reported at the City Hall that he intends to spend some time in industrial Midlands of England and also in Germany.

Mr. Dobbin is in Ottawa today. It is understood that he will share his two Abbey tickets with his sister. Possibly his time schedule may permit him to cross to Paris for the convention of International Rotary during the last week of May. If so, he will be the fifth member of Peterborough Rotary at the convention. The others are: H. I. Keefer, official delegate, Mayor Waddell, C. S. Cummer, Gordon Monkman.

DONATE TO FUND

Pupils of the Coronation School, Douro township, have contributed $4.87 to the Penny-A-Day drive of the Red Cross and Community Fund bringing the total in this section to $702.61. Coronation school was recently opened and this is the first time the students have contributed to the fund.

Panama Ready To Accept Doukhobors

VANCOUVER (CP)—A report that another country, Panama, is willing to accept British Columbia's Doukhobors came Monday hard on the heels of the worst outbreak of violence in the interior west Kootenays district in three years.

Sunday night fire-raiders put 13 homes to the torch, throwing gasoline bombs through doors and windows.

Rafael Fabreja, Panamanian ambassador in Seattle, said in a telephone interview that the government of his tiny Central American republic would "go out of its way" to assist the 2,500 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors if they wanted to settle there.

THEMSELVES READY

The Sons of Freedom, for 50 years blamed for violence and noted for defying Canadian laws, were themselves victims of violence this time.

Homes of Sons in Perry's Siding, Appledale and Shoreacres, all near Nelson, were fired. Some homeowners woke in time to save their houses, others saved some or all of their furniture.

Panama is the second Central American republic willing to accept the Doukhobors.

During the recent session of the B.C. legislature Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Costa Rica had said it would accept Doukhobors "just as any other immigrant."

Thomson Plans Weekly In U.K.

LONDON (CP)—Launching of the first Canadian newspaper ever published in Britain was announced Monday by K. R. Thomson, representing the Thomson group of newspapers.

The weekly, named Canada Review, will appear Wednesdays starting May 6. It is aimed especially at Canadians in Britain but will also be sold at key cities on the continent.

"This operation will provide a basis for our future expansion in newspaper publishing in Great Britain," said Thomson, managing director of the new publication and son of Roy H. Thomson, whose group publishes 18 Canadian daily and weekly newspapers, a daily in St. Petersburg, Fla., and owns five radio stations.

News in the 16-page weekly, Canada Review, will be exclusively Canadian except for a section devoted to British news of interest to Canadians. The paper's makeup will be directed from Canada, with news items sent by cable and air mail. London editor will be Norman Cribbens, who has worked on newspapers and news agencies in Vancouver, Ottawa and London.

Elected Chairman Of Design Committee

OTTAWA (CP)—Donald B. Strudley, president of the Imperial Furniture Company at Stratford, was elected Monday chairman of the national industrial design committee at the opening of a two-day session.

Vice-chairmen chosen were Jean M. Raymond, president of the Raymond Manufacturing Company, Lachine, Que., and Floyd S Chalmers, president of Maclean-Hunter Publishing Company, Toronto.

The meetings will end tonight with presentation of design merit awards to 46 Canadian manufacturers and 27 designers.

Dies From Injuries

TORONTO (CP)—A 36-year-old paper company employee was mangled by a cutting machine Monday and died in hospital shortly after. Arthur Breau operated a heavy piece of equipment that whirls a set of sharp blades at high speed. Police believed he released the clutch to disengage the blades but left the motor running. When he leaned across the machine to make an adjustment, he apparently pushed the clutch starting the blades again.

Banker Urges New Attitude Towards Foreign Trade

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

An American international banker, addressing a group of doctors recently, used medical terms to describe the economic problems of the world, and to urge the United States to lower its trade barriers.

Robert L. Garner, vice-president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, told the American Heart Association in Atlantic City:

"We are using a poultice, and are overlooking curative measures that would be both more basic and more economical.

"The world, economically speaking, is much like the human body. There is an economic heart, pumping life-giving blood to its various members. . . A clot in the leg may immediately affe t the heart; an artery severed in the foot may kill that heart if not repaired."

EXPLAINS METAPHOR

Mr. Garner used his economic metaphor to express what Britain and other countries mean when they tell the United States they want "trade, not aid."

The United States, in Mr. Garner's description, is the economic heart of the free world which must immediately feel the affects of a clot or severance of trade in any part.

Urging a lowering of trade barrier by the United States, he said:

"According to some reputable analysts, our basic tariff position is still not much more liberal than it was back in the days of the Underwood tariff of 1913.

POSITION ALTTERED

"Meanwhile, the whole position of the United States and of the world has radically altered. To base our present-day trade policies on the facts and the slogans of a half-century ago is comparable with treating modern disease problems as if we were our grandparents. We need a new attitude toward imports and toward foreign trade.

"We should stop thinking of foreign material and foreign goods as unwelcome and realize that they are valuable and desirable in our economy. Let us look at foreign trade like any other trade, as being made up of transactions in which buyers and sellers should mutually benefit.

"One simple fact is often overlooked: every dollar earned by a foreigner by selling his products in the United States must in the end be spent to buy other goods or services from America."

Citing instances of bans against foreign goods entering the United States, Mr. Garner said:

"An import which is small in comparison to the American market may be vital to a foreign country.

CASE OF DENMARK

"Take Danish butter and cheese. In the past $1,500,000 or $2,000,000 worth of these products were sold annually in the U.S. The figure might grow, under favorable circumstances, a million or two larger, but this would come on a dairy market in the United States which amounts to $5,000,000,000. . .

"However, some 12 producers of blue cheese in Wisconsin were able to have inserted into the Defence Production Act a prohibition on the import of Danish cheese on the basis that this is necessary for the security of the United States!"

Named Pool Manager

CALGARY (CP)—T. E. Oliver, who has been assistant manager of the Alberta wheat pool, has been appointed acting manager to fill the vacancy caused by the death of R. D. Purdy. Announcement of the appointment was made Monday by Ben Plumer, chairman of the pool board of directors. Mr. Oliver was born at Brantford and went to Calgary as a youth in 1909.

Quash Conviction Against Reporter

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Appeal Court Monday quashed a theft conviction against Angela Burke, 29-year-old Toronto Star reporter, who took a diary from the home of a slain Kitchener girl.

Miss Burke was given a suspended sentence by magistrate J. R. H. Kirkpatrick in Kitchener. A charge of obstructing justice was dismissed.

She took the diary from the home of Marie Huras after getting permission from the landlady to search through the dead girl's personal effects.

The appeal court said Miss Burke was "perhaps a little over-enthusiastic."

Two Arraigned On Charges Of Manslaughter

MONTREAL (CP)—Two Montrealers were arraigned Monday on charges of manslaughter in connection with the death of 26-year-old Jéannine d'Amour of Gogama, Ont., whose badly decomposed body was found last Dec. 29 in a gravel pit near Shawinigan Falls, Que.

Mrs. Lucienne Tremblay, 39, and Mrs. Madeleine Millette, 42, were released on $2,000 property bail after they pleaded innocent to the charges.

CHARGED ACCESSORIES

Charged with being accessories after the fact were Henri Dunn, 27, and Irenee Cyr, 39, both of Montreal. Dunn was released on $1,000 property bail and Cyr on two bonds of $950. They also pleaded innocent.

The four were ordered to appear for preliminary inquiry April 20.

They were held criminally responsible for the death of the young woman at a coroner's inquest April 3 at Cap de la Madeline, near Trois-Rivieres. The woman is believed to have died as the result of an illegal operation.

Expect Legislation To Deal With British Slum Problem

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Legislative action is expected shortly to deal with Britain's growing slum menace. As things stand, some 200,000 houses decay into slums every year.

Specifically, the government attack will be concentrated on the complicated rent restriction acts, pegging the rents of millions of homes at pre-war levels. Although conditions vary, the main difficulty is that in many cases rents are too low to justify repairs being made.

Under the present set-up, there are many oddities. Two different families living in the same house may legally pay varying rents. Similarly, a person who obtained an unfurnished apartment before the war may pay about one-fifth of the sum charged a neighbor who took a flat furnished; that is to say with a few sticks of furniture in it.

These anomalies are caused by rent control. Another complicating factor is the system of subsidies, whereby municipal authorities pay part of the rent of new houses for certain tenants on their housing list. Where any particular person stands on this list depends on such things as length of time in the district and number of children.

This system of priorities, the independent weekly, the Economist, notes, means it is "largely chance that determines whether a family lives in a dream-house or in a grimy tenement."

Of Britain's total of 13,300,000 occupied homes, it is estimated that more than 2,290,000 are more than 100 years old, and another 4,000,000 more than 75 years old. Most of these unfit homes are located in the chief industrial centres and in the mining towns and villages, causing the left-wing New Statesman and Nation to comment:

"This decay is eating out the heart of industrial Britain; for the disease is located at the centre of our economic life, where most of the industrial working class is born, works and dies."

Apart from decay, British housing is often rudimentary by Canadian standards. The 1951 census showed, for instance, that there are 5,100,000 households in the country which have no bath.

These are some of the problems that Housing Minister Harold MacMillan and his lieutenants are expected to tackle in any new legislation. In a recent speech in the House of Lords, the lord chancellor, Lord Simonds, said: "There is no aspect of the law on landlord and tenant relationship which is not under our urgent and earnest consideration."

Dealers Told Dangers Of Price Cutting

TORONTO (CP)—Every electrical appliance dealer in the province is guilty of cutting prices to encourage sales, G. H. Giles, general manager of Addison's Limited, said Monday at a meeting of the Radio, Television and Appliance Dealers Association.

Earlier, the association charged that a few dealers were conducting a price war and were threatening the whole Ontario appliance sales structure.

"The dealer is giving away part of his margin," Mr. Giles said. "If the manufacturer cuts back his price to the dealer, who has been complaining of low margin, he expects to get a better job of merchandising from the dealer. Instead, the dealer gives the money away."

If a remedy isn't found, the appliance industry, which now is in a state of confusion, will begin to show casualties, he said.

MENTAL HOSPITAL FIRE

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) —A stubborn fire Monday gutted the basement floor of a new $650,000 administration building at the provincial mental hospital at nearby Essondale. Unofficial estimates placed the damage at $100,000. No one was injured.

NEW *MASONITE TEMPERED PRESDWOOD EXTERIOR SIDING AND *TEN/TEST ASPHALT PROTECTED INSULATING SHEATHING

It's smoother . . . stronger . . . permanent! The permanent exterior siding in panels of 12", 14" and 16" wide by 4' and 8' long. No waste, no splits, no sap. Harder than oak. Won't rot or decay. Fits snugly without gaps. Nails hold securely. It will outweather the weather and outlast the framing. Takes less paint and holds it longer. Tests for years have proven long life, lasting appearance and definite economy of this improved siding.

It's rigid, bracing insulation! Greater insulation in 5/16" thickness as the large panels cut down on joints and reduce cold infiltration. Faster applications as 4' x 9' panels can be easily handled by one man — reducing nailing, fitting and sawing to a minimum. There is less waste, for even cut-off pieces can be used at eaves and under windows. No open knots or split ends—a sound sheathing. The large panels cover greater studding area and ensure a stronger, more durable structure. A money-saving innovation!

Available in 5/16" and 1/4" thickness. Comes in natural color Tempered Presdwood that requires priming and paint finish...or surface primed ready for final paint finish.

Remember, this asphalt protected TEN/TEST Insulating Sheathing repels water moisture, but still allows free passage of vapour for the prevention of condensation. It builds stronger, warmer, economical — well insulated homes.

WITH *IP. BIRCH HARDWOOD PLYWOODS

It's rich . . . lasting . . . beautiful! The attractive, velvety surface and rich graining of IP. Birch Plywoods make them the accepted choice for interior wall panelling of discriminating home owners. Many individual wall treatments can be realized with these smooth, rich grained plywoods. So bright when applied in natural finish — so distinctive when stained to simulate any wood treatment. Won't check or craze — the finish will last indefinitely.

Practical, too, for wall built-ins, furniture, cupboard doors and counters. Easy to work with ordinary carpenters tools. In panels up to 4' x 8' and thicknesses of 1/4" to 3/4".

From One Cook to Another

"PICK-UP" FOR TIRED MEALS

It's apt to happen to the best of cooks. Comes a day — or a week — when meal-planning becomes a bore. But that needn't happen to you. One little, inspired touch can give a meal — and you — a wonderful "lift". For instance — there's a trick I have with cheeseburgers that I think you'll like. Actually, it's two little tricks. For one thing, I put the cheese right in with the hamburger . . . so you get cheese in every single bite. Then, I make my special cheeseburgers with a special milk . . . Carnation Evaporated Milk. No ordinary milk, mind you — but Carnation. You see, Carnation is double-rich — and it's specially heat-refined. That's why it gives such delicious moisture and goodness in my

NEW-STYLE CHEESEBURGERS
(Makes 4 servings)

1 pound ground beef
1/3 cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup crumbled Canadian cheddar cheese

Mix ingredients lightly together. Shape as patties. Brown on both sides in hot fat, in heavy frying pan. Serve on toasted buns — with favorite relish.

Only water is taken out of Carnation Evaporated Milk — all the good sweet cream is left in. Mix Carnation with an equal amount of water for all whole milk purposes — try Carnation undiluted for cream purposes.

NEVER A DULL MEAL — in homes where good coffee tops off the menus! Well — here's the easiest, surest way I know, to make coffee wonderful. "Cream" it with undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk. This double concentrated milk that pours like cream and whips like cream, makes coffee delightfully golden in color . . gives it richly satisfying flavor. And — sh-h-h! — family and guests will never suspect how thriftily you "cream" their coffee with Carnation. Though millions of coffee lovers prefer Carnation, it costs only half as much as cream. Try it. You'll enjoy your coffee more, with Carnation.

LISTEN to the delightful Saturday radio show, "Stars Over Hollywood". A complete half-hour play every week — specially written for this entertaining programme. See your newspaper for time and station.

FREE: Carnation's "Velvet Blend Book" of tested recipes, new and old. Write to Carnation Company Limited, at Toronto or Vancouver.

AN AWFULLY GOOD WAY you can give a "lift" to breakfasts, is to serve a freshly-made coffee cake. Economical, too, and it's really very easy, if you use one of the packaged biscuit mixes . . . and really very good, if you use Carnation Milk in the recipe.

QUICK COFFEE CAKE
(Makes 12 servings)

2 cups biscuit mix
1/4 cup sugar
3/4 cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
1 egg

Combine biscuit mix with sugar. Beat Carnation and egg together. Add to dry ingredients, and mix lightly until all is moistened. Turn into well-buttered 8-inch square pan. For spicy topping, combine 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons butter, 1/3 cup brown sugar. Sprinkle over top of cake. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 25 to 30 minutes.

IT HAPPENS EVERY DAY

Somebody says, "Tell me — why should I use Carnation? Is there really a difference?" Well, I could tell these ladies about the famous Carnation Farms . . . about the many world champion cattle that help to improve the source of milk supply, and so maintain Carnation's high standards . . . about Carnation quality that has made this milk the year-after-year leader — the evaporated milk that is used more in Canada than all other brands combined. But I don't tell them any of this. I simply ask them to compare Carnation with other brands, and with bottled milk in their own kitchens. And one try convinces them. For it's results that count. If you haven't discovered how much better Carnation makes food taste, try it in your home.

WOULD BUY STADIUM

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, said Monday he has made "a firm offer" to purchase the civic-owned Maple Leaf Stadium.

Cooke, just arrived by plane from Bartow, Fla., where the Leafs are training, said he expects to meet with members of the Toronto harbor commission, which has jurisdiction over the stadium, today or "as soon as possible."

"I don't want to own the stadium but its purchase by the Toronto baseball club is the only way I can see right now whereby we'd be able to get the extra seating necessary for a big league club," he said.

"It would be better for the city to continue to own the stadium and give us a deal," said Cooke, who revealed he had made the purchase offer before leaving for Florida more than a month ago.

Maple Leaf Stadium was originally taken over by the city for back taxes in the '30s and now is leased to the ball club.

Last week, local sportsman Fred Hamilton in a statement said he intends to appear before board of control this week to ask that civic authorities probe possibilities of a major league club for this city. Hamilton suggested that St. Louis Browns and Philadelphia Athletics "look like a cinch" to have their franchises transferred to other cities within the next few years

JETHROE TO TOLEDO

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves front office announced Monday that outfielder Sam Jethroe has been sent to the American Association farm club at Toledo on 24-hour recall. Jethroe, 31, saw little action this spring during exhibition games. A switch hitter, he had a .232 batting average in 151 games with the Braves last year.

CITY CARPETBALL

The Gracie's Memorial Doubles final was played April 11 between team No. 19, S. Roscoe and Leo Herr, against team No. 24, A. Vinette and W. Sorrie. The first game saw Vinette and Sorrie come from behind to make it 4-all in the 6th frame and then go on to take the next two ends and capture that game 8-4. Roscoe and Herr again took the lead in the second game and were leading 6-2 going into the 7th frame. No. 24 captured the last two ends—but this time with only singles — Roscoe and Herr by winning the second game 5-4 made a third game necessary. No. 24 jumped into the lead in the deciding game but No. 19 was fighting back to stay in there and going into the last end the score stood at 6-4 in favor of No. 24—then No. 24 came through with a big three end to win the game and the Doubles Championship.

Those two postponed league games were played at the Orange Hall. Fire Hall No. 9 captured both games from LOL No. 6 by scores of 21-9 and 16-7. At the Legion Hall, LOL No. 6 won the first game from Orphans No. 2 by a 10-7 score after it was tied 4-all in the fifth frame. The second game saw the LOL well ahead by a 7-2 score in the sixth end but the Orphans forged ahead until they were leading 9-7 in the 10th frame; in the 11th No. 6 made it 9-all—but No. 2 won the game 12-9 by scoring a big three in the final end.

So that concludes the bowling for this season. The next item will be the executive meeting to decide if and when they will be holding a banquet or general meeting. The executive meeting may be held Monday, April 20. All will be notified by telephone. Have those trophies taken to Elsie Bennett's store at once.

South Africa Winds Up General Election Campaign

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South Africa's political groups wound up their general election campaign Monday night, united in a desire to maintain white supremacy but bitterly divided on how to achieve this aim.

Negro representatives pledged a continued fight against race laws regardless of who wins Wednesday's vote.

In a country-wide political broadcast, Prime Minister Daniel Malan said that his Nationalist government's policy of sternly-enforced race segregation was the salvation of all white communities in southern Africa. J. G. N. Strauss, leader of the opposition United party, laid down a four-point program for improving white-black relations in a similar radio address.

Malan wants to maintain the supremacy of the 2,600,000 whites over more than 10,000,000 non-whites with an iron hand. Strauss advocates a softer policy because the whites "want native labor."

Spokesmen for the African National Congress said ANC leaders vowed to maintain their resistance to racial laws at a meeting at a little church at the edge of Johannesburg.

"Regardless of who wins the election, the spokesmen said, "we Africans can only look forward to continued oppression."

Asserting the Nationalist segregation program was "just, generous, realistic and natural." Malan said it "need not trouble anyone's conscience or hurt his Christian feeling." The 78-year-old prime minister said it afforded South Africa her last chance to remain a white man's country.

Strauss's four-point plan called for a people's convention to examine the race relations problem; acceptance of the principle that all non-whites should be allowed to work and be fairly paid; organization of labor battalions for non-white idlers, criminals and terrorists to teach them the "dignity of labor," and exiling from civilized areas of all non-whites convicted of violent crimes.

Argos Sign Perry For 1953 Season

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts, 1952 Dominion football champions, announced Monday they have signed Lowell Perry, 20-year-old University of Michigan outside, for the 1953 season.

General manager and coach Frank Clair, who made the announcement at a press luncheon, said the 180-pound six-foot Perry was the No. 1 defensive player in U.S. college football in 1951.

Clair said also that three other American college players are expected to sign within three weeks. They are what he termed a triple-threat quarter and a fullback. He did not name them.

Super-Stacks

THE S.S. "UNITED STATES", new speed queen of the Atlantic, boasts the largest stacks ever built: the forward stack is 55 feet high, 60 feet long. Made of aluminum, they are assembled with 65,000 aluminum rivets. Reputed to be the safest vessel ever built, the liner contains more aluminum than any other single structure on land or sea. This light, strong, fire-and-weather-resistant metal is used for lifeboats and bulkheads, decks and elevator doors and a hundred other items.

In naval vessels, too — such as the fourteen minesweepers now being built for the Canadian Navy — aluminum is being used more extensively than ever before. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Patterson Chalks Up 8-Round Decision

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP) — Floyd Patterson, unbeaten 1952 olympic middleweight champion, weathered a blistering body fire Monday night to win a split eight-round decision over rugged Dick Wagner, Toppenish, Wash., flailer.

It was the sixth straight professional win for the Brooklyn Negro but Wagner was the first opponent to last the route.

Patterson weighed 166½, Wagner 175½.

Women's Association Plans Coronaton Tea

HASTINGS—(ENS)—Group 3 of the Women's Association met at the home of Mrs. R. R. Burnham.

The worship was in charge of Mrs. Clifford Scriver and opened with the singing of, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross". The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. W. A. Thomas. Mrs. Scriver gave the topic following which the hymn, "Love Divine, All Loves Excelling", was sung and the worship period closed with prayer by Mrs. F. Stevenson.

Mrs. S. Fisher took the chair for the business and Mrs. E. German gave the treasurer's report.

A Coronation Tea will be held June 17.

The next meeting will be held May 5 with Mrs. F. Stevenson as hostess and the committee in charge are Mrs. L. Switzer, Mrs. A. Thompson, Mrs. J. G. Thompson and Mrs. H. Youngs.

The program consisted of a piano solo by Miss Barbara Scriver and a reading, "The Minister's Sermon", by Mrs. Clifford Scriver.

Two contests were conducted and the winners were: Mrs. B. Preston and Barbara Scriver. The hostess, assisted by the committee in charge, served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

Expect Aussies To Say Plenty At Conference

By GORDON TAIT

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—You can expect the Australians to say plenty — including some critical things about Avery Brundage, international Olympic committee president—at the IOC meeting starting in Mexico City Friday.

That was the mood of Australia's chief delegate, Hugh R. Weir, as he got his brief together before leaving for the meeting.

This is the conference that will decide whether Melbourne is to retain the right to stage the 1956 Olympic Games. After many ups and downs, Melbourne today is confident it can make a good job of the games.

Weir has not made any public attack on Brundage, but people close to him say he is saving up his verbal thunder for Mexico City.

Weir is annoyed because Brundage has circulated letters from Australians who claimed Melbourne doesn't want the games. Copies of some of these letters that have reached Australia are unsigned, and some seem to indicate the writers know practically nothing about Melbourne's plans.

The Australians have with them a long report on what is planned and what has been done to make a go of the 1956 games. They also have pictures.

Weir will say that Melbourne now has all the sites fixed for the different sporting events, and that funds for the estimated cost of putting on the games have been guaranteed.

He probably will also say that Melbourne now will be able to put on as good a show, if not better, than either London or Helsinki.

The opening ceremony is planned for Thursday, Nov. 22, with relays of runners bringing the Olympic torch 1,200 miles from Brisbane.

The games would begin that evening with football and basketball.

Glover Denies He's Resigned

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Arthur J. Glover denied today that he has resigned as international president of the Switchmen's Union of North America.

The international executive board of the union announced Glover's resignation Monday night and said John P. Brindley, an international representative from Little Rock, Ark., had been moved up to the presidency.

Glover not only denied that he had resigned, but said he had "fired" Brindley and three other union officials, not immediately identified.

The switchmen's president has been the storm centre of a union controversy since last February, when union carpenters picketed Glover's home, charging he had used non-union labor in remodelling it.

Still obscured by the controversy was the question of whether an international convention called by Glover for April 27 would be held.

The union declined to estimate membership other than to say there are 350 lodges in 38 states and Canada.

Buffalo Hotel Strike Has Been Averted

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — A threatened strike at seven of Buffalo's largest hotel has been averted by agreement to submit the dispute to arbitration. Local 181, Building Service Union, which represents elevator operators, cleaning women and laundry workers, had scheduled a strike for Monday. The union sought a 40-hour week with the pay formerly received for a 45-hour week.

Two Cars Forced Out Onto Shoulder Of Road

Found guilty on a charge of careless driving, Robert Batten of 587 Fagan Ave. was fined $10 and $2.50 by Magistrate W. R. Philp today.

The charge was laid March 20 by OPP Constable John Cawood. Testifying, Cawood said Batten drove at speeds varying from 10 to 50 miles per hour on No. 28 Highway the night of the 20th, a few miles west of the city.

While the officer followed him, Batten forced two oncoming cars onto the shoulder of the road, one of which in turn forced Cawood to take to the shoulder.

In his own defence, Batten said he was complying with traffic regulations in slowing down to low speeds. As for forcing cars off the road, "I was blinded by the lights of a car coming past me."

Train Hits Car Driver Injured

TORONTO (CP) — George Kimball, 43, of Oakville, suffered severe injuries today when his automobile was in collision with a train at a level-crossing near his home about 15 miles west of Toronto. The car was thrown over an embankment into a ditch.

Kimball, engineer for the town of Brampton 25 miles northwest of Toronto, was tossed 20 feet after the crash. His car landed on its side.

Police said the nose of Kimball's car was over one of the sets of double tracks while he waited for a train to go by on the other track. Then a train came from the other direction and hit his car.

Norman Clements, a trainman, said he was standing nearby and watched the second train approaching Kimball's car.

"He seemed to freeze right there when he saw the other train," Mr. Clements said.

U.S. Turkey Buyers Tricked By Dealers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some U. S. turkey dealers have been getting 69 cents a pound for water —inside frozen turkeys.

The practice was discussed in recent testimony before the House of Representatives appropriations committee by officials of the food and drug administration. The committee made the testimony public today.

Some dealers have been injecting a pound or two of water into turkeys just before they dropped them into the deep freeze.

The result: Consumers paid the turkey price for nothing more than water.

Three Millbrook

YOUNGEST

The youngster of the trio, Robert Stone, still sings in St. Thomas' Anglican Church choir which he joined on Christmas Day, 1908, a little more than a year after he came to Canada from Cradley, Herefordshire, where he was born, March 25, 1862.

Although he had operated a combined grocery and bakery in the old country, Mr. Stone decided to try his hand at farming in his adopted land and operated his own farm for seven years on the Fallis line, north of Millbrook.

He worked in S. E. Eakins' hardware store for 22 years until it was taken over by the Coulter brothers. Although he lives retired now at the residence of Mrs. Leslie Graham, Mr. Stone is far from inactive and is a well-known figure in the Millbrook business section which he visits practically every day in good weather.

Mr. Stone's wife predeceased him before he came to Canada. He has a daughter and grandson living in Birmingham, England.

North Monaghan Tax Rate Increases 2 Mills

Increases of two or three mills over the 1952 levy are shown in North Monaghan tax rate that was authorized for collection by bylaw passed at Monday's meeting of the township council.

The rates applying to the several township areas are as follows with the corresponding rate last year in brackets.

School Area No. 1, adjacent to the city: 56 mills (54.9); School Area No. 2— 48.3 (45.6); Separate School Supporters, 57.5 mills (54.9).

Monies to be raised by the taxes include: county requirements $14,622.36; Peterborough District High School Board $8,826.30; township rate $5,351.76.

The combined tax rate of the county, township and High School Board will be 36 mills as compared with 33.8 last year.

SCHOOL RATES

The general Public School rate will be 4.5 mills; North Monaghan School area No. 1 is 15.5 mills; in School area No. 2 7.8 mills; North Cavan 8.5 mills; Separate School Board 21.5 mills. These are included in the total rates listed above.

The amount required for Public School education is $11,737.17. That applies to School Areas 1 and 2 and North Cavan.

The following accounts were passed: Balance of 1952 school money $2,245.82 relief and welfare $89.46; roads and streets $180.

H. A. Metcalfe of Ennismore was appointed by bylaw assessor at a salary of $800. It is expected that he will begin right away.

CGE Asks City

The company's project was published in detail some weeks ago.

They offer to the city land for the right of way for a bypass highway that was laid down in the Master Plan of the city; a grant of $3,000 toward the cost of the sewer; and also the deed of the 50 foot strip of the west end of Weller St. which has not yet been opened.

The Toronto company is hoping to obtain the council's assurance that the proposed sewer will be available by the middle of September.

"I think that we should accept the general proposals of Westbrook Co.," said Ald. H. T. Rehill, "and tell them that it is impossible at present to guarantee them any definite date."

The section of this sewer north of Clonsilla Ave.—No. 28 Highway—and across Sherbrooke St. would extend northerly to the vicinity of Weller St. and would eventually accommodate new housing all the way to Parkhill Road.

Right of way options for the sewer have been obtained in that stretch with the exception of one or two parcels, at Sherbrooke St., City Clerk Outram reported. He expected that this reach would be within the city's purchase in the near future. City Engineer Chalmers has already explained that this trunk sewer has already been laid, in part, south of Clonsilla, and is to be continued on Western Avenue, and then turn east and south on Erskine Ave., eventually reaching Monaghan Road.

W. M. Bowes has been representing Westbrook Company in negotiations with the council. They wish to secure the sewer accommodation as the alternative to subdividing the Hilltop Farm property into larger building lots for the expedient of septic tanks by permits from the council of North Monaghan. Annexation of an area of the township west of the city's boundary is an essential of the sewer project.

One of Mr. Bowes' arguments is to the effect that eventually the city will move again in that direction.

NO TIGHT TIES

In that day the city would prefer to have the lot frontages conform with the rest of the western housing already developed.

Mayor Waddell remarked that the expansion of the city in that quarter would be carried out under township or city control. Council had first to decide on the matter of policy. "It is probably a good offer, but we shouldn't be tied too tightly at this stage."

Ald. Rehill expressed his agreement with the idea that when the area is laid out in lots and comes into the city there should not be objectionable extent of frontages.

City Engineer Chalmers replied to Ald. Gordon Farquharson that the trunk sewer route in the Westbrook plan was the original line in previous consideration of future needs of the area now in the vicinity of Civic Hospital.

It was said in reference to the next Monaghan annexation that Mount St. Joseph, the subdivision south of Parkhill Road, the Middleton property and certain other sections of that neighborhood down to Weller St. would probably have to be included.

"I don't see how we can get any cheaper arrangement than the company is offering," Ald. Burrows said.

Partly to clarify the definition of the area with costs involved, the Burrows motion was accepted by the committee.

RECENTLY DISCOVERED

The ruins were left practically untouched until 1931 when Mexico's outstanding archaeologist, Dr. Alfonso Caso, uncovered several remarkable tombs while doing some excavating there. The most famous, Tomb No. 7, had the marvellous gold and jewel objects left by the Mixtecs. Because the original tomb was Zapotec and when Dr. Caso opened it they found Mixtec bodies and their precious treasure, it is believed that when the Mixtecs knew the Aztecs were marching on their city, they hastily buried their most precious things with the bodies of their great kings.

* * * *

The jewels taken from this tomb are classically pure in design and executed, despite the most primitive tools, with flawless artistry. There is a golden diadem with plume of beaten gold, golden breastplate representing the head of the god of death with the upper lip of the tiger. There were necklaces of gold, pearl and turquoise, gold beads representing turtles, jade rings, lip ornaments, beautiful bracelets and ear rings. There are symbols on the gold breastplate in Tomb 7 that bear a resemblance to the Greek forms of Alpha and Omega. Experts have not yet determined whether it came from some tieup with Greece or whether it was just an accidental similarity with some other meaning.

* * * *

When Jacob Robles and I were crawling around in the tomb, he discovered three very fine teeth in perfect condition, just showing through the dirt flooring. He took them and turned them into the museum in case they can be matched with the bodies previously found.

* * * *

To date there have been 170 tombs uncovered and in some of them there are fine frescoes of the priests preserved. By climbing down some steep steps and with the use of a mirror as a reflector, these frescoes are shown in their amazingly fine detail.

WANT JEWELS BACK

For a time after the jewels were discovered they were kept in Mexico City despite the pleas of the Oaxaca people that they be returned to their museum. Finally in 1938 the President Cardenas was visiting Oaxaca he was asked to return the jewels, which he did. At the moment, the best are on display in London, England, at a special exhibit. The people of Oaxaca are hoping that they get them back again.

The builders of Monte Alban never used human sacrifices. That came later with the Mixtecs and Aztecs. Work on the excavations here has been stopped for some time. But it is hoped in this state that before too long some of the other interesting mounds will be opened and restored in this wonderful spot.

* * * *

The drive up the mountain is worth while for the magnificent scenery alone. The narrow dirt lane writhes and twists its way to the top with ever more impressive views of the mountains, the higher you get. From miles away, you can see the Monte Alban buildings silhouetted against the top of the mountain.

Japanese Prince Enjoys Bustling Vancouver Tour

VANCOUVER (CP) — Japan's Crown Prince Akihito relaxed in the comfort of his private railway car today after a bustling, whirlwind tour of Vancouver that left him exhausted but obviously pleased with his warm reception.

The prince boarded a CPR transcontinental Monday night on his journey to the Coronation. He will have a brief stop-over in Calgary tonight and will arrive in Toronto Frida morning.

The shy, 19-year-old son of Emperor Hirohito retired early to his railway coach after attending a reception at the Hotel Vancouver The day was his busiest since arriving at San Francisco Saturday.

The prince never once lost his friendly, boyish smile as civic officials whisked him about. He showed keen interest when taken on a tour of a giant sawmill and plywood plant and didn't seem to mind a bit when his clothes became covered with sawdust.

The highlight of his day was a reunion with some of his countrymen at a memorial in Stanley Park for Japanese killed while serving with Canadian forces during the First World War.

He was welcomed at the memorial by Dr. Harold D. Saita, president of the British Columbia Japanese Citizens' Association, who said "we will be praying to God that he will cover your long journey with safety and peace and may you accomplish your heavy, precious duties in a noble manner."

Later, Prince Akihito visited the University of British Columbia where he was greeted by President Norman Mackenzie. The prince expressed surprise that cherry trees from his native country were already in bloom, despite the coldness of the day.

Labor Council

"We feel that these are fundamental problems of government, and that all our councillors should be well informed about such matters. To accept public office, and then plead ignorance of such important matters of public interest, is to say that they are not fit to continue as representatives of all the citizens of Peterborough."

"The explanations given by members of council are puerile," said William Whibbs, Local 524, IUE-CIO. "If they don't know anything about these matters when are they going to learn?"

Alfred Barber, president of Local 210, UPWA, said: "Council seemed very slow in supporting the blind people. How they expect a blind person to live on $50 a month I don't know."

Thomas Cupola, Local 570, IUE-CIO, said, "I think we should throw our support behind Alderman Beggs."

The motion passed unanimously.

Autopsy Shows Woman Died Of Poisoning

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel, medico-legal expert, said today Mrs. Fortunat Dubuc of St. Isidore de Laprairie "positively died of strychnine poisoning."

He made the statement following completion of an autopsy, performed after the body of the farm wife was exhumed.

Fortunat Dubuc, 53-year-old, well to-do farmer, is in police cells awaiting appearance as a material witness at an inquest into the death of his wife Jan. 12.

Dubuc was arrested Friday shortly before he was to have married a 16-year-old girl, employed on the farm for several years. Police said the girl is pregnant.

BROKEN UP

Det. Sgt. Gaston Archambault said: "The girl is an expectant mother and was completely broken up by the arrest of her husband-to-be."

Investigation into the three-month old death was launched when police received an anonymous telephone call suggesting foul play and an autopsy.

Following investigation, police said they found a half-empty bottle of strychnine in an empty chicken house on the farm.

Truck Driver Finds Wife, Children Dead

ELMONT, N.Y. (AP)—A 32-year-old truck driver found his wife and three small children dead of gas poisoning Monday night.

The bodies, lined up on the kitchen floor, were those of Mrs. Donald Munroe, 28, and her children.

Police said the mother apparently held each child over the open-jet stove until dead and placed the bodies in a row on the floor. Then she lay down beside the children.

OBITUARIES

SALVATORE BECCA

A market gardener for 39 years in the Crawford's Grove district in the south-west corner of the city, Salvatore Becca, RR 5, Peterborough, died today in his 73rd year. He had been ill about six months.

Mr. Becca was born in Italy, son of the late Peter Becca and Josepha Marcasa. In 1913 he came to Peterborough and started a market garden. He was a member of St John the Baptist Church.

Mr. Becca didn't marry. He is survived by a sister Maria in Italy.

The funeral service will be held Thursday from the Duffus funeral home to Sacred Heart Church for requiem mass at 9 a.m. by the Rev. Dr. F. M. Grant. Burial will be in St. Peter's cemetery.

MRS. ELRICK WHITE

The funeral of Mrs. Elrick White, who died in Toronto Thursday, took place there Monday morning to Mount Hope cemetery. The former Kathleen Carr was the wife of Elrick White, Jr., who formerly lived in Peterborough, and was born here, son of the late Elrick White, Charlotte St. She was in her 60th year. Mrs. White leaves her husband, two sons: Elrick and Joseph; and daughters: Mrs. J. Kudirka (Jean), Mrs. B. Hannivan (Marjorie), Mrs. J. Foster (Marie); and one sister, Mrs. Robert Kennedy of Toronto. Requiem mass was celebrated at St. Peter's Church.

MRS. JOHN R. ANDERSON

HAVELOCK — Mrs. John R. Anderson, the former Julia E. Dyer, 70, RR 4 Havelock, died in Havelock Monday following a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Anderson was born in Belmont township, daughter of the late Thomas Dyer and Elizabeth Smith, and has lived in that district all her life.

She was a member of St. John's Anglican Church, Havelock.

Surviving are six sons, Robert, Gordon and Harry, all of Toronto; and Thomas, Donald and Arthur, all of Havelock. Her husband, the late John R. Anderson predeceased her about 12 years ago.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. from the residence of her son, Thomas Anderson, RR 4 Havelock, to St. John's Anglican Church. The Rev. H. E. Peasgood of St. John's will conduct the service. Burial will be in Maple Grove cemetery, Havelock.

WILLIAM CARLOS WALLER

One of Peterborough's older businessmen, William Carlos Waller, 71, recently of Lakefield, died today in city hospital, following a short illness.

Mr. Waller was born in Campbellford, son of the late Robert James Waller and the former Harriett Runnells. He received his education in Peterborough and attended the Peterborough Business College.

Before moving to Lakefield he lived in Bridgenorth and Peterborough, where he ran Waller's Dairy for 35 years and in 1940 sold out to the Campbells Dairy, due to ill health. Mr. Waller was an adherent of Murray St. Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Essie Calvert, one daughter, Mrs. Reginald McMillan (Margaret) of Peterborough, two sisters, Mrs. H. Snowden (Florence) of Peterborough and Mrs. I. Birner (Olive) of Chicago, Ill., and two grandchildren, Carol and Mark McMillan of Peterborough.

The body is resting at the Kaye funeral home, and the Rev. Ivan Morgan, minister of Murray St. Baptist Church will officiate at the service, Thursday at 2 p.m. Burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Raising Teacher Standard–Dunlop

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Education Minister Dunlop said Monday night that good teachers, not fine buildings, produce good education.

That is why the Ontario department of education is trying to train young men and women to be the best teachers in the country, he said in an address at the official opening of a new wing of the technical and commercial high school.

"If people say educational standards are being lowered to get more elementary teachers, don't believe it," he said. "We are keeping and raising our standards, although there will have to be more pupils per teacher in classrooms."

While regular grants to schools were being increased from year to year by the province, grants for gymnasia had been cut off. There was little reason for children to be trained indoors when they were better off playing their games outside.

The new wing of the technical school includes eight classrooms, a cafeteria and a double gymnasium.

Third Offenders Given 4 Months In Jail

Two convictions were registered in Magistrate's Court today on liquor charges against William Hanrahan of Lakefield and William Cain of RR 1, Norwood. Hanrahan was sentenced to four months definite and one month indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory while Cain paid a $200 fine.

Hanrahan pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place. With two prior convictions against him, he requested a term at Mimico Reformatory. Magistrate W. R. Philp complied.

The charge of consuming liquor while on the interdicted list against Cain was laid March 21. Given the choice of serving a month in jail or paying a fine of $200 and $2.50 costs, Cain paid the fine.

Youth 19, Killed In Tunnel Project

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Gilbert Dubroy, 19, was killed today while working on the Ontario hydro tunnel project here. Hydro officials said he was run over by the wheels of a loading vehicle that was released when a cable broke.

An autopsy and inquest have been ordered. Dubroy, 14th victim of fatal accidents at the project since construction began, is survived by his widow living in Toronto.

Injured In Collision Passenger Dies

GALT (CP)—Ernest French, 65, of Detroit, injured in an automobile collision Sunday, died Monday night in hospital. After the crash he was believed to have suffered only cuts, bruises and shock.

An autopsy has been ordered.

Police said Mr. French, a passenger in an automobile driven by his brother Samuel of Burlington, was hurt when the vehicle was in collision with a car police said was driven by Maurice Schnarr of Kitchener at the Galt city limits.

Flood Advances In Dutch Village

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Dutch villagers at Bruinisse, on the eastern tip of big Schouwen-Duiveland Island, today carried siege rations and water into the attics of their homes as swirling sea water lapped around their doorsteps for the second time this year.

Many have already left Bruinisse since high tides Monday brought new floods over the dikes along the Dutch coast.

Water lay up to three feet deep in the low-lying parts of Bruinisse this morning.

This island in the Scheldt estuary was badly hit in the great February floods.

Villagers have been working nonstop since last Saturday to strengthen the dike but it gave way in three places before wind-lashed seas.

Two breaks have been plugged up.

Cemetery Makes Million Dollars To Date

TORONTO (CP)—Glendale Memorial Gardens, a commercial cemetery in suburban Etobicoke township, has grossed more than $1,000,000 to date, Douglas King, vice-president of the Canadian Association of Memorial Craftsmen, told the legislature's select committee on cemeteries Monday.

He estimated the same 103-acre cemetery might bring another $7,000,000 to its promoters before being completely sold out.

Health Minister Phillips told the committee he is checking present legislation regarding the possibility of curbing the sale of plots while the committee is making its study.

$100,000 WEEKLY

Sales in the Toronto area alone are running at $100,000 a week for commercial cemetery plots, F. D. Clarke of the Toronto General Burying Grounds said.

The committee adjourned until June, instructing secretary John Scott to gather information about municipal and community cemeteries and line up representatives to be heard at the next meeting. They will also hear representatives of the commercial companies and will later discuss the problem of the abandoned cemetery.

Beet Growers Sign Contract

CHATHAM (CP)—A contract with terms the same as last year, except there are no tonnage restrictions on the 18.8-cent bonus, was signed here Saturday by the Ontario Sugar Beet Growers' Association and the Canada and Dominion Sugar Co., Ltd.

The weeks-long dispute over the 1953 contract ended after Chatham Board of Trade assumed the role of mediator and brought both sides together Friday night.

Last year the 18.8 cent bonus was paid to growers only if the total crop exceeded 300,000 tons, but the 1953 bonus will be paid by the company regardless of the size of the crop, owing to the lateness of the season.

A. W. McIntyre of the company said the agreement meant that company field men started contracting Monday in the nine counties of Southwestern Ontario where sugar beets are grown.

Boy Comes To Canada To See Wild Animals

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A stray lamb who came to Windsor from his home in nearby Detroit expecting to see bears, wolves and moose wandering about was returned to his parents late Sunday night.

Larry Lamb, 10, was picked up by provincial police near the city's outskirts. At first he wouldn't talk. Finally he gave the information necessary to find his parents and have them pick him up.

Larry said he wanted to come to Canada because his teacher told him wild animals roam throughout the country and he was anxious to get a look at them.

Photographs Show Child's Bruised Body

TORONTO (CP) — Two photographs showing a bruised and emaciated body of a child were exhibited Monday at the trial of Mrs. Edna Le Blanc, charged with manslaughter in the death of two-year-old Paul David Le Blanc Jan. 19 and with failing to provide the necessities of life.

Alexander Sielinski, 37, who lived with Mrs. Le Blanc, faces the same charges and will be tried separately.

Provincial pathologist E. C. Fielden described the bruises, as well as some burns, on the body, but said the child died of a fractured skull.

The case is continuing.

Choose City Hall Site

SARNIA (CP)—Victoria Park, just a block or two from the hub of the downtown shopping district, has been chosen as the site for Sarnia's new city hall. At a special meeting Monday, city council reversed its decision of a week ago. The deciding vote was cast by alderman Jack Church who voted against the site a week ago, but favored it Monday. Council authorized the city hall committee to open negotiations with the park board for acquisition of the park.

Minister Gets Home

LOCUST HILL—When the Rev. John McLachlan retires after 42 years in the United Church ministry this June, a home built entirely by volunteer labor will be ready for him. The five-room bungalow was constructed by grateful members of his congregation in this community 15 miles northeast of Toronto.

"Could I keep working?"

A Serious Question for One Suffering from Arthritic Pain

"I suffered a great deal from such pain in my legs, knees and other joints, that it was hard to do my work," writes Miss Thelma Johnson, Picton, Ont. "I was having so much trouble, I wondered if I would be able to continue at my job. Then I learned about T-R-C's. What a fortunate day that was, for I have had the very best sort of relief. I wouldn't want to be without T-R-C's in the house."

Don't suffer needlessly from relentless arthritic pain. Get quick relief from dull, wearisome aches caused by Arthritic, Rheumatic, Neuritic, Sciatic pain, Lumbago or Neuralgia. Start taking Templeton's T-R-C's today. 65c, $1.35 at drug counters. T-839

MR. AND MRS. JAMES HEFFERNAN, the bride formerly Sylvia MacGregor, were married here Saturday and have left to make their home in Nanaimo, B.C. where he is now playing lacrosse. —Parks Studio Photo

Lacrosse Player Wed Here

St. Alphonsus Roman Catholic Church was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday morning when Sylvia MacGregor and James Heffernan were united in marriage. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar MacGregor and the groom a son of Mr. Wilfred Heffernan and the late Mrs. Heffernan, all of Peterborough.

The Rev. D. M. Coll performed the ceremony and said the nuptial mass. The wedding music was played by Terry Keating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of white nylon lace over net. It was styled with becoming neckline offset with a nylon yoke edged with scallops and the full skirt fell in folds from a scalloped waistline. Her fingertip veil of nylon net fell from an orange blossom coronet and she carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations.

As matron of honor Mrs. John Casey was gowned in orchid taffeta and bridesmaid Mrs. Desmond O'Connor was in yellow net over taffeta. Each wore matching lace mittens and a flowered headdress and they carried nosegays of pink carnations and daffodils. Both are sisters of the bride.

Mr. Leo Collins was groomsman for his cousin. The ushers were Donald MacGregor, RCA, Camp Borden, brother of the bride, and Bert Gardiner, brother-in-law of the groom.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents with her mother receiving in a gown of dusty rose crepe and lace and wearing a hat of cornflowers and navy accessories and corsage of deep pink carnations. Also receiving was the groom's aunt, Mrs. Fred Collins, who wore navy sheer with navy accessories and a corsage of dream roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan left later by train for Nanaimo, B.C., where he is a member of the Nanaimo Clippers lacrosse team. For travelling the bride chose a navy suit and red and white accessories and her going-away corsage was a gardenia.

Cathcart-Bridcott Nuptials

Easter lilies and gladioli banked the alter of All Saint's Anglican Church on Saturday as setting for the wedding of Joyce Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Bridcott of Peterborough, to Mr. Harley Allen Cathcart, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cathcart, Springville.

The Rev. Maurice P. Poole, rector, performed the marriage ceremony. Miss Margaret Flowers was at the organ and played traditional music before the service and during the signing of the register.

The bridal gown was fashioned with bodice of lace and a bouffant skirt of white net emboridered with lace flowers and she wore a bonnet of the lace to which her veil of silk illusion was caught with tiny sprays of lily of the valley. Her bouquet was of pink carnations and pink feathered hyacinths.

Given in marriage by her father, she was attended by her sister Miss Gladys Bridcott as maid of honor and Mrs. R. Bell, sister of the groom, and Mrs. C. Kelcey as bridesmaids.

The attendants were frocked alike in orchid embossed taffeta made with scalloped necklines and bouffant skirts and they wore matching mittens and bonnet-shaped headdresses. Their flowers were cascade bouquets of Johanna Hill roses.

Mr. Manson Cathcart attended his brother as groomsman and Donald Cathcart, also a brother, and Carmen Kelcey were ushers.

The reception for about 80 guests was held in the parish hall. Mrs. Bridcott received in a gown of coronation blue crepe and lace and wore pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Miss Mildred Brown, a cousin of the groom, also received and was dressed in embroidered navy mesh and wore powder blue accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Out-of-town guests were from Springville, Bailieboro, Cavan, Port Hope, Sunderland, Brampton, Woodstock and Detroit.

The bride and groom left afterward on a motor trip to United States. Mrs. Cathcart was wearing a navy crepe dress with pink accessories and a powder blue topcoat. Her corsage was of pink roses and sweet peas.

They will live in Springville.

Two lovely vocal selections contributed by Mrs. Leslie McLaren were "Sylvia" and "Homing." She was accompanied by Mrs. Cecil Searles.

Mrs. Coleman expressed sincere thanks to all participants in the program. Miss Hart's room won the attendance prize and was also responsible for dainty refreshments served under convenership of Mrs. G. Norris.

HOSTESS GOWN—Designed by Peter Russell, this floating Winterhalter hostess gown in yellow net has a pointed corsage with wide V neck and long narrow sleeves and is completely embroidered in matching beading. It is one of the gala gowns designed by a top London expert for formal evening functions of Coronation year.

AN "OCCASION" DRESS—A group of London designers called the "Big Eleven" has designed a series of gala gowns for wear at formal evening functions of Coronation year. Victor Stiebel, designer to Princess Margaret and the Duchess of Kent, has fashioned with classic simplicity this "occasion" dress. In cream slipper satin brocaded with gold roses, the strapless bodice moulded to the figure, the huge skirt draped in front and billowing back to a full train, it makes a perfect background for heavy, heirloom jewellery.

Little Above, Much Below Describes Formal Gowns

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Little above and much below—that's a swift summary of the gala gowns designed by London's "big eleven" for wear at the formal evening functions of Coronation Year.

Citing one example, consider for instance the lovely, classic simplicity of an "occasion" dress by Victor Stiebel, designer to Princess Margaret and the Duchess of Kent. In cream slipper satin brocaded with gold roses, the strapless bodice moulded to the figure, the huge skirt draped in front and billowing back to a full train, it makes perfect background for heavy, heirloom jewelry.

In company with other top British fashion designers, Stiebel gives that extra glitter to even the richest brocades, picking up part of the pattern in jewel-embroidery. This gown has some of the brocade roses on the bodice front embroidered in pearls and gold thread.

HANDSOME DECORATION

Mattli, another member of the "big eleven" of fashion, decorates the strapless top of an Edwardian "Gibson Girl" dress with wheat ears in topaz, gold and crystal beads. With apron front, pleated flounces, built-in bustle and train, the gleaming dress is made of parchment pure silk satin, so rich it takes a week to weave half a yard.

More than one designer shows the influence of the first Elizabethan era. This is evident in dresses whose bodices are extended below the waist, creating as neat a line as that of any Tudor maid.

The same type of pointed Elizabethan bodice is used by Peter Russell and the Queen's designer, Norman Hartnell, in extremely different styles. Hartnell picks a "lashkar lame" from the west Cumberland silk mills and leaves the pink and gold rayon brocade to speak for itself, free of the elaborate embroidery for which he is famed. A full skirt comes from under the points of the low bodice, a ruched bra peeps from under a deep "V" neckline and matching pink flowers cover one of the broad shoulder straps.

HOSTESS GOWN

Russell's number is a floating Winterhalter hostess gown in yellow net, the pointed corsage with wide V neck and long narrow sleeves, completely embroidered in matching beading.

Stiebel's Elizabethan bodice comes just below the waist in a straight line, a full skirt swinging out in side-gathered fullness. One design, an off-white Bombay pure silk from the west Cumberland silk mills, has strapless top embroidered in pearl motifs.

An evening gown in gold and white brocade that might be worn under Coronation robes is a draped dress with swathed bodice, halter neckline and loose, low hip drapery styled by Mattli.

Perkins-McGill

BETHANY (ENS) — A quiet wedding took place at the rectory of St. Paul's Anglican Church in Bethany on Saturday when the Rev. T. S. Gault solemnized the marriage of Miss Olive McGill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman McGill to Mr. Howard Perkins, son of Mrs. Perkins and the late Clarence Freeman Perkins of London.

The bride chose a gown of white satin, ballerina length made with strapless bodice and full overskirt of net with lace inserts. She wore a matching long sleeved jacket of lace. Her fingertip veil was caught to a headdress of tiny seed pearls and she carried a cascade of red roses.

Bridesmaid was her sister Miss Alta McGill of Peterborough, wearing orchid taffeta, also in ballerina length, with fitted bodice and full net overskirt. She wore a matching taffeta headdress and carried a bouquet of yellow daffodils.

Mr. Howard McGill of Oshawa was groomsman.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. McGill received their guests wearing navy crepe with navy accessories and corsage of pink carnations. The mother of the groom also received, wearing a flowered navy crepe dress with navy and white accessories and corsage of pink carnations. Assisting in serving the buffet luncheon were the Misses Marie Carr, Peggy Reynolds, Beverly Pomeroy and Mrs. Ray Stinson.

The bridal couple will live at Richeleau Park, Quebec.

DOROTHY DIX:

Girl Wants Just One Youth Finds Him Sobering Effect

DEAR MISS DIX: Before I began going with Al, I had gone out with lots of other boys, and was considered the flirty type. I am considered attractive, and have never had any trouble getting dates. However, since I met Al, I have settled down, and we are very much in love. The trouble is that Al doesn't seem to have any confidence in me. The boys I used to go with tell him things that make him distrust me. Don't tell me I'm too young to be in love, since I began going with boys when I was very young and have played the field since. Al is the one for me, I know. DOLLY

✧ ✧ ✧

TOO YOUNG FOR ROMANCE

ANSWER: You didn't state your age so I really can't say whether you're too young to be in love or not, but, judging from the writing and context of your letter, I would most certainly say you are. The mere fact that you began going with boys when you were very young is certainly no proof that you are old enough to handle your emotional complications with judgment. In fact, the opposite seems to be true. You went headlong into steady dating at an age when you certainly were not able to handle a situation, with the result that you have earned an unenviable reputation among the boys you know — including Al. You fancy yourself, apparently, as a "femme fatale." Playing the field is no recommendation to appeal to a boy; if you want to earn Al's respect, or that of any other boy, begin to conduct yourself like a lady instead of like a movie siren.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Four years ago, when I was 22, I met a man my own age who was then attending college. I knew almost immediately that he was the one for me, and he gave me every indication that he shared my feeling. A few days ago I picked up a newspaper and read that he had become engaged to another girl. I'm sure I don't have to tell you how I felt. How could he kiss me goodnight one night, then plan a trip up the aisle with someone else a few days later? Now, what can I do? After going together for four years, it seems impossible that I could ever forget him; how shall I greet him if we meet casually on the street? Am I entitled to an explanation from him? These are the questions on my mind.

DONNA

ANSWER: The young man certainly could have had the courtesy and decency to tell you of his impending engagement before it became a fact. His treatment of you has been shabby, beyond a doubt.

You do have a long haul ahead in getting over your love for him, and though at the moment it seems an impossibility, I assure you it can be done. As a first step, find yourself an active hobby to pursue as a filler-in for the lonely days ahead. Greet the man in a friendly manner should you happen to meet him, send him a note of congratulation and tell him how surprised you were at the news. Perhaps he'll be man enough to pick up the lead and give you an explanation. At any rate, a man who could behave so badly isn't worth tears.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Last summer, while on vacation, I met a charming girl. We liked each other very much and, when we returned to our respective homes, began a correspondence. We wrote each other for several months then I heard no more from her. Recently I visited her home town, dated her a few times and asked why she had stopped writing. She had no reason. I came home, we wrote again, then after three weeks; she stopped. Should I try to pursue the correspondence, or forget her?

J. D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The girl apparently isn't satisfied with mere letter writing, for which one can't altogether blame her. She never has had a chance to know you really well, and would prefer to give her time to home-town boys with dates to offer. Take a leaf from her book and concentrate on the girls in your home town.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very upset over the fact that my husband wants to go on a month's vacation with some men friends. He refuses to discuss the situation with me, won't tell me exactly who the men are, or where they are going. We've never had a vacation together, not even a honeymoon. Our children are grown, and I think it's time we had a trip to ourselves.

V. E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It seems to me you've been a long time getting upset over this question. Your husband apparently has been going on stag vacations ever since you were married, which must be quite a few years. You'll have a hard time changing his point of view now. Why not take yourself off with the children, or with a woman friend? It's about the only way you'll get a vacation now!

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Faith Will Work Wonders When On Diet

Dear Mrs. Moore: I was about to write requesting diet sheet when I saw the marvellous detail and painstaking advice written to another (reader).

Yours is an exceptionally fine nature, dear Mary, besides your great patience, I love your love of fellow beings, or you surely would tear your hair at times.

A year ago I purchased, on your suggestion, the splendid book, Diabetic Menus, Meal s and Recipes by Betty M. West, for you see our daughter of 17 has required twice daily injections of insulin since 12 years of age.

When I hear of others complaining of restrictions in diet, cutting down on sweets, etc. I cannot help making comparisons. Let those who feel abused by doctors' ruling to control food intake not be too sorry for themselves, for if hundreds of people—diabetics—were to indulge in all of those sweets, desserts and excessive servings of carbohydrates, as you know, there are the hospitals waiting with open doors.

All of this is especially trying for the young folk so afflicted and the families are afflicted too, for they will often eat an apple for dessert just to make it a little easier for the one who lives by the needle.

However, Mom, can enjoy the pleasure of reading every item you so faithfully coach us into making. Your recipes are truly fool-proof, Mary. The plainer ones are for us, and as for the others "Well, I can dream can't I?"

All of your readers would "storm the press" if you dare ever leave us. Bless you for your good heart and modesty. I must say that you are a very clever woman.—Jean C. C."

Modesty should forbid the printing of that charming letter. I guess I'm just modest in spots.

The reason I give you this letter (I'm trying to convince myself!) is because it may urge others on restricted diets to be happier with their troubles— especially the reducers.

Some of you may have heard the modern evangelist, Dr. Al. Cliffe, speak on this subject of our afflications. Some of the miracles that have happened as a result of his inspiring lectures seem incredible, but I have seen the proof.

Faith will work wonders.

For . . .

. . with the radio announcer soberly predicting rain for Easter Sunday I plithely bought a thick 2½-lb. steak in preparation for a cook-out meal, as soon as Sunday School was out on Easter Sunday afternoon.

It did rain, but before and after our meal . We'd been foreminded enough to haul along our own dry wood and charcoal though. We found a new spot for our camping site, beside a brook that actually "purled" and had a tiny waterfall. It was heavenly. We were back in time for evening service too, and Marianne was able to wear her "new Easter bonnet with red roses on it" on Easter after all, for quite unexpectedly she was "off the ward" by 3 p.m., and in time for the picnic too. No quick-change artist could beat her out of a nurse's uniform into slacks and windbreaker when there's a picnic coming up. In spite of the fitful rain we had a glorious day.

Dr. Cliffe introduces one of his anecdotes by saying "Who wants all sunshine anyway?" He was driving through a desert in the Southwest United States, and it was so dry and parched and endless, and with the temperature at 115 deg. Fahr. he commented to his wife. "You see, my dear, what too much sunshine does? That's what happens to humans too if they don't have thunderstorms in their lives. They too would be dry and lifeless and useless."

As soon as Pete had the fire subdued we cooked our steak over the glowing coals in our huge hotel-size frying-pan— medium rare— for we are all carnivorous. Then Art sliced some underboiled new potatoes into the rich fat and juice in the pan and made them hot and crisp in no time. Marianne's and my fingers were stiff with the cold and her feet were wet, but heaven for us will be a happy camping ground.

Couple Honored At Euchre Party

FOWLER'S CORNERS (ENS)—An enjoyable evening was spent in the schoolhouse at S.S. 2, Smith, Friday evening.

Nine tables of progressive euchre were played, first prize going to Mrs. R. McAdam and Mr. Albert McConnell and consolation prizes to Douglas Irwin and Charles McFaul.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McConnell were asked to come forward and an address was read by Mrs. Eva Deyell. A beautiful floor lamp and table lamp were presented by Mrs. Melville Deyell and Barrie Deyell on behalf of their friends and neighbors. Their son, Robert, was also remembered with a small dresser lamp.

Mr. and Mrs. McConnell replied, after which everyone joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Everyone then retired to the basement where lunch was served by Mrs. Eva Deyell and Barrie and Mr. and Mrs. David McAdam.

Tea Held For WA Members

HASTINGS (ENS)—Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe opened her home to the Women's Association of Trinity United Church with group 1 as hostesses at a birthday tea honoring two members whose birthdays were celebrated, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe and Mrs. Marvin Preston.

A large number were present and the afternoon was spent in contests followed by a short program. Mrs. Eldon Preston, Mrs. John Richardson, Mrs. Len Metcalfe and little Sharon Metcalfe sang solos.

Afternoon tea was served at the tea table covered with a lace cloth and centred with a lovely bouquet of spring flowers. The hostess, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe and the president of group 1, Mrs. Eldon Preston, poured tea, assisted by Mrs. William Brooks, Mrs. J. G. Thompson. Two birthday cakes to honor Mrs. Metcalfe and Mrs. Preston were cut by them.

In March, 1952, Canada had 131,646 federal civil servants of whom 32,689 were employed at Ottawa.

Boys and girls...

WIN A C·C·M·BIKE!

NUCOA margarine gives away 5 BICYCLES EACH WEEK!

You'll be the envy of all the kids, riding a brand new C.C.M. bike! So, boys and girls, tell us in your own words why you'd like a new bicycle—and you've a chance to win! Every week, April 11th until May 16th, 1953, NUCOA will give away 5 new C.C.M. Standard bicycles! Yes, 30 brand new C.C.M. bikes!

HERE'S HOW TO WIN

1. Finish, in 15 words or less, the sentence "I'd like a new bicycle because . . .".
2. Write your entry on the entry form, obtainable from your grocer, or on a piece of plain white stationery, but each entry must be accompanied by the end-flap with the white square on it, or reasonable facsimile, from a NUCOA carton. Mail as many entries as you like (but each must be accompanied by the end-flap, or facsimile) to: "NUCOA", Post Office Box No. 36, Station "B", Hamilton, Ontario.
3. Contest is open to all boys and girls in Ontario, except families of employees of The Best Foods (Canadian), Ltd., or that Company's sales or advertising agencies.
4. There will be six weekly contests. Each contest closes on a Saturday, commencing April 11th and weekly thereafter. Entries post-marked after midnight each Friday will be considered in the next week's contest. Entries for the final contest must be received by Friday, May 15, 1953, on which date the last contest closes.
5. The five entries each week adjudged best in the opinion of a panel of judges will be awarded C.C.M. bicycles. The winners will be notified by mail within a week after the close of each weekly contest. Lists of prize winners available on request.
6. The judges' decisions will be final and no correspondence will be entered into regarding this contest.

6—In Memoriam

EASTABROOK—In loving memory of Mother, Maude Isabel Eastabrook, who passed away four years ago, April 12th.
Four years have passed but still we miss her,
Never shall her memory fade,
Loving thoughts will always linger,
Round the grave where she is laid.
—Always remembered by daughter, Isabel, LaVerne and family, Bill and family.

IRWIN—In loving memory of my dear mother who passed away April 14, 1945.
Happy home we once enjoyed
How sweet the memory still
But death has left a vacant chair
No one can ever fill.
—Always remembered by daughter Ione and son-in-law Wilbert and grandchildren Colin and Bryon.

IRWIN—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Andrew Irwin, who passed away April 14, 1945.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory she left behind.
—Sadly missed by her daughter Loreen and son-in-law Norman and grandson Barry.

6—In Memoriam

IRWIN—In loving memory of Mrs. Andrew Irwin, who passed away April 14, 1945.
Today recalls sad memories,
Of a dear mother gone to rest.
And the one who thinks of her today
Is the one who loved her best.
—Sadly missed by daughter Ruby, son-in-law Alex and grandchildren Sharon, Rickey and Shelley.

IRWIN—In loving memory of my dear mother, who passed away, April 14, 1945.
Sweet memories will linger forever;
Time cannot change them, it's true;
Years that may come cannot sever
Our loving remembrance of you.
—Always remembered by daughter, Jane and son-in-law Victor, grandchildren Nancy and Billy.

IRWIN—In loving memory of Mrs. Andrew Irwin, who passed away April 14, 1945.
In our hearts, your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true;
There is not a day dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
—Sadly missed by husband and sons, LaVerne and Clifford.

LOW—In loving memory of Mrs. John Low, who passed away April 14, 1941.
When days are dark and friends are few,
Dear mother, how we think of you;
Friends are friends if they are true,
We lost our best friend when we lost you.
—Always remembered by the family.

OWEN—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, L.A.C. James Ernest Owen, who was killed in England, April 14th, 1941, while serving with the R.C.A.F. Squadron No. 114.—Lovingly remembered by Mother, Dad, Annie and Fred.

WALKER—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Roy R. Walker, who passed away April 13, 1949.
Somewhere back of the sunset,
Where loveliness never dies,
He lives in a land of beauty,
Mid the blue and gold of the skies,
And we who loved him dearly,
Whose passing brought swift tears
Shall cherish his memory always,
To brighten the drifting years.
—Sadly missed by wife, Leona and family.

WALL—In memory of Mrs. Maude Wall and Mrs. William Dunford who passed away April 15th 1932, and April 13th, 1940.
There's a beautiful gate in Heaven so fair,
That we all must pass through alone,
Where our Saviour stands guard and beckons us come,
To meet our loved ones there.
—Always remembered by Harold, Susie and family.

Fanatic Tribesmen Kill Six In Attacks

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) Fanatic Mau Mau tribesmen killed four white men and two African policemen in two attacks last night in this terrorist-plagued British East African colony.

The four whites, members of the Kenya Regiment, were killed when a gang of about 100 from the blood-oath secret society attacked a platoon in the Fort Hall district.

A gang of 12 Mau Maus shot the African policemen to death at roadblock they were operating near Nairobi. A third policeman was wounded.

Utilities To Ask For $275,475

City council has become somewhat sensitive about particulars in its dealings with the Utilities Commision.

The Commission has prepared a program of capital spending this year amounting to $275,475 which will have to be borrowed. Debentures will be issued, and from now on anytime the Utilities people mention debentures City Hall goes on the alert.

It used to be taken for granted more or less that the details of getting the money were left to the financing business at the City Hall, but never again,—after the asperity from the Aylmer St. spot last year on a point of timing.

The note from the Commision was only an announcement. Next step by the "council will be subject to an offical request, setting out the date when they want the money".

The expenditures by the Commission include $94,475 for another substation, plus $100,000 to be spent on the distribution system. There are various other items.

No Constable Chemong Park

The Chemong Park Cottagers' Association are going to see if they can manage this year without the services of a special constable to keep order in the park area.

This information was given the Smith Township Council at their last meeting.

The Chemong Park area is within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Police who have their headquarters in Peterborough, but for a number of years a special constable has been employed to keep order.

"We thought we'd try this year to do without a special constable," said Mrs. C. R. Wasson, chairman of the association "If it doesn't work out we have been told we can get the services of a constable."

At the time of his death Carmen English of RR 2, Peterborough, was the constable. But before appointing anybody to fill the vacant post the association thought they would see how the alternative plan worked.

Mrs. Wasson recalled that the late Mr. English had done "a very good job" and this latest move was a temporary experiment.

Use Of Diesels In Rockies Makes Railroading Easier

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE GREAT DIVIDE, B.C.-Alta. (CP)—Though it hasn't got to the point where the engineer and fireman wear white shirts and ties, railroading in the Rockies isn't really railroading any more to the old timers.

Engineer Mickey McQuarrie, who has worked for the Canadian Pacific Railway 46 years, sat easily and comfortably in his diesel cab the other day, jockeying his 12-car, 800-ton passenger train from Revelstoke to Field. The 125.7 mile stretch is the toughest rail run in Canada.

He touched the throttle or brake of the three-unit diesel now and then, occasionally rolled down the window beside him to squirt a stream of tobacco juice into the deep snow beside the track. Every so often, his fireman, Ray Carroll, 31, pressed a button marked "separator blowdown."

"If this job gets any tougher, they'll have to pension me off," said Mr. McQuarrie, eyes twinkling behind rimless glasses.

SWITCHED TO DIESELS

CPR switched its mountain division—Kamloops, B.C., to Calgary—from steam locomotives to diesel operation 19 months ago. Diesels are less costly to run, easier to service and can haul more tonnage, and without a jolt.

"But they haven't got the same pick-up as steam," Mr. McQuarrie said, waving a hand at the speedometer as the train purred upward out of the five-mile Connaught tunnel. "Look at that, 25 miles an hour. Give me steam and we'd be hitting 50 now. We don't go fast enough to get a hot box any more."

But he has to admit the diesels are more comfortable. The cab, directly behind the headlight, commands a perfect view of the track ahead and on both sides. The engineer and fireman sit in stuffed seats Mr. McQuarrie fills his chair amply Hea in the cab can be adjusted as in the plush drawing rooms in the sleepers.

"Yes, it's got comfort, all right" Mr. McQuarrie said. "We can see everything. With the steam locomotive, you have to lean out of the cab to see ahead and my right side was usually soaked."

ANOTHER VETERAN

"Clear board!" interrupted Mr. Carroll as the pointed arm of the block signal system thrust straight up, indicating a clear track ahead. He has been railroading for 12 years, married the daughter of Vincent Segur, CCF member of the last British Columbia legislature for Revelstoke and himself a CPR engineer for more than 30 years.

Mr. Carroll disappeared now and then back into the bowels of the diesel—but not to shovel coal. The diesel runs on fuel oil and can run 400 or 500 miles without being refuelled.

The diesel rides as smoothly as the cars it pulls in contrast to the steam locomotives, which roll and buck like broncos. Most of the time the engineer and fireman can converse in normal voices.

Because the diesels can pull more cars, the CPR has had to extend most of its sidings on the mountain division to accommodate the longer freights. Tonnage limits, of course, are strictly enforced. If too much tonnage got away on a downgrade, there would be no stopping it, even with the diesel's "dynamic braking," a mechanism which works much like shifting a car into low gear when descending a steep hill.

Though it was almost April, the snow was still piled to the eaves of the telegraph offices along the lonely line. Chief worry of train crews is the slide—snow, rock or mud. A snow slide can start high on a mountain peak more than a mile from the track, hurtle down the mountainside and swallow a train whole. Such an avalanche rolled down Mt. Rogers in January. A freight train rounded a bend and plowed into it before it could stop, derailing the diesel and a couple of cars. Luckily nobody was hurt.

MOUNTAIN TUNNEL

Four and a half miles of snow sheds were built through Rogers Pass, original route of the CPR between Stoney Creek and Glacier. Avalanches continued to take such a heavy toll that in 1916 the Connaught Tunnel was drilled through the base of 10,818-foot Mt. MacDonald. This double-tracked straight bore, the two spiral tunnels between Hector and Field and the bridge over Stoney creek—straight down, a 350-foot drop—still stand as monuments to Canadian railroad builders.

Here at the Great Divide, the CPR reaches its highest point in Canada—5,332 feet. It also marks the British Columbia-Alberta border and the point where the waters of the continent divide. A tiny rivulet splits in two. Westward, one branch becomes the turbulent Kicking Horse. Eastward, the other branch becomes the Bow.

From Vancouver, at Tidewater, the train has ground steadily upward, through the gorges of the Fraser and Thompson rivers, through Box and Albert canyons, around snow-hatted peaks and blue-and-green glaciers, beside the rushing headwaters of the Columbia and the Kicking Horse, under Mt Ogden and Cathedral crags in the spiral tunnels in the Great Divide. Now it starts down, down through the valley of the Bow, across the northern end of the valley of the Ten Peaks, beside Mt. Eisenhower and through Banff and Canmore to the vast flatlands of the Prairies.

At Calgary, the engineer and fireman step down from their automatically-heated diesel. There is not a spot of oil or grease on their overalls.

As Mr. McQuarrie might say, it is enough to keep an old steam man awake at nights, blushing in the dark.

Mystery Gland In Brain Found 'Big Boss'

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A mystery gland in the brain seems to be the real boss gland of the human body, it was disclosed today.

It even translates thoughts of love, sex, fear or hate to order other glands into action. This could explain how thoughts of love could stimulate production of sex hormones. Or how seeing sudden danger spurs adrenal glands to give you extra adrenalin, in order to fight or run.

This big-chief gland is the hypothalamus. Scientists haven't been sure just what it does, or how it works. It's been called the seat of the emotions, and apparently is involved in the strange mechanism of sleep.

TWO VITAL GLANDS

In insect experiments Dr. Berta Scharrer, University of Colorado school of medicine, finds the hypothalamus has two vital controls over the pituitary, the gland at the base of the brain which up to now has been considered the boss gland.

One control, she finds, is that the hypothalamus actually produces some hormones and sends them to what, in humans, would be the back part of the pituitary gland. These hormones regulate the salt and water and fluid balance of the body.

The brain gland sends these hormones through a nerve to the pituitary, for storage and release when necessary.

Sending hormones along nerves is a new thing.

This same nerve coming from the brain gland also has a branch line running to what, in humans, would be the front part of the pituitary gland. That part of the pituitary makes the hormones which control the sex glands, the adrenal glands, the thyroid gland.

CONTROLS RELEASE

The hypothalamus apparently controls when these pituitary hormones shall be released, Dr. Scharrer's work indicates.

The hypothalamus sends a message along the nerve to the front part of the pituitary, giving it orders. If the nerve line is cut, the front pituitary hormones are made but keep piling up. It's like a factory turning out goods, but the shipping department won't send them out until it gets orders by telephone from the boss, and the telephone line is cut.

Dr. Scharrer and her husband, Dr. Ernst Scharrer, found this evidence in work with giant South American cockroaches, one to two inches long.

Sub-Committee Begins Seaway Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The St. Lawrence seaway—a hardy perennial in Congress—gets its newest look today from a Senate foreign relations sub-committee.

The committee begins a hearing on legislation that would authorize the United States to join with Canada in construction of the deep-draft waterway.

Only one witness, Brig.-Gen B. Robinson, deputy chief of U. S. Army engineers, is definitely scheduled to appear at the initial hearing. Robinson is expected to give cost estimates on the U. S. portion of the waterway.

One bill before the committee—introduced by chairman Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.)—proposes that Congress authorize creation of a St. Lawrence development corporation.

The corporation would be empowered to raise $100,000,000 through sale of revenue bonds to defray American construction costs in the building of the waterway through the International Rapids section.

CANADA'S PART

The measure assumes that Canada will construct, on its side of the St. Lawrence, the Soulanges and Lachine sections of the 27-foot canal.

The Wiley proposal is unlike any other seaway bill submitted for congressional approval. Previous measures have always provided that development of the river's hydro-electric potential be made a part of the project.

The current Wiley bill assumes that the federal power commission will grant a licence for the power construction to New York state. The New York application, on which hearings have been completed, is awaiting decision of the commission.

Seaway supporters attach "paramount importance" to commission approval of the New York application.

DON'T WANT TO BE LEFT

They argue that unless the power project is authorized and built in co-operation with Canada, the U.S. may not be a party to the seaway construction.

Canada, mindful of the many times that Congress has turned down the seaway legislation, has announced that it will build the waterway on its own side of the St. Lawrence if Congress persists in its refusal.

Opposition witnesses, when they appear, are expected to maintain that construction of the waterway, providing some ocean shipping access to the Great Lakes, will prove harmful to railroads, port cities on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, and coal interests.

But most observers are of the opinion that some sort of bill will be approved by the committee because a heavy majority of its members are known to favor the seaway.

HOME AFTER MOSCOW "CURE"—French Communist leader Maurice Thorez leaves a train at St. Quentin, France, with his wife, Julie Marie Vermeersch, after returning from a 30-month stay in Moscow. Red doctors pronounced Thorez "completely cured" by Soviet treatment of his stroke, but newsmen noted that he limped badly and his left arm dangled uselessly at his side.

WRECKED BY TORNADOES—A house near Muncie, Ind., shows heavy damage after being hit by fruious tornadoes. No one in the family was injured seriously, but a young boy was hurled from the structure into a field. The "twisters" caused extensive property damage through Indiana and Illinois and reportedly killed at least two persons.

Coal Seen Vital Part Of Canada's Energy Supply

EDMONTON (CP) — A study of Canadian energy sources suggests that the market for coal will remain close to its current level until 1965, then increase sharply during the next 10 years.

The report, by C. L. O'Brian of the Dominion coal board, says its findings sound "a clear warning that coal still remains a vital portion of our energy supply."

The study, presented at the annual meeting here of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, is patterned on the U. S. Paley report prepared for President Truman on "resources for freedom."

Discounting theories that demand for coal is receding, the study says that even if the most optimistic predictions for oil and gas production are achieved, the market for coal 12 years from now will be as great as it is today.

At the same time, a proportionately moderate reduction in estimated production figures for oil and gas could lead to increased demand amounting to as much as 17,000,000 additional tons a year.

BASIC ASSUMPTIONS

The study says it took into account "basic assumptions" roughly parallel to those used in the Paley report.

These included the assumption that the population of Canada will increase to 16,500,000 by 1965 and 18,000,000 by 1975; that there will be no general war in that period, that economic growth will continue close to the current level, and that there will be no big energy supply developed from atomic sources.

The study estimates that fuels needed to supply the energy required in 1965 will be 297,000,000 barrels of oil, 315,000,000 thousand cubic feet of natural gas, 116,200,000 thousand kilowatt hours of hydro electricity, 6,000,000 tons of lignite and sub-bituminous coal, and 37,000,000 tons of bituminous anthracite and coke.

The estimates of 1975 requirements are 356,240,000 barrels of oil, 400,000,000 thousand cubic feet of gas, 158,000,000 thousand KWH of hydro electricity, 8,000,000 tons of lignite and sub-bituminous coal, and 58,000,000 tons of bituminous anthracite and coke.

MARKET REMAINS

"If the amounts estimated as possible production for gas and oil are attainable," the report says, "one clear deduction is possible and that is that even with these large increases in other fuels, there still remains a market for coal of about the present size up to 1965 after which the requirement will increase substantially.

"On the other hand, if the supply of oil and gas does not reach these levels, an increasing tonnage of coal and coke will be required. For example, a drop in the estimate oil supply in 1965 to 250,000,000 barrels would mean that 12,000,000 additional tons of coal would be required while a corresponding drop to 250,000,000 thousand cubic feet of gas would correspond to a further 5,000,000 tons of coal."

Change Capital Structure Of Trans-Canada Air Lines

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Monday passed legislation changing the capital structure of the government-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines and increasing the board of directors to nine from seven.

Trade Minister Howe, who reports to parliament for TCA, said the legislation provides for amalgamation of the two airline entities—Trans-Canada Air Lines which operates the domestic service and Trans-Canada Air Lines (Atlantic) Ltd., which operates overseas services.

This, along with internal financial readjustment, will give the airline a better break on payment of income taxes.

WON'T CHANGE NAME

The bill makes statutory provision for use of the name "Air Canada." But Mr. Howe told Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) there is no intention to change the present name of the airline but only to provide for use of the name "Air Canada," already widely used in Quebec as a French translation of Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Another section of the bill eliminates a provision by which its control might pass into private hands.

CHILD SUFFOCATES

SARNIA (CP)—Three-month-old Anne Marie Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Moore, was found smothered to death in her carriage Monday. Mr. Moore awoke to find his infant daughter had evidently turned over in her carriage and smothered in the pillow.

Municipalities Losing Power Jolliffe Says

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario municipalities are losing their power to the provincial government, E. B. Jolliffe, leader of the Ontario CCF party, said Monday night.

Speaking in the provincial affairs series, over a CBC network, Mr. Jolliffe said local government is loaded with more responsibility than ever before, but hasn't the power to meet its obligations. It was increasingly dependent on grants or subsidies "which must be wheedled out of an unsympathetic government at Queen's Park."

The result is, Mr. Jolliffe said, that municipal bodies, instead of being answerable to the people who elected them, are more and more subject to political manipulation and dictation from Queen's Park.

WIELDS REAL POWER

The provincial government wielded all the real power, but "still has no solution to offer" for the difficulties into which municipalities are drifting "except to hand out a little more money now and then—and it's always too little and too late."

Mr. Jolliffe said he thought the metropolitan council proposed for Greater Toronto will be a change for the better, but it means another level of government and a far more complicated system of municipal administration.

Referring to the edible oils bill, he said: "We of the CCF think there ought to be a very careful inquiry into the dairy industry as well as into substitute foods and imported raw materials. This is a much larger question than margarine or cream puffs."

Charge Brother In Youth's Death

GLENAVON, Sask. (CP)—Charged with murdering his brother, Zigmand Borowski, 21, was held by RCMP Monday following the fatal shooting of Stanley Borowski, 14, at their farm home.

Stanley was shot in the abdomen with a bullet from a high-powered rifle as he sat in his bedroom listening to a radio Saturday night.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Borowski, were shopping in Glenavon at the time of the shooting. Glenavon is 35 miles southeast of Regina.

Two teen-age sisters, Agnew and Rosie, were at home. Agnes ran barefooted a mile over gravelled roads to Glenavon to tell the parents.

Stanley was dead when a doctor arrived.

Sailors Court Death To Shell Supply Line

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian sailors court death almost daily to shell rail supply lines along the east coast of Korea, Cmdr. Bill Strange said Monday. Canadian warships often range within 40 miles of Russia.

Cmdr. Strange, head of he navy's public relations staff, has just returned to Ottawa after spending two months with the three Canadian destroyers working with the United Nations fleet off Korea. Destroyers now serving in the Korean war are Athabaskan, Haida and Crusader.

The commander said in an interview that the destroyers often come under enemy artillery fire as they move close inshore on their train-busting forays.

LONGEVITY RECIPE—Edmond Dyonnet, oldest and one of the best-known Canadian artists, approaches his 94th birthday firm in the belief that painting is a recipe for longevity. A former secretary of the Royal Canadian Academy, he said records show that many painters live to an old age. He arrived in Montreal from France in 1875 and painted until two years ago.

Try Painting For Longevity Advice Of Dyonnet, 94

MONTREAL (CP)—Edmond Dyonnet, the oldest and one of the greatest living Canadian painters, approaches his 94th birthday with a theory that painting is a formula for longevity.

The former secretary of the Royal Canadian Academy said in an interview:

"Sixty-eight academicians died while I was secretary. Several were over 80 and two reached 96. This would seem to suggest painting as a recipe for longevity. After all it took a plague to carry off Titian at the age of 99."

STORY OF PAINTING

Mr. Dyonnet's life is in itself the story of Canadian painting over a period of 75 years. He arrived in Montreal in 1875 from his native France and painted from then until two years ago, when he began to find the walk to is downtown studio too exacting on his strength.

His pupils included the noted Canadians Clarence Gagnon and A. Y. Jackson. "At one time I taught in practically all the art schools in Montreal," he said.

Mr. Dyonnet recently wrote his life's history, calling it "Memoirs of a Canadian Artist." He wrote it in longhand in French. Then, deciding his English friends might like it too, he wrote it again in longhand in English.

He said: "I am living proof that hard work never killed anyone."

Junior Homemaking Clubs Meet For Achievement Day

Achievement Day —the climax of a year's work and activities for 70 girls from nine centres in Peterorough county was held at the Normal School Saturday.

The theme for the day, Cottons May Be Smart, was proved many times over by exhibits, demonstrations and skits. In addition several of the girls proved their point by their ensembles for the day— attractive cotton dresses which they had made themselves.

Ranging in age from 12 to 26, the girls taking part are all members of Junior Homemaking clubs in the county. Club work has a program which includes all aspects of domestic skills and even includes gardening.

This year the club's work was based on clothing. It has included projects and study on suitability of styles and colors, selection of materials and patterns and the making of a cotton garment.

The final results of the year's work were on display Saturday. These included dresses, record books and exhibits.

During the morning and afternoon the girls judged several classes of dresses and gave reports on this judging and presented skits and demonstrations on the day's theme. They all worked buttonholes and sewed on buttons.

The clubs presenting demonstrations and skits were Bailieboro —Anytime, Any Place, Anywhere; Belmont —Cottons May Be Smart; Keene—Around the Clock; Lakefield—Cottons May Be Smart; South Smith—Around the Clock with Cottons; Warsaw—Let Us Make a Dress.

The clubs with exhibits on display and the member commentators were: Bailieboro—Arnell Wood; Belmont, Wanda Wood; Keene, Beverley Gall; Lakefield, Noreen Corkery; Hall's Glen, Analee Scott; South Smith, Nola Wilson; Warsaw, Georgina Moore.

During the afternoon, Miss Jean Noble, home economist for the counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Northumberland and Durham, who was in charge of the day, announced that names of the club members who would receive certificates for the completion of club work projects.

The certificates will be presented at Club Night, to be held April 21 at the Peterborough YWCA and will take the form of a banquet sponsored by interested local organizations.

Mrs. Eleanor White of Millbrook tops the list and will receive provincial honors—a pin and certificate —for the completion of 12 club work projects. Mrs. Edith Althouse of Belmont will be presented with county honors for the completion of six projects.

Four projects were completed by Isabella Kidd and Marion Syer, both of Bailieboro; Marlene Stewart and Eileen Davidson of Keene, Myla Bulmer of South Smith, and June Clysdale, Eleanor Davis and Eleanor Edwards, all of Warsaw.

Two projects have been completed by: Jean Jones of Bailieboro; Mary Palmeter, Mildred Van Allen and Ruby Youmans, all of Belmont; Betty Eason, Joy Ellison, Beverley Gall, Mary Hall, Maureen Maloney, Carolie McNevan, June McNevan, all of Keene; Bernadette Wallbridge and Joanne Wanamaker of Lakefield; Reta Parsons, Ruth Fowler, Betty Gilbert, Beverley Hetherington, all of South Smith; Maureen Crowe, Barbara Davis, Barbara Hampton, Georgina Moore, Lulu Rayne, Eleanor Telford, Yvonne Telford, all of Warsaw.

Miss Noble was assisted by Miss Lulu Row, clothing specialist with the central office of the Women's Institute, Home Economics Branch of the Department of Agriculture, and Mrs. Ernie Clarke, home economist of Newmarket.

Among the visitors for the day was Mrs. J. Moore, president of the Peterborough County Women's Institute.

The leaders and assistant leaders of the clubs participating are: Mrs. L. M. Perrin, leader, and Mrs. L. Jewison, assistant leader, Bailieboro; Mrs. C. King, Mrs. Ivan Ellis, Belmont; Mrs. O. Churchill, Mrs. W. H. Pearson, Buckhorn; Mrs. A. Harrison, Miss Margaret Neville, Hall's Glen; Mrs. F. C. Bennett, Mrs. W. Woodbeck, Havelock; Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. R. McIntyre, Keene; Mrs. M. Payton, Mrs. Roy Farrow, Lakefield; Mrs. Clarence Mann. Mrs. A. Bulmer, South Smith, Mrs. H. G. Digweed, Mrs. Milton Drain, Warsaw.

Suggests Relaxation Of CBC's Monopoly

TORONTO (CP)—A spokesman for the independent association of broadcasters Monday urged relaxation of the CBC's monopoly television policy in major markets.

Joseph Sedgwick told the Ontario Association of Radio, Television and Appliance Dealers that relaxation of present regulations to give Toronto at least two private stations would be of the greatest benefit to Canadian advertisers and to TV dealers.

At present the only TV outlet in Toronto is CBLT, operated by the CBC.

He said the CBC is hiding behind a transport department ruling which has no basis in legislation.

Airwoman Peggy Reynolds, RCAF, Lac Ste. Denise, Que., was home for the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reynolds. She was accompanied by Airwoman Willa Brown.

Dr. and Mrs. G. M. Longfield and their children Randy and Ruth spent several days last week in Mount Brydges with Mrs. Longfield.

Misses Gayle and Katherine Smith, Colborne, spent the Easter holidays with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Waddell.

Weekend guests with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mantle were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stinson and son Kenneth, of Oshawa, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mantle and son Rodney, of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Driver went to Toronto on Saturday to visit to their daughter an dson-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bruce. Mr. Bruce, formerly a teller in the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, has been promoted to accountant and is this week moving to Petrolia.

Miss Vivian Rowan, RN, who has lately been employed in Vancouver, B.C., is home for a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rowan.

The Rev. Clifford Grant, BA, of Toronto, will be in charge of services on the Bethany United Church circuit next Sunday. Mr. Grant is the first applicant to fill the vacancy when the present minister, the Rev. James Hampson, leaves in June to reside near Pembroke.

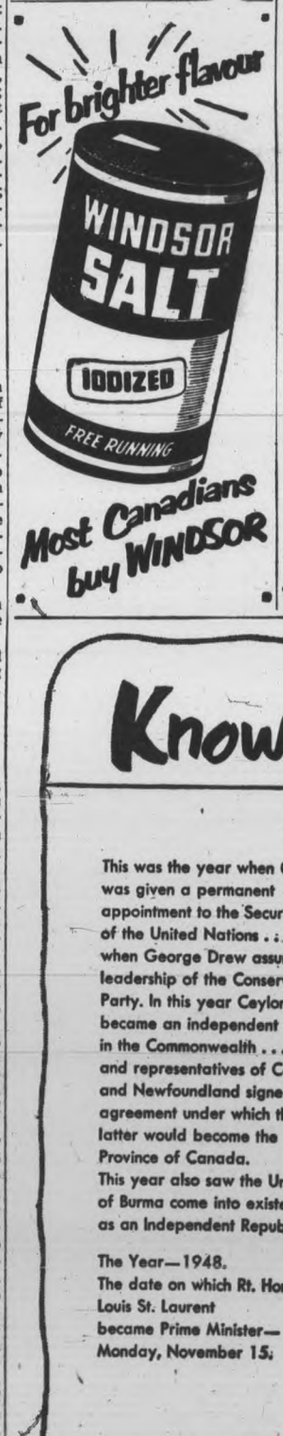
Israel Praises Russia Ending Anti-Jewish Talk

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Israel Monday praised the recent "cessation and repudiation of anti-Jewish propaganda" in Russia and expressed the hope it would be permanent. The new Jewish state urged the Soviet Union to permit its Jewish population to emigrate to help prevent the campaign flaring anew.

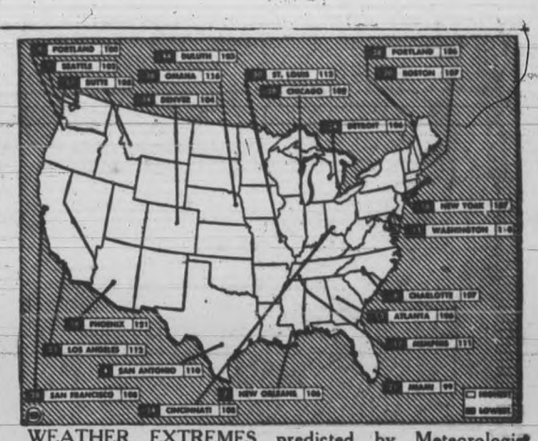
In a speech to the UN's 60-nation political committee, Israeli Labor Minister Golda Myerson labelled last winter's Russian and Czech charges of a Jewish-led conspiracy "evil nonsense." She said the "full, frank and vigorous repudiation" of these charges — especially as regards the "doctors" against Soviet leaders—was received with "deep satisfaction and relief."

Mrs. Myerson spoke as the committee debated a Communist Polish plan for world peace which drew a highly skeptical response from Western delegates.

Leslie Munro of New Zealand said the Kremlin had cried wolf for so long, it could hardly be expected to be taken for a lamb at the first bleat.



The UN hopes to wind up its spring session late this week, and Western delegates were emphasizing the theme of unity against Soviet divisive tactics.



The Polish resolution backed by Russia calls for a flat one-third cut in the armed forces of the "Big Five"—Britain, the U. S., France, Russia and Red China, abolition of atomic weapons without any control safeguards, and a Big-Five peace pact. All are old proposals defeated by overwhelming votes in the assembly during the last two years.

Baby Scalded To Death

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Betty Ann Moxley, 18 months, was scalded to death during the week-end when she toppled backwards into a pail of water her mother was using for scrubbing the floor. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Moxley of nearby Charleston Lake.

WEATHER EXTREMES predicted by Meteorologist Arnold Court for the next 100 years are diagrammed on U.S. map above.

Save 19 On Plane After Crash On Mountain Slope

SEATTLE—(AP)—Ground crews and daring helicopter pilots combined Tuesday to rescue 19 persons in a day-long struggle against nature after an army-chartered airliner crashed on deeply-wooded, snow-covered slopes of the Cascade mountains, killing the other six persons aboard. The last of the rescued was brought out 22 hours after the crash. The plane had been chartered to fly U.S. servicemen from the east to Seattle.

The slow and painful job of bringing the injured out began immediately after the plane's plucky stewardess, Mrs. Ada Long of Berkeley, Calif., was spotted hobbling down the mountainside, leaving a trail of blood in the deep snow.

She was six miles from the place where the plane plunged into cushioning trees when one of its two engines failed and ice formed on its wings.

The trees broke the fall but tore the wings from the craft. The fuselage broke into two parts, the forward section badly smashed and the rear half virtually untouched.

The pilot, co-pilot and four of the servicemen were fatally injured. Mrs. Long said she awoke after the crash.

STILL IN CHAIR

"I was still sitting in my chair," she told rescuers. "I had been thrown clear of the plane." This was approximately 2:30 a.m., the position 40 miles southeast of Seattle at the 3,000-foot level. Snow was five feet deep.

"I couldn't stand it up there," the stewardess said. "I had to see if I couldn't get out and get some help. One of those boys up there had one of his legs almost torn off. He was suffering terribly."

Mrs. Long was taken to hospital for treatment of a long gash in her leg and severe chest injuries. The only other survivor to walk out was Pte. Odell Matthews of Washington, D. C. The others were carried to the helicopter landing spot about eight feet wide, less than a mile from the wreckage, and to trucks which followed bulldozers up the mountain.

ENGINE TROUBLE

One survivor who spent the day awaiting rescue was Pte. Howard Wormuth, 21, Carbondale, Pa. He said the plane had had engine trouble out of Chicago and had to return there for servicing.

Later, he said, "it seemed to me that the engine was missing. All night long, I didn't think we were going to make it. A lot of the other boys felt the same way. We were on only one engine when the plane

Hint Government May Take Over Grain Elevators

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said today the West coast grain handlers strike cannot be allowed to go on indefinitely and hinted that the government has been considering taking over the elevators as a final resort.

However, he said in the Commons as opposition members pressed him to intervene in the two-months-old tieup, all other possibilities of reaching agreement must be exhausted before anything amounting to the equivalent of expropriation would be justified.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, promptly suggested that the possibility of such a solution as a last resort should be communicated both to the five elevator companies and the grain handlers union.

NOT INTERESTED

The Prime Minister also provoked opposition statements of surprise when he disclosed that he has been informed that even if the grain elevator companies were asked to send representatives here for consultations the representative would be a lawyer without final authority. The government, he said, isn't interested in that sort of a proposition.

For the present, the Prime Minister indicated the government intends to continue as it has been with the labor department making every effort to bring the two parties together.

Members of the Progressive Conservative, CCF and Social Credit parties urged the Prime Minister to intervene as he had done in the railway strike, arguing that it is apparent that the labor department itself is unable to end the dispute and that a serious situation for Western farmers is getting worse daily.

Mr. St. Laurent said it wouldn't be helpful for him to go into details at this time. He was fully aware of the seriousness of the situation but also of the old proverb about the horses that couldn't be forced to drink.

There might be a time when more than current efforts would be required to end the strike—there is no precedent for seizure of the elevators in Canada—but methods sometimes used in the U. S. had never had to be used here.

Baby Kidnapped From Carriage

HAMILTON (CP)—A six-month-old girl was apparently kidnapped from a carriage behind her Lawrence road home this morning. She is Audrey Nield, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nield.

The little girl is described as being chubby, with reddish hair, and was wearing a blue knitted suit, with no shoes.

Mrs. Nield said she put Audrey in her carriage, just six feet from the back door, about 9 o'clock. She was hanging out washing and looked from time to time to see if the baby was all right.

About 11:30, she discovered the baby was missing from her carriage. A hurried search of the yard revealed no trace of her, and Mrs. Nield called police.

Word Commonwealth Said To Be Dying

LONDON (CP)—Viscount Hailsham proposes that the phrase "sister nations" might prove a worthy substitute for the terms "Commonwealth" or "Empire."

Lord Hailsham, better known as Quintin Hogg in the days when he was a Conservative members of Parliament, believes the word empire is dead, and Commonwealth is dying. "Sister nations," he said, proposing a toast of that title, might be more suitable.

Montreal Wrestler Dies From Injuries

MONTREAL (CP)—Paul Lortie, 38-year-old Montreal wrestler, died suddenly at home Tuesday night, following injuries suffered in a bout March 31.

He was injured by a dropkick in the groin in a match at Verdun auditorium when he teamed up with his brother, Bob, against Harry Madison and Tony Galento.

Joe Louis, the referee, awarded the Lortie brothers the bout on a foul when Madison kicked Paul Lortie in the groin.

See Judgment Affecting Cases

TORONTO (CP)—A judgment which could affect hundreds of careless driving cases was handed down today by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

The judgment written by Mr. Justice F. G. MacKay and concurred in by Chief Justice J. W. Pickup and Mr. Justice J. K. Mackay said in effect that civil negligence does not necessarily amount to driving without due care and attention. It emphasized the necessity of proving the guilt of an accused person beyond a reasonable doubt.

It quashed a careless driving conviction against Ottawa bus driver Thomas Beauchamp, who was fined $5 and costs after his bus was in collision with an automobile.

Mr. Justice MacKay said in the judgment that motor vehicles are a common means of transportation and pleasure.

"If too high a standard of care and skill were demanded (of drivers), some people would be deprived of the privilege of driving motor vehicles. Their use would be confined to experts and even persons who might become experts might well be prevented from qualifying by experience."

Tea-Drinking Skipper Steals March In Vessel Race

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—When is a ship not a ship?

Arguments are developing in Detroit today regarding the first sea-going ship to arrive at the port this season.

Some officials say the Geheimrat Sartori from Hamburg, due to arrive Saturday should be proclaimed the winner of a race involving 13 vessels.

Meanwhile, while the Geheimrat Sartori remains tied up in Toronto, the tea-drinking skipper of the British ship, the 1018-ton Lunan from Dundee, stole a march on everyone concerned by docking at Detroit this morning.

Civic officials had been planning a slap-up welcome for the Geheimrat Sartori. The Lunan does not qualify for the welcome. Officials say she is a tramp—a tramp steamer, that is.

This fact was conceded by Karl Zahler, representative of the company which chartered the Lunan, but he said, "The Lunan is in this case a tramp, but she's still the first ship in."

Although snubbed by official Detroit, Capt. William Inglis, of Edinburgh, the skipper of the Lunan, remains completely unmoved.

"I'd rather have a cup of tea and some ginger snaps in my cabin than play host to functionaries," he said.

What has pleased him is the fact that the Scottish St. Andrew's Society in Detroit were planning to visit his ship in welcome.

Not only will the Lunan be first in, but first out.

She is expected to leave today for Toledo with a cargo of beans.

U.K. Quitting International Wheat Pact

Leading Grain Men Think Withdrawal To Wreck Agreement

LONDON — (AP)—Britain confirmed today she will withdraw from the International Wheat Agreement. "After mature consideration the government have decided not to accede to the new agreement," Food Minister Gwylim Lloyd George told the House of Commons.

Lloyd George's statement had been expected ever since Britain refused to sign the agreement April 13—because she was unwilling to pay more than $2 a bushel for wheat.

But there had been a possibility Britain might finally fall into line and sign before April 27, the last date for agreement.

Many leading British grain men think Britain's withdrawal will wreck the international agreement.

Try To Force Truck Off Road

CHATHAM (CP) — Provincial police today sought the occupants of a black sedan which the driver of a transport said twice tried to force his load of liquor off Highway 40 between Chatham and Wallaceburg in daylight Tuesday.

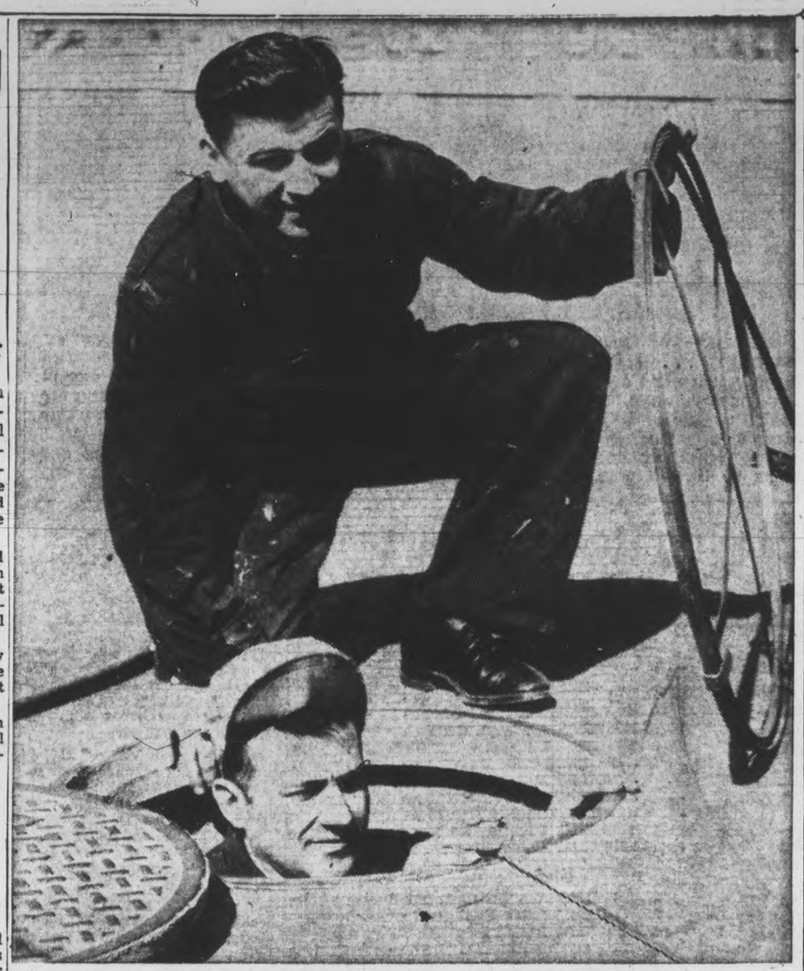
John Jacques told police the black car had pieces of cardboard fastened over its licence plates. After the attempt to force the truck off the road, provincial police gave the truck an escort to its Windsor destination.

Police said similar attempts in recent months have forced transport drivers to alter routes. Officers believe a gang operating from the United States may be involved.

Chief Inspector W. H. Lougheed of the OPP said police escort transports, some of which carry loads valued at $50,000, when there is suspicion of trouble.

House Burning, Woman Rescued

TORONTO (CP) — The landlady of a blazing home in midtown Toronto was carried to the street by an unidentified painter today. Six other persons fled the flames.



Seven fire reels were dispatched to the fire which firemen suggested started in an outside shed. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Mrs. L. Daoust was carried to safety. John McBrien in bed on the second floor when the fire broke out, escaped with only the clothes he was wearing. Police said none of the residents had fire insurance.

Allied Jet Bombs Own Forward Line

SEOUL (AP)—An Allied jet plane bombed a United Nations forward position in eastern Korea this afternoon, causing three casualties, the 8th army announced.

It was not known whether any of the three casualties were deaths or whether the victims were South Koreans, Americans or other UN troops.

FIREMEN WENT UNDERGROUND today in Ashburnham to fix an electrical connection in the city's fire alarm system. The trouble was first noticed at the fire station and a temporary line was strung across Hunter St. bridge Tuesday. Early today Joe Astles, fire alarm superintendent, Bill Bloom and Adelarde Vinette found the trouble, a splice, about 200 feet east of the bridge. Vinette (above) peeks out of the man-hole while Bloom looks on as Astles (not shown) stretches the steel tape along, finding the approximate position of the trouble.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Urge Stronger Penalties For Treason

OTTAWA (CP)—Giving a foreign state major military or scientific information—such as atomic secrets—would become treason in Canada under a Criminal Code change recommended Tuesday by the Commons' criminal law committee.

The amendment would provide penalties up to the death sentence for transmitting such information when it could be used against the safety or defence of Canada, whether or not she is at war. The death sentence already is mandatory for helping an enemy during hostilities.

In approving the provision, the committee reinserted in the code, in somewhat changed form, a clause the Senate had taken out of the government's original proposed revision of the code. The Senate had recommended that communicating this type of information in peacetime be removed from the "treason" category and made subject to a penalty of 14 years in prison.

Justice Minister Garson told the committee Tuesday it is the government's view that under present conditions treason can be committed by giving information of a special character such as that on atomic developments.

"There should be something in our code that covers a matter which, in our view, is the worst kind of treason," he said.

Chinese Down Burmese Plane

RANGOON (Reuters) — Twelve Burmese Army and Navy officers were believed killed when an air force C-47 was shot down by Chinese Nationalist guerrillas, frontline reports said today.

Some of the Burmese officers were reported to be of high rank.

Burmese troops have been battling the Nationalists in northeast Burma on the frontier with Communist China.

The Rangoon government has formally asked the United Nations to find the Formosa government guilty of agression because of the presence of Nationalist forces on Burmese territory.

The plane was shot down about 50 miles southeast of Kentung, the reports said.

They said the aircraft touched down on an improvised airstrip, control.

Report UN Ready To Renew Truce Talks With Reds

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United Nations command was reported about ready today to accept the Communists' suggestion for resumption of the Korean truce talks which have been bogged down since last October. No final decisions on details have been made, informed officials said, but the UN probably will be prepared to accept the Red proposal that war prisoners who refuse to go home be placed under control of a neutral country.

Switzerland may be the UN choice of a neutral power which would be satisfactory to the Allies. The U.S., it was said, will advocate selection of Switzerland. There was no indication whether she would be acceptable to the Communists.

Instructions on these points to Gen. Mark Clark, the UN commander in the Far East, have not yet been confirmed, responsible sources said Tuesday night.

Representative Dewey Short (Rep. Mo.) meanwhile said the U.S. should refuse to undertake any peace negotiations that would leave Korea divided. A peace conference would follow agreement on a cease-fire.

"There can be no permanent peace or stability in the Far East or in the world with a divided Korea," said Short, chairman of the House of Representatives armed services committee.

The Chinese and North Korean Communists have insisted that agreement on exchange of sick and wounded prisoners should be followed by resumption of full truce talks.

"Top-Secret" Device Stolen From Car

MONTREAL (CP)—Chief of Detectives Wilfrid Bourdon said today a "top-secret" measuring device, stolen from a parked car Tuesday, conceivably may have been taken by a foreign-power agent or possibly by young thieves who did not realize what they were taking.

Bourdon said it seemed "very strange" that the $6,000 device, apparently regarded as "top secret" by the defence department, was left unguarded in a parked car.

Theft of the article, reported to be a new-measuring invention, was reported by M. T. Malinowski of Granby. RCMP said they are working on the case but refused to comment further.

North Korean Attack Halted

SEOUL (AP) — Allied Sabre jets shot down one Communist MiG over North Korea today and on the ground withering fire from U. S. infantry hurled back 150 to 200 attacking North Koreans on the eastern front.

The Reds left 30 bodies sprawled on barbed wire entanglements on a hillside below an Allied trench line near Heartbreak ridge. Another 25 North Koreans were listed as wounded in the 45-minute battle the 8th army said.

Action was light elsewhere along the 155-mile front.

Chaplin Surrenders U.S. Re-entry Permit

WASHINGTON (AP) — British movie comedian Charlie Chaplin has surrendered his United States re-entry permit, indicating he does not intend to resume residence in the U. S. the justice department said today.

The department last year posted a stop order against Chaplin at all U. S. ports, after he had gone to Europe.

The order required the actor to submit to re-examination upon his return, to establish his readmissibility to the U. S.

U.N. Planes Spot Two Convoys; Fired On By Enemy

MUNSAN, Korea—(AP)—U.S. fliers Wednesday spotted two convoys of Allied sick and wounded rolling south high up in North Korea along roads jammed with Red military traffic and bristling with anti-aircraft guns that fired on the spotter planes. Pilots still were trying to find a third convoys. The Communists said the three convoys began the trek southward Tuesday carrying about half of the 600 disabled prisoners the Reds will free next Monday. A Communist correspondent said some in the three convoys were Americans.

The Communists apparently were taking advantage of the immunity from Allied air attack to pour in military supplies.

One pilot watched the masses of Red military trucks and said: "In all my 96 missions over North Korea I've never seen so many trucks on the road."

SITDOWN STRIKE

Arrogant Communist sick and wounded staged a sitdown strike at the other end of the repatriation road—the port of Pusan in southeast Korea—but gave up and went ashore when Allied guards with bayonets came aboard their landing ship.

As the day of liberation neared for the Allied captives, reports flew that discussions for reopening the whole prisoner exchange question might begin soon at Panmunjom. Prisoner exchange is the only issue blocking an armistice.

While there was nothing official here, two members of the regular armistice delegation arrived at this Allied truce base community. They are Brig.-Gen. Ralph Osborne, and Brig.-Gen. Edgar Glenn.

Osborne returned to his 3rd division artillery command after conferring with Rear-Admiral John C. Daniel, armistice delegation member who handled the negotiations for the exchange of sick and wounded. Glenn expected to return to Tokyo later today.

Meanwhile, the UN command said 930 Chinese prisoners are being made ready for exchange—230 more than the 700 Allies told Red liaison officers at Panmunjom would be returned as sick and wounded. There was no immediate explanation for the higher figure.

Even as the announcement came, almost 750 Chinese Reds on the first leg toward home rebelled briefly against the UN.

REFUSE TO LEAVE

They refused for 2½ hours to leave a tank-landing ship that took them from Cheju Island to the South Korean mainland, but they finally filed off after armed Allied guards wearing gas masks came aboard.

The Chinese all had asked for return to their homeland.

An American officer said:

"There were the usual nuisance demands to harass us, but most of the demands have been resolved as of now."

Fire Out Of Control In Lake Huron Pinery

SARNIA (CP)—A forest fire raged out of control today in The Pinery, an area 45 miles northeast of here on Lake Huron under consideration as a provincial park. More than 4,000 acres of scrub pine were threatened.

The cause of the blaze is unknown. Fanned by a strong wind, the fire spread from Highway 21 towards the Ausable river which runs parallel to the lake.

Firemen from Ipperwash Park, Grand Bend and Thedford fought the blaze. They sent an appeal for help to the Department of Lands and Forests.

See Breakout In New Field Aim Of Newest Red Shift

By J. M. ROBERTS Jr.
Associated Press News Analyst

Three times since the Second World War Communist forces have retreated when met by determined resistance, only to break out again in new directions. New developments in Indo-China led observers today to wonder whether Korea is to provide another case in point.

The indications of a new Communist offensive in Indo-China, carrying the war to Laos, which has been little touched, intensified already strong doubts that the Communist peace campaign is anything more than tactical cover for new aggressive adventures. Laos lies on the road to Burma, Thailand, Malaya and India.

Signs of the new offensive, for which a considerable Vietminh force was reported concentrated, were less concrete than was the reaction of the French defenders, who were withdrawing from isolated border outposts to concentrate for defence of major points.

If it develops, it would be directed against all Southeast Asia in search of a prize for which the Communists might willingly give up their frustrated attempt to conquer Korea.

That would be in the pattern of Iran, Greece and the Berlin of airlift days. It was a tactic laid down by Lenin. When the effort is not gaining anything, shift it.

Charge Christie With Murder Of Three Women

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard today charged John Reginald Christie, owl-eyed clerk, with the murder of three more women in his sleazy flat in Notting Hill.

This brought to four the number of murder charges placed against Christie, mild-mannered man of 55 whose hobby was said to be photographing nude women.

March 31 Christie was charged with the murder of his wife, Ethel, 54. Her body was found under the floorboard of the grubby flat, now ripped by police in their search for more bodies.

The charges accused him of the strangulation murder of Rita Elizabeth Nelson, Kathleen Maloney and Hectorina McKay MacLennan during January and February of this year.

The half-clothed bodies of the girls in the 'teens or early 20s were found walled up in the pantry of the flat last month.

STILL INVESTIGATING

Investigations still are being conducted at the Notting Hill horror house. The remains of two other women have been dug up by police in the sooty garden behind the flat.

Today's hearing was brief. Christie was present only three inutes. During that time the new charges against him were read out.

The next hearing in the case will be at Clerkenwell on April 22 and will last a full day. This is expected to produce the first complete outline of the case against the little clerk.

South Africans Go To Polls

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—White South Africans voted today in a fateful general election climaxing five of the stormiest years in the country's recent history.

Mining millionaires, bearded Boers and plain citizens trekked in record numbers from city, bush and factory to voting stations that opened at 7 a.m. (midnight EST) for 13 hours. The government assigned armed police to all polling places.

Ragged trousered Negroes and Indians stood silently, even sullenly, by as the white man's election began—silent because they are voteless, sullen because the two chief parties are pledged to maintain white supremacy. Their major campaign difference was over how to do it.

The governing Nationalists, with a highly-geared political machine controlled by Prime Minister Daniel Malan, claimed right up to the opening of the polls that victory would be sure and easy. The rival United party, which the late Field Marshal Jan Smuts helped found, said cagily they could win if every supporter voted.

Sociologist Demands Duel Over Love Affair

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—A U. S. Army prison sociologist is charged here with challenging a combat veteran of the Second World War to a pistol duel over a raven-haired German woman doctor.

"It was a matter of love and honor with me," said Blondell Groseclose, employed at the military prison at Mannheim.

Capt. Charles D. Tarpley, an ordnance officer, said Groseclose confronted him Easter Sunday and challenged him to duel.

In Groseclose's hand, he said, was a paper bag containing two pistols.

The captain said at a preliminary hearing here that he rejected the challenge.

"I did not wish to fight a duel," he said.

Evidence at the hearing showed that the two Americans were rivals for the affections of Dr. Margarete Meyer, an attractive young German medical doctor.

New Clash In House Over Defence

Pearkes Charges Rearmament Far From Adequate

OTTAWA — (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton and Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes VC, Progressive Conservative military critic, clashed in the Commons Tuesday during a debate concerning Canada's three-year, $5,000,000,000 rearmament program.

Mr. Claxton maintained that the program, with a few exceptions, is on schedule and that Canada is fulfilling her commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Gen. Pearkes, Pacific coast commander during the Second World War and member of Parliament for Nanaimo, contended that Canada is defenceless in the air and that the taxpayer is getting short value for the billions of dollars invested in defence...

He received support from Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South), Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East), E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops) and Gordon Churchill (PC-Winnipeg South Centre), all of them service veterans.

LAUNCHES DEBATE

Launching a defence debate, Mr. Claxton said the program he outlined early in 1951 should be completed by July 1, 1954, with these exceptions: Construction of navy anti-submarine escort vessels was a "bit" behind schedule; delivery of CF-100 jet fighter planes to auxiliary squadrons would be delayed; production of some arms and ammunition was running behind schedule. Despite this, Canada would hit all her target dates on NATO commitments.

He then said the government is considering a deliberate slowdown, or "stretchout," of defence production. This would prevent sudden shutdowns after orders were filled and allow for new types of equipment to hit the assembly lines without delay. It jibed with his statement that the government hopes the NATO powers can "moderate" their efforts to build up joint defence. However, there should be no fundamental changes because there had been no change in Russian policy.

The minister said production of CF-100 and F-86E jet fighters had been deliberately slowed to allow factories to get set for production of more advanced types of the same planes.

STRIPPED OF PLANES

Gen. Pearkes charged that Canada is being stripped of fighter planes to serve NATO, leaving her open to attack from the north. This would be a "delightful" arrangement if the government knew any potential enemy would attack in Europe, where RCAF squadrons are based. As it was the squadrons might as well be stationed in the Falkland Islands.

He said the government is "leaving the front door wide open while we have sallied out the back door." One CF-100 squadron was being formed, three Sabre squadrons were preparing to move to Europe and nine reserve squadrons were equipped with obsolete, Second World War Mustangs and "worn-out" Vampires.

This was enough to make Canadians sleep uneasily.

IN SORRY PLIGHT

Dealing with the army, Gen. Pearkes said the reserve force is in "a sorry plight" and needs thorough reorganization. The regular mobile striking force, the key to home defence against ground attack, had been broken up to send men to Korea and Germany and no longer could be considered a trained formation ready to fight. There were neither enough airfields and transport planes to give it mobility nor fighters to escort it.

The navy program had slipped badly. After two years of the three-year program, only 56 of the promised 100 warships were on the line. Harbors were defenceless to attack from the seas.

Gen. Pearkes summed up his argument by saying that the government had spent huge sums for defence, but that the results in a fighting force to protect Canada were "extraordinarily meagre."

Mr. Claxton said the navy should have the remainder of its 100 ships on schedule and harbor defences would be ready on the target date. The RCAF had already taken delivery of more than 2,000 of the 3,000 planes called for under the program and the army's mobile striking force was being maintained at planned strength.

Mr. Thomas said the West should not be lulled into a false sense of security by Russia's peace overtures. But though commitments to NATO were being met, there must be adequate defences at home.

Mr. Harkness said no more than 35,000 to 40,000 of Canada's 104,000 servicemen could be classed as fighting personnel. The reserve army had increased in strength by only 300 members in the last year.

N.S. Election Planned May 26

HALIFAX (CP) — Nova Scotia's Liberal government, with a 20-year stewardship to account for, will go to the people May 26 in a provincial election.

The announcement Tuesday by Premier Angus L. Macdonald, who led his party to power in four previous elections, capped weeks of speculation during which all parties nominated many candidates.

The Liberals hold 27 seats in the 37-member House. The Progressive Conservatives form the official opposition with eight and the CCF has two. The government's five-year term does not expire until next year, but elections are usually held every four.

Nomination day is May 12.

Commenting on the announcement, Opposition leader Robert L. Stanfield said, "in the election of 1949 our aim was to strengthen the opposition, and we succeeded. Today our aim is to turn out the government and we believe we will succeed again."

Prices Still Mixed On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—Prices continued mixed in early afternoon stock market trading today.

Golds slipped slightly and base metals gained. Industrials and western oils were mixed. Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,078,000 shares.

Uraniums gained on small advances but New Brunswick base metals were almost unchanged. Northern Ontario rare metals were mixed.

Papers and miscellaneous issues were firm in industrials while steels and foods slipped.

Senior golds and holding companies were mixed but weakness in juniors depressed the list. Higher-priced base metals were firm.

Western oils balanced gains and losses.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 1 9-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Tuesday's noon rate was 98⅜ cents. Pound sterling $2.77¼, against $2.77 1-16.

NEW STRETCHER FOR ARMY MEDICAL CORPS . . . After many years of use the old wooden and canvas army stretcher is on the way out, to be replaced by a new stretcher made of nylon and aluminum. Advantages of new stretcher, it telescopes from 90 inches to 31 inches, will be appreciated by litter-bearers in Korea during patrols and in hilly country. Developed by a Montreal engineering firm and modified to meet the needs of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps it is stronger than the one in previous use. Here, two paratroopers of No. 1 Airborne Medical Section, RCAMC, exhibit the stretcher opened, closed and being worn.

Monty Begins 10-Day Tour

OTTAWA (CP)—An old commander of Canadian troops arrives here today to start a 10-day tour of military establishments and to discuss defence problems with the Canadian government.

Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, deputy commander of supreme headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe, is due by air from Washington to confer with Prime Minister St. Laurent and Defence Minister Claxton.

Thursday he will begin an Ontario and Quebec tour which will take him to 10 service establishments, two aircraft plants, a university, a high school and society ball.

Viscount Montgomery, second in command to Gen. Matthew Ridgway, will confer with the chiefs of staff Thursday and address officers of national defence headquarters before leaving for Kingston to inspect the Canadian Army Staff College and headquarters, Eastern Ontario area.

Friday he will return to the staff college and also visit the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, the Royal Canadian School of Signals and Royal Military College.

He will open the new Viscount Montgomery school at Hamilton Saturday and then take Sunday off before visiting the RCAF Staff College at Toronto Monday and the A. V. Roe aircraft plant, where Canada's new CF-100 jet fighter is being produced.

Jury Finds Farmer Guilty Of Wife's Death

MONTREAL (CP)—Fortunat Dubuc, 53-year-old farmer from nearby St. Isidore de Laprairie, today was held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury for the death of his wife last Jan. 12

The jury found "Dubuc had maliciously and voluntarily poisoned his wife."

The coroner's inquest was held the day the wealthy farmer was to have wed a 16-year-old girl, for several years a servant on his farm.

Dubuc had been held by police as a material witness since his arrest Friday at his St. Isidore farm. The arrest followed reports of foul play and investigation by police into the death three months ago of the 52-year-old Mrs. Dubuc.

5 People Suffer Burns In House Fire

KAZABAZUA, Que. (CP)—Five persons were burned, two seriously, when fire gutted a modern two-storey ranch-style farmhouse near this Gatineau village 65 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Brown were taken to hospital at Hull, Que., where hospital authorities described their condition "extremely serious."

Also burned were Mrs. Bud Wilson, her one-year-old baby and Elwood Mahoney, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mahoney.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, broke out at 1:30 a.m. while the five occupants of the farm home were in bed.

Damage is expected to be more than $20,000.

TORONTO FRUIT

TORONTO (CP)—Wholesale fruit and vegetable price changes here today were: cabbage, American $2.25-2.40; cauliflower, imp. 3.75; lettuce, imp., two dozen $2.75-2.85; cucumbers, two-dozens and 30's $2.75-3.00.

Potato prices were unchanged.

MacNab Report Centre Of New Furore

OTTAWA (CP)—A new furore involving the so-called MacNab report on the works services branch of the army blew up in the Commons Tuesday night and Defence Minister Claxton said it had been "extracted" by unknown means from the files of the civil service commission.

That, Mr. Claxton said, was how the memorandum, written by Ronald S. MacNab in 1949 just after he left the civil service commission, reached outside hands.

The report has since been quoted by a newspaper columnist and by E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops).

Mr. MacNab now is a lawyer in London, Ont.

But, Mr. Claxton said, even Mr. MacNab himself had told newspaper interviewers that the report was a private letter to George S. Jackson, director of organization of the civil service commission, on things he had heard from various sources. It had made no charges.

TAKEN FROM FILES

Mr. Claxton said it had been "by some means unknown extracted from the files of George C. Jackson" and fell into the hands of the newspaper columnist, Arthur Blakely of the Montreal Gazette, and Mr. Fulton.

The minister said Mr. Fulton on two different occasion had held up the House to make sweeping assertions without support or corroboration. Now he was parading a 1949 private letter as something the government was trying to conceal but which actually the government had not known existed.

The minister spoke after Mr. Fulton again charged the government with suppressing the MacNab document and said newspaper reports showed its findings were similar to those made by George S. Currie, Montreal accountant, three years later.

Mr. Claxton replied that Mr. Currie had not reported the same things as Mr. MacNab.

John Dickey, parliamentary assistant to Production Minister Howe, said that Mr. MacNab had reported what had been told him by other persons and if that was not "hearsay then I don't know what hearsay is."

Night Raiders Strike At Douk Community

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Night raiders brought new destruction early Tuesday in Doukhobor communities of the west Kootenays.

Two more houses were destroyed by arsonists and a community hall was put to the torch, making the toll 15 houses and the hall since Sunday.

The terrorists struck before dawn in the little settlements of Glade and Appledale, 50 miles northwest of Nelson.

It was the second night of fear for the residents of Appledale, where three houses, all occupied by Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, were destroyed by fire Sunday night.

UN Planes

There was no report here on any further action toward revival of the full-scale armistice talks.

The Communists have been pressing the UN command to reopen negotiations but the UN command has said exchange of the sick and injured must come first. The truce talks have been deadlocked for a year and suspended since last Oct. 8 over the issue of prisoner repatriation, last big barrier to a truce.

In Washington, authoritative sources said the UN command is expected to agree soon to resumption of the talks.

They also said the UN command probably would agree to a Red proposal that Communists who refuse to go home be placed under control of a single neutral country —with Switzerland preferred.

WILL FLY GUARD

The Red truck convoys finally were spotted by Allied planes which will fly guard to shield them from any possible mistake bombing.

The first convoy was sighted shortly before noon 10 miles north of Yongpong. The second was seen at 3:30 p.m. near Sinanju.

A two-day overcast cleared to permit Allied pilots to see and photograph the caravans on their route from far northern Korea.

The Reds said there were 68 trucks in the three convoys.

They all are headed toward Kaesong, where the 600 Allied troops will be held until released in groups at Panmunjom, six miles away.

About 120 are Americans, the Reds have said, with about 450 South Koreans, and the rest split among other UN forces.

An unofficial Communist source at Panmunjom said American, British and other non-Koreans including at least one Canadian were among those already en route.

REVOLT BRIEF

The brief Chinese revolt in the UN landing ship died quickly.

About 25 of the 770 aboard disembarked without trouble; the others sat sullenly in the hold and yelled a series of demands and conditions.

After they ignored a deadline to leave the ship, UN troops went aboard. The Chinese started moving soon afterward. There was no sign of violence.

A few were stretcher cases, some were amputees and many were tuberculosis victims.

The short sit-down strike apparently was a last-minute heckling shot by die-hard Communists.

ORGANIZATIONAL MEETING.—Nelson D. Rockefeller (left), and Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, the President's brother, leave the White House after a meeting with President who called a conference of his Committee of Government Organization. Rockefeller heads the committee. Dr. Eisenhower, a member, is reported to be ready to leave for a South American tour of inspection of Point Four activities.

"It was bitter cold. My feet were frostbitten."

Rescuers followed Mrs. Long's trail of blood through the snow to come upon what Capt. Wallace M. Baker of the civil air patrol said was a sight "of complete and utter destruction. We couldn't believe that anyone had lived through it."

STARTED RESCUE WORK

He said paramedics who had parachuted in to the scene and civilian loggers had already started the slow process of getting the injured out of the plane.

"They were taking them down the hill on stretchers to where the coast guard and navy helicopters could fly them out.

"The survivors were huddled dazed and in terrible pain about the wreck. Some of them were screaming as the rescue squad attempted to give them first aid. It was a nightmare of pain and blood in five feet of snow."

Cook Posed As Man For 25-Year Period

GRIMSBY, England (AP) — A 62-year-old Salvation Army cook who had posed as a man for 25 years was exposed in death Tuesday as a woman.

The cook, who used the name John Wilson, fell ill Monday but refused to receive a doctor. She died 24 hours later.

Major F. J. Brown, in charge of the Salvation Army hostel here, told reporters:

"There must have been some tragedy way back in her life to make her take up such a guise."

Ask Councils Give $50 Help Curb Rustling

TORONTO (CP)—Southern Ontario county councils are being asked to contribute $50 each to a fund to help curb cattle rustling.

The Ontario Beef Producers' Association is asking for contributions. The group has already established the fund which provides for rewards for the apprehension and conviction of cattle rustlers.

Peel county council recently voted $500 to the fund. Last year cattle thefts were reported throughout Ontario.

In a recent report to Ontario county council, the association suggested that some form of branding would make disposal of stolen animals more difficult. They advised that anyone selling cattle should be made to provide identification on them and that buyers should have to sign for animals.

Mrs. S. R. Hamilton Heads Peterboro' Humane Society

An insight into the legal aspects of Humane Societies activities was given by Walter H. Howell QC, an honorary member of the Peterborough Humane Society Tuesday evening at the annual meeting held in the YMCA.

Mr. Howell told about the legal powers that the Society possessed and their rights to go into homes and establishments to see if animals were being starved or ill treated.

They also have power to order owners of dogs to feed and give them the proper medical attention they deserve; and to destroy them if necessary.

Mr. Howell also pointed out that there is a section in the criminal code dealing with cruelty to animals, covering beating, starving, overworking and leaving them out in the cold and rain. All these sections are in connection with animals used by man and wild animals in captivity, but does not apply to animals in the wild state.

The annual report was given by the secretary and it was stated that the year 1952 was the biggest year in the history of the Peterborough Humane Society. Work done in prevention and care of animals was 40 percent over 1951. It was also reported that Inspector Bruce Menzies had been persuaded to carry on for another year and it was suggested that there should be appointed an assistant Humane Society inspector.

Miss E. V. Wood treasurer reported that there was $205.26 in the bank after all expenses had been paid. The president Mrs. S. O. Shields thanked the society for co-operation in the three years she had been president and included the Police Department, the mayor, city council and Inspector Bruce Menzies.

Following the reports for the year 1952 the election of officers was held and J. F. Ackerman presided over the meeting. Mrs. S. R. Hamilton was elected persident, first vice-president Miss June Fraser, second vice-president, Mrs. E. J. MacDonald. There was a motion put forth and carried that there be a third vice-president elected and Lt.-Col. Claire Stuart was nominated to that office.

Mrs. W. A. Young was elected corresponding secretary, recording secretary Mrs. W. W. Cole, Miss E. V. Wood, as treasurer, past-president Mrs. S. O. Shields. Elected to the executive were Mrs. Mark Burnham, Mrs. Fred Holmes, Miss. E. McFayden, Mrs. C. Pilon, Mrs. T. Smith, Mrs. S. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. W. Croasdale, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, Mrs. Purdy, Mrs. Vokes, Mrs. Hetherington, Mr. and Mrs. S. Rickard, Mrs. N. Gale and Mrs. G. Y. Seymour. Elected to committees were Miss Helen Lytle, Miss B. Garside and Miss P. Denne. Miss Beverley Martin refused the nomination as recording secretary for she was planning to move to Toronto next winter. Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Powell refused their nominations to the executive for personal reasons and F. Holmes was returned as auditor.

The Rev. C. G. Boyd, minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian church opened the service with prayer and Mrs. R. Y. Kenny, Mr. G. R. Simmons and Thomas Smith played several classical selections. Mrs. S. O. Shields, past president, was presented with a lazy-susan and the convenor of the meeting was Miss Stella Spence.

Denies Flag Lowered For Stalin

LANGLEY, B. C. (CP) — Roy Mountain, principal of the Langley high school, has denied a report that three of his pupils lowered the school flag to half-staff March 7 to mark the death of Premier Stalin.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported that the students had been expelled for such a prank.

"The three admitted pulling the flag down, but at no time was it at half-staff," said Mr. Mountain. "The students also denied their action had any connection with the death of Stalin."

Mr. Mountain said the students were sent home after the flag-pulling incident and told to return with their parents to discuss their conduct. They also had been involved in several other misdemeanors.

"This was the only disciplinary action taken," he said. "They were not expelled."

ROLL WINTER'S CARPET—Two lads give spring a helping hand to clear winter from the grounds at Alberta legislative buildings in Edmonton. Recent prairie weather records have tumbled as the result of a general unseasonable cold snap which kept Western Canada wrapped in winter togs. Snow was general, but spotty, across the prairies and Edmonton's low of eight degrees was the coldest for April 13 in 80 years.

Opens Chemical Plant

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs Louis St. Laurent, wife of Canada's prime minister, Tuesday officially opened the first petrochemical plant in Canada, designed to produce acetone and alcohol. When Mrs. St. Laurent pressed a switch in the Shell Oil Company's refinery in Montreal East, pumps in the new plant began filling a tank car with the first isopropyl alcohol produced in Canada.

Drew Sees Need Of Merging Efforts

TORONTO (CP) — George Drew, leader of the Progressivee Conservative party, said Tuesday night development of Canada's resources and encouragement of immigration should go hand in hand.

Canadian leaders will have to decide whether to export the country's mineral wealth or develop new industries to process it in Canada, he told the 10th annual banquet of the Ontario Association of Radio, Television and Appliance Dealers.

"If we keep our mineral resources at home we will establish a great new demand for employment which in turn will encourage immigration, one of this country's greatest needs for future development," he said.

Earlier, J. A. Pardie of Toronto was re-elected president.

Directors include Harold Davis, Chatham; Thomas Cavanaugh, Peterborough; Douglas Hunter, St. Catharines; Don Davidson, Oxford.

St. Laurent Urges Top-Notch Designing

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent Tuesday tonight urged Canadian industries to concentrate on top-notch designing in the drive to boost sales of Canadian goods.

There must be co-operation, he said, among industries, retailers, schools and professional designers if Canada is to meet successfully the tough designing competition of such countries as the United States Britain, Sweden, Switzerland and Italy.

Mr. St. Laurent, along with Trade Minister Howe, officated at the distribution of "design merit awards" covering 46 household and office products, winners in Canada's first annual industrial merit competition.

Burned In Explosion Of Paint Remover

COBOURG (ENS)—Betty Fisher of Cobourg suffered slight burns on her face and arms Tuesday in a flash fire in her father's dairy bar. She was taken to hospital for treatment.

The fire started when some paint remover exploded. The inflammable substance was being used in renovation of the King St. bar, owned by Harry Fisher. Miss Fisher's brother Stan suffered minor burns which did not require hospital treatment. The fire blackened one wall of the dairy bar.

Mrs. Martin Clark

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The funeral of Mrs. Martin Clark, 89, a resident of Belmont township for 74 years was held Tuesday afternoon and was largely attended.

The service in Victoria United Church was conducted by the Rev. G. E. Leno of the Pentecostal Church, Campbellford. Burial was in Victoria cemetery.

Pallbearers were Ralph, Verdun and Murray Ellis, grandsons, Vernon Althouse, William Casselman, grandsons-in-law and Everett Quackenbush, a nephew. Flower bearers were Randal, Lyle and Warden Quackenbush, nephews, Garry and Wayne Ellis, great grandsons, Frank Ellis and Earl Dafoe.

Mrs. Clark was formerly Florence Alberta Quackenbush, daughter of Andrew Quackenbush and Jane Vanvolkenburgh of Seymour township. At the age of 14 she moved with her parents to Belmont township. In 1900 she married Martin Clark who died 28 years ago.

When her health began to fail about five years ago she went to live with her daughter Mrs. Fred Ellis. On February 23 she suffered a broken hip and was taken to Civic Hospital, Peterborough where she was a patient until her death Sunday.

Surviving are a daughter Mrs. Fred Ellis and a brother Ernest Quackenbush both of Belmont township.

Asks Kinsmen's Help To Paint Hospital

CAMPBELLFORD— (ENS) — Franklin S. Linton, secretary of the Memorial Hospital Board, addressed the Kinsmen Club Monday night when he outlined the progress being made with the new hospital which is expected to open in June and told of immediate needs for interior decorating.

He suggested the Kinsmen supply the paint for the walls in the main part of the building. Free labor from another source was expected to apply the paint. Kinsmen agreed to consider the matter.

President Ray Hall said he hoped to form a Kinnette Club soon and found May 11 a suitable date to start. Trenton Kinsmen and Kinnettes have agreed to attend on that date to assist the organization.

The Kinsmen discussed financial assistance for needy children wishing to go on the tour of the Royal Ontario Museum.

The meeting concluded with the showing of colored films by Kinsman Bruce Grills.

Fatally Injured By Circular Saw

ST. FERDINAND D'HALIFAX, Que. (CP) — Jean-Guy Simoneau, 20, was fatally injured Tuesday when ripped open by a circular saw in a sawmill in this small municipality near Sherbrooke.

Simoneau, unmarried, was ripped open from shoulder to stomach and had one of his feet amputated by the saw before he was extricated, still conscious.

He died en route to hospital.

Break-in Nets Only Loose Change

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—The T. H. Burgis hardware store on Bridge St. E. was broken into in the early hours of Monday morning but the thieves made little profit for their night's work.

Entry was gained through a basement window. Other than some loose change in the cash register nothing was stolen.

A large stock of hardware, including guns and ammunition was left untouched.

Chief Constable W. E. Cargin is investigating.

Man Kidnapped After Questioning

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — One of five men questioned in connection with the month-old slaying of Mrs. Mable Monahan was kidnapped at gunpoint by two men, police reported Tuesday night.

Mrs. Baxter M. Shorter told officers her 43-year-old husband was forced to accompany a man who came to the door of their Los Angeles apartment, swung a pistol at him and said: "I want you, Baxter."

Mrs. Shorter said she ran for a rifle as the man led her husband down the hall but the kidnapper whirled on her with his pistol and forced her back into the apartment.

Police had warned that the life of the informer who had given police the names of several men in connection with the killing was in danger.

The wealthy 62-year-old widow, former mother-in-law of a Las Vegas, Nev., gambling casino operator, was beaten and strangled in her home last March 11. Officers believe her assailants were after a large sum of money they thought was hidden there.

Tax Relief In Britain

On the basis of the financial year which ended on March 31st last, Mr. Butler had very little scope for reducing taxation. The surplus of ordinary revenue over expenditure was only £88 million, and after allowing for net capital expenditure of £524 million—mostly on loans to local authorities for housing and other capital projects—there was an overall deficit of £436 million. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has decided that his primary duty is not to secure a balanced budget. He has risked deficit, a very large one it could be, and made total tax reductions which will cost the Treasury an estimated £169 million. That he takes this risk shows confidence in the better economic and financial position Britain has won in the last year and a virile hope in the beckoning finger of "freer endeavour and greater rewards for everyone", as the British Government steps out of "the confines of restriction".

* * *

The Butler budget may also reflect a political gambit: to win friends and votes by a popular move, whatever the cost, whatever the deficit. Mr. Butler and his party may believe that the time has come for the good of the Party and the country to indulge in some Keynesian budgeting. Lord Keynes' theory was not designed, however, to be a political weapon. It was to control inflation by increases of taxation (thus accruing surpluses and suppressing consumer spending), and deflation (depression) by reducing taxation and increasing government spending (creating deficits). We are inclined to believe that the British economy now is sound enough to benefit from some bold strokes. Political though they may seem, they could result in "greater rewards for everyone" and a more fluent and muscular economy. Britain's trade deficit overseas of nearly four hundred million pounds in 1951 has been transformed into a trade surplus of nearly three hundred million pounds in 1952. This has so strengthened Britain's international financial and trading position that she can afford to tinker with the domestic budget and taxes.

* * *

Friends of the British the world over will be pleased that after so many weary years no new taxes have been put on their shoulders and old ones have been reduced. The income tax basic rate is down from 9/6 in the pound to nine shillings. The purchase tax on a wide range of articles is reduced by a quarter. Before the budget it varied between 33⅓ percent. and 100 percent. An excess profits tax, a new one imposed last year, will be dropped at the end of the year—to the great relief of industry. In addition to these surceases from tax pains, Mr. Butler forecast that sugar rationing would soon end. On the whole, it is the brightest spring budget Britain has had since 1939. The reductions are not tremendous, spread over millions of purses, but they are significant, one hopes, of better life and times for the people of Britain.

To Promote Or Not To Promote

Speaking to the urban teachers section during the recent meetings of the Ontario Educational association, Mr. Clifford M. Pitt of the Ontario College of Education made some remarks about promotions which we think will be of special interest to parents at this time. This week the children went back to school for their summer term, and the excitement and apprehension as to whether or not they will "pass" in June will soon make itself felt in many homes.

Mr. Pitt said that it may well be as dangerous for a child's development not to promote it, as it is to promote it when it is not ready for more difficult work. At first sight this seems a curious point of view, but Mr. Pitt explains that children who are not promoted are teased, become discouraged about school and want to quit as soon as they can.

Doubtless this is so in many cases, but it appears to us to be only a part of a complex school problem. The fact is that schools in many places are so full at present that teachers virtually have to promote any child who has a hope of doing more difficult work; to keep a third of the pupils back in order that they might repeat a year's work would complicate the crowding which is already a school problem.

Retarded children are not the only ones who are teased. Children who do their work so well or so easily that they win the spoken approval of the teacher are also teased and always have been so. They are "teacher's pets", or "brains" in the modern school lingo. Most children hate to stand apart from their companions in any way; and it is just as nerve-wracking to be a "brain" as it is to be a failure.

We have not yet developed a system which permits all children to learn at their own speed, desirable as that might be. There is reason to suppose that any such system would be markedly more expensive than that now in effect. We are still grappling with the problems created by our modern idea of educating everybody, for general education is no more than a century old.

Nevertheless, we are making progress, in spite of disagreements and some failures. The nation is vastly better educated on the whole than it was a century ago. By the time another century has passed we may have found a means of dealing with the problems which clever children and slow children, good children and bad children, physically gifted children and intellectually gifted children, all create in our schools. Meanwhile they all have to take their chance, and the parents must comfort themselves that it is a far better chance than any enjoyed by their great-great-grandfathers.

West Indian Federation?

A couple of months ago we discussed the British Colonial Office proposal to hold a conference to investigate the possibility of a federation of the British West Indies and Caribbean possessions. The Conference is now in session in London. We do not wish to rehash what we said then. We repeat that, in our opinion, a federation, a new British Dominion would be a very good creation, not only for the West Indies, but also for Canada.

Small, scattered colonial possessions are an anomaly in these times. Their economies are too small to cope with those of larger states; their defence can no longer be assured without a strong will to defend themselves together; and their development socially, politically and economically is retarded so long as they do not unite what is common to each, or supplemental to each other.

Canada has close and numerous trade and social relations with the West Indies. With her own relatively long, prosperous and successful history of federation, Canada can heartily recommend federation of the West Indies. A new Dominion of the semi-tropical seas would be a charming addition to the Commonwealth, and provide a stable, progressive federation. A mutually profitable commerce and social relationship could be developed between Canada and the united West Indies. Trinidad, Jamaica, Barbados and the Windward and Leeward Islands have accredited delegations at the London conference. British Guiana and British Honduras on the mainland, have observers. Canadians will watch the progress of the conference with interest.

A Gun Is A Gun

A robber who was escaping after having held up a bank in Vancouver recently was shot in the thigh by a policeman; a clerk in the bank had sounded an alarm, and when the policeman met the robber running along the street, the robber pulled out a gun; the policeman drew his own gun and fired to stop the man, and as he did so the robber waved his own weapon and shouted, "Look at the pistol—it isn't loaded!"

The fact that his pistol was not loaded is of lesser importance than the fact that he was carrying a weapon while committing a crime. What a good many criminals do not seem to understand is that the threat of violence in these cases is very nearly as serious as the use of violence. To point a pistol at a man, and frighten him, is a very serious offence, and the law rightly provides severe punishment for it.

The principle behind such punishment is a very old one, which should never be forgotten. It is a serious crime to put a man in terror of his life. The fact that he may come out of the incident unharmed is of secondary importance; force has been used against him, and his personality has been subject to brutal invasion.

It is sometimes asserted that the severe punishments for armed robbery are designed to protect private property; people who disapprove of the institution of private property appear to think that this is part of a wicked conspiracy to protect the haves against the havenots. Now it is certainly true that these laws are for the protection of property, but they are at least equally for the protection of the rights of human personality. Frightening people, and menacing them with guns—loaded or empty—is a crime just as much as robbing them of money or goods. The fact that a gun is not loaded is no defence when the gun has been used to create terror, or to inhibit proper action.

NOTES AND COMMENT

The U.S., we learn, is developing a rocket which will have seven times the speed of sound. And when one of those hits you, your funeral will be over before anybody hears the bang.

Mr. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is the first Englishman we know of in public life to admit publicly that cricket is not fun. He has exempted cricket from the entertainment tax. Isn't it odd that his announcement in the House of Commons was greeted with cheers?

J. G. N. STRAUSS

Mr. Malan's Challenger

By HUGH LATIMER (in Capetown)

WHEN GENERAL SMUTS was alive, it is commonly said in South Africa, the United Party did not feel the need of a policy to present to the electors. Nor did it apparently feel the need of youth in the Cabinet until toward the end of the 1939-45 war; General Smuts had surrounded himself with his contemporaries. J. G. N. Strauss, Premier Malan's challenger in today's elections in the Union, brought to the party both youth and a policy.

But the United Party had tarried so long before bringing in fresh blood to its higher counsels that when Strauss succeeded Smuts as Leader of the Opposition, on the General's death in 1950, he seemed at first ridiculously small for the shoes he had stepped into.

❖ ❖ ❖

SMALL, dark and neatly-built, he seems to most South Africans the professional young hopeful of politics, and it is with a shock that one realises that he is already a grandfather. In the three short years before he has had to present himself to the public as contender for the fatherly role of Prime Minister, his stature has grown enormously with the help of his own self-assurance and of the fact that he is clearly the best speaker on his own side. But it would be idle to pretend that he appears to South Africa with the authority of a Smuts or a Malan— or even of a Hofmeyr or a Havenga, the two who would have contended for Smuts' place had circumstances not decreed otherwise.

❖ ❖ ❖

JACOBUS GIDEON NEL STRAUSS was born at Calvinia in the Cape countryside on December 17, 1900 and brought up in the classic Afrikaner tradition of agriculture and Bible-reading. As a boy he led the first horse of a ploughing team and helped bring in the harvest; his platteland origins (his father was a farmer) left an impression on his attitude which was too easily forgotten by those who met only the brilliant advocate or staunch politician of latter years. He got his early schooling in Calvinia, where one of his schoolmates was the present Mrs. Malan, wife of the Nationalist Prime Minister.

❖ ❖ ❖

IN 1919 he won a scholarship to the University of Cape Town, where almost at once he took his place as a student leader. It was as the result of a debating contest with the undergraduates of Stellenbosch that he was recommended by the principal of the University to General Smuts. He remained the General's private secretary until the 1924 debacle. For the succeeding two years he was private secretary to Sir Etienne De Villiers, judge-president of the Supreme Court of the Orange Free State. In March 1926 he was admitted an advocate and in June took up a successful practice in Johannesburg, where he made his reputation with the big mining houses. He entered politics as a member of the Transvaal provincial council in 1929 and reached Parliament in 1932 a member for Germiston District, the constituency he still represents.

❖ ❖ ❖

IN 1929 he married an English-speaking South African girl, Miss Joy Carpenter, which puts him forever outside the extreme nationalist's conception of a true Afrikaner. They have four children. His recreations are riding and golf, but he seldom has time to enjoy them.

The height of Strauss' legal career was reached in 1943 with his successful arbitration of the dispute between the Northern and Southern Rhodesian Railways. It may have been a pointer to Smuts, who had then embarked on a search for younger men to appoint to office. (Of the four so appointed Strauss was the only Afrikaner. The others were Mushet, Lawrence and Gluckman). He became Minister of Agriculture in 1944.

❖ ❖ ❖

IT CANNOT BE SAID that his tenure of his office was completely successful, burdened as it was with responsibility for food distribution. The brilliant advocate who had merely represented promising youth turned out to have a firm, even obstinate character. Agriculture had a tradition of being departmentally-run. Strauss moved the strong-willed Dr. Viljoen to Canada, and set up Food Control Boards with an authority counter to that of his own departmental heads. The Boards caused a certain chaos, and in 1946, J. H. Hofmeyr was appointed virtual food controller. From the vote-catching point of view his administration was more successful, since the Government won several rural constituencies in by-elections. The urban seats were for the Government anyway. It is possible that Strauss learnt from this lesson that for the United Party the platteland votes are all-important.

❖ ❖ ❖

HOFMEYR DIED, and Havenga went over to the Nationalists. When Smuts died, Strauss was elected the leader of the United Party. There is no doubt that he was the best available choice. A platteland Afrikaner, who is at home in both languages but aflame only in Afrikaans, he is a forensic machine of the utmost efficiency, and at his best in attacking the Citizenship, Group Areas and Suppression of Communism Bills introduced by the Malan Government. His personality casts seems to lack the warmth essential for a Prime Minister, but his election broadcasts showed that he had realised his weakness. Delivered in a quiet confidential manner, they were more effective than the broadcasts of many who had far more natural advantages.

❖ ❖ ❖

STRAUSS, and the advisers he has chosen bear the responsibility for reversing the vigour of the Oppostion's attack on apartheid about four months before the election and themselves adopting that policy, with minor modifications. Thus, the United Party did not oppose the two bills dealing with passive resistance. Many say the United Party caucus was so nervous of the change of the Nationalist Press that its policy lost all original colour; nevertheless, one must admit Strauss's political skill, when faced with the justified charge of being without a Native policy, in countering with a proposal for a People's Conference on Colour, on the grounds that this was too weighty a question to be decided by one political party alone. No doubt, Strauss was right in thinking that voters might be willing perhaps to reject a Nationalist Government, but not to reject apartheid.

❖ ❖ ❖

IN PERSON he is a quiet, imperturable tightly-controlled man who does not drink or smoke and rarely smiles or laughs. He has visited Europe only once, on business in 1947, and America not at all. Those who met both are startled by his adoption of many of General Smuts' habits— his way of talking with one hand on a hip, of looking at one over bi-focal spectacles, of saying "My Boy". His chief personal idiosyncrasy is a perpetual thum-twiddle, hands clasped on the waistcoat he wears in Parliament even at the height of the sticky Cape summer. Round and round go the thumbs clockwise. Then a speaker makes a point; the thumbs hesitate, rest a second or two, and then begin again just as fast anti-clockwise. He is one of the quickest thinkers in the House of Assembly. His weakness, perhaps, is a certain unsmiling obstinacy— a legacy which very many Afrikaners share with Burgher ancestors who for so long withstood the dying might of Spain.

Of Winchester and The West

By JULIE BOUDER

SIX MONTHS from now with the approach of the hunting season, thousands of men will take thousands of guns from back sheds, hall cupboards, attics or special gun rooms, according to their income categories, into the light of day. With tenderness exceeding a father's they will then sit down to perform the autumn rites: to dust, clean, oil, peer into the breech and squint inquiringly at the bore. As our acquaintance with bores is limited to the social variety, and guns of any kind, from water pistols up, give us gooseflesh faster than you can say BB, ve have only observed the mysteries from a distance and with some misgivings; but we must admit to being fascinated by Winchester, a new book by Harold F. Williamson. It is the story of the gun that won the West, and Texas and the rich Ohio territory too. But it is also a biography of a business in the East, showing the growth from small gunshop to great factory, and reflecting the unique and rapid development of American industry right up to the present. On the one hand these parallel stories embrace the major part of American history (rifles for the war of 1812; musket-type .30's with bayonet for the Spanish-American War; carbines and Garand rifles for the Second). On the other they give an account of American business methods with details of contracts, labour relations, marketing, finance.

The author, under an agreement between Olin Industries, present owners of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, and Yale University, had free access to all company records in the famous Winchester Museum at New Haven. He has performed a valuable service in presenting this history, which unquestionably will become a standard reference book on firearms. It is packed with information and amply illustrated, almost every page having a photograph or drawing. The last hundred pages are devoted to notes, bibliography and appendices. Thirty of these are given over to first-rate photographs (we mean first-rate; you can see clearly every exterior detail) of rifles, shotguns and revolvers.

❖ ❖ ❖

AS A FACTUAL account of the book is excellent but as literature it suffers from cramp. With one of the most romantic and colourful subjects imaginable, it has all the Brio of a balance sheet. The reason is not hard to find. Dr. Williamson, able as he may be in his own line, is a professor of economics, not a professional writer. With the growing tendency of corporations and groups of all kinds to publish histories of themselves, it is regretable that more of them do not employ writers in command of good literary technique.

But buy or borrow Winchester for gun lovers. It should induce in them that dreamy look they wear while caressing a rifle stock.

❖ ❖ ❖

LIGE and Effie Morse started for California in a covered wagon but their off-horse died in Nebraska, and Effie liked the wild prairie roses, so they built a sod house and stayed. In the soddy they raised their son Ellis and Effie's nephew Chick. Chick is Charles Tenney Jackson (Jack Tennison), an old man now, who has had a long life as newspaper man and writer, and in The Buffalo Wallow he recalls his prairie boyhood. The book takes its title from a hollow in the unbroken West Eighty of a farm 'right in the middle of America,' a depression made by untold numbers of buffalo that had scratched their backs in its under-sand. To Chick and Ellis 'the waller' was a refuge from work or boredom, a haven from parental anger, a place to scheme and dream; in its hollowed-out caves they stored the sort of things boys have carried to hide-outs for centuries. What makes this story different is that these were prairie boys, on the edge of the open range, and the wallow was all they had. They clung to it with an almost fierce passion.

Nebraska in the eighties was a hard land, and the isolated life of Lige's family was austere, uncomfortable, painful—and happy. Till he was nine, Chick's bare feet had never strayed far from the triangle made by the soddy, the school, and the 'waller'; he had never seen a tree; or a fish, even in a can; or heard music till one day he ventured down the South Road and met these marvels. He went to school when it was not too hot or too cold, or harvest or planting time, and stayed in the Second Reader year after year because he had no other. The life of the prairie boys, who had no 'Y', no coke bar, no television, no neighbours even, but just a grassy hollow to play in, would seem grindingly hard and poor to the child of vitamins and church connections. Yet they had something few children have now— personal liberty. They were exempt from examinations, doctoring, IQ tests, Boy Scout routines and the exhortations of coaches, preachers and police. They were free!

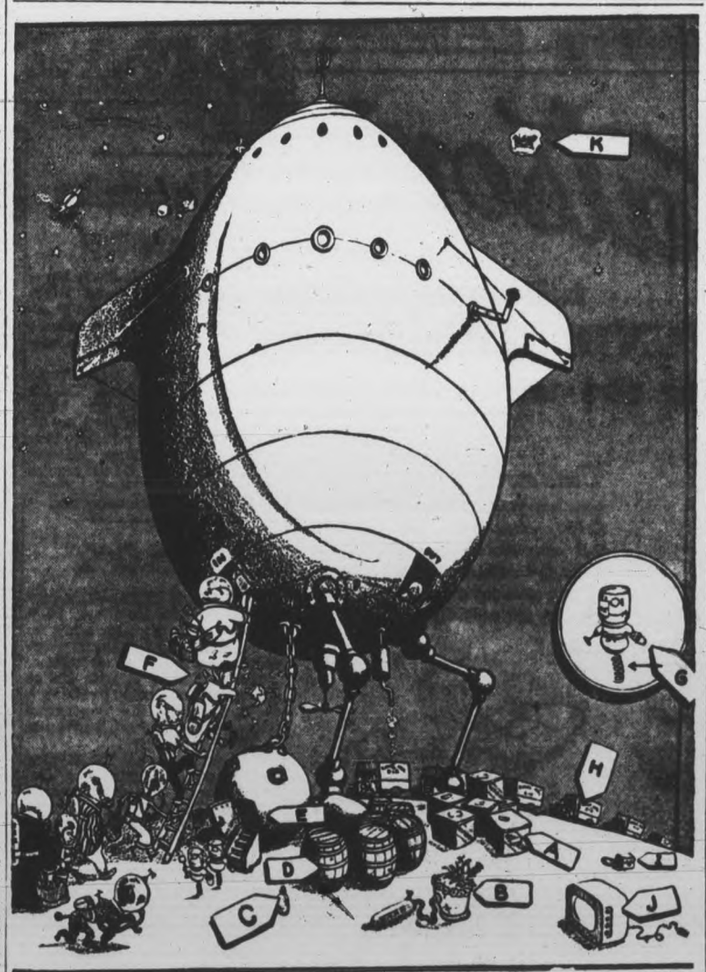
It is the loss of that freedom, not the poverty or the ignorance or the loneliness, that the author seems to regret most, and he regrets it for all the privileged —and organized —children of the present day. There is not much of a story in The Buffalo Wallow; rather it is a series of incidents related humourously and well.

❖ ❖ ❖

TAKE A RANCH and a gulch; add one clear-eyed young man, three cattle rustlers and a sheriff; thicken with treachery (but no lechery); stir with a crooked lawyer, flavour with sage and set on the open range.

Anyone could recognize the ingredients of a Western story, which vary slightly from one book to another; but as in cooking, the skill and taste of the one who mixes them make all the difference. Some are poor, many are mediocre and, within the limits of the genre, a few have excellence.

Probably no one knows when the first story of the West appeared, although by 1880 Colonel Prentiss Ingraham, most prolific among early writers of cowboy tales, was turning out dozens of Buffalo Bill adventure yarns. Since then the mine has been exploited by two generations of authors, and judging from publishers' lists and the evidence of librarians, the popularity of the 'Western' is undiminished. There have been changes though. In length, for one thing. We have just taken down from our bookshelf four books published around 1920, by James Oliver Curwood, Zane Grey, Harold Bell Wright and Rex Beach —all 'big names' in those days— and they average 350 pages; whereas four published within the last month or two average only 215 pages. Yet there is as much action, as many subplots today as there used to be. What has been discarded by today's author is the long descriptive passage, and where Zane Grey was sentimental Max Brand is sententious. And there is less love interest. Twenty years ago sex never reared its ugly head, but occasionally it raised it gently. In many of today's stories there are girls, always fresh and cool despite the desert heat, who are efficient business women; if the lean grey-eyed hero and this paragon of virtue, courage and good business practice are attracted to each other, the author euphemistically refers to their feeling as 'one stronger than friendship' and leaves the matter there. This attitude on the part of authors is approved by their followers, who, like detective story addicts, read westerns for relaxation from the political, social and economic problems of day-to-day living. Action is the essence of these stories, and romance in the limited sense has a very small place in them. There are exceptions, but this is the rule.



❖ ❖ ❖

THE PONCHO of Zane Grey, perhaps the most popular novelist of the west, a generation ago, settled on the shoulders of Max Brand, who turned out adventure fiction of every kind. In The Smiling Desperado Brand tells the story of Danny Cadigan, a quiet man whose impassive but good-natured countenance never showed a sign of emotion until Danny and danger came face to face. He smiled a smile of ecstasy, of 'soul-possessing happiness.' How he was framed by Bill Lancaster, most feared and hated killer in the west, and accused of a train robbery; how he practised with his guns ten hours a day for four months till he could make a tin can walk uphill by rapid-fire shooting at the ground behind it; and how he finally got a confession that cleared his name, makes another exciting novel by the author of the 'Silvertip' series.

A range war between cattlemen of Mart Rafflelock's Rafter Y Ranch and hoemen who had taken up land under the Homestead Act is the subject of Guns of Wyoming by Lee Floren, who has an intelligent idea of how a story of this sort should be written. The style is as clean-cut as Jim Russell, a cowboy who finds himself in the anomalous position of leader of the farmers in the battle for their rights. There is a good deal of humour in this book, and Lee Floren is one writer of westerns who can handle dialogue of the 'You cain't kill me in col' blood' sort with a light, firm hand.

Ernest Haycox is unquestionably among the top two or three writers of western fiction. Nine of his action-packed stories appear in Murder on the Frontier,' but they are not all about murder), and to anyone who knows his other collections of short stories this one will need no recommendation. For those who are not western "fans," it is good entertaining reading. We said before that within the limits of the genre, some westerns could be called excellent; the work of Ernest Haycox is of that quality.

THE GILES FAMILY WILL SOON BE 240,000 MILES AWAY

THE GILES FAMILY in search of a change from its usual week-end by the sea or Easter holiday at the Zoo, has shown enterprise this year by making a space ship under the "Do - It - Yourself" scheme.

Whether the moon (240,000 miles away) likes it or not, it intends to spend Bank Holiday there, and a full report will appear on this page on Monday.

The following index may help you :—

A—Food supplies for Vera.

B—Sunday-best space helmet for Grandma.

C—Drinking water supply.

D—Supplies.

E—Trailer space ship for the twins.

F—George's space helmet gone for a burton.

G—Close-up of moon outfit for the twins, showing details of special landing gear designed by the maker of the "Unknown Political Prisoner."

H—Convoy of fan mail, mostly "Bon voyage, don't come back."

I—Camera to record how half the moon lives. Half because, like most people taking holiday snaps, the Giles Family only gets in half of anything.

J—Television to prove that reception on the moon can't be any worse than it is where they live.

K—The moon having a severe attack of indigestion.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. (Matt. 9:35.)

❖ ❖ ❖

And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease . . .

These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the samaritans enter ye not; but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give . . .

What I tell you in darkness, that speak ye in light: and what ye hear in the ear that preach ye upon the housetops. (Matt. 10: 1, 5-8, 27.)

❖ ❖ ❖

There is no wisdom nor understanding nor counsel against the Lord. (Prov. 21: 30.)

Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? (II Cor. 6: 14, 16.)

Press Of Canada Given Third Of Seats In Abbey

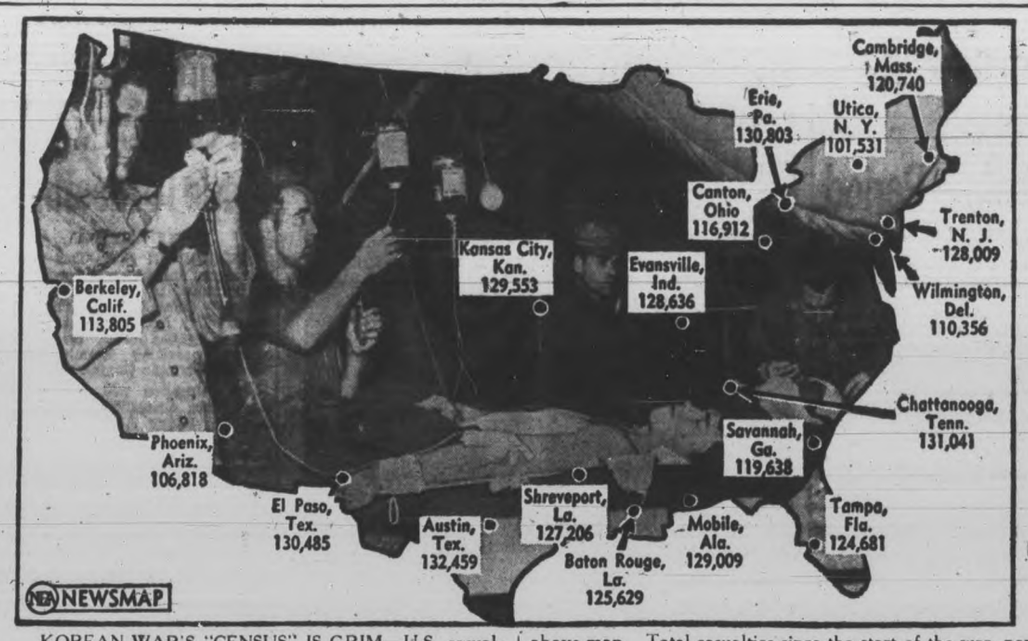
TORONTO (CP)—Arrangements for the press of Canada to report Coronation proceedings on an extensive scale were announced at the annual meeting of the Canadian section of the Commonwealth Press Union held Tuesday night.

Accommodation for the overseas Commonwealth press, in Westminster Abbey and along the route of the procession, is being handled by CPU's London office.

Latest reports anticipate that one-third of the approximately 90 seats in the abbey allotted to the press of the Dominions, India and the colonies will be occupied by the representatives of Canadian newspapers and news agencies. In addition some 40 reporters will be stationed along the route of the procession.

Frederick I. Ker, Southam Company Limited, Hamilton, was re-elected chairman of the section and Victor Sifton, Winnipeg Free Press, vice-chairman. Hon. W. Rupert Davies, Kingston Whig-Standard, was re-elected honorary chairman.

Members elected to the executive committee were H. T. Hunter, Maclean-Hunter Publishing Co., Limited, Toronto; J. G. McConnell, Montreal Star; H. E. McCormick, the Monitor, Montreal; Hon. Jacob Nicol, QC, La Tribune, Sherbrooke; R. H. Thomson, the Thomson Co., Limited, Toronto. W. A. Craick continues as honorary secretary-treasurer and T. F. Drummie, Saint John Telegraph-Journal, honorary auditor.



Elected to represent the section on the council of the CPU, London, were Messrs. Ker, Sifton and Hunter; John Bassett, Montreal Gazette; E. Norman Smith, Ottawa Journal; Herve Major, Montreal La Presse; Gillis Purcell, The Canadian Press; and P. R. Curran, British United Press.

It was announced that the Australian section is starting preparations for the next Commonwealth press conference to be held in Australia in 1955.

RHEUMATIC PAIN

Strange Patronage Mixup

Eisenhower Gov't Fires Wrong Man, Keeps Other One

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Eisenhower administration, in a strange patronage mix-up, apparently has fired a man it intended to keep, and kept a man it intended to fire.

The mix-up has left in office Augustus Owsley Stanley, a long-time Kentucky Democratic big wheel who will be 86 years old next month, and has removed John A. Ulinski, a Buffalo, N.Y., engineer.

The man who took Ulinski's job is Samuel W. Golan, a Chicago lawyer who has the backing of Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep. Ill.).

No one will say definitely what happened, but if you'll stick around a minute you'll see how easily a little confusion could arise.

First, there's the international joint commission, set up under a 1909 treaty between Canada and the U.S. Its job is to settle legal disputes along the boundary. It is headed by Stanley.

AT LAST CONFERENCE

Second, there's the international boundary commission. It was set up under a 1903 treaty, and has the job of clearing trees, protecting monuments and keeping things tidy along the border. It was headed by Ulinski, and now by Golan.

The subject came up publicly at Eisenhower's last press conference.

Alan S. Emory of the Watertown, N.Y., Daily Times asked the president if he was aware that Golan's appointment violated a treaty with Canada. The treaty, Emory said, called for the appointment of a "qualified geographer, or surveyor," whereas Golan is a lawyer.

Eisenhower said the way the reporter stated the case, of course, that sounds terrible. He said he'd look into it.

The case was looked into. The decision was that the Canadian boundary is in such good shape there is no cause for alarm, even though a lawyer was named instead of a geographer.

At Dirksen's office, it was disclosed that Golan had been proposed for the joint commission. All along it was assumed that was what he was getting. So much so that Dirksen's office first announced Golan had the joint commission job, and then had to correct it to say, no, it's the international boundary commission.

NO ONE TALKING

Who got the commissions mixed up? No one will say.

But it's a story with a reasonably happy ending.

Ulinski already has landed a job in Buffalo as general manager of radio station WWOL. The word is that Golan is in Canada, presenting his credentials. He has no complaints. His job pays $1,200 more a year than the $10,600 he would have got on the joint commission.

And Stanley has a strong talking point for keeping his job. He first was named to the commission in 1930 by a fellow with impeccable standing in Republican circles, President Herbert Hoover.

Baking Sale Planned By Oak Heights WA

WARKWORTH — (ENS)—The Women's Association of the Oak Heights United Church met at the home of Mrs. Edward Covert.

Pot luck was served at noon and the ladies quilted a fancy quilt and held a pot luck supper for a large number of women and children.

The president, Mrs. L. Tucker, presided over the meeting opening with the WA Ode and prayer.

Mrs. A. P. Sayles conducted the devotional meeting which opened with the hymn, "O For a Faith That Will Not Shrink", read by Mrs. S. Lawrence. Mrs. Sayles' devotional topic was, "Easter Means Rebirth". This part of the meeting closed with the hymn, "The Lord Is My Shepherd".

The roll call was answered by members giving their favorite home remedy.

A baking sale is to be held at the next meeting with the following members on the committee: Mrs. L. Tucker, Mrs. A. McMurdo, Mrs. Edward Covert and Mrs. W. H. Porter. The ladies will hold a bee Thursday afternoon to clean the church.

The following program was presented: kitchen contest by Mrs. Clarence Ferguson; reading, "The Old House", by Mrs. D. Langford; reading, "Doing Things Worth While" by Mrs. S. Lawrence.

The meeting closed with prayer by the Rev. A. L. Sisco.

MISS INGRID VAN BIESEN, a master of five languages and gets along with a few others, has the interesting job of greeting new Canadians at Dorval Airport in Montreal. The pert young miss came to Canada after a stint of modeling for Jaques Fath in Paris and visiting almost every city in Europe and Africa. Miss Van Biesen, a native of Czechoslovakia, came to Canada when she heard from her Czech friends in Montreal how much they liked the place. As a TCA ground hostess she meets people from foreign countries as they land and talks to them in their own tongue.

Campbellford Wins, 13-7 Over Wellington Dukes For Trent League Crown

By JOHN COXWELL

CAMPBELLFORD—(ENS)—Campbellford defeated Wellington 13-7 in Belleville Arena last night to win the Trent Valley Hockey League championship. A crowd of over 2,000 people watched Campbellford romp to an easy victory over the Wellington Dukes in the sixth games of the best four-of-seven series. Campbellford led the series 3-1 after one game had been thrown out due to a referee's error and another had resulted in a tie game after overtime.

Graham Craig opened the scoring and possibly set a record, scoring three consecutive goals in 52 seconds, after which Herrington, Cole and Eady each picked up a counter to end the first period with six goal lead for Campbellford.

THE HAT TRICK

Leo Goyer performed the hat trick in the second, flashing the light behind Nelson three times out Campbellford, with a pair of goals by Doug Free and one by Wilson, maintained their six-goal lead at the end of the middle frame.

In the last period Joe Scott had the honors, bulging the twine three times, while Cousins got Wellington's last goal of the evening. Free, Simpson and Payne each got one for the champions.

The game was very fast and clean, with only five penalties handed out.

REAL CHAMPIONS

The Campbellford team, assembled by manager Fred Rutherford and tutored by playing coach' Wib' Blake, is regarded as one of the strongest teams iced by this town in many years.

At the end of the game, Art Duncan, president of the TVL, presented the Thomas Bata Trophy to playing coach Blake. The last time Campbellford won this trophy was in 1947.

The teams:

Campbellford — Goal, Nelson; defence, Pace, Baker; centre, Payne; wings, Craig Free; alternates, Blake, Herrington, Cole, Simpson, Jeffs, Wilson, Eady, Reid.

Wellington — Goal, Parks; defence, Hurst, Greer; cenire, Bryant; wings, York, Scott; alernates, Pettingill, Hatfield, L. Goyer, Mowatt, Johnston, Gassira, Twigg, Cousins.

MacPhail Barred From Own Race Track

BALTIMORE (AP)—Larry MacPhail, the equally successful and controversial sportsman, was barred Tuesday from his own horse racing track.

The Maryland racing commission banned the 63-year-old fiery redhead from entering Bowie pending a hearing April 23 on charges of "conduct detrimental to the best interests of racing." MacPhail has been president of Bowie since it was bought by a syndicate last year.

MacPhail could not be reached for comment.

D. Eldred Rinehart, the commission chairman, said the charge against MacPhail resulted from a "clubhouse incident" at Bowie last Saturday.

ENTIRELY SEPARATE

He emphasized the "incident" is entirely separate from another MacPhail had with a state trooper on which charges of disorderly conduct, drunkenness and assault will be heard April 20. These police charges were placed after MacPhail argued with the trooper over the way he was directing traffic out of the track after the races the same day.

Rinehart wouldn't disclose details of the "clubhouse incident" but other sources reported MacPhail had engaged in a loud and profane argument with two directors of the Maryland division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association during the races.

Lethbridge Edges St. Boniface 3-2

WINNIPEG (CP) — Lethbridge Native Sons got back into the running in the Western Memorial Cup hockey final Tuesday night by edging St. Boniface Canadiens 3-2 in the third game of their best-of-seven series.

Canadiens won the first two games at Lethbridge 7-5 and 8-6. Fourth game will be played here Thursday night.

Outshot 27-18, Native Sons skated feverishly both ways in an attempt to stop the heavy St. Boniface machine. The return of defenceman Howie Yanosik, out with a sprained ankle for the first two games, gave a steadying influence to the rearguards.

Roger LaPlante, Clarence Jaster and Yanosik bagged the Native Sons' goals. Leo Konyk and Lou Marius scored for Canadiens.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barney Ross, world's lightweight boxing champion, resigned the title 18 years ago today because he could no longer make the 135-pound weight limit. Barney had already been campaigning in the welterweight section, where he won the crown in 1934 from Jimmy McLarnin. He lost the welter title to McLarnin in 1935 but regained it the same year and lasted until beaten by Henry Armstrong in 1938.

VEJAR WHIPS CIMMINO

CLEVELAND (AP)—Chico Vejar, the New York drama student, found the going rough in the early rounds of a 10-rounder Tuesday night, but came back to win a unanimous decision over Tony Cimmino. Vejar, who won a split decision over the Bayonne, N.J., battler in Johnstown, Pa., two months ago, weighed 152 to 150 for Cimmino.

Hornets Win In Fourth Overtime Period

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pittsburgh Hornets overcame a two-goal deficit and battled more than two hours to down Cleveland Barons 3-2 and even the American Hockey League champion playoffs 3-3 early today. Danny Lewicki scored two of Pittsburgh's goals, flipping in the winning counter at 11:46 of a fourth overtime period.

The game ended just before 2 a.m. EST. When the winning goal came at 11:46 of the final period, the teams had less than a minute to go before setting a record for the longest game ever played in the league.

PREVIOUS RECORD

The record is 122 minutes and 42 seconds in a game which Syracuse won from Cleveland 3-2 in the spring of 1938.

Bob Chrystal scored both Baron goals in the first period. His first was a long screened shot from in front of the net, his second a 15-footer after a pass by Steve Wochy.

Lewicki scored his first Hornet goal in the second period and Andy Barbe tied the score in the third period.

The seventh and deciding game of the series will be played Thursday night in Cleveland.

Gavilan Gains Split Decision

CLEVELAND (AP) — Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan ran into unexpected opposition in tough Livio Minelli of Italy Tuesday night and barely managed to eke out a split decision in their 10-round bout in Cleveland Arena.

The champion, making his first start since scoring a technical knockout over Chuck Davey in their title bout in Chicago last February, weighed 152 to 151 for the hard-hitting Italian battler.

Referee Jackie Davis scored 6-4 in favor of Gavilan. Judge Charlie Bill ruled 4-6 in favor of Minelli and judge Herb Williams 5-4-1 in favor of Gavilan.

The Cuban seemed content in the early rounds to fight in flurries, backing Minelli to the ropes and pounding away with both hands. But Minelli refused to give ground and traded blow for blow with the champion.

Vancouver Takes Lead In Series

TORONTO (CP)—Vancouver Eilers, defending champions, took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five Canadian women's senior basketball finals Tuesday night by defeating Toronto Benny's Maids 55-48.

Top scorers for the Eilers were Nora McDermott with 20 points on seven baskets and six free throws and Beverley Slater with 15 points from seven field goals and one free shot. Noreen Stoddart picked up eight points and Beryl Piper and Louise McDermott added four each.

Marjory Shedd sank five baskets to lead the Toronto scorers with 10 points. Mary Barnett trailed her by one and Grace Barnett had eight.

The Maids were on top 27-25 at the half, but Eilers broke into a 32-31 lead early in the third and stretched the margin to seven points at the three-quarter mark.

Trojans Gain Finals In "Y" Floor Hockey

Trojans eliminated Friday Night Club Tuesday night from the YMCA floor hockey semi-finals, winning the second game of the best of three set 8-3 to sweep the series in two straight.

Penalties which proved costly for the clubbers in the first game again helped give the Trojans an edge. Howie Eastman played a "Red Horner" role, serving five penalties.

Friday-nighters went ahead in the first period 2-1 on goals by "Painless' Peters and John Outram. But in the second, while Eastman started serving his sentences in the penalty box, Trojans jumped to the lead on goals by Mob Payne, Red Hill and Mick Magee.

THE SAME TRIO

In the third the same trio, Hill, Magee and Payne, scored, Hill adding another with seconds to go.

Trojans now meet the Penguins Monday night in the best-of-three series for the title. The Huskies failed to floor a team due to injuries and sickness, allowing Penguins to advance into the finals.

LINEUPS

Trojans — Caddigan, Payne 3, Hill 3, Magee 2, Appleby, Stone.

FNC—Eastman, Cordell, Prest, Crossman 1, Peters 1, Hurrle, Outram 1.

GOLF-BOUND — President Eisenhower and his wife, Mamie, step down from the presidential airplane, Columbine, that took them from rainy Washington to sunny Augusta, Ga. Meanwhile, in Washington, where Vice-President Richard Nixon was to substitute for Ike in throwing out the first ball of the 1953 baseball season, the game was cancelled because of the downpour.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A dream John Harris, well-to-do Oshawa man, had for the past four years has come true this spring with the Oshawa admission into the Intercounty Baseball League. Owner John tried out his Merchants in the Toronto Viaduct Loop, along with the Petes, several years ago, and last season had the club entered in the Niagara Falls' circuit. But he made no secret of the fact in both loops that he could field a contending club in the strong (minor pro) Intercounty League. He is presently scouring the Dominican league for more diamond material. Nor does he hesitate to put the dough on the line to get players he wants. The Merchants should do okay this year.

* * * * * * *

What the baseball picture in Peterborough will be this summer isn't too clear just yet. We'll have a good junior "A' entry— the Liflocs— in the Lakeshore League once more, a stronger squad than the club had in '52. Manager Shockey Mein and Coach Howie Dalton won't be satisfied with so-so material, even if they have to import smart young players from the district to round out a potent team. Cold weather has hampered early drills, but they plan to go regularly from now on. This executive includes: Dr. Cliff McKee, Ray Tanner, D. A. McGillis, Ray Pammett, John Foster, Tommy Holyman, Mrs. Keith Frizzelle, Alex Sinclair and Joe Kearns. The team will give a good account of itself in intermediate competition.

* * * * * * *

All Comes Out In Wash

Senior Petes' setup will likely be known after the Lakeshore League meeting tomorrow night in Port Hope. Petes will apply then for entry. Meantime, they hold an open meeting at 7.30 tonight in the "Y" to discuss plans and appoint a delegation to the loop huddle. When team delegates meet Thursday they'll have to settle the various categories of the entries. Lindsay may go senior "B", Bowmanville and Whitby intermediate "A" or "B"; Port Hope, Cobourg and Colborne intermediate "B"; and Oshawa either senior or junior— or both, if two teams enter from there. Petes, if admitted, would have to go in as seniors while the Liflocs are definitely junior "A." A lot of categories for one circuit, huh?

* * * * * * *

Entries will close in a couple of weeks for the Men's City Softball League 1953 schedule. The loop will go either as a four-team one or possible a six-club circuit. Seabrooke's crew from Ashburnham way will likely be back, defending their city title, when Red Sullivan returns from the puck wars. Revoy's and UEW are pretty sure starters again, also, and the Lakefield bunch are presently seeking a city sponsor. An entry is reported from the Peterborough Hockey Club with Buck Legrow, Bill Crowley, Toddie Greenlaw, etc., available. Two other rumored entries are IUE-CIO and Cal Nichols, but these are by no means definite yet. Schedule should open by May 20 or so, and the teams will go two nights a week in twin bills at the Bowl d'Ashburnham.

Three For The Rocket

That 7-3 decision for Canidiens over Bruins in Boston last night was as emphatic as a kick in the slats. It gives the Habs a 3-1 lead in the Stanley Cup finals, and they could wrap up the old mug on home ice Thursday p.m. Gerry McNeil again played a lot of goal for Dick Irwin's hustlers, and he had plenty of support, though the Bruins battled hard in the last two periods. Maurice Richard once more proved he is a great money player by firing home three tallies for the Montreal cause. That's where the Rocket has it over Gordie Howe, he is hot in every playoff series, and a real triggerman when the chips are down. The Boston chance of survival now is pretty slim.

Attending the OLA annual Saturday from here will be Prexy Bob Peirson, Manager Bob Curtin, OLA executive member Ken Kingston, and Coach Bob Thorpe. Nightly drills for the Petes will be on next week in Miller Bowl, many of the players recently taking loosening-up exercises at the "Y". Looks like the squad will have all of last year's players all through the season — Fitzgerald and Wipper being here from the start— plus a possible import or two, and a choice of seven up from junior ranks. Ross Powless and Rog Smith will be back any day now, Don Ashbee will be here next week and Ike Hildebrand comes ere the month's end. Marv McKenzie is still a good possibility, having his Hamilton release and not being signed for '53 yet. Club has sold 440 season ducats so far and has another 160 left to go by April 14. Reserved seats are located on both sides of the Bowl this year.

Progress Report On Olympics Made To Meeting

By KEN MOSES

MELBOURNE (AP)—This is a preview of the progress report to be presented to the International Olympic Committee meeting at Mexico City April 17 by a confident delegation from the Melbourne organizing committee of the 1956 Olympic Games.

The delegation will consist of Hugh Weir, Australia's senior IOC delegate, Harry Alderson, chairman of the Australian Olympic federation, and Arthur Coles, chairman of the Olympic Games Control Committee.

Both the federal and the Victorian state governments have pledged financial support and Melbourne city council is 100 per cent behind the games.

The stadium now holds 80,000 with most seats under cover. By 1956, it is hoped to increase the capacity to 120,000.

A space will be set aside for 1,000 sportswriters and broadcasters.

IN WALKING DISTANCE

The main stadium will be within walking distance of the heart of the city and is close to three training stadia.

The modern swimming pool at Fawkner park will be about a 15-minute walk from the main stadium. The pool, to cost a minimum of $784,000, will be covered and will seat 6,000. It will consist of a standard Olympic 50 metre pool and a special diving pool. Construction will start in a few weeks.

At least eight training pools will be available within five miles of the city.

Olympic athletes will be quartered in a modern village, probably at Heidelberg, seven miles from Melbourne. Six-hundred two- and three-bedroom houses will be built, each to hold 10 athletes.

Laundry facilities will be available as well as communal dining halls, recreation rooms and amusement halls. The press and radio centre will be at Melbourne University.

70 MILES AWAY

Rowing and canoeing events will be held at Lake Wenouree, 70 miles by road from Melbourne, at Ballarat.

The Melbourne exhibition building will be used for basketball, fencing and weight-lifting.

The Melbourne town hall, which seats 2,500, will be used for wrestling, and the West Melbourne Stadium with 9,000 seats will be used for boxing.

Olympic park, less than a mile from the city, will be the venue for cycling events. It will be built at a minimum cost of $448,000.

With 12 stadia within five miles of the city, each capable of holding more than 40,000 people, the organizers have no qualms about staging the hockey and soccer events.

The equestrian three-day event will be held within 15 miles of the city.

The Olympic organizers admit, however, that the government has not yet agreed to lift quarantine restrictions. Under these restrictions horses can come directly only from Britain and New Zealand, and then only after having spent six months in those countries.

Say Decision Made About Olympic Games

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Formal meetings of the International Olympic Committee still are two days away but it is possible the decision as to whether to permit Australia to keep the 1956 games already has been made.

The executive committee of the IOC held two closed sessions Tuesday. Officials declined to say what took place, but it was believed that the entire Australian situation was discussed. The executive meeting usually decides its recommendations at these meetings.

Rarely, if ever, is the committee overruled.

PLAY BALL—With rain cancelling the traditional baseball season opener in Washington, the only game to inaugurate the 1953 season was held in Cincinnati between the Reds and the Milwaukee Braves of the National League. Here, Bill Bruton (right), Milwaukee centrefielder, slides back at first base, guarded by Red first-baseman Ted Kluszewski. Johnny Logan, Brave shortstop, had flied out to send Bruton back.

Hardly Dull Moment As Braves Nip St. Louis Cardinals 3-2

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The major leagues' script writers gave it the old college try for opening day.

In seven games they came up with an extra-inning thriller won by a Milwaukee rookie's homer; a one-hit sensation by Cleveland's Bob Lemon; come-from-behind victories by Brooklyn and Chicago Cubs; New York Yankees' first opening day shutout loss in 17 years; a decisive setback for Robin Roberts, last year's best pitcher, and an expert whitewashing of his former Detroit teammates by Virgil Trucks.

Even the one postponement had a special twist. Boston Red Sox were forced to cancel both days of a two-day series with Washington because of snow—the first snowed-out games in Boston since 1933.

Chilly weather prevailed generally, holding the total crowds to 176,269, almost 50,000 below expectations.

CHILLY WEATHER

The hardy souls who ventured out Tuesday saw Milwaukee nip St. Louis 3-2, Chicago edge Cincinnati 3-2, Brooklyn whip Pittsburgh 8-5 and New York defeat Philadelphia 4-1 in National League encounters and three American league shutouts—Cleveland over Chicago 6-0, Philadelphia over the Yankees 5-0 and St. Louis over Detroit 10-0.

The day's largest crowd, 53,698, watched Lemon give up a single to Minnie Minoso in the first inning for the first and last Chicago hit.

At Yankee Stadium, Casey Stengel ran up his fourth straight American League pennant. That was about the last thing the crowd of 23,534 had to cheer about. The Yanks managed only five singles against lefthander Alex Kellner whose shutout performance was the first suffered by New York on an opening day since Bobo Newsom of Washington bested Lefty Gomez 1-0 in 1936.

HOMETOWN TRIUMPH

Bill Bruton, Negro rookie who probably is the fastest man in the majors, homered in the 10th inning to give the Braves a hometown triumph over the Cardinals. Burton's 350-foot blast sent the 34,357 customers home happy from Milwaukee's first major league game in 52 years.

Ken Raffensberger, who has lost more games in the National League than any other active pitcher, dropped his 139th when Chicago scored two unearned runs in the eighth inning to defeat Cincinnati 3-2 before 21,222 fans.

The Dodgers couldn't find a pitcher to go the route on opening day. The Pirates knocked out Carl Erskine with a four-run outburst in the fourth inning. Joe Black saved the day for the 12,433 Ebbets Field faithful as the Dodgers found the range for four runs in the fourth and fifth against Murry Dickson. Roy Campanella homered in the fourth with two on and Duke Snider followed with one on base in the fifth.

Bobby Thomson sent the Giants away on top against Roberts at Philadelphia as he belted the Phils' ace for a home run with Davey Williams on base in the first inning. Larry Jansen doled out six singles. The game drew 19,221 customers.

The Browns pounced on Ned Garver for four runs in the first inning and had added six more against three other pitchers before the fireworks were over in the only night game, played before 11,804 fans.

Trucks yielded four hits.

Win Junior Title

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor Shaar Blues won the 1953 Canadian juvenile basketball championship Tuesday night by defeating Montreal YMHA 76-62 to sweep the best-of-three series 2-0 in games.

DO YOU OWN A CAR?

When the man who developed Bardahl Rad Conditioner brought his car to a garage for repairs, the garage owner phoned to ask him what on earth had he put in his radiator. He said that when they drained his radiator the water was so thick with dirt it would hardly pour. The Bardahl Rad Conditioner had removed rust, scale and dirt untouched by a popular brand chemical cleaner. The garage owner immediately placed an order for their own use. Since then hundreds of thousands of car owners in Canada and the United States have used Bardahl Rad Conditioner. If you own a car you should try it too . . . if your car is new it will keep your radiator in permanently new condition . . . if you have been running your car for a few years you'll be amazed at the dirt, rust and scale it will remove. Bardahl Rad Conditioner keeps radiators clean . . . eliminates rust formation which can insulate a motor, causing harmful overheating . . . and it also lubricates and stops squeaky water pumps. Bardahl Rad Conditioner costs only 89c. Ask for it at your Service Station.

Canadiens Wallop Boston 7-3, Lead Series 3-1

BOSTON—(AP)—Montreal Canadiens appear assured of their first Stanley Cup victory since 1946 today as, with a 3-1 lead in games, they head for home to resume the National Hockey League's best-of-seven final series with the Boston Bruins Thursday night. Canadiens need only one more victory in the three games possible to regain the heights of professional hockey. After splitting their first two games at home, Canadiens overwhelmed Bruins 3-0 here Sunday and 7-3 Tuesday night.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard turned in one of the best games of his spectacular career before Tuesday night's crowd of 13,090. He scored three goals to run his personal total to seven goals in the four games against the Bruins.

Richard now has performed the hat trick four times in playoffs and 23 times in his NHL career.

IGNORES INJURY

Again ignoring his ankle injury, Gerry McNeil was brilliant in the Montreal net. He held the Bruins scoreless until 18:22 in the opening period, thereby keeping them blanked for a total of 78 minutes, 22 seconds since taking over from rookie Jacques Plante here Sunday night.

Other Montreal scorers were Lorne Davis, after three minutes of play, Dickie Moore, Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Calum MacKay. The latter lashed a long shot into an empty Boston net at 17:59 in the finale, about 40 seconds after the Bruins had pulled out substitute goalie Gordon (Red) Henry.

Henry, however, was manning his cage when Richard scored his third goal with only 93 seconds remaining.

SET UP FIRST GOAL

Veteran Woody Dumart set up Boston's first goal for Dave Creighton and, after Canadiens had built up a 5-1 lead early in the final session, captain Milt Schmidt and Jack (Moose) McIntyre gave die-hard Bruins' supporters some slight encouragement with two more.

As was the case Sunday, the Bruins performed in erratic fashion in front of Henry, who was pressed into service when their regular goalie, Sugar Jim Henry, unrelated, suffered an ankle injury while Boston was registering its initial triumph, 4-1, Saturday night in Montreal.

The latest medical report on Sugar Jim was that he would be with the Bruins when they leave tonight for Montreal, but his chances of playing Thursday were decidely slim. Coach Lynn Patrick pointed out that defenceman Hal Laycoe had a similar injury early in the regular season and had to miss 17 games.

Rideaus Arrive Minus 3 Players

KITCHENER (CP)—The Smiths Falls Rideaus hockey aggregation drilled at nearby Waterloo arena Tuesday in preparation for the third game in the Eastern Canada hockey finals against Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen tonight.

The team arrived minus three players: Centre Gary Moore and defencemen Ray Trainor and Don Thomson. However, coach Hal Dewey says he expects Moore and Trainor to be here for the game.

He said Thomson may not appear until later in the series as he is sidelined with influenza. He probably will be replaced by Alf Webster.

The Smiths Falls crew could not work out in the Kitchener Arena Tuesday as the ice had been removed for a musical show booking, so it used the ice at Waterloo.

Coach Dewey expressed confidence that the Rideaus, leading the series 2-0, would continue on the victory path today.

Meanwhile the Dutchmen were resting following a stiff workout Monday night in the Waterloo arena.

PIKE CHARGES TAMPERING

GUELPH (CP)—Coach Alfie Pike of Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league Tuesday accused Toronto St. Michael's College and indirectly Toronto Maple Leafs of "tampering" with players of other hockey clubs.

The Guelph coach made the charge after he learned that Ted Maki, 16-year-old defenceman with South Porcupine Gold Kings, had attended St. Mike's hockey school in Toronto during the Easter holidays.

The Gold Kings are sponsored by New York Rangers. Pike said Biltmores, also sponsored by Rangers, are counting on Maki's services for next season.

Pike charged that Maki was induced to attend St. Mike's hockey school through Murray Costello, former South Porcupine player who has been with St. Michael's Majors for the last three seasons.

Pike said that "since St. Mike's are sponsored by Toronto Maple Leafs, I imagine Leafs will have to take the blame for tampering. They're responsible for their sponsored club, or they should be."

In Toronto the Rev. D. Faught, manager of the St. Michael's club, said the club has never approached a player on a sponsored team.

He said Maki asked a St. Mike's player how he (Maki) could enter St. Michael's College. He was told if his parents wrote that he wanted to attend, an invitation would be issued.

"We told Maki after he came by his parents' request that he could stay on the Rangers' sponsored list if he wished," Father Faught said. "We believe this is not tampering."

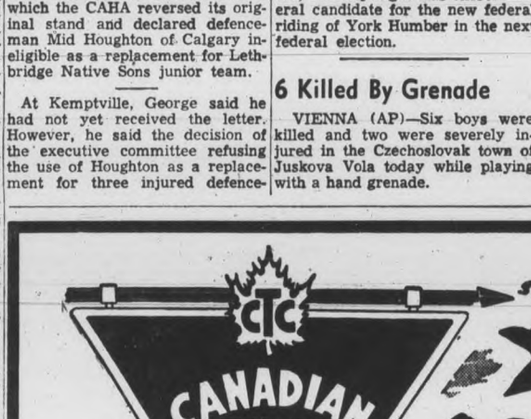
MAY ENTER ORFU

KITCHENER (CP)—A meeting will be held Monday to discuss the possibility of entering a senior football club in the Ontario Rugby Football Union from Kitchener and Waterloo.



Among those who will attend will be Norm Perry of Sarnia, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, Don Downey, ORFU president and Harold Bailey, secretary-treasurer.

More than $1,000 has been offered the proposed club although no appeal for funds has been made.

TIGERS SIGN CATCHER

WATERLOO (CP)—Waterloo Tigers of the Intercounty Senior Baseball League announced Tuesday they have signed Ed Sokol, 28, of Westfield, Mass., a catcher with six years professional experience. Noted as a good RBI man who can hit for extra bases, Sokol will report Monday.

"JUNIOR" IS DEFINITELY SENIOR — The question whether Jim (Junior) Gilliam, above, would be returned to the Royals or stay with the Dodgers, was settled with the announcement from "Buz" Bavasi, left, that the second baseman has signed with Brooklyn. Apparently, the ex-Royal has won over Jackie Robinson's post, at least for the time being.

Lethbridge Club Asks CAHA Replaced Soon

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—The Lethbridge Booster Club wants the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association replaced before next season by an organization with a commissioner in charge.

The club in a letter sent Monday to W. B. George of Kemptville, Ont., CAHA president, reviewed some highlights in the situation in which the CAHA reversed its original stand and declared defenceman Mid Houghton of Calgary ineligible as a replacement for Lethbridge Native Sons junior team.

At Kemptville, George said he had not yet received the letter. However, he said the decision of the executive committee refusing the use of Houghton as a replacement for three injured defencemen was final. He said he lacked the authority to reverse that decision.

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Thompson, former York county warden and mayor of Weston, Tuesday night was chosen Liberal candidate for the new federal riding of York Humber in the next federal election.

Flyers Swamp Citadelles With 9-2 Win

TORONTO (CP)—Barrie Flyers Tuesday night rolled up the highest score of their campaign in this year's junior hockey playoffs.

The Flyers rapped in five unanswered goals in the final period to down Quebec Citadelles 9-2 in the first game of a best-of-seven final to decide the Eastern Canada junior hockey champions.

The winner of the series will advance into the Memorial Cup final against either Lethbridge Native Sons or St. Boniface Canadiens.

The Flyers took a 3-0 lead in the first period and made it 4-2 in the second before running all over the Citadelles in the third.

Barrie's second shot of the game was their first goal. Larry Thibault slapped in Don McKenney's rebound after 52 seconds of play. Skip Teal, who notched his first of three goals, and defenceman Don Cherry built the lead to 3-0 before the period ended.

The Citadelles came back in the middle period to slam in a pair of counters which brought them back into the game. Raymond Cyr fired a 25-footer from the left side of the rink for the visitors' first goal and Camille Henri closed out Quebec's scoring when he got a breakaway at the Barrie blue line, skated in to pull Marv Edwards out of position and slid the puck by him.

Barrie added another goal for a 4-2 lead before the session was over. Jim Robertson was the marksman.

In the final, the Flyers really showed their stuff. Teal started it at 4:43 with his second of the night. Orv Tessier helped with his tally three minutes later and Teal, Don McKenney and Fred Pletsch took it from there.

Marcel Paille was a standout in the Quebec nets. He turned away 37 shots to Edwards' 21 and stopped rebound after rebound.

In the penalty department the Flyers also got the edge, receiving seven of the 12 minor sentences handed out.

Referees Hap Shouldice and Stan Pratt held firm throughout the game in their attempts to get players of both sides to face off cleanly and weren't influenced by the crowd who booed because it thought the officials were delaying the game.

Each side had to cut down on its regular roster to make the 14-player limit allowed in the series. Tim Hook, Ken Robertson and Orin Carver sat it out for Barrie. The Citadelles didn't dress Allain, Denomme, Boyon and LaPerriere.

After the game Watson said "Barrie can't get any better, but we will and we'll come back."

Emms in the other dressing room only sighed: "I'm sure glad that one's over."

Says Canada Swamped By Prospectors

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada, one of the world's biggest uranium producers, is 'being "swamped" with inquiries by Americans who want to prospect in the northland and tap some of the big money.

Dr. A. H. Lang, chief of the radioactive resources division of the geological survey of Canada, told the Commons atomic energy committee Tuesday that a lot of the would-be prospectors don't know the "facts of life."

Most believe that they can come into the country, grab a geiger counter and discover a big uranium mine that will land them a fortune.

That wasn't the case. Uranium was the "easiest thing in the world" to find in Canada, but the essential factor was to find deposits that were big enough to mine profitably.

INQUIRIES POUR IN

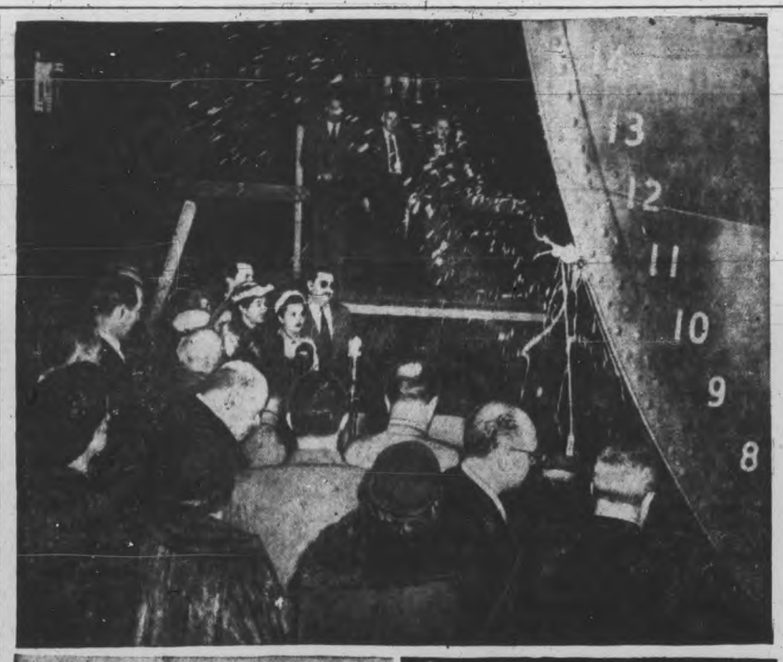
Inquiries from around the world by people who want to prospect for Canadian uranium have been pouring into his office in "enormous numbers," Dr. Lang said. The radioactive resources division was being "swamped" by inquiries from the U.S.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) wondered why there should be such a "rush" by prospectors when indications were that there wasn't much money in the uranium business.

Dr. Lang said there were "rewards" for those who hit the right kind of uranium. It was true that for every successful and profitable mine there were about 200 or 300 unprofitable discoveries, but there was money in the business for the professional people who knew the facts of life.

9 Wounded Veterans Flown From Tacoma

OTTAWA (CP)—Nine sick and wounded veterans of fighting in Korea are to be flown east today from Tacoma, Wash., army headquarters announced Tuesday.



Since their return from the Far East they have been receiving treatment at Tacoma's Madigan Hospital.

The Dakota aircraft is due at Toronto at four p.m. EST, Thursday.

Patients and their destinations include L.Cpl. M. C. Moon of Picton, Ont., for Kingston.

Ensign Appointment

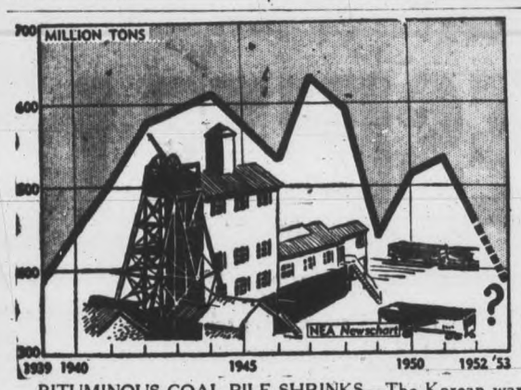
MONTREAL (CP)—Appointment of Duncan A. L. MacDonald as assistant managing editor of the Ensign was announced Tuesday night by R. W. Keyserlingk, publisher of the Roman Catholic weekly. Former sports editor of the Montreal Gazette, Mr. MacDonald joined the Ensign in 1950. A native of Glengarry, Ont., he received his early education at Cornwall Collegiate and later studied at McGill University.

ANCHORS AWEIGH! — Dona Maria Pasada de Carreno Mallarino, wife of the Consul General of Colombia in New York, has just cut the ribbons and in time-honored fashion a champagne bottle breaks on the prow of the Ciudad de Cali, (top photo) about to slide into the Canadian Vickers basin at Montreal in the presence of a large number of Canadian and South American personalities. Built by Canadian Vickers for Flota Mercante Grancolombiana, S.A., the Ciudad de Cali is a modern refrigerated cargo vessel designed for service between U.S. ports and Colombia, Venezuela and Ecuador. She will fly the Colombian flag. In the photo below, down the ways at Vickers' shipyard (left) raced the cargo vessel Ciudad de Cali to start the Montreal ship launching season. Dono Maria Pasada de Carreno Mallarino, right picture, wife of the Colombian consul general in New York, performed the naming ceremony, then watched enthralled as the new godchild moved into her own element.

Plan Changes In New Radio Regulations

OTTAWA (CP)—A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, told the Commons broadcasting committee Tuesday that some modifications will be made in proposed new radio regulations now before the board.

He said in reply to a question from Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) that the controversial regulations, to which private radio stations have objected strongly, would not be made effective in their present form.



The proposed regulations were issued last October as a basis for discussion between the 11-member board and interested groups. They contained the first proposal by the board to regulate the Canadian content of radio programs.

The Canadian Association of Broadcasters to which most privately-owned radio stations belong has objected particularly to a regulation that would require stations to devote between 30 and 48 per cent of weekly broadcast time to Canadian programs.

Mr. Dunton gave no hint as to which of the proposed regulations would be modified. He said the modifications had not been drafted. Informal discussions still were going on among the parties, including the C.A.B.

In reply to a question from Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod), Mr. Dunton said one regulation must be "considerably modified or dropped altogether."

He referred to a regulation which would ban broadcasts by anyone "who solves or purports to solve personal, moral or social problems or questions. . . unless the program format had been approved. . . by the corporation."

BITUMINOUS COAL PILE SHRINKS—The Korean war "peace feelers" have caused many to rejoice, but a great number of bituminous coal miners may lose their jobs should a truce be declared. Some coal-using industries have stopped buying and are digging into their reserves in anticipation of a production cutback. This would cause layoffs in the mines if and when the war ends. Above Newschart shows production in the bituminous coal industry from 1939 to the present. High point was 1947, when over 630 million tons were mined. Experts feel that production may drop below 400 million tons during 1953, the lowest point since 1939.

Big Travel Year Expected Canada Plans For Tourists

Holiday memo for Americans: If you can't get to Britain for the Coronation, come to Canada, where Elizabeth II is also Queen.

This is one of the lures being held out to United States tourists by travel bureaux across the country as Canada prepares for probably its biggest tourist season in history.

Other factors which should boost the industry: Canada's industrial development has become front-page news in the U.S.; there won't be an American presidential campaign this year; the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak has run its course, enabling American hunters to take home their kills.

D. Leo Dolan, Canadian government travel chief, says his department has received its biggest number of inquiries in history—122,000 between Jan. 1 and March 21, a 54-per-cent increase over 1952.

"All indications point to the biggest travel year we've ever had," Mr. Dolan says. The industry was worth $276,000,000 last year, six per cent more than in 1951.

This is the tourist line-up by provinces:

British Columbia—The province took in $63,000,000 in 1952, expects $70,000,000 this year. It looks for 1,600,000 visitors, about 900, of them from the U.S. The largest proportion—34 per cent—like to go fishing. Television spot announcements are being used on seven stations in Pacific co[illegible] attract visitors.

Alberta—The tr[illegible] dicts a 10-per-cent increase this year. The industry to[illegible] 000,000 last year from 1,276,499 tourists, the largest proportion from B.C. The travel bureau issues an up-to-date road work report each week to all routing services and garages along tourist channels which tells tourists where highway work crews will be operating.

Saskatchewan — Tourists spent some $10,000,000 last year, Americans accounting for half the amount and Canadians for the rest. Tourist traffic has increased steadily since the war. The travel bureau's main emphasis is on northern fishing grounds, accessible by Saskatchewan government airways.

Manitoba—About 480,000 Americans and 320,000 Canadians spent $24,500,000 on travel in Manitoba last year. Most tourists fish, hunt, sightsee or visit fairs. Major attractions this year will be the Red River Exhibition at Winnipeg June 6-13, the trout festival at Flin Flon June 28-July 1 and the Western Canada Trade Fair at Brandon June 29-July 3.

Ontario — More than 7,000,000 Americans visited Ontario last year and Travel Minister Louis Cecile predicts the eighth successive record-breaking year. He has urged Ontario residents to take their own holidays outside the peak tourist period between July 15 and Aug. 15. Eighty per cent of the tourists last year listed their chief interests as motor touring and sightseeing.

Quebec—About 4,500,000 persons visited the province last year, 3,081,000 coming by car, and spent $143,000,000. About 75 per cent of the visitors came from the United States, the rest mainly from Ontario. Officials say May, June and September are gaining rapidly on July and August as favorite tourist months. The chief attractions are Quebec City and the Ste. Anne de Beaupre shrine.

New Brunswick — Tourist trade was worth around $15,000,000 last year. Some 500,000 persons visited the province, 45,000 from Quebec and Ontario. Tourists prefer angling hunting (in the fall) and visiting Fundy National Park (90,435 Canadians and 11,940 Americans saw it last year). R. A. Tweedie, director of the New Brunswick travel bureau has suggested an annual "Festival of the Arts" at Fundy Park, to include drama groups, choirs, orchestras and dance bands.

Nova Scotia—A record 400,000 visited the province last year, divided about equally between Americans and Canadians. Nearly 50 per cent more tourists came from Quebec. The industry took in $24,000,000 in 1952. Main attractions are the seashore, Cape Breton's Cabot Trail, and fishing.

Prince Edward Island—the big drawing card is old home week in Charlottetown and its harness racing. Many visitors like the province's rolling farmlands and coast as camera subjects.

Newfoundland—The travel bureau received 1,500 inquiries in one four-day period. Salmon fishing is popular, as well as coastal cruises. The bureau says it expects a "terrific year."

Canadian Looks To Long Run In U.K. Musical

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A rangy Canadian from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., is looking ahead to another long run in one of London's most popular musicals.

It's getting to be a habit with 35-year-old Bill O'Connor, an ex-Canadian navy tenor who moved easily into London's top show business back in 1946.

What the tall, brown-haired former lieutenant credits to luck is belied by the fact he's been away from the exclusive West End here just long enough for one Canadian holiday.

O'Connor currently is appearing as male lead in "Love From Judy" a tuneful version of what he describes as the "perfect Cinderella story," and the British show seems certain of a two-year run. One critic called it "fresh as new-cut water-melon."

SANG IN 'BRIGADOON'

He came to the production from the juvenile lead spot in the smash hit "Brigadoon," which ran here 22 months. Earlier, he held the same casting spot in Noel Langley's British musical, "Cage Me a Peacock," good for 10 months.

His London debut was in "Follow the Girls" in which he took the juvenile lead after a short audition for British showman Jack Hylton, to whom he was introduced by a Canadian friend. Still in the navy, he had just finished working in the film version of Canada's well-remembered navy show, called "Meet the Navy."

O'Connor's career began in 1939 in Toronto radio. It blossomed at Halifax where, as an ordinary seaman, he was instrumental in forming the entertainment unit which became the nucleus of the navy show. O'Connor left for a London posting halfway through the show's Canadian tour and wound up his naval life as a lieutenant in charge of a plush, 500-capacity rest home at Londonderry, Northern Ireland.

Busy as his stage career became O'Connor has found some time for film work with Noel Langley, navy show colleague who is working here and for radio and television. He prefers the stage.

"MONEY EVERYWHERE"

Like a lot of other Canadian show people here, he'd like to get back to Canada professionally.

"I was amazed at the growth I saw on my visit back," says O'Connor. "There seemed to be money everywhere."

What he has in mind is a British-organized company, with a repertoire made up of a straight play, a musical and a comedy or farce, to be presented by as much Canadian talent as available.

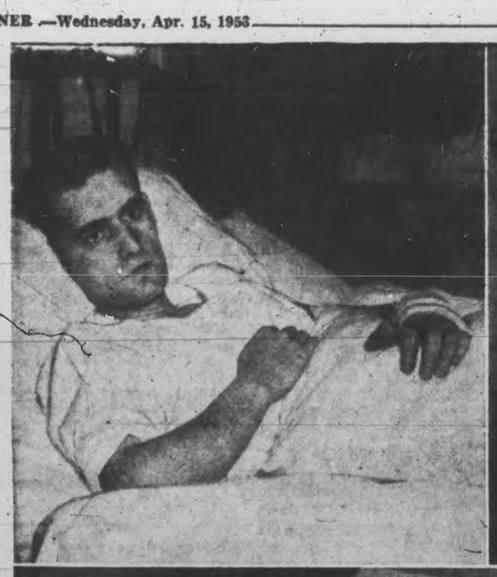
"This side's the only place to learn the game but you have to work so hard for everything you make," he says.

Married to a Toronto girl and father of a 5½-year-old daughter, O'Connor is taking a lot of pleasure these days in the success of an entertainer just named Britain's top vocalist. A former theatre call boy, he's Dick Valentine to whom O'Connor used to give singing lessons instead of tips.

IN LONDON MUSICAL — Bill O'Connor, 35-year-old former Canadian navy tenor from Sault Ste. Marie, has the male lead in "Love From Judy," a London hit musical. O'Connor was in the entertainment unit stationed in Halifax which later became the "Meet the Navy" show during the Second World War. He remained abroad and has played in British films and stage shows.

Woman Often Beaten Testimony In Court

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Edna Le Blanc, 21, expecting a baby in a few days, testified at her manslaughter trial Tuesday that she was often beaten by Alex Sielinski, the man with whom she was living.



Mrs. Le Blanc and Sielinski, 37, are charged with manslaughter and failing to provide the necessities of life in the death of two-year-old Paul David Le Blanc Jan. 19. Sielinski will be tried separately.

The woman said Sielinski wouldn't let her go outside their flat "because he was afraid I would tell the police how badly he was beating my two-year-old boy."

She also said Sielinski "frequently whipped the baby with a strap."

Quite Federation

MANOTICK (CP)—Rideau River Fish, Game and Conservation club Monday night voted unanimously to withdraw from the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. Jack O'Callaghan, secretary-treasurer of the club, said the membership voted to withdraw because the federation increased its affiliation fee to 50 from 10 cents per member.

WILL RECOVER—A 23-year-old carnival worker is given a good chance for life today because modern means of transportation and communications work even faster than the deadly poison in fangs of a water moccasin reptile. Montrealer Armand Couillard touched off the desperate race against time when the water moccasin bit him on the back of the hand. Couillard was working for a sideshow when the three-foot snake bit him. Rushed to hospital, doctors despaired of his life because there was no snake-bite serum available in the city. Wire services in the city sent the news over their lines to all parts of Canada. In Hamilton, a man heard the news and recalled that he had a quantity of Antivenim Nearctic Crelalidae on hand, used during fishing trips in the Parry Sound district where rattlesnakes are sometimes found. In no time, Robert Lang, Hamilton, put the serum aboard a TCA plane, and the precious shipment was at the hospital and Couillard had been given his first injection.

50 Returns To Jobs After Hamilton Strike

HAMILTON (CP)—A group of 50 employees of the Canada works of the Steel Company of Canada who walked off their jobs Monday over a speedup grievance returned to work late Tuesday.

The dispute arose over a speed-up in production for wire drawers. Union officials considered this a violation of the company-union agreement. The workers are members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO).

F. L. Hayden, general manager of the plant, said the work stoppage was in violation of the collective bargaining agreement.

Officials of local 3250 met with company officials and reached tentative agreement on certain phases of the dispute.

Nova Scotia Patient Reported Missing

TORONTO (CP)—A 26-year-old Nova Scotian who came to Toronto for medical treatment has been missing since March 27, police said Tuesday.

Stephen Chase of Port William was last seen when he left his rooming house to take a train for Montreal where he was to meet his wife. He never arrived. Friends and relatives, including his father, arrived here during the week-end to search for him.

Chase is five feet 11 inches tall and of slim build. He has a fair complexion and has a mole on the right side of his face under his lower lip.

The planet Pluto was located by the Lowell observatory, Flagstaff, Arizona, in 1930.

Football Greats Help Make New Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If a picture now being filmed here doesn't please the football crowd, there's no hope. It's being made by former grid greats.

The producer is Aaron Rosenberg, rugged running guard of Southern California in the early '30s. The director is another Trojan, Jesse Hibbs, tackle who also starred with the Chicago Bears.

Type-cast as a coach is hulking Herman Hickman, Tennessee lineman and headman at Yale until he quit for a TV career. Speaking parts are held by Frank Gifford, of New York Giants, Donn Moomaw, UCLA's all-America linebacker of last year, and Elmer Willhoite, Southern Cal star. Tom Harmon, Michigan hero, will play his real-life role as radio-TV announcer.

OTHER PLAYERS

Other players include Trojans Jim Sears, Earl Audet, Ed Demirjian, Al Carmichael (Green Bay Packers), Jim Psaltis (Chicago Cardinals), Jim Hardy (Detroit Lions) and Uclan Lleon McLaughlin (New York Giants).

Put them all together and you have a picture that portrays football as it is played. At least that's what the film-makers hope.

The picture is called "All-American," and it is partly designed to offset the debunking-type films like "Saturday's Hero."

Says producer Rosenberg: "Football gave me a chance to get a college education. I'm not going to knock it."

Director Hibbs agrees. "Most of the directors who make football pictures don't know the first thing about the game," he commented. "They go overboard in the dramatic scenes in the locker rooms and the action on the football field.

GET REALISM

"We have the advantage of having football portrayed by men that have lived the game. If they can't put realism in the picture, nobody can."

Hibbs said that he was straining for realism in the picture. The football stuff, which was filmed at the Rose Bowl and Southern Cal's practice field, will be hard-hitting. The story concerns a football star, played by Tony Curtis, who transfers from a big university to a small college.

The time will be next fall, when the two-platoon system will virtually be dead. Drama is evoked from speculation over whether he can play defence, since he has been merely an offensive player before.

TRYGVE LIE, retiring United Nations Secretary General smilingly leans over to accept a handshake from General Carlos P. Romulo, of the Philippines, after his farewell speech before the General Assembly at UN headquarters in New York. Watching are Hon. Lester B. Pearson, second from right, Canadian Minister of External Affairs and president of the General Assembly, and Andre Cordier, right, an assistant secretary general. Lie, a former Norwegian Labor Party man who held his job through seven turbulent years as the world organization's first administrator, formally handed over his post to Dag Hammarskjold, of Sweden, on the weekend.

Ford, Union Settle 14-Day Strike

DETROIT (AP) — The Ford Motor Company and the CIO United Auto Workers Union early today reached a tentative agreement ending a 14-day strike at the company's Monroe, Mich., arts plant.

The strike over a union charge of "speed up" had made idle up to 40,000 Ford workers.

The agreement will be submitted to the union membership for ratification this afternoon.

The company Tuesday had announced it would reopen 15 plants today which had been closed by a parts shortage due to the strike. Ford said the reopening was possible by the reshuffling of existing parts supplies.

The new agreement is expected to permit an early resumption of full production at ord plants across the country.

NORMAL PRODUCTION

Company officials said normal production at the Monroe plant would start Thursday if the agreement is ratified today.

The Monroe strike was one of two that made idle a total of 80,000 auto workers Tuesday. Chrysler Corp. reported that a "wild cat" strike of 300 truck drivers forced it to shut down almost all of its operations and send home 42,250 employees.

In announcing the reopening of 15 plants Tuesday, Ford spokesmen said its layoff list had shrunk from a high of 40,000 Monday to 29,350 Tuesday.

The Chrysler dispute flared up Monday night when 300 UAW truck drivers who haul parts from plant to plant, walked off their jobs.

Ex-Trenton Man Dies Suddenly

MONTREAL (CP) — Timothy A. Macauley, 70, international industrialist and a pioneer in the development of Alberta's natural gas, died Tuesday after a brief illness.

A native of Trenton, Ont., Mr. Macauley moved to Britain in 1934 and during the Second World War collaborated with Gen. Sir Frederick Pyle on radar air defence of the British Isles.

Mr. Macauley was head of A. C. Cossor company that produced more than 150 radar inventions before and during the war.

Ill health forced him into retirement in 1947, but he returned to Canada in 1950 and immediately resumed his interest in the development of Alberta oil. He was active in the field until a short time ago.

Mr. Macaulay moved to Calgary from Trenton in 1908.

In 1926, he sold his interests in three gas corporations and later merged three steel companies in Montreal, Toronto and Welland into United Steel Corporation Limited.

Present W. Bateman With Master's Jewel

BAILIEBORO — William Bateman of Bailieboro LOL was presented with his past master's jewel at the lodge's monthly meeting. P. Hamilton of Millbrook made the presentation and K. Moncrief, past county master of East Durham pinned on the jewel.

District Master H Cunningham, C. Northey of Millbrook, and James Roddy of Fraserville also spoke.

Prizewinners at the weekly euchre party were: Mrs. A. Nelson, Mrs. H. Syers, Mrs. A. Kidd, G. Fletcher, K. Huggins, and J. Fair. Draw prizes went to Mrs. J. Fair and James Roddy. A Nelson won the Oscar.

To Vote For Pub

DRAYTON (CP)—The Ontario liquor licence board has set June 17 as the date for a vote on a beverage room for this village 25 miles northwest of Guelph. Recently the council received a petition signed by Drayton ratepayers asking for a vote, village clerk F. H. Brandon said Tuesday.

Commander Arrested

HONG KONG (AP)—The pro-Nationalist newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Po says two Russian advisers and a senior Chinese Communist staff officer were killed in an air crash at Watow airfield last week. The airfield commander was arrested for permitting the accident to happen, the paper said.

Suit Over Leaky House

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A television producer says Mickey Rooney sold him a $28,000 home so leaky he had to move out during heavy rains. Producer Richard Lewis and his wife, Mildred, seek $14,000 damages in a suit filed Monday against the actor and his former wife, Martha Vickers.

Steamer Missing

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — A small Chinese Nationalist steamer, the Lien Sheng, was reported missing Tuesday with more than 40 passengers.

WARNS WESTERN POWERS — U.S. Ambassador Ernest Gross (left), seated next to United Kingdom Delegate P. M. Crosthwaite at a UN session in New York, warns the West that it must nurture its "strength and unity" in the face of Russia's "peace" campaign. He also told a committee debating a Polish omnibus "peace proposal" that "we should avoid any steps here that may impede the negotiations" at Panmunjom for a Korean truce.

Masseur Fined

CHICAGO (AP)—A masseur who was accused of pinching a policewoman customer and was pinched by her in return, has been fined $125. William Kritinar, 31, was arrested Feb. 25 by policewoman Rita Meany who testified she went to the parlor for a massage and to investigate charges that Kritinar's massages were excessively amorous.

Duty Of Christians To Give To Mission Work

OMEMEE (ENS)—Rev. I. G. Pollock of Grace United Church, Peterborough and formerly a Congregational minister in South Africa, was guest speaker in Omeme Trinity United Church Sunday evening at the Woman's Missionary Society Easter thankoffering service.

When introduced by the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, Mr. Pollock said he counted it a privilege to speak to a missionary group on the subject of the church in South Africa; he indeed considered it his obligation since coming to Canada last summer.

Since September it was the 40th time he had presented the South African situation. He began by defining South Africa geographically and recalling the labors of its great pioneers of the Christian faith, Moffett and Livingstone. He told how he, when preaching there, had thrilled to the memory of those pioneers.

Livingstone had gone down in African tradition as "the dispeller of the dew", as one who is first in the morning to break a trail by pushing aside the long dew soaked jungle grass.

South Africa now with its three million white population, more than a million coloreds (mixed blood), more than a million from India and eleven million Bantu, (native blacks), presents grave racial and social problems.

There is a vast abyss between the thinking of the mixed population and that of the democratic countries. How are they going to be fitted into the pattern of their country's life. These social and racial barriers, he said, can be broken down only by the power of the risen Christ who is the pioneer of our faith. There are those who say "why not let the African alone with his simple faith?" Such people, said Mr. Pollock, are simple fools. Souls crushed by superstition and fear which leaves them to the mercy of the witch doctors, of which there are still some 7,000 cannot be said to have a simple faith. The motherly instinct is there as with us, but because of ignorance and superstition three out of five babies under one year, die.

It is a glorious thing to see souls liberated from the darkness that binds this ancient people, but it takes four or five generations to completely obliterate all traces of inborn fears. Mr. Pollock stated his belief that there is no place in the church for people who do not believe in giving to missions. He also urged ceaseless prayer for Christian workers in far places, saying we can have no idea what the prayers of the church mean to anyone doing Christian work in Africa.

Cavan Approves New Assessment

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Cavan township council approved at their April meeting of the new assessment of the part of Cavan township in the Durham county district high school area.

Assessment of real property was $1,000,000, of business property, $1,000. On motion of Councillor McKnight and Deputy Reeve Hooton, the new assessment was approved.

Accounts totalling about $3,631 were ordered paid, and major items were $2,713.13 for road pay roll and vouchers, $322 for warble fly powder, $200 for an audit of the township, and $153 for hospitalization.

On motion of Deputy Reeve Hooton and Councillor Bradburn, the council resolved that the township would be responsible for its share of the boundary road which runs parallel with a part of lot 23, Con. 11, which is to be divided into building lots. This property is just south of Scott's Corners.

Company Files Damage Claim Over Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Swift Canadian Co. Ltd. announced Tuesday it has filed a statement of claim for damages of more than $5,000 it says have arisen from union activities in a strike at its Stratford plant.

The statement of claim was filed with the registrar of the Ontario Supreme Court in Kitchener.

It names as defendants William Dancavitch, field representative of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), and certain employees of Swift Canadian Co. Ltd. who are members of the union's local 307 in Stratford.

The chief items in the claim are the loss of 18,000 chicks which were destroyed, deterioration and production loss, and losses suffered in incubating eggs, the company said.

About 60 workers have been on strike at Stratford since March 6 in an effort to enforce demands for wage increases.

Have Itinerary For Visits To Institutions

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's committee on reforms Tuesday worked out an itinerary for its tours of the province's institutions.

Dates announced were:

April 20, meet here. April 21, leave for Ottawa to visit Carlton county jail, visit Burritt's Rapids and Alfred institutions April 22-23. Return to Toronto April 23.

May 11, leave for Burwash to tour Burwash industrial farm May 12 and Sudbury jail May 13, returning to Toronto May 14.

May 19-23 inclusive the committee will visit Toronto Don jail, Mercer and Mimico reformatories.

June 11-13, the committee will inspect Guelph reformatory and Galt and Brampton training schools.

NEED TO VISIT

Col. Hedley Basher, deputy reforms minister in the Ontario government, said earlier in the day it is "unfortunate" that few of the province's magistrates and judges have visited the institutions to which they sentence offenders.

Don Morrow (PC—Carleton) suggested that as the committee tours the province's institutions, the local magistrates and judges be invited to accompany them.

WITH BROAD SMILES, some of the contingent of Gurkhas who will take part in the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth wave from the deck of the troopship Empire Orwell on their arrival at Southampton, England, over the weekend. More than 250 British, Malayan and Gurkha soldiers arrived aboard the vessel, the first overseas troops to land in the United Kingdom for the June ceremony.

Newfoundland Can't Decide On New Victoria Day Date

By STEVE HERDER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundlanders are stewing over Victoria Day, the May holiday.

Unlike other Canadians, they still don't know when they will celebrate Empire Day, which is what it is called here.

Until this year the holiday was celebrated May 24 unless it was a Sunday, as it is this year, in which case they made it the 25th.

This year the legislature tried to change all that with a bill setting the holiday as the Monday immediately preceding the 24th.

Opposition was immediate. A committee was formed in St. John's to "save the 24th" and a newspaper headline bemoaned "the 24th is gone forever."

The legislature changed the bill and said merely that Victoria Day will be a holiday, with the date to be fixed by proclamation.

CANCELLED THAT

May 18 already had been proclaimed, but the bill cancelled that. Now Newfoundlanders are waiting to see what the new date will be.

There's a strong possibility, of course, that it won't be May 18 as in the other nine provinces. It won't be any surprise if it isn't because Newfoundlanders retain a strong individuality in the matter of holidays—there are 18 in 1953, according to the official list.

The province has all the regular ones and a few more, including one in August for the annual regatta on nearby Quidi Vidi lake where a boat race program has been running for more than 100 years.

The holiday list puts this as "the day set apart for the annual regatta." It is always the Wednesday closest to Aug. 4.

ELASTIC SCHEDULE

If the weather is fine, it's a holiday. If its wet and dull the regatta committee calls it off and everyone goes to work for what's left of the day. Then they wait to see what weather the next day will bring.

Under the old tradition which celebrated the 24th and by-passed changes with the idea of gaining a long week-end, some national concerns in the province were put in a unique situation.

The banks, for instance, ignored in a way the federal holiday and fell in line with the provincial observance. They wouldn't do any business that day anyway. Even if they did open on the provincial holiday, one bank at least would close. That would be the Newfoundland (government) Savings Bank.

Federal offices in the city were in a different position. Their employees kept the federal holidays. But Newfoundlanders on their staffs wanted their own holiday instead of the ones they got with Confederation. Accordingly, some of them worked Boxing Day, Dec. 26, and skipped work for the annual regatta. Non-Newfoundlanders would do it the other way around.

Eye-Witness Describes Crash

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The only eye-witness to an Elginfield car-truck crash that claimed four lives last Nov. 12 testified in Supreme Court Tuesday he didn't see the car stop before entering the intersection with a through highway.

Chester McComb of Elginfield was a crown witness in the manslaughter trial of Frank Walter Brawley, 44, of Toronto, alleged driver of the car involved.

Mr. McComb said he was at the entrance to the laneway of his home on No. 4 highway just north of Elginfield intersection when he saw a red pickup truck pass going south.

He saw a car coming from the east towards the intersection of No. 7 Highway.

The car "seemed to be coming fast" said Mr. McComb, who didn't see it stop. The car and truck collided in the intersection and were obscured by a cloud of dust and debris.

Oaxaca Band Second Best In Republic Of Mexico

Although Oaxaca is a small city of 40,000, it has the second best band in the Republic and it is conducted by Prof. Diego Innes who spent 30 years in the United States and who was for two years Director of the Wisconsin symphony orchestra in Milwaukee.

* * * *

The band which is now state supported has had a chequered career for 85 years. Originally formed in 1868 as a band with the Zaragoza battalion, it has been an army, police, city and state band. Its quality has always been high and at one time it was the best in Mexico. Today it is second only to the one in the capital.

* * * *

Oaxaca people love their band. Every Sunday at 12:30 as citizens come out of the Cathedral from mass, the concert starts across the street at the Zocalo. With short intermissions it goes on till 3:30. Sunday evening, they play again from 7:30 to 10. People sit on benches in the plaza or parade around the wide promenade walk. Young people especially enjoy it. Others sit in the sidewalk cafe opposite or, being lazy like I was, enjoy it from the hotel balcony. The musicians also play every Tuesday and Thursday nights.

* * * *

People here proudly tell the story of the time Leopold Stokowski was visiting and heard the band. He was so impressed that he went over to the Zocalo and requested the honor of conducting it.

* * * *

FOUNDED SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The present conductor, Professor Diego Innes was born in a small town Ejutla de Crespo in Oaxaca state. He pursued his musical studies in the United States and in addition to being a conductor he is a fine violinist. In 1949 he went back to Oaxaca and founded the Oaxaca School of Music and Declamation which today is the School of Fine Arts. Shortly after he opened the school they had 960 students.

* * * *

In 1950 he accepted the position as conductor of the state brass band which consists of 60 members. He has maintained its prestige and given impulse to its work. His next ambition is to found an orchestra in the state capital and further music through another school.

* * * *

The story of the Innes family in Oaxaca is an interesting one. Diego Innes' grandfather came from an old family in Seven Oakes, England. His health was not good and he consulted a friend who was ambassador to Mexico about a climate which might benefit him. The envoy persuaded him to try the state of Oaxaca.

* * * *

His great uncles were widely travelled too. One man was head of the University of Madras in India when he died; another, James, was a financier and a friend of the Mexican hero Juarez. During the wars with Maximilian he sold Juarez ammunition. Another great uncle, Robert, lived in Burlington, Ontario, and lastly Claude lived in Oaxaca.

* * * *

NEVER PRACTISED

When his grandfather came to Ejutla, it was a town of 5,000 and he saw the opportunity of developing a business. He sent buyers to Europe and finally opened a large general store with articles from France, Spain and England. His father studied medicine but practised only as a philanthropist. On market days he would go and treat the people for nothing. Then after his grandfather died the family fortunes collapsed and his father built and operated a drug store.

* * * *

There are 60 members in the band and 56 actually play. Although their salaries are small and they are not allowed to hold outside jobs, some of the members have been with it 40 or 45 years. At the moment they operate under two severe handicaps, Innes says. One is their practice room is too small and it is difficult to adjust to playing in bigger places after rehearsal. Secondly they need more instruments. However it is hoped that before too long they will be moving to a larger building.

* * * *

The bandsmen have smart beige uniforms and the last time I heard them perform was at a special affair in honor of the flag at which the governor was present.

* * * *

The Sunday concert which I heard included such numbers as: von Suppe's overture "Hermosa Galatea," "Cavalleria Rusticana", a ballet suite by Luigini; a Brazilian samba and the Double Eagle March.

* * * *

The band concert in the park has been and will remain one of the most popular entertainments with the citizens of Oaxaca.

Tourist Season

The tourist season is already upon us. This week a few American cars have been spotted from several states in the union. Fishing season is not open yet. May 1 is the first day for trout fishing and the other season lags behind that. But whatever the attraction—and there are many—the tourists have started to arrive.

Child Guidance Advocated In Public Schools

Child guidance for public school pupils as well as those in high schools was advocated at a general meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association in the Queen Mary school auditorium Tuesday night.

The proposal was made during a discussion following showing of a film "Shyness" one of a series produced by the Canadian Department of Health and Welfare.

Branch president Dr. T. E. Currier said he hoped guidance would be available to public school pupils and those in nursery schools when the mental health clinic was established under Dr. John Pratten in the near future. Dr. Pratten would be setting up a staff including a psychologist and a psychiatric social worker to work with juvenile court and welfare agencies, Dr. Currier explained.

The president also outlined the aims of the national association and the work that had been done by the local executive since the branch was formed earlier this year. Plans were under way for the observance of Canadian Mental Health Week, May 3-9. A 15-minute radio program would be broadcast on Tuesday, May 5, and it was hoped to have a public meeting in Queen Mary auditorium the same evening with Prof. Isabel Laird of the Department of Psychology of Queen's University as speaker.

AIMED AT PREVENTION

The CMHA is the only national association which aims at preventing mental and emotional illness, helping people to achieve better mental health and improving facilities for those who are mentally and emotionally disabled, Dr. Currier claimed.

In the past, the popular concept of health was an absence of physical disease, the speaker said, but the World Health Organization had included mental and emotional fitness in its definition of the word.

There are 60,000 mentally or emotionally sick people in Canada, more than all the hospital cases of TB and cancer combined, he said, and it has been estimated that 10 per cent of the population is mentally or emotionally upset. Estimates vary between 30 and 60 per cent of people visiting family doctors whose illness is aggravated by mental or emotional disorders.

ONE OF A SERIES

Dr. Currier explained that the film "Shyness" was one of a series dealing with emotional disorders rather than mental illness. It dealt with people who were still able to get along with others but were inhibited from fully enjoying all social activities. They might require to be sent to a general hospital but not to a mental institution.

The film concerned three pupils of a public school class who failed to enter fully into the activities of the other students until they were helped to overcome their aversions by investigation and supervision. Special emphasis was placed on discussions with the parents and extra care in developing the special aptitudes of the students by their teachers.

FROM LIMB TO LIMB — Practically every boy, and a few tom-boys, sometime during his youth plays Tarzan, climbing from one branch to another. The camera caught young Jack Fraser perched in a small tree in Ashburnham today where he was playing with Michael McGillen. Believe Danger From Bush Fire Nearly Finished MINDEN—The bush fire that swept Monday and Tuesday through 500 acres of scrub woods southeast of Minden north of Head Lake, is under control.

It was feared Tuesday that the flames might spread beyond the area when a 40-mile-an-hour wind fanned them. Today the wind dropped and although a ground haze makes visibility poor, there is little fear of a further outbreak.

Fresh smoke sighted in the area shortly before noon was not considered a danger, but a Lands and Forest helicopter crew is checking all smoke signs.

The helicopter and half a dozen men are patrolling the area, which a department official described as "pretty much a blueberry barren." He said no timber was lost, and no private property. A few hunting camps were destroyed.

Cause of the fire is not known, but provincial police and department officials are investigating several theories.

Rocky country with mostly scrub balsam and small second growth poplar was burned over by the flames. Several beaver meadows—swampy ground created by water backing up from beaver dams—were also hit by the fire.

Donald Fawcett, forest protection supervisor for the Trent district, reported today that several other small fires in the Minden area were out.

He added that the fire hazard was listed as medium, and urged that people planning to clear land by burning first get a permit and then take special care as the spring fire hazard is reaching its peak.

Within two or three weeks the north country will be into the green stage and the fire hazard will grow less and less.

Abandon Plan For Boy's Camp

Development of a summer camp on Kasshabog Lake was abandoned by the Peterborough Boys' Work Board at its meeting Tuesday night.

Guided by C. T. Sharpe of the Ontario Camping Association, the board considered that the proposed camp site would not be adequate to meet the future needs for Peterborough camping groups.

Mr. Sharpe who visited the camp site on Monday, gave an outline of the advantages and disadvantages of the proposed site. The greatest hazard, he said, was the elevation from the lake to the main camp site. Although the site is accessible, has a variety of terrain and is not a heavily populated cottage area, Mr. Sharpe said, "the lack of a beach, limited acreage for a large number of campers," and "the elevation hazard" does not make it an ideal camping site.

Stu Laing, camp chairman, reviewed the eight months of work in the selection of a possible site. The camp, he said, is 3.3 acres, has a frontage of 1,169 feet and a depth of 200 feet. It is accessible by a road running north from Havelock.

The Camp Committee was authorized to advertise for a suitable camp site property within 100 miles of Peterborough.

Committee reports were given by Roy Heard, chairman hockey banquet; A. Townsend, finance campaign; A. D. Vaisey, leadership training course.

M. Wilson was appointed chairman of the Board's softball league with Merv. Williamson and Ed. Smith as members.

Mr. Laing announced the camping date for the board at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac were July 27 to August 4. Rev. Walter Tonge, Lakefield, will be camp director. The camp is located on Moira Lake.

Board Reports; Workers At Quaker To Vote On Strike

A conciliation board under the chairmanship of Judge J. C. Reynolds of Kingston have handed down a report on the contract dispute between union and management at the Quaker Oats Co. At an executive and stewards' meeting Tuesday night Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), decided to call for a strike vote among the membership of 400 at a special meeting on Sunday.

In the majority report, signed by Judge Reynolds and E. Macaulay Dillon, QC, company nominee on the three-man board, are the following recommendations.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Wages and Retroactive Pay:

(a) An increase of 7½ per cent. retroactive to Jan. 1, 1953, but payable only to employees working at the time the contract is signed;

(b) A further increase of 2½ per cent. effective Sept. 1, 1953;

(c) A further increase of 2½ per cent. effective Jan. 1, 1954.

(This would bring the base rate to $1.33½ an hour. The union claim this is not sufficient as the $1.33½ will not be effective until next January; yet two UPWA-organized mills in Port Colborne already have an established base rate of $1.39.)

Swing Shifts:

"We are of the opinion that when the hours are reduced as recommended hereunder the company must be at liberty to institute such swing shifts as will enable it to conduct its operations efficiently. We see no reason why the union should not agree to the provision for swing shifts presently in effect in the Maple Leaf Milling Company contract for its West Toronto plant . . ."

(This means a staggered work week if the company is to operate for six days and the employees work five days.)

Hours of Work:

Work week to be reduced from 44 to 40 hours as soon as possible after the agreement is signed, but in any case, by August 1, 1953.

"The Board is satisfied that in the wage negotiations in 1952 the company increased rates to compensate for a reduction of two hours from 44 to 42 per week, which never went into effect. Consequently the above wage increase includes all compensation for the reduction to a 40-hour week."

End of the contract, as suggested by the board: May 1, 1954.

ORIGINAL BRIEF

In their original brief Local 293, UPWA, asked for a reduction of the work week from 44 to 40 hours with no loss in take-home pay; a five-day week with no swing shift and a general wage increase of 15 cents an hour.

Also proposed were improved seniority provisions, better night-shift premium, and Blue Cross and Physician Service Incorp. plans paid for completely by the company.

After an executive and stewards' meeting Tuesday night William Triggs, president of Local 293, said there would be a regular membership meeting Thursday, followed by a special meeting Sunday to take a strike vote.

Murray Cotterill, union nominee on the conciliation board, filed a minority report.

AGRICULTURE MINISTER James G. Gardiner will be guest speaker May 11 at a banquet the local Liberal Association is holding in the Empress Hotel. Mr. Gardiner will be presenting his department's estimates about that date in the House of Commons, and it is felt the minister of agriculture may have good news for district farmers.

DOUSE THREE FIRES

Handpumps sufficed to put out three small fires Tuesday evening. First, at 5:15, was rubbish and old lumber burning on the Chemong road north of Bellevue Ave. Second was a porch at 14 Albertus Ave. believed set on fire by children playing with matches. Third was a chimney fire at 482 Elm St.

RUNS INTO DITCH

A car driven by Carl Wilson, 40, of RR 1, Lakefield, received minor damage Tuesday night when it ran into the east ditch on the Buckhorn Road, a quarter of a mile north of the junction with Highway 28. Wilson told OPP Constable Tom Armitage that he was driving north on the Buckhorn Road and was temporarily blinded by the lights of an oncoming car. His wheel caught in the soft shoulder and the vehicle went out of control into the east ditch. Wilson was only shaken up.

City Staff Asks For Increase

Claim Wages Lag Other Employees Committee To Meet

The salary question still pursues the city council. And, if there have been any little stratagems of evasion, they have so far led into dead-end channels.

Silence has returned to the front of the Fire Fighters' Union, with more or less satisfaction on both sides. but the City Hall clerical staff made their bid for consideration at the meeting of the finance committee Monday night. They say that their pay has not kept pace with that of the police and firemen, and the outdoor staff of the board of works.

A motion by Aldermen A. B. Burrows and Norman Graham appointed Mayor Hugh Waddell, Aldermen Douglas Miller and P. J. Anglesey with the heads of the affected departments to take up several remaining and secondary details of the salary package for 1953.

Several members of the council, and none of those mentioned herewith, have commented recently that the disposal of salary questions has become the bane of their service. They say they don't mind finding time for meetings and dealing with the general run of business questions, but when they get down to wage details it is more or less unpleasant, just a matter of unattractive duty and raising the silent question: "How did I get into this?"

Just as members of the committee of the whole, they say, they encounter pressures on the one hand in behalf of the applicants, while on the other, taxpayers are unheard from until they discover the wage boosts that have been granted.

New Film Plan Offered To Local Groups

The National Film Board's newest community project—the Urban Program—was introduced in Peterborough Tuesday night.

The introduction took place at the regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Film Council.

The continued success of the Rural Program — a complete package of film entertainment available to circuits in rural areas has motivated the National Film Board to come up with this latest project.

Ron Ward, district NFB representative explained Tuesday evening that although this project is in the experimental stage it has proved itself in both Vancouver and Toronto.

OFFER WIDE CHOICE

The main idea behind the program is to offer eight 40 to 50 film programs to organizations in a community during the year. To participate, an organization must agree to use at least five of the programs and pay the film council membership fee of $2.50 and $10 for the programs.

Tuesday night's package was made up of the expected winner of the 1953 Canadian Film Award—The Land of the Long Day, a film on Eskimos. A short film on Puppetry was also included in the program.

This package will remain in Peterborough until April 28 and will be available to organizations for showings until that date.

"Our aim is to have this package in use every night while it is in Peterborough," Mr. Ward said.

The film was introduced by Arthur Pitchford, council director, who also led the discussion following the showing.

Mr. Pitchford referred to the feature film as, "the cream of the film crop for Canada this year." He also explained that Douglis Wilkinson, producer of the film, spent about 15 months in the Arctic getting material for the film.

The film, Canada's Atom Goes To Work, was screened for purchase at the meeting.

Mr. Ward reported that 161 showings had been presented in Peterborough city and district during the past month with a total attendance of 14,498.

Scholarship Winner

CANBERRA (AP) — The Australian National University announced today a postgraduate research scholarship has been awarded Donald William Smellie, presently at the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, B. C., and formerly of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., who will study nuclear physics at Canberra.

INDICTED—Joseph P. Ryan, president of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, appears for his arrest following a 30-count grand jury indictment that charged him with the larceny of $11,390 of union funds. Ryan has been under investigation since the New York Crime Commission began its probe of New York water-front crime.

Officers Installed At B'nai B'rith

Approximately 100 people attended the annual installation of officers for the Peterborough B'nai B'rith lodge over the weekend at the community hall.

Dr. Alexander Lipson of Toronto installed the following officers: Irving Cipin, president; Harry Schwartz, Aaron Black, vice-presidents; Phil Macks, secretary; Dr. Ralph Green, treasurer; Philip Hollend, warden; Al Moldaver, Frank Petersiel, Abe Semel, Harold Grafstein, Jules Lovitz and Ben Abramsky, trustees.

Irving Moldaver introduced Dr. Lipson and also acted as assistant installing officer.

Guest speaker, A. Arthur Glixon, past president of the B'nai B'rith Metropolitan Council of New York, referred to the anti-defamation work of the B'nai B'rith throughout America and how B'nai B'rith was fighting anti-semitism, trying to create more goodwill among all peoples of all colors, races and creeds.

Mr. Glixon told of the work in combatting groups who were attempting to discriminate against minorities and made special reference to the negroes in the United States. He explained how they were being accepted in places of importance and in sports, particularly due to the work of the B'nai B'rith.

Mr. Glixon was thanked by Mort Columbia.

Out-going president, Joseph Rogow, reviewed the past year's work and made special reference to the Turner park playground, sponsored by the B'nai B'rith, and to the man-of-the year dinner, which honored Robertson Davies.

Residents Say Workers Ignore Parking Lot

Twenty-two automobiles owned by employees of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co were parked this morning on Romain St., east of Monaghan Road, passing up vacant space for some 50 cars provided by the company.

That circumstance was cited by Garfield Bryant to the special traffic committee of the council today in a request for the civic control promised by the council nine months ago on the virtual recommendation of the Ontario Municipal Board.

Hearing of this Romaine St. grievance was transferred to the traffic committee by the finance committee Monday night when Mr. Bryant was accompanied by F. J. Blaby and J. Harrison as a deputation of resdients.

They are asking for one or two-hour parking limits on one side of the street or the other, or none at all. One of the contentions from that street is to the effect that Outboard Marine has provided sufficient parking space for their employees, as indicated by the vacancy available for at least 50 cars this morning.

COUNCIL RESPONSIBLE

When the company has done its part in consideration of the Romaine St. people and the traffic on that street, which is a bus route, the responsibility for setting up control, as desired, rests with the council, Mr. Bryant said.

It was recalled to the finance committee that the council of last year had promised to keep both sides of Romaine free of cars, as to all-day use by factory employees. Since then, nothing has been done by the city to implement the assurance which they gave the Romaine St. deputation of nine months ago.

Mr. Bryant said there was no excuse for employee habit of leaving cars along the curb line instead of taking the place provided for them on the parking space supplied by Outboard Marine. The deputation is suggesting that there is no problem confronting the city council. The company had taken care of that, but they could not be expected to try to control the indiscriminate parking on Romaine St. because they had no control of that matter. It was entirely up to the city council, as already promised.

Taxi Driver Fined $50 For Obstructing

FORT FRANCES (CP) — A Fort Frances taxi driver was fined $50 Tuesday with the alternative of 10 days in jail on a charge of obstructing police in their search for a suspect in a chain of fires April 4 and 5.

He is Walter Dokuchie, 26, who had been held in jail for a week awaiting trial.

Dokuchie was alleged to have withheld information regarding whereabouts of Aurel Ringuette who was arrested at nearby Emo. Ringuette has been charged with vagrancy in connection with the fires, including a $150,000 blaze in the Emperor Hotel, Fort Frances. Police say they suspect this and four other fires were deliberately set.

Obituary

PETER BOUND

The funeral service for one of Myersburg's oldest citizens, Peter Bound in his 87th year, husband of the late Millie Ostram who died Monday at his home, following a short illness, was held today in the Allen funeral home, Warkworth. The Rev. G. W. Kemp, minister of the Free Methodist Church officiated at the service.

Mr. Bound was born and raised in Cramahe township, son of the late Robert Bound and the former Mary Ann Dingman. Mr. Bound has resided in Seymour township for the past 55 years and previous to that in Cramahe township, near Morganston. He had farmed for a greater part of his life and he was an adherent to the Baptist church.

He is survived by his son, George Bound of Warkworth, and one sister, Mrs. William McDonald of Campbellford. The pallbearers were: W. J. Ross, R. G. Roy, Hans Weber, James Goacher, Garnet Hay, and Allie Par. Burial was in the Christian Church cemetery, Morganston.

Discovery Of "X" Chemical May Be Key To Leukemia

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Discovery of an "X" chemical which may be a key to leukemia, dread cancer of the blood, was reported today.

The "X" was described by Drs. Thomas F. Dougherty and Jules A. Frank of the University of Utah medical school to science writers on a tour sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

It causes production of millions of white blood cells within minutes. The white cells fight off invading germs, among other jobs.

It helps make up for a terrific loss of white cells caused by almost any kind of stress or shock. The stress can be cold, heat, fear, emotional upsets, allergies, infection. The stress makes your adrenal glands turn out more cortisone, a hormone that destroys white cells.

The hormone and "X" work together, like thermostatic controls, to keep the number of white cells more or less in balance. Actually, your white blood cells do a roller-coaster rise and fall all through the day, with big dips when stress produces a jolt of cortisone.

Substance "X" brings a quick rise in white cells or lympocyte, especially one kind. This kind is called the stress white cell. It is resistant to destruction by cortisone. Normal white cells are easily destroyed by cortisone.

There is a possibility that the stress cells stimulated by the "X" stuff might somehow change to become leukemic white cells, which also resist cortisone destruction. Leukemia means too many white cells, and over-growth of blood-forming organs.

In animals, Drs. Dougherty and Frank produced a leukemic-like condition in mice by subjecting them to repeated stress.

Something going haywire in humans because of repeated stress might lead to leukemia. Learning why leukemia occurs could lead to better controls of it.

It is not yet known what the "X" stuff is, or where it is made.

The studies promise a gauge of how well a patient with tuberculosis, rheumatoid arthritis, allergies, jaundice or other diseases is responding to drugs, or how sick he is. For by checking on the stress cells, and hormones in the blood, it can be learned which ones are overcoming the stress of sickness.

Assessors To Meet Here

Reg Hunter of the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs will be one of the speakers at a meeting here of assessors and other officials in the district comprising the counties of Hastings, Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton Friday, April 24.

Chairman of this No. 5 District in the provincial assessment organization is Stuart Sparling, Peterborough county assessor, and the secretary is J. E. Davis, the city's assessment commissioner.

Mr. Davis has sent out notices to 91 municipal officers, assessors, clerks and deputies to townships, villages and towns. Sessions being at 10 a.m. and continue through the afternoon.

Mr. Hunter will discuss the application of the Department of Municipal Affairs new manual for assessors with the object of trying to bring about uniformity of assessing practice. He was born in North Monaghan and was at one time secretary of the Peterborough Federation of Agriculture.

Opens Wrong Valve Youth Sinks Whaler

TOKYO (Reuters) — A 16-year-old apprentice seaman sank a 9,330-ton whaling ship by accidentally opening the bilge valve and flooding her, the Japanese press reported today.

Newspaper interviews with the captain and senior crew members of the Settsu Maru blamed the boy's mistake for the loss of the whaler, sunk in the Antarctic last month. Pumping by all hands failed to save the heavily-laden ship.

The loss was estimated at about $2,800,000. All crew members were saved by other vessels in the Japanese whaling fleet.

TAXI BILL

Call-A-Cab bill for taxi service required by the welfare and plumbing inspection departments was $55.25 for nine days. It was passed on to a special committee. "I'm wondering whether this is getting away from us," Ald Dewart remarked.

Sister Mary Immaculate of the convent of the Precious Blood made a "very special appeal" in a request conveyed by Mayor Waddell to the committee. Their request was for substitution of the name Maryland Avenue for Second Avenue. The new convent on Second Avenue will be finished about June 1.

Approval was recommended in a motion by Aldermen Black and Farquharson. City Solicitor Huycke suggested this proposed nominal change be held up until others have also been listed. They could all be included then in the one notice that is required to be published.

Douglas McPherson's letter asking permission to keep the McColl-Frontenac fuel oil tanks as they are, above ground, was recommended to the council in a motion by Aldermen Graham and Beggs. This oil depot is near the CNR in Ashburnham, south of Dufferin St.

New restaurant permits were approved by the finance committee of the council Monday. One was to Andy Haggis at 223 Hunter St. and the other to F. Thomspon at the corner of Romaine and Park Streets.

Twenty-six Globe and Mail news stands passed the scrutiny of the committee. Locations of thirty were submitted for consideration. Ald. Norman Graham opposed some of the factory and corner spots because, he said, small boys who have been selling the paper at early hours were going to be deprived of the small earnings that meant a great deal to them.

Drunk Found Guilty

Convicted on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place, Vernon Taylor of Curve Lake was fined $10 and $2.50 costs or 10 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to the offence. The charge was laid April 4 when Taylor was found intoxicated on Aylmer St.

Foresters Seeking Professional Status

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Ontario foresters are renewing efforts to have their calling recognized as a profession.

They seek establishment of a board of examiners and compulsory registration of professional foresters, Prof. R. C. Hosie of the of forestry said Tuesday night at a meeting of the Northwestern Ontario section of the Canadian Institute of Forestry.

He said a similar attempt in 1945 ended in failure because of lack of understanding and because of uncertainty in the minds of the foresters htemselves.

Skating Outfit For Crown Prince

TORONTO (CP) — Crown Prince Akihito of Japan will be presented with a special Canadian skating outfit by the Japanese-Canadian citizens of Toronto during his visit Friday.

Four representatives of the Japanese-Canadian citizens will greet the prince at Union station. After having breakfast with him in his railway car they will present the skating outfit to him at a downtown hotel.

The prince is a skating enthusiast. The skating outfit, decorated with maple leaves, will include a jacket and sweater as well as skates.

Lieutenant-Governor Breithaupt will receive the prince at a Queen's Park reception.

The prince also will visit Hamilton Friday.

Clear Officials Of Accepting Any Kickbacks

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan legislature has adopted a report which declares unfounded charges that two high government officials accepted kickbacks in return for business favors.

The legislature Tuesday night adopted a crown corporations committee report declaring the charges, against Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines and M. F. Allore, general manager of the government insurance office, "unwarranted and unfounded."

The legislature also turned down a Liberal opposition amendment which declared Mr. Allore did accept "secret commissions" and that the charges against Mr. Fines "had not been disproved."

Members voted 38-10, along party lines, in both divisions.

The charges were contained in an affidavit by Joseph Rawluk, former managing-director of Financial Agencies Ltd., that his firm paid commissions to Mr. Fines and Mr. Allore in return for business directed to the firm. Mr. Fines and Mr. Allore denied the charges under oath in the four-week investigation which followed.

Premier T. C. Douglas said that "no sensible person" would believe that Mr. Fines, who handled millions of dollars, would accept bribes ranging from $100 to $200 as Mr. Rawluck charged. If Mr. Fine wanted kickbacks, there were other means by which he could secure them, the liquor board for example.

"This is one of the few provinces in Canada where the liquor interests don't have to pay kickbacks to the parties in power," Mr. Douglas said.

Walter Tucker, Liberal Opposition leader, asked him how he knew that.

"I've been told. . .by the liquor interests," Mr. Douglas said.

EXCLUSIVE PETS — Eight-year old Theresa Purnauckas, of Cleveland, O., is probably the only little girl in the world who has a couple of Kodiak bear cubs as pets. The cubs, born Feb. 6 in the Cleveland zoo, were taken immediately from their parents by Theresa's father, who works for the zoo. They're as cute as teddy bears now, but in seven years they will weigh . . . how much? (See page 20).

Buys House With Prize

TORONTO (CP)—Just back from Moscow, James Endicott, chairman of the leftist Canadian Peace Congress, said Tuesday he used his $25,000 Stalin Peace Prize to buy a headquarters for Toronto's "peace" workers, a three-storey house in midtown Toronto He leaves in May to attend a peace council meeting in Budapest.

Metropolitan Toronto Comes Into Existence

TORONTO (CP) — The municipality of Metropolitan Toronto officially came into existence today with the inaugural meeting of the Metropolitan council.

Frederick G. Gardiner, Toronto's super-mayor, took office as top executive of the newly-created metropolis of 1,118,000 persons.

His credentials and those of his 24-member elected council were received by acting clerk Wilbert Gardhouse.

Steelworkers Sign Contract With Sarnia Firm

TORONTO (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) announced today its first settlement in 1953 contract negotiations with the Canadian bridge industry.

It said an agreement reached with Sarnia Bridge Co. Ltd. on behalf of 150 employees establishes a hiring rate of $1.43, which it said is one-half cent less than the class 1 job rate now in effect in the basic steel industry.

Increases under the new agreement range from nine to 12 cents an hour.

The agreement also establishes a 40-hour week instead of the previous 42½ hours. It provides for full pay for any employee on the day an injury takes place. Another provision is for job posting, so that employees will have a chance to bid on an opening in the plant before the vacancy is advertised.

Overtime pay will be time and a half for Saturdays and double pay for Sundays; at present, it is time and a half for both.

The agreement was negotiated by a committee of the union's local 4525 in Sarnia and staff representative H. Rayner.

Mother Sues Son Over Fund

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The divorced wife of a Chicago theatrical promoter sued her son Tuesday to compel him to share a $1,750,000 trust fund with her.

Mrs. Marie Lundberg Lubin said in her court complaint that she and her son, Edward R. Lubin, 25, a writer, agreed in 1949 that he would pay her one-third of the income and principal of the fund as it came into his hands. She added he repudiated the agreement last Feb. 20.

Mrs. Lubin said the trust was set up in her name to provide security for her son after his father, the late Herbert Lubin, returned him to the United States from Europe. She said the agreement between her and her son was made because his father was trying to break the trust at the time, and needed her signature to do so.

She asked $100,000 damages.

NEW DISCOVERY FOR RELIEF of PAIN

HEAT THAT PENETRATES

Amazing New InfraRUB Cream Penetrates Skin in Seconds—Gives Fastest, Surest Relief Known!

Here is welcome news for sufferers from aches and pains of sore muscles, rheumatism, neuralgia, arthritis, common chest colds!

InfraRUB — the amazing new analgesic cream—actually penetrates your skin in 12 seconds—relieves muscular soreness, nagging aches and pains, with a speed and effectiveness never before possible.

Here is the InfraRUB secret. Scientists have known for years that a substance manufactured by the body is outstanding in the relief of pain. It acts quickly to open up or "dilate" tiny blood vessels in afflicted areas—provides deep warmth and relieves pain.

But no effective way has been found—until now—to introduce this substance—now manufactured in the laboratory—to the seat of trouble.

InfraRUB—and only InfraRUB—accomplishes this by combining the pain-relieving substance with remarkably penetrating Methyl Nicotinate. Methyl Nicotinate penetrates the skin in seconds—carries the pain-relieving substance deep down into areas afflicted by muscular strain, arthritis, neuralgia, rheumatism. You can feel its penetrating heat as it goes to work relieving pain more quickly, more surely than anything before possible!

Remember — only InfraRUB contains this unique combination of a pain-relieving substance and penetrant—so only InfraRUB can give you pain-relieving "heat that penetrates" for the fastest, surest relief possible.

Make this dramatic test yourself!

1 Rub it in—see it penetrate!

Rub InfraRUB on back of hand. It vanishes in 12 seconds! In 27 seconds you'll feel the deep, pain-relieving warmth on your skin. In 2 minutes, skin takes on gentle ruddy glow—proof that InfraRUB's penetrating action is hard at work relieving pain in muscle tissues.

2 Greaseless—can't stain clothes!

InfraRUB is greaseless—can't stain clothes! InfraRUB is a vanishing cream — vanishes completely in 12 seconds! You'll like InfraRUB's delicately-scented fragrance, too!

3 Feel deep down relief—never before possible!

You can feel InfraRUB's penetrating action in 27 seconds after application! InfraRUB gets to work fast right in sore muscle tissues—gives quick, sure relief right at the source of trouble!

Four Ottawa University Club women who are all officers in the Elizabeth Fry Society of Ottawa were in Peterborough Tuesday as guests of the University Women's Club here, and for more than an hour in the afternoon were guests of civic law administration officials on a tour of the county jail.

The Elizabeth Fry Society is an organization working for the penal reform of women prisoners. Just four have been formed as yet in Canada, one in B.C. and three in Ontario—at Ottawa, Kingston and Toronto.

Such a society in Peterborough would have comparatively little to do it was found because the average number of women prisoners here is 20 per year, while in Ottawa it is 8 or 9 per day. However, the Ottawa women suggest that women of this city might also work in interest of the men prisoners, since the city lacks a John Howard Society also. (On the tour they noted that the men need books and magazines.)

The visitors conducted a panel discussion on penal reform work at the University Women's Club meeting Tuesday evening. Representatives of the Law Association, the Provincial Police and the Rehabilitation Committee accepted the club's invitation to such organizations to attend.

The women set forth the condition of penal reform which they hope to see in Canada, but remarked that it will probably take another 25 years of work before the state they look for is reached. In Ottawa the Elizabeth Fry Society has already done a great deal for convicted women, and has even brought about reform in long-time habitual offenders.

EMPHASIS ON REFORM

Emphasis on reform of the criminal, rather than punishment of the crime, is placed by the society. Eighty per cent. of cases have shown that punishment is not a deterrent, and it was pointed out that this is a poor return to the Canadian taxpayer for the money spent on the penal program.

The society strongly recommends a trained staff in all penal institutions, and the members were pleased to find that all but two employees of Peterborough County jail have taken a prescribed course.

They were pleased in other ways with conditions at the local gaol, and had only one recommendation to make—that a brighter and more pleasingly decorated room be provided for the doctors' use when interviewing or attending prisoners. They said that excellent medical service is provided here.

Chairman Miss Margaret E. MacLellan and the panel members have been in and out of a good many of the 44 jails in Ontario, and they say all are "not too good." She commented: "It is doubtful if any other buildings have been so successful in avoiding improvements," but opined that it is "possibly due to lack of public interest."

Jails were modelled after monasteries where monks secluded themselves for prayer and meditation, taking only very plain food and refusing comforts. It was thought then that criminals put in such surroundings would also become good men.

IMPROVEMENTS

Miss MacLellan quoted Mr. Alex. Edmison as saying that "Unbelievable strides have been made since 1947"—when a new penal program began, based on recommendations and findings of a royal commission contained in the Archambault report of 1938. Mr. Edmison spoke at the first convention of the Elizabeth Fry Society in Canada, held last November in Kingston.

The Canadian federal penitentiary (Kingston) now has the best rehabilitation system in the world, it was stated. The society claims that rehabilitation of criminals in Ottawa has reached a point where employers have said they actually prefer to employ a reformed ex-convict. "If he decides to reform, it doesn't matter how bad his past has been," said Mrs. W. H. Gilleland, the president.

Miss Marguerite E. Ritchie is an Ottawa lawyer who gives free legal advice to women prisoners in the name of the Elizabeth Fry Society. She cited the case of a business woman who had stolen about $1,000 from her employer and her method of reform has been to write an iron-clad contract by which the money will be repaid over an 18-month period. This method has had desired beneficial effect on both the girl and the employer, who at first refused the money, wanting only revenge. By another case history she showed that care of the convict's family is also very important in reform.

SUPPLIES FUNDS

Mrs. N. Sanders, the other member of the panel, is treasurer of the society and supplies funds to President Mrs. Gilleland for furnishings and handicrafts she is introducing in Ottawa jail, also seeing that women have a place to live until a pay cheque comes in after the have been in jail. Sometimes a money loan is arranged so that they may also straighten out debts. Mrs. Gilleland takes a housewifely interest in the jail and has furnished "the room" for the women prisoners and provided relief from the curse of idleness with record player and records, sewing, knitting and leathercraft.

The panel discussion was introduced by Mrs. E. J. Thompson and the members were thanked by Mrs. J. L. McKeever.

President of Peterborough University Women's Club Miss Katherine Macdougall presided for a business session previous to the program.

Miss MacLellan who was chairman of the panel is the president of the Ottawa University Women's Club.

Congratulate GA Leader

The Afternoon Branch WA of St. John's Anglican Church met Tuesday in the parish hall. Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, after leading the devotions, congratulated Mrs. W. C. Boate on her leadership of the Girls' Auxiliary for the past two years and their achievement in winning the Challenge Cup of Merit in Toronto Diocese. President Mrs. F. E. Hooper added her thanks on behalf of the WA which sponsors the GA. Study for this year on the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada was concluded by Mrs. J. Cridland. It was decided to change the date of the annual spring tea to Wednesday, May 13th, as the first date would conflict with the WA annual meeting in Toronto the first week of May to which Mrs. Hooper and Mrs. H. Craig are to be delegates. Mrs. R. Crocker, Dorcas convener, had on display a fine bale which is being sent to the Indian residential school at Prince Albert, Sask. Prayer for the prayer partner, members' prayer and benediction closed the meeting. Tea hostesses were Miss M. English and Mrs. T. H. Floyd.

AFRICA MISSIONARY and educatior Miss Verna L. Tite will be speaking Monday evening at the Free Methodist Church, 296 Aylmer St. On furlough from Portuguese East Africa, Miss Tite has been serving as principal of the Girls' Boarding School and Government Day School at Inhamachafo. She represents the General Missionary Board of the Free Methodist Church of North America. Miss Tite brings with her colored slides of mission work in Portuguese East Africa. The service will begin at eight o'clock.

Church Vestments And Linens Shown At Tea

The annual spring tea of the Catholic Church Extension Society was held in the Social Centre on Brock Street Sunday afternoon. Guests were received by the president, Mrs. T. J. Lane and Miss Loretto Murray, social convener.

Honored guests for the occasion were Mrs. Garfield Hughes, National President of the Catholic Church Extension Society, and Mrs. J. A. Thompson from Toronto.

Vestments and lines completed during the year were displayed by Miss Theresa McNamara and Mrs. O'Leary.

The main table was covered with a beautiful hand crocheted white lace cloth decorated with a silver basket of spring flowers and coral candles in silver holders.

Tea was poured from silver tea services by the following ladies, for one hour each, Mrs. W. S. Blackburn and Miss Norah Shaughnessy; Mrs. Leo McCabe and Mrs. M. E. Readman; Mrs. C. F. Cahill and Mrs. J. L. Paquette. Mrs. Harold Crowley, Mrs. J. Torpey, Mrs. J. M. O'Neill and Mrs. D. F. McCarthy assisted in serving. The arrangement of plates was in charge of Mrs. H. C. Ephgrave.

A cake, suitably decorated, was donated by Mrs. Lane. Mrs. Carroll offered lucky draws and the cake was won by Mrs. W. H. Toal.

Donations were received at the door by Mrs. L. Lucas.

Eliz. Parker Aux. Enjoys Travel Lecture

The new High School for girls in St. Augustine, Trinidad, was the highlight of an illustrated lecture by Miss Jean Hammond to the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity Church on Monday evening.

Pictures were shown of Miss Connie Wagar from Peterborough who is a teacher in the present girl's school, which is a large but old house. The new school will accomodate 275 girls and is very modern in construction. Miss Wagar will be principal of the new school when it opens.

Miss Hammond arrived in Trinidad before Christmas and described the unique experience of spending Christmas in hot summer weather. There were parties, concerts and gift giving much the same as in Canada she said. She told of the girls at St. Augustine school holding their concert one hot afternoon before closing for the holiday season. She said they presented a pageant of the nativity scene in full rich costumes, in red smock, tall red hat and green cloth slacks.

She explained that St. Augustine is about 8 miles from Port of Spain, which is the largest city in Trinidad, and is both modern and ancient in construction. It has narrow streets that allow for motor traffic only one way, she said, and in the residential streets the houses are surrounded by walls or hedges and the gates are locked at night. Most houses have an outdoor stairway to the upper story. Palm trees are numerous as well as flowering shrubs, and poinsettas grow in clumps out of doors. The Y.W.C.A. is located in an old residential home, and Miss Wagar voluntarily teaches leather-craft there each week.

While in Trinidad Miss Hammond attended a church wedding. She said it is the custom there for the bride to be somewhat late at her wedding and the guests were kept waiting, half an hour or more after the scheduled time. Miss Hammond described Pitch Lake as an area of about 100 acres which looks more like swamp or bog. She stated that 400 tons of pitch could be removed and in four days it would be replaced. It is put in buckets and conveyed to the coastline where it is loaded on steamers for export. Nearby are oil wells in operation she said.

She showed pictures of the shoreline of Trinidad as mountainous and of the flat interior which is cultivated for sugarcane, while citrus fruit and pineapple farms flourish in the valleys. She showed also pictures of coffee and coconut trees and of cocoa beans.

Miss Catherine Hodgens tendered a hearty vote of thanks to Miss Hammond for her inspiring travel lecture.

A pleasing duet arrangement of Handel's "O Lovely Peace" was sung by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell and Miss Mary Medd. Mrs. F. Horton presided for the short business session.

Delicious lunch was served by Mrs. H. Frost, and Mrs. W. A. Davidson and their group.

HAVELOCK PUBLIC SCHOOL

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Mrs. James Wilde, on behalf of the Home and School Association Monday evening presented J. Calnan, chairman of the public school board with a floor lamp for use in the home economics room.

Four films were shown by Principal H. R. Hunter, "Wonder Out of Wood," "Winged Horizons," "Transfer Magic," and "Big Game in Kenai."

A vote of thanks was extended to the teachers by Mrs. J. Corneil. Miss Clark's room won the attendance shield and prize of one dollar.

Mrs. W. J. Nobes gave the health topic "What You Should Know About Your Eyes." The treasurer reported $97.85 on hand. Tea money amounted to $3.66.

The installation of the officers will be held at the May meeting and a report given of the convention in Toronto.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

✧ ✧ ✧

MILLBROOK

The Home and School Association held its annual "Family Fun" night in the school Monday evening with a large attendance. Conveners were Alex. Gilbert, president, Percy Hamilton, public school principal and Ed. Nattress.

Mrs. Herbert Brenner and Mrs. Clifford Northey were in charge of the baking table which was laden with home-made cakes, pies, doughnuts, tarts, muffins, jelly rolls, cookies, home canned fruit, jams, pickles and maple syrup.

Mrs. M. E. Hobbs and Mrs. Stewart Snelgrove were in charge of the fish pond, assisted by Miss Jean Burnham, Mrs. L. J. Stuart and Judy Hobbs.

Miss Ellen Kent and Ed Nattress sold hot dogs, coffee, cookies and cold drinks.

Winners of the large angel cake made by Mrs. Alex Gilbert, for the prize in the cake walk was Bobby Bredin. Judy Hobbs won the coronation tray presented by Mrs. J. F. Crowley. Winners of musical chairs for girls was Helen Wright and for boys Glen Forsyth. Lenore Ouellette was at the piano. Bingo winners were Mrs. L. J. Stuart, Mrs. V. Kennedy, Mrs. William West and Helen Ingham.

Two teams comprising Mrs. Bruce Ingham and Peter Crowley, a high school student, and Harry Williams and Bobby Hamilton, a public school student, competing to put jig-saw puzzle of the map of Ontario together ended with the first team having a slight edge on the other.

The Rev. A. M. Butler, convener of the nominations committee, requested that all nomination forms should be returned not later than Wednesday.

The prize for having the most parents present went to the pupils in Mr. Hamilton's room.

✧ ✧ ✧

CENTRAL SCHOOL

An excellent performance of the play, "Fresh Variable Winds", was given Monday evening to an appreciative audience of Central Home and School Association parents and friends by a Queen Alexandra cast directed by Mrs. George Gatfield.

Following the presentation, Dr. Robert Bell, clarified the behaviour problems brought out in the play: the necessity for the four cornerstones, Love, Religion, Work and Play, as the basis on which, a happy family relationship should be founded. Some parents accepted his invitation to ask questions afterward.

The meeting was held in the children's room of the Public Library. It was opened by president Mrs. L. Horning leading in the Lord's Prayer. Usual business followed, with attendance prizes being won by Miss Lewars' class in the senior school and by Miss Esplen's in the junior.

Interesting reports were read by Mrs. J. Callaghan. Mrs. Caldwell, and Mrs. Armstrong, delegates from Central School to the Convention of Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, held during the Easter holidays in Toronto.

Mrs. L. Roper moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Bell, and to the cast of the play, and also to the convention delegates.

Mrs. W. Sorrie had on display a fine selection of educational publications.

Refreshments were served by the women teachers, with Mrs. R. Kelcey and helpers attending to the preparation.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOOL

Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association meeting was held Monday night with president Mrs. Roy Hancock presiding. She announced a rag collection is being made this month.

Sandra McConkey contributed several guitar selections.

Mrs. E. J. Loveday's room won the attendance prize and Mr. Loveday was projectionist of a film on Holland.

Mrs. H. Race introduced the speaker, the Rev. J. A. Purser, assistant to the rector of St. John's Anglican Church. He said: "the home is supposed to take care of the child's body, the school his mind and the church his soul. Children tend to grow up like their parents, happy or cranky. They should be encouraged to enter occupations, where they are useful instead of looking for big money, short hours and long holidays.

"A child gets his idea of God from his earthly father," continued Mr. Purser. "A mother should be more than an unpaid servant and administrator. She should teach nobility, purity and honesty. A child has a personality to be developed. Discipline is necessary. Besides food in a home a happy atmosphere is needed. There should be no favorites among children."

"Tradition in the past ruled the world but this did not lead to progress," said the minister. "We should reverence the past but also use creative imagination. True education is not success or happiness but growth of character. The job of teaching is a great mission. Teachers should be worthy of respect and admiration. The main aim of education are first to develop power of concentration, second to develop in minds of pupils effective thinking, third to stimulate creative imagination, and no progress is made without the development of character.

Mrs. M. Mahood thanked the speaker, Mr. Loveday and Sandra.

Refreshments were served at the close.

PARKHILL SCHOOL

"Father's Night" at Parkhill Home and School Association meeting Tuesday was in charge of Mr. Bernard Holloway. Mr. A. J. Fort read the secretary's report and Mr. G. Montgomery the treasurer's report.

An instrumental quartet of Cecil Searles, violin, Alex. Ingram, clarinet, Max Clark, piano, and Bernard Holloway, cello, entertained with three Cole Porter tunes.

Guest speaker was Mr. Wm. Graff, chief librarian of Peterborough, and he was introduced by Mr. Christpher Gledhill. Mr. Graff told the early history of libraries in general and of Peterborough in particular. He stressed the value of the library to the community in educational, recreational and cultural ways and told of the many services rendered by the different departments. Special mention of the children's section was made.

Newer activities of the library, the loaning of films and records, has become an outstanding service and the art gallery has reached a high standard Mr. Graff said. He then showed a film of England showing the environment and locale of early English authors.

Mr. D. F. Lamb expressed thanks of the Association for the talk and the film, and Mr. Gledhill thanked the quartette.

Mrs. Bev. Goulding spoke briefly to remind those present of the Coronation tea on April 22nd with sale of home baking, candy, white elephants and used books.

Miss Bailey's Class won the attendance prize.

Mr. Fort, with a committee of fathers, served refreshments.

CHILDREN'S OWN TABLETS

DEAR MISS DIX: I am dating a wonderful young man, and we have been very happy together. I am 20, he is 26. We enjoy doing the same things and I'm happy just being with him.

We met through my roommate, who had known him for some time. They both claim their only interest in each other was an occasional date. At the time Chet and I began going together, Marcia was going with another boy. However, now that it is apparent that Chet and I are becoming serious, she suddenly takes the attitude that he is doing her an injustice. She has stopped seeing the other young man. We share an apartment, which was originally hers. It's convenient for me so I would hate to move. Do you think she could be convinced of her folly in trying to upset me, or do you think I should move?

SHEILA K.

MISERY LIKES COMPANY

ANSWER: Marcia is a little lady of small mind and soul who cannot bear to see anyone else happy while she is miserable. She and Chet couldn't get along, so she was willing enough to hand him over to you when she had another beau. Apparently, matters didn't go too well there, either, now she is left without a man, and is quite determined to have you join her in that state. Should her efforts fail to get Chet back, she hopes at least to spoil your chances with him, too. And there, in plain language, is the situation you're out to buck.

While it would be too bad for you to give up your convenient home, the sacrifice would be preferable to having your romance spoiled. One solution would be for Chet to find a young man to interest Marcia for awhile. Any male companionship that would tide her over until your wedding day would surely be helpful. If no obliging young man can be found, the best thing for you to do is pack up and move, before Marcia gets her claws into Chet. Some frustrated females are most dangerous opponents. Since I doubt that you have the experience to cope with one, retreat is the indicated course to follow.

If you do continue to remain with Marcia, there's no doubt but that she'll make things quite uncomfortable for you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very fond of a boy in my school. For a while he liked me. but my brother says he likes another girl, and my friends say I'm the one he likes. Should I believe my brother or my friends?

GERRY.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Neither. Make your decision from the way the boy acts toward you. And don't rush him into a declaration of undying affection. Accept his friendship, and let him take care of the progression.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 15 years old and quite attractive. The trouble is that, though I have many dates, no boy ever asks me out a second time. My friends say it's because I'm too thin.

M. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I doubt if your friends' reason is the correct one. If your thinness drove boys away, they'd never ask you out the first time. Make a thorough and frank analysis of your own appearance—aside from underweight—your personality and your behavior on dates. If you have difficulty doing this on your own, I can send a leaflet that might help, and recommend some inexpensive booklets that do a fine job of helping young people improve their social quotient.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 14, with a boy friend, Robert, who is 20. We don't have a phone, but my friend next door does, and Robert calls me there. Since my parents think I'm too young to go with boys, I tell them a girl is calling me. I go to the show with Robert, too, and tell my folks that I'm going with a girl. I'm sure I love Robert, but am afraid to tell my parents so.

J. A.

ANSWER: Absolutely no good can come from the sort of sneaky dating in which you are indulging. Stop it at once! You're too young to form your own opinion of boys. Robert is too old for YOU anyway, but he is certainly old enough to know that you shouldn't be encouraged in this deception. If he were an honorable boy, he'd take his chances of facing your parents.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Boiled Beefsteak As Special-Purpose Menu

Individual Cabbage, Cucumber and Tomato Salads

Broiled Beefsteak
Cauliflower with Cheese Sauce
Shredded Green Beans
Superior Rhubarb Pie
Coffee

DIRECTIONS

This was a meal for six. I liked it because I was not so satisfied after eating my meat course without potatoes, that I could not cope with the luscious looking rhubarb pie. The steak was 1¼-inches thick and cost $2.00.

When you serve broiled steak the guests should wait for the steak not the steak for the guests. When I turned the steak over under the very hot broiler when the upperside was brown, and had salted and peppered and buttered the second side, I put it back under the broiler and summoned everyone to the dining room table and we ate our salads.

After that I tested the steak by slitting it at the bone to see if it was done to our favorite shade of pink. It was. So Marianne took in the hot plates and vegetables from the warming oven and I proudly carried in the sizzling steak on its hot platter. The steak was then sliced into long strips so that everyone had his share of the undercut. The platter was garnished with cress and lemon wedges and each plate received its share of them. Be sure your costly steaks reach your diners hot. The dinner plates should be almost too hot to touch.

When Pete is home and I have cauliflower for dinner it always has to have a cheese sauce to please him. I cook the cauliflower in the bottom of a large double boiler and in the top I heat 1½ cups whole milk with about ¼ lb. sliced process cheese. Just before the steak is turned I mix 3 tablespoons melted butter with 2½ tablespoons flour and stir the hot cheese-milk mixture into them until thick. I pour this over the cauliflower in the entree dish and springle it with paprika.

SUPERIOR RHUBARB PIE

Five cups unpeeled finely cut red rhubarb, about 1½ cups sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons flour, 3 whole eggs, 2 tablespoons dry or toasted breadcrumbs, 2 tablespoons soft butter, and yolk of 1 egg mixed with 1 tablespoon milk. Wash the rhubarb and trim it but do not peel it. Chop it in ¼-inch pieces. Mix the sugar, salt and flour and stir it into the chopped rhubarb. Beat the eggs lightly with a fork and stir them into the mixture. Turn this into an unbaked pie shell in a deep pie plate. The bottom of the pie shell should be springled with a few toasted crumbs—about 1 tablespoon. Dot filling with the soft butter. Make ⅜-inch wide strips of pastry into a lattice top, brushing the rim of the lower crust with milk before placing lattice strips in place, to make them stick. Brush the lattice with the egg-yolk and milk mixture to give the finished pie a beautiful glaze. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and bake about 35 minutes longer .This is a beautiful pie with a delicious rhubarb custardy filling.

RHUBARB HINT OF THE YEAR

Wash, but do not peel, tender red rhubarb and cut up—about 1 lb. Cook, covered, without any added water, about 7 or 8 minutes, stirring 2 or 3 times. Add ½ cup sugar when half cooked. When 8 minutes are up remove from heat and stir in 1 cup sliced fresh strawberries. Let cool. Pour into serving dishes and cool, then chill thoroughly. Serve with a swirl of whipped cream on top. This is delicious and attractive, especiallyn ow when strawberries are so expensive and we want to make them stretch.

CANADIAN NATIONAL CANADIAN PACIFIC

Since December 1951, The Royal Bank of Canada has provided banking service to construction crews working on the gigantic power and aluminum project now taking shape on B.C.'s rugged mountain coast. Branches and sub-branches are operating at Kemano, Tahtsa Lake, Nechako River damsite, Kildala, Skins Lake and other strategic points in this great undertaking.

Pioneering in remote areas is nothing new to the Royal Bank. It is a strong tradition. Today, for example, we maintain offices at Churchill on Hudson's Bay, Mayo in the Yukon, and Port Radium on the fringe of the Arctic—the "farthest-north" bank in Canada. Whenever and wherever the need arises, The Royal Bank of Canada heads north with the men who are establishing Canada's new frontiers.

6—In Memoriam

PRESTON—In loving memory of my dear mother, Hannah Preston, who passed away April fifteenth, nineteen forty-three.
As days and weeks
Go fleeting by,
My heart still aches
And oft I sigh,
When thoughts of you
My memory recalls
Happy days gone by
When you were near
And often raise a hand
To whisk away the tears
That come so often
Thru the passing years.—
Ten it's true,
Since you passed away
That April morning
When God came down
And took your hand,
To Join sister Vie
In that far away land.—
Dear Mother, if you only knew
The loneliness, and pain,
That eats at my heart
As I sit all alone
Upon peeling blue,
Not knowing which way to turn
Or what to do
When the going's tough
And friends are few,
With no one around
Your troubles to share,
Or even care
Whether you're happy
Or whether you're blue
Not even interested
In a thing you do.—
Oh, how often I wish
That you were near,
For a little advice
A few words of cheer.
Still I keep on going
From day to day
Praying each night
For guidance and strength
To do the best I can
Till the day we meet
In that promised land.
—Sadly missed by Sherman.

WALL—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Maude Wall, who passed away April 15, 1932.
Only a memory of bygone days,
And a sigh for a face unseen.
But a constant feeling that God alone
Knows just what should have been.
Sometimes it's hard to understand
Why some things have to be;
But in His wisdom, He has planned
Beyond our power to see.
—Ever remembered by Cressa (Mrs. A. Pilling).

Seven Forest Fires Brought Under Control

TORONTO (CP)—Lands and forests department officials said today the largest forest fire to date in Ontario this year, a blaze near Miners Bay in Haliburton, has been brought under control. They said there has been no damage to private property in the summer resort area.

Officials said seven forest fires today were reported under control. They are being investigated by Ontario provincial police and lands and forest men.

Rescue Services

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Better co-ordination of sea and air rescue organization around the North sea was the subject of a meeting at Gothenburg of representatives from several countries. The North sea storms last winter were said to have revealed some weakness in communications.

VISITING KING—King Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia, a small independent kingdom in Indo-China, arrives in Ottawa on an unofficial courtesy visit. Accompanied by a royal retinue the king, travelling incognito, is making a tour of eastern Canada and a number of United States cities. He is accompanied by two princes, two princesses and two Cambodian senior counsellors.

'Rank Treachey' If Seaway Not Authorized

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem.—Minn.) said today failure of Congress to authorize the long-proposed St. Lawrence seaway would be "rank treachery to the United States."

"It is rank treachery to the United States to deny ourselves the right to compete economically with the rest of the world, and the St. Lawrence seaway is part of that competition," he said at a hearing before a Senate foreign relations sub-committee.

Humphrey, a member of the subcommittee, said building of the joint Canada-U. S. project would be like cleaning out "Turtle creek compared to what the Russians are doing."

GETTING WEARY

A staunch supporter of the project which has so often been turned down by Congress, Humphrey said he is "getting tired of these hearings," adding:

"We're getting callouses where we ought to have mental activity."

The U. S. midwest must have the seaway to provide it with additional transportation, he said.

"We don't intend to sit idly by and be choked to death by those who already have it," he added.

Humphrey promised "a lot of fireworks" would be set off at the hearing "when those who oppose this project come before us."

He described opponents of the seaway "as those who have made theirs and are sitting on it."

London Girl Plans To Co-Pilot Plane

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A London girl will co-pilot a plane in the fifth annual all-woman international air race—the "Powder Puff Derby"—taking off from Welland for New Smyrna, Florida, June 10.

Betty Smithan, 23, who won her private pilot's licence at London Aero Club in May of 1952, will fly beside Mrs. Phyllis Noble, of Guelph, in a Fleet Canuck aircraft.

Some of the finest women pilots in North America will be competing.

Miss Smitham was the first girl pilot licensed by London Aero Club. She is presently a secretary at General Motors Diesel Ltd.

Three Men Wounded In Korean Fighting

OTTAWA (CP) — Korean casualty list today included three men wounded in action. The last list was issued April 13.

The army list brought to 1,304 total casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korea, including 248 dead, 942 wounded, 26 missing, 87 injured and one captured.

In addition the navy has reported three dead and three injured and the air force one missing.

Wounded in action:

Gas Fumes Fatal

TORONTO (CP)—A 64-year-old woman died in her east-end flat Tuesday, victim of accidental gassing, police said. Firemen used an inhalator on Mrs. Grace Young for 40 minutes without success.

Building Up Editorial Staff

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Press, Canada's co-operative news service, is embarking on a campaign to build up editorial staff to tell the story of national development, Roy H. Thomson said in his presidential address to the CP annual meeting today.

The last year, Mr. Thomson said, had been one of marked progress and of heavy stress on staff. Delivery of the news report by teletypesetter had been extended across the country. Service in French to 10 French-language members was solidly established. An exchange of Canadian news pictures had made progress.

Ahead was a period of consolidation and development. "CP's editorial staff has done a job it would be hard to parallel in newspaper work anywhere," Mr. Thomson said. In the last year he had seen the staff in operation across Canada and in New York and London and had never previously encountered so many sincere and hard-working men.

THIS TIME—POT OF GOLD?—A rainbow hovers over the truce talk site at Panmunjom, Korea, in this symbolic, never-before-published photo taken by U.S. Army Capt. Edward Plummer in November, 1951. While this rainbow had no truce treasure at its end, the current talks look to be more lucrative.

Roy C. Patterson Dies Old Sox Pitcher

ST. CROIX FALLS, Wis. (AP)—Roy C. Patterson, a member of the pennant-winning "hitless wonders" of 1906, died Tuesday of a heart attack. He was 76.

Patterson was with Chicago White Sox from 1901 through 1907, compiling a record of 81 pitching victories and 71 defeats. He won 20 games in 1901 and again in 1902.

Aircraft Parts Association Meets In Toronto April 21

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The Automotive and Aircraft Parts Manufacturers' Association (Canada) will hold its first annual meeting in Toronto April 21

D. S. Wood, who has been in Washington for the last two years in charge of steel procurement for the department of defence production, will become executive vice-president and manager of the association, and will address the annual dinner.

The Investment Dealers' Association of Canada is holding its annual meeting June 9-12 at Bigwin Inn, Lake of Bays, Ont. One sesengineer of the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario.

Markets for Western Canadian oil are building up so fast that the pressure now is on exploration and production men to find the oil, says Noel M. Fowler of Winsion will be devoted to discussion of the association's public relations programs.

Speakers at other sessions will include S. M. Blair, vice-president of Canadian Bechtel, Ltd.; R. M. Fowler, president of the Newsprint Association of Canada, and R. L. Hearn, general manager and chief nipeg, chief statistician for James Richardson and Sons, investment dealers.

In a recent address to the Financial Analysts Society in Philadelphia, Mr. Fowler said the daily market for western oil within a few months would be:

Prairie provinces, 110,000 barrels; Ontario-interprovincial pipeline, 100,000 barrels; trans-mountain pipeline to Pacific coast, 140,000 barrels. Total, 350,000 barrels.

Against this demand would be an estimated production of 375,000 barrels daily. Looking forward a year or so, Canadian needs would be close to 500,000 barrels a day, and "it is not very difficult to visualize a ready market for 750,000 barrels daily of Western Canadian crude by 1957."

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE INDUSTRY

Mr. Fowler envisaged western natural gas revolutionizing Canada's mining and metal industries, and playing a key part in a new low-cost refining process, adaptable to many metals, that is being developed. He suggested transporting petroleum products, including natural gas, by a short "great circle" route from northern Alberta across Canada's mineralized shield to the industrial centres of Ontario and Quebec.

FROM BULLETIN

From The Netherlands economic bulletin:

"A factory at Harderwijk produces a plastic lipstick provided with a reservoir containing a paste made of special, non-poisonous base materials which fully meet the international specifications.

"This reservoir is closed at the bottom by a ball, as in ball point pens. By pressing the stick on the lip a small quantity of paste is applied.

"The paste is kissproof, resistant to alcohol and keeps the lips perfectly supple."

Charge Seaway Opponents With Confusion Campaign

By JAMES C. MUNN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of the controversial St. Lawrence seaway were accused today of fostering a "campaign of confusion" to block legislation to authorize the project.

N. R. Danielian, executive vice-president of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Association, told a Senate foreign relations sub-committee that the "confusion campaign" is being conducted by the Association of American Railroads and its "stooge—the so-called National St. Lawrence Project Conference."

Danielian was one of 15 witnesses scheduled to appear in support of bills that would authorize the United States to join with Canada in building the project.

"This campaign of confusion is not only a disservice to this congress and this administration, but also is fast becoming the basis of a serious misunderstanding between this country and our neighbor and close ally, Canada," he said in prepared testimony.

Danielian, referring directly to a seaway bill introduced by chairman Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) of the Senate foreign relations committee, said the measure contained only one main issue.

He said if the federal power commission grants New York's application to construct a 2,200,000-horsepower hydro - electric plant with Ontario in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence, Canada is "eager" to build a seaway on its own side of the border from Montreal to Lake Erie.

"The only question in this part of the seaway, therefore, is whether the congress will try, at the 11th hour, to authorize constructing a third of the works involved—those at the International Rapids on Americal soil — and thereby acquire joint and qual control over the management and operation of the seaway."

Danielian said it is "clear" that once New York has authority to join in the power project the only question left before Congress "is whether the United States wants to locate part of the canals on U. S. soil."

He asserted that the project is a "simple one"—involving a seven-mile canal and construction of three locks. Annual costs, based on an estimated construction expenditure of $9,000,000 (including interest during construction) would amount to between $5,000,000 and $5,500,000, he said.

He said that sum would meet annual operating expenses, interest and amortization.

Danielian said studies indicate that there is more than enough business in prospect for the waterway (through tolls on shipping) to return "almost twice as much revenue as necessary to make (the project) wholly self-supporting and self-liquidating."

THE CUBS will weight about a ton apiece, like their papa, picture above. And, like him, they will be a bit too fierce to keep around the living room as pets. (See picture Exclusive Pets on page 14.)

Musk-ox Makes Comeback In Canada's Barren Arctic

By JOHN VAN DUSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The mysterious shaggy musk-ox, once believed to be the missing link between the sheep and domestic ox, appears to have made a comeback in Canada's barren Arctic.

About 25 years ago the sheep-cow, so named by early biologists, seemed headed for extinction At that time it was estimated that 500 musk-ox, protected by the government, roamed the Northwest Territories. However, a recent survey by the resources department indicates there are several large herds totalling 1,000 or more.

Officials say that the figures don't necessarily mean that the population has doubled. A great many may have been overlooked 25 years ago.

HARD TO RAISE

Few have been known to live in captivity. The United States government tried to raise some in Alaska but found the experiment impractical. Scientists confess they don't know much about the husky 1,000-pound beast. However, the Canadian wildlife service plans to learn more about its history, habit and range.

They think, but are not sure, that the musk-ox is found only in Canada's Arctic wastes.

The musk-ox was practically over looked since 1927 when it was thought there were 500. At that time a herd of 250 lived in the Thelon game sanctuary, a 15,000-square-mile reserve northeast of Great Slave lake. Two years ago 334 were counted. And two months ago officials were startled when 92 were spotted 300 miles northwest near Great Bear lake, where the animal had never been seen previously. Herds also have been located on Ellesmere Island, 1,000 miles south of the north pole

An official said an accurate estimate of the population is impossible.

"It's like trying to figure out the population of a town by counting the number of people in the main street."

The musk-ox is a stocky, long-haired animal that revels in cold weather. It closely resembles the domestic ox, but its curved horns and woolly underfur suggest relationship to the wild sheep. The animal emits a musk odor when excited or annoyed. The scent is produced by numerous small glands distributed about the body.

A VEGETARIAN

A non-meat eater, the musk-ox plods slowly over the rocky hillocks and tractless muskegs searching for the dwarf arctic plants. When snow covers the vegetation in the valleys, he must either paw away the frozen crust or move to the bare wind-swept hillsides

→→

During the ice age the ancestors of the existing musk-ox ranged over northern Europe, northern Asia and North America—from Alaska south to Iowa, Indiana, Pennsylvania and Kansas. As the ice receded the beast moved to colder climates.

The musk-ox mate in the summer with each bull rounding up as many cows as possible for his harem. Competition is keen and rival male often engage in a battle to the death.

The cows drop a single calf, rarely twins, in April or May. The baby musk-ox weighs about 20 pounds at birth and is less than two feet high at the shoulder. At three or four years of age he may stand five feet at the shoulder and weigh 1,000 pounds. Nobody seems to know how long they live.

South Africa is one of the richest gold and diamond countries in the world.

MUSK-OX COMES BACK.—The shaggy musk-ox, once believed to be the missing link between the sheep and the domestic ox, is making a comeback in Canada's northland. About 25 years ago the population was estimated at 500. A recent survey by the Resources Department indicates more than 1,000 roam the Northwest Territories. Few have been known to live in captivity.

Senators Agree Extending Emergency Bill

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Liberal senators Tuesday night teamed with the leader of the Opposition in opposing passage through the Senate of a bill to keep the Emergency Powers Act alive for another year.

Senators Thomas Crerar (L—Manitoba), W. D. Euler (L—Ontario) and Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) opposed the measure which Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, described as "directly contrary to democratic government."

Despite the opposition, the bill was approved in principle without a recorded vote and sent to the Senate banking and commerce committee for further study.

Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader in the Senate, said the bill would extend to May 31, 1954, the extraordinary powers granted the cabinet in 1951 at the outbreak of the Korean war.

NOT TOO SURE

He said that although the international situation shows some hope of becoming better, the government does not feel the improvement is such that it can dispense with the powers granted by Parliament in 1951 and extended last year to May 31, 1953.

Senator Haig said it is obvious that the world is in a permanent emergency to which people must adjust themselves. The tendency to take away from Parliament its powers and entrust them to the cabinet was directly contrary to

Young People Hold Convention At Keene Church

KEENE —(ENS)— More than 100 young people registered for the annual Spring Convention of the Peterborough Presbytery held Saturday and Sunday in Keene United Church.

The convention opened Saturday afternoon. The Young People were welcomed to the church and the village of Keene by the Rev. H. B. Herrington. Marion Brown led the young people in the singing of Negro spirituals. St. Andrew's Union had the opening worship based on the theme "We are made for God." Taking part in this service were Betty Baker, Bev. McIlmoyle and Clarence James.

The theme speaker, the Rev. I. Pollock of Grace United Church, Peterborough was introduced by Norma Timlin. Mr. Pollock spoke on "Our Full Heritage". He told the convention that we all receive a heritage in every part of our worship and we must increase and build up this heritage. He urged the young people to throw off intellectual laziness and to probe into Christian truths and thus through our minds to become keen Christians.

He pointed out that our worship should be made up of confession, intercession, thanksgiving and meditation and thus to feel a oneness with God. Through Christian discipline we can obtain a fuller Christian culture and a better world.

The representatives then divided into five commission groups led by the following ministers: the Revs. Hampson, Newman, Tonge, H. K. Wright and B. S. Morwood.

The ladies of Keene had prepared a banquet for the convention delegates. Greetings were brought from representatives of the Presbyterian and the Baptist Young People. Mr. Morwood delighted the young people when he led in several songs. A group from St. Andrews sang several Canadian folk songs. Miss Betty Piercey told of her experiences at leadership training school at Five Oaks.

After the banquet a business session was held with the following young people elected to office.

Hon. President, The Rev. N. Cole; Past President, Lloyd Starke; President, Ron Davis; Vice President, Bob Peebles; Secretary, Margaret Johnson; Treasurer, Barry Wilson; Stewardship Faith and Evangelism, Hazel MacIntosh; Missions and World Outreach, Marion Davis; Citizenship, Isobel McLaggan; Recreation and Culture, Cobburn McLaggan and Tom Stark; Leadership Training, Marion Brown; Camp Promoter, Doris Stockdale; Members at Large, Joe Whetung, Mary Steward, Ella Downs, Art Dixon; Advisors, The Rev. A. E. Larke, Tonge and Pollock.

The Saturday evening session was held in the community centre at Keene. Colored slides on South Africa were shown by Mr. Pollock. A period of lively recreation was led by Cobburn McLaggan and Dorothy Starke. Much enjoyed by the young people was the square dancing. The closing worship was conducted by the George St. Union.

Sunday evening a youth rally was held in Keene United Church. The service began with a sing song led by Bob Peebles. Greetings were brought by Lloyd Starke, past president, and Ron Davis, new president. A quartette from Mark St. Union sang "She Only Touched the Hem of His Garment."

Mr. Herrington was the speaker for the evening. The text for his message was "Here am I Lord, Send me" He said that Christ intends us all in every walk of life to serve.

After the service the new executive was installed by Mr. Herrington.

A candle-lighting service was held to close the convention conducted by Miss Madyln Wilcox of Oshawa.

Chicago Fires Claim 21 Lives 30 Others Reported Hurt

Mobs Loot, Burn As Peron Unhurt By Bombs

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Rioting pro-Peron mobs stormed unrestrained through the Argentine capital Wednesday night and early today, burning and sacking opposition centres in a violent aftermath to a bombing at a rally addressed by President Juan D. Peron. The government announced that six persons were killed and 92 injured in the two bomb explosions that stampeded the crowd gathered Wednesday in the city's central Plaza de Mayo. Peron was not hurt.

Headquarters of all Argentine opposition parties—except the Communists—went up in flames before the raging mobs that looted and burned. The fashionable Jockey Club, centre of Argentine high society, was also put to the torch.

Scores of persons suffered minor injuries during the rioting but no serious casualties were reported.

N.A. CITIZEN HELD

The government announced that a North American citizen was among several persons arrested for questioning in connection with the bombing. It identified him as Esteban Jacyna of Herkimer, N.Y., a trainer with a touring circus.

In addition to destroying the Jockey Club, the rioters fired the headquarters of the Radical, Socialist and democratic-Conservative parties and recked restaurants and bars before some semblance of quiet was restored to the centre of the city.

Violence and looting continued early today, however, in nearby residential areas.

Police halted motor traffic in the streets before the burning buildings, but no organized effort was made to stop the sacking or put out the fires. A band of reinforced federal police stood precautionary guard over the independent newspaper La Nacion, only five blocks from the Jockey Club, but no attacks were made against the building.

CELEBRATION MARRED

The violence marred what had been planned as a triumphal celebration for Peron. The Plaza de Mayo meeting had been called by the pro-Peron General Confederation of Labor as a demonstration of united support for the president, now battling to control soaring prices and end a meat shortage.

The armed forces broke tradition by lending their support to the labor-sponsored rally, in an apparent gesture to still rumors of dissension in the government.

The first bomb exploded near the Hotel Mayo on the south side of the square while Peron was speaking. It started a stampede among his hearers jamming the square. The second and smaller blast damaged a ventilator being built in the plaza for the subway system.

The explosions interrupted Peron momentarily, but neither bomb burst close to the balcony from which the president—surrounded by cabinet ministers, labor leaders and officers of the armed forces—was speaking.

BLAMES AGENTS

Peron called on the crowd to remain quiet and hear him out. He blamed the nation's economic troubles on "organized psychological warfare, directed from abroad and carried out by agents inside the country."

Charge Mother With Murder In Baby's Death

HAMILTON (CP)—Mrs. Roy Nield, 38, today was charged with murder in the strangling of her six-month-old daughter, Audrey Ann, whose body was found late Wednesday in a trunk in the basement of her home.

Mrs. Nield appeared in court today and was remanded to April 23. She was taken back to Hamilton General hospital where she will remain under police guard.

The child's body was found by police who hunted for her for five hours in the belief she had been kidnapped.

The chubby, red-haired child was reported missing by her mother about 11:30 a.m. Wednesday Mrs. Nield said the baby disappeared from her carriage a few feet from the back door of the Nields' east-end home.

In the course of the hunt, Det.-Sgt. John Freeborn made a search of the home itself. He found the body in the trunk.

QUESTIONED THREE HOURS

Mrs. Nield was taken to police headquarters still in a hysterical condition and questioned for three hours. Later she was held in hospital under police guard.

Mr. Nield, a salesman, was in Montreal during the day but flew home Wednesday night.

Detective Freeborn said he found the small trunk which held the infant's body pushed up against others on a shelf in the cellar of the tidy brick house.

"I thought it was a doll when I opened the trunk," he said. The child was still dressed in the blue suit and gaily-colored mittens she wore when put out in the back yard by her mother shortly after 9 a.m.

Walter Hagan, inspector of detectives, said the infant had been strangled and stuffed into the trunk. The cloth tightly wrapped about the child's neck was described as "just a piece of cloth" by the inspector.

CHECKED ESCARPMENT

The five-hour search sent police up and down the steep footpaths and gulleys on the incline of the limestone escarpment. Abandoned houses were searched and officers groped their way through a new trunk sewer connecting new housing developments on top of the big hill with disposal plants on Hamilton bay.

An uncle of the strangled child, Fred Howard, said Audrey Ann had suffered a throat injury recently. Investigating officers at that time said they believed older children had tried to strangle the baby as she lay in her carriage.

The Nield's other daughter, Susan, 3, was placed in the care of relatives.

Manitoba Has 6 Inches Snow

WINNIPEG (CP)—Blizzard conditions hit southern Manitoba overnight with up to six inches of snow falling during wild wind gusts that reached 80 miles an hour. The temperature dropped to 17 degrees below freezing.

Old man winter's parting punch was accompanied by intensifying blasts that early today averaged nearly 50 miles an hour.

During the night gusts of more than 80 miles an hour were reported at Macdonald airport, about 60 miles west of Winnipeg.

The Portage la Prairie-Macdonald area also received the greatest snowfall—six inches. Winnipeg received about two inches. Winnipeg's low temperature was 15.

Blizzard conditions with near-zero visibility are expected to continue over the Portage plains and the Red River valley until noon at least.

Queen Launches Yacht Calls It Britannia

GLASGOW, Scotland (Reuters)—The Queen today launched a new ocean-going yacht for herself and named it Britannia.

The vessel is the size of a small liner, 4,000 tons, and cost about $5,000,000. It will incorporate the last word in ocean travel luxury.

The name was one of the palace's closest secrets. Only the Queen and a few palace officials knew it before the Clydeside launching today.

The Britannia replaces the last Royal yacht, the Victoria and Albert, built in 1899 during the reign of Queen Victoria.

Many Britons expected the Queen would name the new ship after herself or after her father, King George VI.

Block Mossadegh On Showdown Move

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Parliament deputies opposing Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today successfully blocked a showdown move by the aged Nationalist leader in his fight to deprive Iran's shah of control of the armed forces.

Eight opposition deputies left town, preventing the quorum necessary for a meeting of Parliament's lower House (Majlis) at which Mossadegh had planned to demand approval for his bill to cut the Shah's power.

The opposition move also knocked the wind out of a massive demonstration this morning supporting the premier by some 20,000 persons, at least 5,000 of them from the Communist Tudeh.

From early morning, Tehran was keyed to a high pitch of excitement as crowds converged on the Majlis square.

Coronation Invitation

Canadians To Share Honor Of Standing Palace Guard

LONDON (CP) — Canadian troops will share in the colorful tradition of standing guard at Buckingham Palace during the Coronation period, it was learned Wednesday.

A spokesman for the Commonwealth relations office said the Queen has approved a proposal that Commonwealth troops, in London for the Coronation, should share the guard duties. Canadian troops will stand guard for a four-hour period June 5.

Australian infantrymen will stand the first guard, to be followed by New Zealand troops toward the end of May. Canadian and Pakistan troops will follow.

This highest parade honor in Commonwealth military realms was first accorded Commonwealth troops at the 1937 Coronation of King George VI when the Australian contingent mounted a 24-hour guard and the other Dominions had six-hour periods.

Ordinarily, the crack Guards units—Scots, Irish, Welsh, Grenadiers and Coldstreams—are the only troops eligible for the palace duties, depending on which is home-based. First Changing of the Guards, the stirring ritual known around the world, was staged Jan. 13, 1903 and since then people from inside and outside Britain have been coming to see it.

Malan Wins Elections Count Shows

Doubled Majority For Party Confidently Predicted

PRETORIA (AP) — Prime Minister Daniel Malan has won the South African elections with possibly a doubled majority for his party in Parliament.

Leading newspapers in opposition to the prime minister's race policies conceded he had won Tuesday's polling. Tonight Malan was forging still farther ahead. At that time returns gave his Nationalists 54 seats, the United party 49 and the Labor party 4. There were 48 results outstanding, and 39 of these are in cast-iron Nationalist strongholds.

Victory in those would give Malan's men a majority about twice the 13-seat edge the Nationalists had in the last assembly of the 159-member House. The 159 members include three sitting representatives of Negroes and there is one by-election pending.

AGREE ON TRIUMPH

The Rand Daily Mail, the Johannesburg Star and the Pretoria News, all English-language papers, opposing Malan's policies toward the union's predominantly negro population, agreed a Nationalist triumph was certain.

There was jubiliation in the streets of this predominantly Nationalist capital early today as official results disclosed Malan had won even doubtful divisions with comfortable majorities.

Early morning crowds around some of the main voting stations cheered, sang and danced as Nationalist triumphs were announced.

The first seats captured by the were Bloemfontein City, Vasco, Brakpan, Pretoria city and Port Elizabeth North.

Of the seats already won, 18 Nationalists from the opposition United party candidates and two Nationalists — including Malan—had been returned by acclamation. United party leader J. G. N. Strauss easily retained his seat also in the Johannesburg area.

Three other seats already are held by white representatives of 50,000 coloreds (mulattoes) of Cape Province, the only non-whites in the country with voting rights. These three traditionally vote against the Nationalists.

Doesn't Believe Siberia Threat

OTTAWA (CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said today he can't see any major threat to the North American continent from Siberia.

"The north pole is pretty low in the category of danger areas," he told a press conference.

The deputy-commander of Atlantic pact powers in Europe added: "Don't run about like a lot of wet hens worrying about the odd atom bomb."

If war came, atom bombs would probably fall in most countries but in relation to other danger areas, North America, in his opinion, did not rank very high. More bombs would fall on Britain and France.

Defence of North America was a matter for the U.S. and Canada. But if they built a vast radar screen across the Arctic, there would be no money left for anything else.

TO THE CORONATION—Before Wednesday night the only way Mr. and Mrs. William Sawyer, 1098 Hayes St., were going to see the coronation was through newspaper pictures and stories. But a telephone message changed all that; they're now going to the coronation. Mrs. Sawyer held the winning ticket in a Peterborough Friday Night Club—St. Clair (Toronto) Y's Men's Clubs' draw for a trip for two to the coronation. Proceeds from the draw will help Peterborough YMCA work and also the Toronto club's summer camp for under-privileged children. —Examiner Staff Photo

Guns Too Heavy For New Armory Floor

OTTAWA (CP)—A defence official testified today that the floor of Sault Ste. Marie's new armory cracked under the weight of giant 10-ton anti-aircraft guns nearly twice as heavy as the floor was originally expected to handle.

Under questioning by Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton), H. A. Davis, engineering superintendent of the defence department, said the guns have been removed but that he understands the floor can be repaired to handle them.

The Ontario city has a reserve-force anti-aircraft regiment based there for the protection of the vital locks between Lake Superior and Lake Huron. The armory was finished a year ago.

Mr. Fleming, in raising the issue, asked Mr. Davis to check on assertions that it has been impossible to put the guns back in the armory months after the cracks first appeared; that some of the guns were outdoors all winter; that they now are based on and around an air hangar three miles away and that an army engineer has reported that another six inches of concrete must be added to the floor before the guns can be moved back in and that even then they will have to be kept near the walls.

He also charged that the floor was built to handle light anti-aircraft guns when it was known that

Crew Abandons Tanker As Ship In Flames

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An engine room fire early today forced the crew to abandon the British tanker Menestheus off lower California.

The 7,800-ton ship sent an S O S reporting the fire at 12:45 a.m.

An hour later, the American freighter Navajo Victory radioed that the Menestheus crew "took to life boats." The ships were 130 miles west of lower California and some 600 miles south of Los Angeles.

The Navajo Victory said the Menestheus was "burning badly and looks like a total loss." It picked up 60 of the 80 crew members and reported the other 20, all in one boat, would be taken aboard shortly. The Menestheus' captain was in the remaining boat.

No casualties were reported.

Truck In Garage Vanishes, Just Sinks

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Jack Ogilvy locked his dairy truck in the garage the other night and went to bed.

Just before dawn the next morning he went out and unlocked the garage door. He couldn't see the truck.

A search with a flashlight solved the mystery.

The top of the truck was on ground level. The garage had been erected many years ago atop an old cistern.

During the night the entire floor caved in, lowering the truck with it.

Cloak And Dagger Work Traps 28 Drug Peddlers

VANCOUVER (CP)—Twenty-eight of the estimated 30 suspected narcotics peddlers "fingered" here by a masquerading Mountie were behind bars today following what RCMP described as the biggest roundup of its kind in Canadian criminal history.

Twelve hours after the start of a series of smoothly-executed raids, an RCMP spokesman reported only two warrants remained to be executed. The 18-man RCMP narcotics squad, assisted by four city detectives, corralled nine suspects in the first 15 minutes.

The arrests followed two months of cloak and dagger work in underworld haunts by "Mountie X" who even fooled some of his fellow officers in his pose as an addict.

A senior RCMP spokesman said the roundup will be at least temporarily knock out 90 per cent of drug distribution in Vancouver, which holds an estimated one quarter of Canada's 5,000 addicts.

NAME KEPT SECRET

Name of the undercover Mountie, sent into the underworld in February to gain evidence against peddlers, won't be disclosed until he appears in police court as a Crown witness.

His masquerade as a "criminal addict" was so complete he was under scrutiny on several occasions by police officers who had not been advised of his identity.

"He associated with all levels ranging from the criminal addict to the more important non-addict distributor," a spokesman said. "As he worked his way from street peddler to street peddler and finally to distributors, he was under constant surveillance by fellow members of the RCMP narcotics branch.

WITNESS MEETINGS

"These other officers witnessed 'meets' and in some instances actually witnessed entire transactions."

Suspects arrested were charged with selling narcotics. Special prosecutor Robert Wismer said he will ask for bail averaging $20,000.

Scarboro Bank Robbed Of $2,500

TORONTO (CP)—A Bank of Toronto branch in suburban Scarboro was held up and robbed today of $2,500.

Early details were sketchy. First report to police was that the manager was kidnapped by the armed men who entered the bank at midday. Later it was disclosed they took him outside the bank and let him go after stealing his auto.

The branch was robbed on Jan. 25, 1951, when $26,500 was taken. It was one of the robberies charged to Edwin Alonzo Boyd, now serving a term in penitentiary.

Civic Workers Union Asks Rate Of $1.39

KITCHENER (CP)—Kitchener Civic Employees Union is asking for a basic wage rate of $1.39 an hour for 1953.

The 1952 rate was $1.15½. In opening wage negotiations Wednesday night, city council took the stand that no increase is justified this year.

Factory Rocked By Explosion; Apartments Burned

CHICAGO (AP)—Two separate fires, whipped by high winds, broke out minutes apart today and fire officials estimated a toll of 21 dead and 30 injured. The Chicago city news bureau, reporting on the larger fire—at the Haber Screw Machine Co., said: "Fire officials announced at 11:20 o'clock that a pile of 10 or more bodies had been found by firemen in an upper section of the building." Four bodies had been definitely taken out of the building at that time.

"The fire alarm office said indications were that at this time at least 16 persons had been killed."

2 CHILDREN DIE

Two children were killed in the other fire in a three-storey apartment house.

At least 26 other persons were injured at the factory fire and four others were hurt at the apartment house fire.

The Haber building was first shaken by an explosion at around 9:35 a. m. Raging flames, which collapsed part of one wall of the structure, prevented firemen from entering the factory until more than two hours after the initial blast.

Smuggles Aliens Under False Floor

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The U.S. immigration service said Wednesday it had arrested a Toronto man entering the U.S. in a delivery truck with a woman alien concealed under a false floor in the vehicle.

The man was identified as Homer Mitilinelis, 38. He was charged with muggling aliens into the United States.

Richard Haberstroh, chief investigator of the U.S. immigration service district office, said the man was picked up Tuesday at the U.S. end of the Whirlpool Rapids Bridge in Niagara Falls.

The woman was identified as Christina Behtikontzh, 31, also of Toronto. Haberstroh said she was a native of Greece and told immigration officials that she paid Mitilinelis $150 to bring her into the U.S.

Haberstroh said investigators were led to Mitilinelis by two Albanians picked up here 10 days ago. He said the two men described the truck and Mitilinelis and said they had each paid $80 for the trip across the border. They both said they were brought in under the false floor of the truck.

"This space is only about 12 inches deep, extends the width of the truck and is about 2½ feet wide," said Haberstroh.

Drift 74 Days Pair Rescued

MAHE, Seychelles Islands (CP)—Two "living skeletons" who watched their eight companions die as they drifted in an open boat for 74 days beneath blazing sun of the Indian ocean were on their way to safety today aboard the Italian tanker Montallegro.

They are Selby Corgat, 15, who saw his father perish on the 600-mile cruise of death, and Antoine Vidot, 20, ship's mechanic. Both are island descendants of French settlers.

The youths, picked up Wednesday, are the sole survivors of the 34-foot motor launch Marie Jeanne, which vanished in a storm Feb. 1 in the channel between Praslin and Mahe, in the British Seychelles islands.

The skipper of the 10,000-ton oil tanker which picked the youths up radioed that both looked like "living skeletons." He is treating them with drugs and a liquid diet, under instructions received from the international medical radio centre at Rome.

Young Corgat said the engine of the Marie Jeanne broke down within sight of the lights of their home port of Mahe. Currents caught the boat after the anchor chain broke. The food aboard was finished after three days.

No pins or hooks were available on the boat so no fish were caught. On several days they caught birds which came within reach and ate them.

The first of the eight died on the 45th day. The others died in rapid succession.

The survivors sometimes saw smoke smudges from ships far away but they never came near.

UN Will Give Truce Talk Answer Soon

MUNSA, Korea (AP)—The United Nations command will tell the Communists Friday whether it is ready to resume the long-stalled Korean armistice negotiations, and it is expected to say "yes."

The UN asked for a meeting to deliver a letter answering repeated Red requests to get the talks under way again. Negotiations were indefinitely suspended by the UN last Oct. 8.

The request came only a few hours after the first group of Allied sick and wounded from North Korean stockades arrived at Kaesong, just six miles from freedom.

Communist staff officers said half of the first 100 prisoners to be exchanged Monday at Panmunjom are non-Koreans. The Communists have promised that 120 U.S. prisoners and at least one Canadian will be among 600 returned.

The Reds said they will reveal Sunday the exact number of prisoners from the U.S. and other Allied countries to be traded Monday.

The U.S. 5th air force said reconnaissance planes sighted six vehicles of the Red POW convoy on the outskirts of Kaesong before dusk.

These vehicles apparently were part of two convoys which joined north of Kaesong earlier Thursday. Other units were strung along the road 40 miles north to Sinmak as darkness fell, the air force said.

Raise Salary For Ministers

TORONTO (CP)—The minimum salaries of 700 ministers of the United Church of Canada in aid-receiving charges today were increased to $2,700 from $2,600 for a married man. A furnished manse is provided for each man.

Car allowances for the ministers, many of whom have to travel to five different preaching places a Sunday, were increased from a $125-$500 range to a $203-$930 range. Car depreciation is included in the allowances.

The action of the home missions board of the Church in raising car allowances wipes out a former depreciation fund for car travel.

Eisenhower Answers Russia

Challenges Soviet To Practise Peace Talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower challenged Russia's new leaders today to practise the peace they preach by agreeing to end the cold war, disarm the world and invest the savings in a global fund to war on "the brute forces of poverty and need."

The alternative, he said, is at worst atomic war and at best unending fear which finds "humanity hanging from a cross of iron."

"Is there no other way the world may live?" Eisenhower asked. ..

"What is the Soviet Union ready to do?

"The United States is ready to assume its just part."

FULL DRESS SPEECH

The Eisenhower plan was laid down in the President's first full dress speech on foreign policy since he took office in January. It was delivered before the American Society of Newspaper Editors and broadcast by all radio and television national hookups.

The President said that if Russia is willing to take the preliminary steps, including independence for the East European satellites, the U. S. would agree to work toward a world disarmament plan which would ban atomic weapons.

An "era ended with the death of Joseph Stalin," he said, and the new leadership in Moscow like the rest of the world has opportunity "to turn the black tide of events."

The President listed these specific steps:

1. Conclusion of an "honorable armistice" in Korea, followed by political discussions leading to "free elections in a united Korea."
2. An end to Red aggression in Indo-China and Malaya.
3. Completion of an Austrian peace treaty.
4. Unification of Germany
5. Creation of a European community with "full independence of the East European nations."

MUST BE PROGRESS

With progress on these issues, Eisenhower said the U. S. would welcome agreements on reduction of armaments.

"This government is ready to ask its people to join with all nations in devoting a substantial percentage of the savings achieved by disarmament to a fund for world aid and reconstruction.

"The purpose of this great work would be: To help other peoples to develop the undeveloped areas of the world, to stimulate profitable and fair world trade, to assist all peoples to know the blessings of productive freedom."

He listed a five-point disarmament program:

1. Limitation, by fixed ceilings or by percentages, of the "military and security forces of all nations."
2. A pledge by all nations to limit production of strategic materials for military purposes.
3. International control of atomic energy for peaceful purposes "and to ensure prohibition of atomic weapons."
4. Limitation or prohibition of other weapons of "great destructiveness."
5. Enforcement of all these agreements by "adequate safeguards, including a practical system of inspection under the United Nations."

Eisenhower evidently designed his speech as the U. S. answer to the Soviet peace offensive which began immediately after Stalin's death on March 5.

PRESSES QUESTION

Today Eisenhower pressed his question about what Russia is now prepared to do about achieving real peace. He asked:

"Is the new leadership of the Soviet Union prepared to use its decisive influence in the Communist world—including control of the flow of arms—to bring not merely an expedient truce in Korea but genuine peace in Asia?

"Is it prepared to allow other nations, including those of Eastern Europe, the free choice of their own forms of government and the right to associate freely with other nations in a world-wide community of law?"

"Is it prepared to act in concert with others upon serious disarmament proposals to be made firmly effective by stringent UN controls and inspection?

"If not, where then is the concrete evidence of the Soviet Union's concern for peace?"

Dies In Flames Only 4 Feet From Safety

WATFORD, Ont. (CP)—One man was burned to death about four feet from safety when flames swept the McKinley Transport Ltd., warehouse and garage here Wednesday night for the second time in eight months. Two other men were injured, neither seriously.

Dead is William Coons, 47, of Port Credit. He was asleep in the bunk-house at the upstair rear of the building. He managed to get to the bottom of the stairs, four feet from a side door.

Destroyed in the building was a transport, a trailer and another truck in for repairs, and a large quantity of merchandise in the warehouse. Loss has been estimated at $50,000.

With Coons in the bunk-house were Joe Dalton of Forest, William McCarter of Watford, and Henry Norland of Wyoming. They escaped.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Cause of the blaze which levelled the two-storey aluminum covered frame building in a matter of minutes is unknown. Crown Attorney Shirley Logan has called in the fire marshal's office to investigate.

It is believed the blaze started in the front of the building. John Gillen, who was spraying a truck, said "everything went up in flames at once. I don't know what happened."

The fire broke out about 7 p.m. and within minutes the building was a mass of flames. For about five minutes the building was rocked with a series of explosions, and the walls were blown out, as oil, gasoline for welding work and fuel oil ignited.

Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office in Toronto at 9:30 a.m.:

Synopsis:

If winter was above average in temperature with little or no snow in these parts, then spring is trying to undo all the winter's good example. Western Canada was subjected to blizzard conditions Wednesday night and maximum temperatures are 15 to 20 degrees below normal. A low pressure area which developed into a major storm over northern Illinois has moved towards Sault Ste. Marie and carried showers across southern and central Ontario early Thursday. Westerly winds whipped colder air and snowflurries across the midwest and into Ontario during today and these conditions will continue into Friday. Maximum temperatures will vary from the low 30s in the north to the low 40s in the south.

Regional forecasts valid until midnight Friday:

Lake Erie, southern Lake Huron, Lake Ontario, Niagara regions; Windsor, London, Toronto, Hamilton cities: Cloudy with a few showers today. Cloudy with a few sunny intervals Friday. Cool. Winds westerly 20 today, northwest 20 Friday. Low tonight and high Friday at Windsor and St. Thomas 32 and 40, London 30 and 40, Toronto, St. Catharines and Hamilton 35 and 45, Trenton 33 and 40. Summary for Friday: Mostly cloudy.

Northern Georgian Bay, Kirkland Lake, Haliburton regions; Sudbury, North Bay cities: Cloudy today and Friday. Showers today. Snowflurries Friday. Cool. Winds east 15 gradually becoming northwest 15 Friday. Low tonight and high Friday at Earlton, North Bay and Sudbury 30 and 35, Killaloe 30 and 40.

Troops Help Confine Blaze At Pinery

GRAND BEND (CP)—Three hundred acres of the densely-wooded Pinery were scorched by a wind-swept blaze Wednesday but troops from Camp Ipperwash, summoned to the scene seven miles south of this Lake Huron summer resort village, were credited with confining the fire to the immediate area.

Armed with shovels, brooms and other fire-fighting equipment, the soldiers fought a desperate battle.

A strong, south wind fanned the flames at near tree-top level before other emergency crews were rushed to the scene.

But even while the fire blazed there was little fear that summer cottages and other buildings within "the Pinery" would be affected. Natural protection—the old bed of the Ausable river to the southwest, the county road to the north, and No. 21 Highway to the east—were the boundaries. There are no cottages in that area.

Allied Pilots Helpless To Attack Red Trucks

SEOUL (AP)—U.S. Sabre jets shot down two Red MiGs and damaged three today while fighter-bombers slashed at Communist front-line positions and blasted communications in North Korea.

But Allied pilots watched helplessly as hundreds of Communist supply trucks rolled toward the front down an attack-free corridor.

For the second day Allied reconnaissance pilots reported trucks moving almost bumper to bumper on North Korean roads down which the Reds are sending sick and wounded UN soldiers for exchange at Panmunjom.

On the ground front Chinese Communists struck twice in central Korea but both attacks were thrown back.

Seeing Eye Dog Cares For Two

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—A seeing eye dog who went blind after 12 years and the master he served now share a new seeing eye dog together.

For those 12 years Felix Chester and Charlie, a German shepherd, were inseparable.

Two years ago a veterinarian told Chester that Charlies was going blind, and also had developed a bad heart.

So Chester remained close to home and Charlie sat with him, woebegone and restless.

Then Chester got Howdy, a four-year-old Boxer from a seeing eye kennel. Now Howdy not only guides Chester on daily trips to town but also is an escort for Charlie.

The three walk together, Charlie close to his master's side on a leash, Howdy a step ahead in a regular seeing eye harness.

Howdy gently pushes Charlie aside when the older dog seems about to go wrong.

Russians Pushing CommunizedGermany

BONN (AP)—Western Allied officials say that despite the new Soviet campaign for a four-power conference to reunify Germany, the Russians are pushing as hard as ever for a fully communized East Germany with its own powerful Red army.

The top East German Communist, deputy premier and party secretary-general Walter Ulbricht, made big headlines in the Red press Wednesday with his statement that Moscow wants to talk reunification with Britain, the United States and France.

Allied officials said today, however, that there is not the slighest sign in East Germany that the Russians expect an early agreement with the West on Germany or intend to relax their grip on the 18,000,000 East Germans.

They said the Russians are acting as if long-range Soviet policy in Germany is unchanged—to nail down a Communist satellite regime in East Germany and thus keep Soviet power entrenched in Europe as far west as the Elbe river.

The state-directed rural revolution, the purging of anti-Communists from political and cultural groups, the terror campaign against the church, the expansion of the Communist "people's army"—all these are moving ahead in East Germany, these officials said.

The Kremlin's propaganda organization still is pouring out "hate the West" broadcasts and newspaper stories to the East German population.

An official UN spokesman said the letter dealing with resumption of armistice talks was signed by Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied armistice delegate, and addressed to North Korean Gen. Nam Il, head of the Red armistice team.

Contents of the letter will be made public when it is delivered to the Reds at Panmunjom. The UN requested the meeting of lower-level liaison officers for 8:30 a.m. Friday (6:30 p.m. EST, Thursday). It is expected to last only long enough for the UN to hand over the letter.

The Reds in the last week repeatedly asked for resumption of full-scale armistice talks. The latest request was made by Red staff officers Thursday.

Tide Damages Gaspe Villages

STE. ANNE DES MONTS, Que. (CP)—Residents of dozens of little Gaspe peninsula villages and lower St. Lawrence river south shore towns today cleaned up damage estimated at "hundreds" of thousands of dollars left by wind-lashed spring tides.

The tides, reaching a peak of 17 feet—about 12 feet above normal—were back to a regular swell today. The damage was spread along more than 150 miles of Rimouski to the Atlantic coast of Gaspe peninsula during the 24-hour nightmare which ended late Wednesday night.

At Rimouski, a small dredge was turned on its side and the wall of a Quebec hydro-electric commission building was battered in by raging waters which damaged several wharves.

FORCED TO LEAVE

A number of river ships were forced to leave and steam across the St. Lawrence river to Forestville, on the north shore.

"I've never seen anything like it in 45 years," a Rimouski resident said.

The tides, pushed by a strong northeast wind, damaged sea walls and river shore roads at various points down-stream from Rimouski.

Cellars and homes were flooded and a few families had to evacuate their homes.

FIRE-FIGHTERS' CHAPLAIN — A familiar sight at Montreal fires is the Rev. Dollard Morin, chaplain of the Montreal fire department, and his English-made automobile painted fire-engine red. Until recently Father Morin hurried to fires by taxi or street car, but firemen took up a collection and bought him the small car, complete with a red flasher light.

Easter Meeting Held By Coldsprings WA

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — The Women's Association met in the Sunday school room with the president Mrs. Clarence Brooks presiding and 18 members present.

Mrs. Carl Bowman, secretary, read the minutes and Mrs. E. Jamieson, treasurer, reported a balance of $102.65 on hand. The happy thought convener reported one card and a pot of daffodils sent to sick members. A letter of thanks was read from Miss Annie Moffatt.

It was decided to cater for a club banquet in the fall and to give $25 toward parsonage expenses.

It was decided to buy three tables for the classrooms in the Sunday school. The committee appointed were Mesdames N. McIntosh, W. McMann and A. Jamieson.

The worship service was in charge of Mrs. Allan Linton. At the front of the room was an Easter setting of the cross, candles and vases of illies.

Mrs. W. McMann gave the scripture reading and Mrs. E. May led in prayer. A reading "Love" was given by Mrs. Hilton Minifie. The topic "An Easter Message" was given by Mrs. A. Linton. Mrs. C. Timlin accompanied for the hymns.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction, after which Mrs. Arthur Buttars conducted an Easter contest. Mrs. Linton and group served lunch. The May meeting will be held May 12 at 8 p.m.

Maniacal Killer Slays 7 In Own Family

LAWRENCE, Mass. (AP)—A maniacal killer hacked and shot to death seven and possibly eight members of his family and then killed himself Wednesday night as police closed in.

Police identified him as Peter J. Akulonis, 39, of Methuen.

His victims: His mother, Mrs. Mary Akulonis, 72; his brother, Alphonse, 32, and the latter's sons James J., 5, and Paul M., 2, all found dead in Alphonse's tenement apartment in Lawrence;

Also Peter Akulonis' wife, Madelinen, and his son, Michael, 5, in their Pelham street apartment, and Akulonis' brother, Raymond, 37, fatally shot in Peter's automobile.

Missing is the killer's son, Peter Jr., about 7, who was taken out of school by his father during the day.

Peter shot himself in the head after he killed Raymond as he sat in the car beside him with police approaching.

Police said they received reports that the man had been acting strangely lately. There was no immediate motive, however, for the killings.

Base Metals Lead Decline On Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—Base metals led stock market prices lower in early afternoon stock market trading today.

Western oils and industrials slipped. Golds were mixed. Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,554,000 shares.

New Brunswick base metals weakened. Uraniums were mixed.

Industrials weakened on losses in papers, utilities, textiles and manufacturing companies. Foods and miscellaneous issues gained.

Senior golds held firm but juniors weakened. Higher-priced base metals slipped and most others followed. Leading losers were Dominion Asbestos, Hudson Bay and Normetal.

Light trading in western oils produced a majority of losses led by Pacific, Canada Southern, and Canadian Atlantic.

Curator Disputes Location Of Kandoucho

BRANTFORD (CP) — Wilfrid Jury, curator of the Museum of Indian Archeology at the University of Western Ontario, disputes the city of Brantford's claim that Brantford was the site three centuries ago of Kandoucho, principal village of the Neutral Indians.

Mr. Jury said Wednesday he believed Kandoucho was situated on the farm now owned by Hon. Ray Lawson, former lieutenant governor of Ontario, about three miles west from the heart of London.

His claim was substantiated by descriptions in the Jesuit Relations, coupled with archeological excavations in Neutral villages over a period of some 40 years.

Cobourg Municipal Workers Get 5-Cent Boost

COBOURG (ENS)—A five-cent raise in pay for municipal employees was authorized by town council when the agreement with the union (National Union Public Service Employees) was signed by representatives of the union and the mayor. General utility workers will now receive $1.12 an hour and street cleaners $1.08 for a 45 hour week.

Council received a letter from the Board of Recreational Centre which pointed out that attendance of the council appointees at the board meetings were poor. The letter was tabled for further clarification of what was meant by "council appointees" as all the members of the board are appointed by the council.

Too late to be included in the estimates, a request from the recreational centre board for extension of Furnace St. past the arena was received and filed.

Permission was granted to St. Michael's Boy Scouts for a sign outside of their quarters over the fire hall. Permission was granted to the boy scouts for a tag day on May 30.

The town engineer was authorized to call for tenders for the west end sewer extension.

The Northumberland Music Festival was given a grant of $25 by council. A letter from the Allied Labour Council advised council that the labour representatives appointed to the Industrial Commission are Frank Davidson and William Olson.

Diseases Decrease

COBOURG (ENS)—There was a big drop in new cases of communicable diseases in the Northumberland and Durham health unit area for the week ending April 11. There were only 15 new cases and there were six cases of red measles and nine of mumps.

UN Command Ask Meeting With Reds

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The United Nations command today asked the Communists for a meeting Friday to deliver a letter on the resumption of the long recessed armistice talks.

The official UN spokesman said the letter was from Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied armistice delegate, and was addressed to the head of the Communist truce delegation, North Korean Gen. Nam Il.

The contents were not divulged but will be made public when delivered to the Communists at Panmunjom.

Scout Leaders Risk Lives Fathers Told

There are 60,000 more boy scouts in the world today than before the war and 8,000 leaders from every walk of life, many of them risking their lives in foreign countries because they are scouts. This was stated by Mr. Arthur Jackson, field comissioner of Boy Scouts for Eastern Ontario, at a father and son banquet attended by 110 scouts, cubs and fathers at St. Alban's Anglican Mission Wednesday.

The scout program gives a boy something to think about 52 weeks a year, Mr. Jackson said. It is a continuous, worth-while program—something that is educational and fine.

AIDS RELIGION

Scouting helps each scout to observe his own religion more fully and draws boys of different religions more closely together, the speaker said. This helps to build up a finer and better character in each boy.

"When they have this belief there is no power or person that can break it down," the speaker concluded.

Mr. Jackson was introduced by Cyril Barnes, president of St. Alban's group committee, who acted as chairman, and thanked by Reg. Stevenson.

Dr. J. N. Perry, president of the Peterborough scout association, said that, in order to thrive, scouting needs family co-operation—the fathers to help their sons and leaders in all scout work and the mothers to take an active part in the work of the mothers' auxiliary.

BADGES PRESENTED

Dr. G. R. Langley, district commissioner, presented proficiency badges to cubs as follows: Joe Elliott, Gary Grierson, Peter Morris and Ian Young, artist and collector; Darrell Hewie, Wayne Hewie, Brian Higgs and Pat Schaefer, team player and artist; Roy Hopkins, swimmer; Paul Stevenson and David Stevenson, collector and team player; Herb Tripp, artist; Tom Wood, team player; Tony Young, artist.

Assistant district commissioner Arthur Westman presented bronze arrowhead badges to the following scouts: Robert Merritt, Roy Wood, Art Little, Brian Reid, Larry Griffin, Doug Patterson and Ted Quick.

The tables were decorated in the scout colors, gold and green, and on each table were miniature camp fires and candle-holders made by the scouts as well as bouquets of daffodils.

At the head table were Mr. Jackson, Dr. Langley, Dr. Perry, Mr. Westman, Mr. Barnes and Arthur Rose and Walter Wood, scout leaders, and A. Miller, cubmaster.

Mr. Miller moved a vote of thanks to the mothers' auxiliary for preparing the banquet. Arthur Rose led a sing-song with George Jeffries at the piano, followed by a film shown by Mr. W. Wood. The evening closed with the singing of the scouts' vesper hymn.

Regional Workers For Each Synod

GODERICH (CP)—Synod of Hamilton and London of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, in the final day of its 79th meeting Wednesday approved regional workers in Christian education for each synod. The recommendation will be passed on to the church's general board of Christian education for further consideration.

Approval was given a proposed amended constitution for a national young eople's society. It was recommended that the new organization be known as the executive council of the Young People's Societies of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The Rev. Scarth MacDonnel, Windsor, and the Rev. Forbes Thomson, Hamilton, were named to the inter-church committee for 1953.

What Is Treason?

Parliament is undertaking a thorough revision of the Criminal Code, the first overall revision since 1892. It is the most important legislation now before Parliament, for it affects the lives, habits and freedoms of fourteen million Canadians. There is little public discussion of the revision, chiefly because it is so complex and technical, and few basic changes are proposed. One of the changes is in the law of treason. The Commons Criminal Law Committee has recommended that giving a foreign state major military or scientific information should become a treasonable act. The maximum penalty for treason is the death sentence.

* * *

Treason proper, High Treason, is the violation by a subject of his allegiance to his sovereign or to the state. Allegiance is part of the condition of living in the state. A Canadian living in Canada owes allegiance to Canada whether or not he has ever sworn allegiance. But each age differs in its interpretation of that allegiance, and thus of treason. In the reign of Edward III treason was related very personally to the King's Majesty, as compassing or imagining the king's death, or that of his wife, or eldest son, violating the wife of the king or of the heir apparent, or the king's eldest daughter being unmarried, as well as levying war against the King and such generally - acknowledged treasonable acts. In Edward III's reign the legitimate succession was as important as the control of atomic knowledge is now. The old statutes remain, but the House of Commons and the Minister of Justice think the new clause should be added. Giving military or scientific information to a foreign state "is the worst kind of treason", Mr. Garson told the Senate committee which has rejected the first draft of the new clause.

* * *

We think that the Senate is right in moving cautiously. No enemy is envisaged in the clause, no state of war, no provable direct threat to the safety of the state. The clause seems too loose and inclusive, giving the Government or any of its successors (some of whom might be black-minded) theoretical power to wage blood purges. Let us take an instance which now seems fantastic. Suppose an atomic physicist in the course of duty gave some information to an American counterpart. Now, that sort of action is called healthy national co-operation. But suppose that within seven years there were great political upheavals on this continent, and the U.S. became an enemy of Canada. The physicist who gave the information could then be liable to the death penalty. Fantastic? The U.S. has charged treasonable conduct against some government agents who gave some military information to Russia, the ally of the U.S. during the common war. Giving military information to Germany in 1943 or 1944 would have been treasonable. It would not be so now. It could be in another five years, if, by evil chance, another Hitler should follow Dr. Adenauer, as the Nazis followed the friendly Weimar Republic.

* * *

The Senate suggests a maximum prison penalty for giving military or scientific information (what kind of scientific information? who is to define it?) rather than the death sentence. This would remove the crime from the category of treason. There is philosophic sense in this, and statesmanlike wisdom. A loose law of treason would be terrible in the hands of a future Canadian Stalin or Hitler.

German Chancellor In Canada

Tomorrow Chancellor Konrad Adenauer arrives in Canada for a two-day visit. It is the first time a German Chancellor has ever been in Canada, from Bismarck to Hindenburg to Hitler, up to the present holder of the office, a man of different stamp from any of his notorious predecessors.

Perhaps it is not remarkable that a German Chancellor has never visited Canada before. The country (as a nation) is three years younger than Canada; heads of European states rarely made the voyage across the Atlantic, and never to the undeveloped, unimportant Canada; and the German Chancellors have, in the main, been occupied with domestic affairs and making wars against Britain and Canada.

Dr. Adenauer is not a militarist. Son of a bourgeois family, he studied law and economics and entered municipal service in Cologne in 1906. He was Lord Mayor of Cologne from 1917 to 1933, when Hitler's ascent to power compelled him to retire from politics. During the next twelve years he became, as he says, "a very good gardener" while living in retirement near Cologne.

In June, 1945, the U.S. Military Government authorities restored him as Lord Mayor. Later in the year he became first chairman of the Christian Democratic Party. Upon the formation of the "Parliamentary Council" in Bonn to draft and approve the Constitution of the German Federal Republic (West Germany), he became its president. He was elected Chancellor of the Republic in September, 1949.

Dr. Adenauer said in accepting the Chancellorship: "The Federal Chancellor must be both a good German and a good European. I want to be both. I want to see a United Europe. Only then can my country be free". His skills in the art of compromise and negotiation and his stern simplicity have carried him and Germany through difficult years of government. His party was chiefly a personal creation, a fusion of Roman Catholics (of whom he is one) and Protestants. He was the first German leader to accomplish such a fusion in four hundred years. The March 19th vote of the German Lower House in favour of the European Defence Community, by 224 to 165 votes, was the culmination and vindication of his leadership towards a united Europe and of German acceptance of the concept.

Chancellor Adenauer is now aged seventy-seven, and twice a widower. He was arrested twice by the Gestapo during the Hitler regime and he and Mrs. Adenauer spent their silver wedding anniversary in a Nazi prison. Owing very greatly to his adroit and sound leadership, his ability to compromise and his passion for a peaceful Germany and united Europe, Dr. Adenauer has led Western Germany from chaos to stability in seven short years. Such a German is welcome in Canada.

European Defence Community Upset

The new European Army has had many rebuffs since it was conceived. It has now received a side-wallop from an unexpected quarter—from the arena of peace as implied by the Russian and Chinese proposals of the last fortnight. The European Army is intended as defence against aggressors invading or threatening any of the six member-states, and as chief ground forces for NATO. It has been put together—on paper—with great difficulties, many deep-seated national prejudices, and conflicting national interests. Agreement between Germany and France has been especially hard to reach.

The German Bundesdag has at last approved the European Defence Community Treaty. Agreement has been reached on the French demands for "supplementary protocols". These make special stipulations about France's commitments. It has been felt in France that the E.D.C. Treaty might, in operation, put France in one of two awkward positions: she would have to neglect the defence of her overseas empire in order to play her full role in Europe, or, if she put her overseas responsibilities first, she might find herself playing second fiddle to Germany inside the Defence Community. These details and problems have been smoothed over, if not ironed out. Compromises have been reached, whereby France obligates herself to contribute men, officers and munitions according to the secret schedules, but may increase when necessary her armament production for arming the overseas force. Similarly, with the consent of the Supreme Commander of NATO, she may withdraw units from the E.D.C. for service overseas, and interchange officer cadres.

Just as apparent agreement had been reached, the Russian and Chinese peace bombs exploded. No other blast could so effectively have shaken the lattice-work of the European Army. If the immediate urgency of a highly trained, numerously recruited European Army is relaxed—as the possibility of peace has indicated to some hopeful people, no longer will the force of necessity overcome national bickerings and conflicts about the composition and operation of the European Army. It will be one of the least popular armies ever created if the taxpayers and parents of France, Germany and the other signatories to the E.D.C. begin to think that it is not needed, because the Russian menace has abated. The separate Governments will too readily back down on their commitments, seek further discussion and privileges, and generally stall the Army's march.

The European Army is on paper. The possibility of a peaceful settlement of the Cold War will not hasten the process of changing figures on paper schedules to uniformed men on the ground. France in particular will stall, confounded as she already is by fears of Germany, by domestic crisis, and by the demands of the war in Indo-China. The French Parliament has yet to ratify the EDC treaty.

NOTES AND COMMENT

"No woman likes a perfect husband", says a columnist, but we have yet to meet the woman who had a chance to make this decision.

Travel Easier In Czar's Day

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

THE late Ernest Bevin, when British Foreign Secretary was once asked to define his foreign policy. He replied: "To (be able to) go to Victoria Station, get a railway ticket, and go where the hell I like, without passport or anything else."

That that glorious day is still a long way off is evidenced by a UNESCO publication recently issued on "Travel Abroad." Though this work is primarily intended for students and others with an educational aim in view, its information, covering practically every country in the world except Communist China, applies with almost equal force to any other kind of modern traveller.

❖ ❖ ❖

ITS aim is to smooth his path by explaining in detail what formalities must be observed to enter a given country and what facilities are available. The facilities, despite the listing of cultural bodies who are eager to help and of railways which offer reductions, are far outnumbered by the obstacles put in the traveller's way by the governments of countries concerned.

Before the 1914-18 war the Russian and Turkish Empires were virtually the only countries which demanded the production of passports. Today there is not a single country, in or out of the United Nations, which does not demand them (except for limited reciprocal arrangements like that between the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland) plus often a whole host of other requirements besides, and some countries are as hard to leave as they are to enter.

❖ ❖ ❖

A RESIDENT of Argentina, for instance, before leaving his own country, must produce a valid passport, a good-conduct certificate, and a document certifying to taxes paid. He may take out as many Argentine pesos as he cares, but will find little use for them elsewhere, and if he wants any foreign currency at all he must have a special authorisation from the Central Bank.

An intimidating footnote reads thus: "All persons entering Argentine on identity card, transit visa, tourist visa or temporary visa must obtain a control card from immigration authorities immediately upon entry. This card must be submitted to police headquarters .... within 72 hours of arrival. The police will enter on the card (a) the date up to which the person concerned may stay in Argentina, and (b) a statement that no remunerative employment may be undertaken in Argentina. The control card is required when booking travel ticket to leave Argentina."

❖ ❖ ❖

THESE regulations alone are considerably more onerous than those imposed on foreign travellers by Czarist Russia, but they are no greater than those in existence in most countries today, and considerably less than those obtaining in some. Of all the nations listed in the survey, Canada is about the most liberal, particularly to residents of the Commonwealth, France and her North American island possessions, and the United States.

For travellers from other countries than these, however, even Canada is tougher than the pre-war Czarist regime, as is shown by these extracts from "The Tourist's Russia" published in 1912. "No single obstacle," says the lady author, who travelled around most of European Russia, "had had more influence in deterring tourist traffic to Russia than the passport bogie. This much misunderstood document is required merely as an evidence of identity, and will be found quite as convenient in calling for mail or gaining entrance to certain institutions, as it is considered necessary by the Government of Russia. The Russians, who are more formal in such matters than the rest of Europe, demand the presentation of the passport at the frontier and upon taking lodgings, but this requirement in no way obstructs the admittance of properly accredited travellers."

❖ ❖ ❖

SHE ENDS her chapter soothingly: "By the time the tourist says good-bye to Russia, his horror of the 'passport system' will have turned to tolerance for a trivial formality."

How different the situation today, as witness the UNESCO report.

❖ ❖ ❖

CERTAIN unhappy realities of international politics are reflected in its unemotional pages. India, for instance, allows entry on passport alone to nationals of British Commonwealth countries "with the exception of persons of non-Indian origin domiciled in the Union of South Africa" and visiting Pakistanis must have a special entry permit issued by the High Commissioner of India in Pakistan. The Pakistans have similar regulations in reverse.

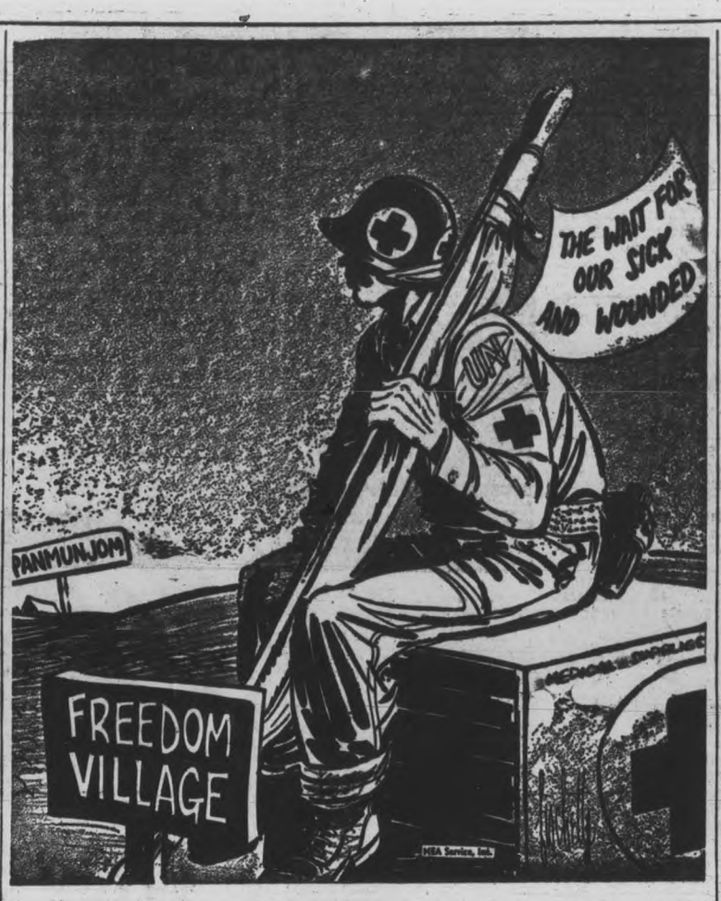
It is not altogether surprising, however regrettable, that Syria will issue no visas to persons holding Israel passports or persons whose passports are visaed for Israel, but by Saudi Arabia carries this principle to extremes by adding that it will not issue a visa "to a person of Jewish faith." Israel, creditably, has no discriminatory clauses of any kind, merely requiring the possession of a valid passport and an entry visa.

❖ ❖ ❖

IT COMES as no surprise that the Union of South Africa refers to "Nationals of the United Kingdom and all persons who are British subjects by birth and of European origin," implicitly excluding non-European British subjects, but one would not expect New Zealand to say "N. B. All persons not wholly of European race, whether British or non-British, should obtain prior approval" before contemplating a journey to New Zealand. Peru says flatly: "Persons of Mongoloid or Negroid race are not allowed to enter Peru in transit, with the exception of those whose mother tongue is Spanish."

"Travel Abroad" went to press before the McCarran Act added to the difficulties and delays of entering the United States, and it gives one the idea that it is perfectly easy to breach the Iron Curtain: The Soviet Union and her satellites blandly aver that they require nothing but a valid passport and an entry visa— but they don't tell you how likely they are to grant you the visa.

❖ ❖ ❖



IN ALL, the picture is a gloomy one, but with courage, tenacity, a valid passport, entry-visas, exit-visas, assorted health certificates, certificates of good conduct, safe-conducts, photography in quadruplicate, and the approved racial, religious and linguisitic background, it is still possible to travel at least to some parts of this shrinking globe. However, it is wise to make a close study of this valuable publication before setting out lightheartedly for your Union Station with the idea of taking a ticket to Timbuktu or Tibet.

One ray of light has just pierced the gloom in Europe. The Council of Europe's sub-committee on simplification of frontier formalities, meeting in Dublin, has suggested only this month that the reciprocal arrangments between Britain and Ireland, and between the Scandinavia countries, be extended to other groups of States. And I hear that the Arab League States are now negotiating similar mutual arrangements.

❖ ❖ ❖

IF it is too much to hope that the United Nations may one day follow this tentative lead, perhaps at least other regional organisations may notice it. It would be only logical for the Organization of American States to do so, for practically every one of its member States has a constitution and a national anthem in which the word "Liberty" is prominent, and that presumably includes liberty to go where "the hell you like."

Castles Going Cheap In Scotland

(HALIFAX CHRONICLE-HERALD)

A REPORT in the Edinburgh Weekly Scotsman draws attention to the curious fact that in many parts of Scotland today—and the same is true of England—castles are "going cheap." So cheap, in fact, that one ducal owner of an ancestral pile is prepared to rent the same, handsomely furnished, for the very modest sum of £12 per week. Ducal splendor, at the current economic rate of exchange, would therefore cost a prospective Canadian tenant little more than is frequently being paid for very unpretentious accommodations in most Canadian cities.

The obverse side of the same problem is to be seen in the fact that the humble cottage at the castle gates now compares favorably with the more grandiose neighbour as a desirable residence. While the market in castles is glutted, in cottages it is essentially a seller's market.

So sought after are the smaller type of housing units that the humble pre-fab and its slightly more pretentious relation, the villa, are now commanding a price which owes its height to a scarcity value, and which compares most uneconomically with that being asked for a genuine Georgian mansion, complete with Adam mantels, four-poster beds, suits of armor and possibly even a resident ghost.

The prevalence of castles to rent, however remarkable it may appear, will hardly occasion surprise when the practical disadvantages of such palatial residences are weighed against their romantic glamor. Yew alleys and formal gardens are very beautiful in the evening sun, with the peacocks flaunting their argus-eyed tails across the sward, but they call for a large and expensive gardening staff for their maintenance.

Rambling galleries with turret stairs and mullioned windows are a boon to the romantic who seeks to recreate the grace of an earlier age, but they entail a vast roof area, which has to be kept in repair.

Kitchens large enough to roast an ox (and, incidentally, to freeze anything or anyone who strays more than two feet from the fire) may have been well enough for an age when there were oxen to roast, but they consort ill with the predilections and demands of a modern cook and kitchen staff.

The massive fireplace, built to contain half a cord of wood at one firing, may enhance the proportions of an end wall, but it belongs to a day which is (or was) happily ignorant of fuel rationing.

The dereliction of the castle may indeed be a trend of the times, but it is surely an unfortunate one. The way of life which the castle enshrined was, of course, a privileged one, but that privilege was balanced by a sense of responsibility which was on the whole gladly accepted by the castle-dwellers.

The last remnant of feudalism the castle may have been, but it was a picturesque remnant. Its passing will be regretted, not only by the sentimentalist, but also by many who had an appreciative eye for the gracious living and the quiet dignity of an economically less stringent age. It is a great loss that the future of castles should be, like many castles themselves, in the air.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea . . . And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away.

And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful . . . And there came unto me one of the seven angels which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come hither, I will shew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife. And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and shewed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, having the glory of God. (Rev. 21: 1, 3-5, 9-11.)

❖ ❖ ❖

And he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb. In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations . . .

And I John saw these things, and heard them. And when I had heard and seen, I fell down to worship before the feet of the angel which shewed me these things.

Then saith he unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellowservant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the sayings of this book: worship God . . . Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city. (Rev. 22: 1, 2, 8, 9, 14.)

Borden Monument

(London Free Press.)

Canadian sculptors will be invited to enter a competition to design a $50,000 bronze monument of Sir Robert Borden, to be set up in Ottawa. It is hoped to have the work completed and ready for unveiling, June 6, 1954, the 100th anniversary of the birth of this illustrious Canadian.

The Capital has several fine statues, and one of the Conservative leader who guided Canada during the trying days of World War I ought to be added to the roster. Incidentally, Canadian cities generally are not monument-conscious. Outside of Ottawa, Montreal, and possibly Toronto, we have almost none.

London, for example, might have one of Beck or Carling or Sir Charles Saunders. But we have none. Our hall of fame—such as we have—exists only in memory.

A BRITISH OPINION

THAT'S TORN IT

Meyer Sets Down Pirates 4-2 Brooklyn's First Trade Dividend

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sport Writer

Russ Meyer Wednesday gave Brooklyn Dodgers the first major dividend from the winter's biggest player trade when he set down Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 on eight hits to pull the Bums into a first-place tie in the National League with the rain-idled Milwaukee Braves.

Meyer struck out seven Pirates, walked only one and didn't allow anybody to get as far as third base in eight of the nine innings. The only Pittsburgh runs came on a two-run homer by Johnny Lindell, former New York Yankee outfielder who is trying a comeback as a knuckleball pitcher.

Only three games were played in the major leagues. In addition to Brooklyn's victory, Philadelphia Phils whipped New York Giants 8-1 in the National League and New York Yankees defeated Philadelphia As 4-1 in the American League.

RAINED OUT

St. Louis Cardinals were rained out at Milwaukee as were Cincinnati Redlegs at Chicago. Wet grounds and cold weather cancelled the Detroit at St. Louis and Washington at Boston encounters in the American League. Cleveland and Chicago in the American League weren't scheduled.

Meyer came to Brooklyn two months ago today in a complicated swap involving four other players and half of the National League clubs.

The merry-go-round started when Philadelphia Phils sent Meyer and some cash to Boston Braves in exchange for first baseman Earl Torgeson. The Braves switched Meyer to Brooklyn and took in return rookie outfielder Jim Pendleton and utility infielder Rocky Bridges. Bridges, in turn, was moved to Cincinnati where the Braves picked up first baseman Joe Adcock. The Redlegs still have another player to come—or cash.

HAVE BEST OF IT

So far the Dodgers have all the best of it. Torgeson has only one hit in two games with the Phils—a double in six tries. Adcock, who made still another move when the Braves shifted from Boston to Milwaukee, has singled and doubled in seven times at bat. Neither Bridges nor Pendleton has played.

Little Bobby Shantz pitched well enough Wednesday to win his return to regular competition, but his Philadelphia teammates let him down. Two of the Yankee runs came after errors and a third was a pure gift.

First baseman Eddie Robinson forgot to bend over for a grounder by Johnny Mize and it went for a single. Gene Woodling followed with a long fly to centre which Gus Zernial misjudged and Mize scored. Woodling got another double, entirely deserved, in the seventh inning to score another run. Allie Reynolds was the winning Yankee pitcher.

ORIOLES GET KAZANSKI

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday optioned rookie shortstop Ted Kazanski to Baltimore of the International League. Kazanski is the youngster to whom the Phillies are reported to have paid an $80,000 bonus to sign. He impressed the Phillies' high command in spring training with his fielding, but failed to hit in major league style.

ACTION AT SECOND—Hank Bauer, of the New York Yankees, is forced out at second base on teammate Mickey Mantle's grounder in the fourth inning at the Yankee Stadium. The Yanks lost to the Philadelphia A's, 5-0. Facing the camera is the A's second baseman, Cass Michaels, putting Bauer out.

Dutchmen Clip Rideaus 6-4 In Series

KITCHENER (CP)—Home ice could be the deciding factor in the Eastern Canada senior hockey finals.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen played the first two games of their best-of-seven series with Smiths Falls Rideaus at Smiths Falls and lost both to the Ottawa valley champs 6-2 and 2-0.

Wednesday night the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A titleholders came home and won their first game of the Allan Cup semi-final 6-4. Fourth game is scheduled here Friday night.

The Dutchies were allowed two first-period goals by the visitors and for the rest of the game were matched goal for goal. At the end of the second it was 3-2 for the home side and for a short time in the third Smiths Falls tied the score.

GO INTO LEAD

In the first period Art Hurst and Don Rope sent the Dutchmen into their lead. Art Webster broke into the scoring column for Smiths Falls after eight minutes of play in the second, but Kitchener's Jack McKenzie scored a goal that was protested by the Rideaus to make it 3-1. Smiths Falls argued that referee Andy Bellemer had blown the whistle before the goal was scored. The goal stood. Stu Smith notched another for the visitors before the end of the period to make it 3-2.

John Muretich knotted the count early in the third before Howie Lee again sent Kitchener ahead. Muretich fired his second of the night at the eight-minute mark to deadlock the score again.

SLAMS HOME WINNER

Maurice Leveque slammed home the winner eight minutes before the end of the game and Bobby Schnurr notched the clincher at the final whistle. Schnurr's goal was scored into an empty net after coach Hal Dewey lifted goaltender Johnny Craig in the last 35 seconds in an attempt to tie the score.

The game, attended by 6,597 fans was delayed 15 minutes when bulbs from an auxiliary lighting ramp exploded over the ice when the ramp broke from its moorings.

Strong Men, Foot Fighters Besides Speedy Pair Combine On Pro Mat Card

Two strong men, two fast men and two foot boxers from Thailand combined to dish up an exciting mat card at the Brock Arena last night for a goodly gathering of fans. The strong ones were Hans Hermann and Timothy Geohagen; the speedy duo were Pat Flanagan and Ben Sherman; while the Siamese boxers were Chalerm and Banchong—their last names being unpronounceable and practically unspellable.

WOMAN'S WORLD—Masako Katsura became the first woman ever to compete in the World's Three-Cushion Tournament when the Japanese phenomenon engaged the masters at Chicago's Town Hall.

The horrible Hun won the deciding fall over popular Timothy in six minutes of the final round when he was practically unconscious in an upright position in the corner from Tim's "Irish sleeper". Huge Hans suddenly fell back on Tim and his weight advantage kept the Irisher down for the one-two-three count in a surprise ending. Tim appeared to have him until the sudden turn of events saddened the crowd.

MUCH HEAVIER

Tim gave away a lot of height and plenty of weight to Hans, who went 274 pounds—Geohagen being 226—but the Irish strong man was fast and actually better in straight mat work, besides being just as strong apparently as the big Teuton. However, the latter applied a lot of villainous grips and was slow in breaking them when ordered by Referee Sam Gotter. Both grapplers had somewhat similar pet holds, the "Prussian squeeze" and the "Irish sleeper." They were sort of standup headlocks with leverage applied to the sides of the neck to produce unconsciousness. Tim won his fall with his "sleeper" in nine minutes after a lot of rough stuff and plenty of action. He then walked over his prostrate foe in retaliation for the German doing that earlier on him.

Hans took the opening fall in 22 minutes with his Prussian grip after a vicious softening-up process on Geohagen. He gave him the works toward the last, though earlier Tim had demonstrated his strength and all-around mat ability to good advantage to the fans' delight. Referee Gotter missed a lot of illegal tactics by Hans and also was slow in breaking up unwarranted holds by the strutting German, who angered the crowd with his goose step, his Nazi salute and frequent guttural grunts of "swine" to his opponent and ringside fans. When he flattened Tim for the opening fall, he stepped contemptuously on his foe's prostrate form before leaving the ring to thunderous boos.

ODD FIGHTING

The semi-final was met with mixed feeling by the fans to the tune of Oriental music. It was something new here, this Siamese boxing, following a prayerful ritual beforehand. The opponents wore gloves and boxed as well as used their feet in sudden high kicks, with everything going in their type of scrapping. It went to a draw in three two-minute rounds after plenty of hard punching, some solid kicking to the head and several knockdowns on either side. While it was lively and hard, the fans didn't seem to appreciate this sort of boxing on a grapple card.

Pat Flanagan, at 231, had to hustle in a dandy prelim to pin 206-pound Ben Sherman in 23 minutes. He did the trick with a reverse full nelson after a rolling cradle which stunned Ben, but pleased the fans. The lighter and shorter man—a former light-heavyweight junior champion, that weight going up to 210 pounds—proved a nasty character, being fast, strong and full of unethical tactics. They started cleanly enough and served up a dish of smart stuff for a space, but Ben played it real rough later. He slid out of good grips just like Sliding Billy Hanson and gave the speedy and colorful Flan quite a time of it as they mixed hard to keep the place in an uproar. Following a hot bit of tussling in and out of the ring, they swung punches, and then Pat got Ben tied up in the cradle hold and rolled him dizzy before pinning his shoulders.

Wagering Records Broken At Track

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — All wagering records for harness racing were broken Wednesday night as a track-record crowd of 30,476 bet $1,550,923 at the opening of Yonkers Raceway's 34-night spring meeting.

The total handle for the eight races bettered the previous mark of $1,543,642 established at Yonkers last November.

The featured race, the $9,150 Inaugural pace, was won by Wilmington's Star, a four-year-old son of Wilmington-Miss Mc Stone, owned by R. L. Craig of Urbana, Ohio. The big crowd, in a betting mood, made Wilmington's Star the favorite, and set a U.S. one-race betting record on the race.

A total of $240,635, went through the mutuel windows on the featured sixth race, breaking the one-race total of $234,553 set at Yonkers Nov. 15, 1951.

H. Roberts Leads

H. Roberts rolled high three of 817 and top single of 358 this week in the Major Bowling League. Plazas' 3,495 was best pinnage, while 1,281 was high single for teams, Paramounts hitting that mark. The 7-0 wins went to Cherney over Bickell, D & W against Sunshine, and Clapper over Crowley; the 5-2 victories were taken by Paramounts, Plazas, Hollingsworth, Revenoors, Wonder, Selkirk and Edward's respectively over Burtol, Herb's, McLeod's, Examiner, E & B, UE and Studebaker. The Brewers won 4-3 from OPP.

Good scores included: J. Dormer 722, G. Niles (342) 746, J. Barnes (338) 708, W. Boon 703, E. Downer 706, A. Caccavella 795, D. Moriority (307) 798, A. Mattucci 758, G. Stevens 723, G. Baird 725, P. Walker 740 and a single of 320 by J. Wilson.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Well, it's do or die for Boston Bruins tonight in Montreal. A win for Canadiens gives the Habs the Stanley Cup by four games to one. A victory for Bruins keeps the latter in the hunt on the short end of a 3-2 series score, with the scene switching this weekend to Boston. But that 3-1 lead Dick Irwin's squad have pretty nearly assures them of the battered and historical mug put up by Lord Stanley 60 years ago. Bruins would have to be real miracle men to sweep the next three against a classy club like Canadiens. True, they upset Detroit Wings in semi-finals, but they didn't win any three straight in the series. But we'd sure like to see 'em prolong the final set.

* * * * * *

According to Baz O'Meara, Montreal writer, Irvin (Ace) Bailey has been penalty timekeeper for the cup finals in Boston. That strikes us as a bit odd since it was in Boston back in 1933 that Eddie Shore crashed him to the ice and finished Bailey's NHL playing career. The high-scoring Leafian forward (who had signed with Toronto after helping the Petes win OHA senior honors in 1926) suffered a severe head injury in the crash. It nearly killed him and later he had to confine his hockey activity to being bench coach for a few seasons with Varsity. He acted as referee here a year ago at the NHL oldtimers' game. Irvin has a business now in Welland.

Reserved Seats Going

Senior lacrosse club here this summer will have 600 reserved seat holders at every game if gutted-stick fans continue to seek the $10 season ducats as they have in recent weeks. About 450 sold with 150 left to go by a week from this Friday. Half of these seats are located on each side of Miller Bowl in the centre section. Holders will see at least 15 home games for the schedule, depending on how it is drawn up, and get first call on the same seats for OLA and Eastern Canada playoffs, always provided the Petes make these series. Bob Thorpe will have his full squad out next week for nightly workouts, having over 20 prospects (including all of last year's champs) on the tryout list. Moon Wootton's hockey-bruised foot is okay now.

* * * * * * *

The Petes are objecting to the OLA on Toronto Yorks' proposed switch to Orillia. Yorks were granted a lot of concessions when Don Holden promised to revive senior lacrosse in Toronto. Orillia was seriously thinking of entering senior "A" ranks this year, but now Holden is taking the Yorks out of Toronto to combine with Orillia and grab off the juicy gates in their new arena at Orillia. Thus, there would be one club between Toronto and Orillia, instead of the two in the senior setup. We imagine other OLA clubs will support the Petes' stand on this matter at the OLA annual meeting in Toronto on Saturday. Otherwise, there shouldn't be too much in the way of controversy at this session.

Petes Calling It A Day

Reversing their decision of a week ago, the senior Petes' ball club, at a slim turnout last eve, decided against applying for entry into the Lakeshore League this season. They'll suspend operations for the year. Some of the better players like Bill Huntley, Joe Stewart, Al Menzies and Bill Edger, may accept invitations to play for Lindsay or some other Lakeshore Loop club this summer. Only Jack McNamara of the 1952 executive and just three players, along with a few other interested persons, attended last night's meeting. With that soft of interest, it was felt that there was no point in applying for entry in a league this semester. Too bad, but what could they do? Meantime, the local junior Liflocs will represent the city in the league.

Siamese foot fighting is something to see. A pair from Thailand demonstrated it at the Brock last night, wearing boxing gloves and bare feet—and using both fists and feet equally well. Plenty of hard slugging, and apparently few rules in this odd type of scrapping. We rather enjoyed it, though some of the mat fans on deck seemed to prefer wrestling, which is natural enough at a grapple show. Goose-stepping Hans Hermann won an unpopular deciding fall over popular Timothy Geohagen in the main bout, while Pat Flanagan downed Ben Sherman in the prelim, a right lively match. There's talk of having a tag team bout here next week as the spring season progresses.

Cincinnati Takes 2-0 Lead In Series

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Cincinnati scored two goals in the first period, then went on to defeat Johnstown 4-1 Wednesday night to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series for the U.S. Amateur Hockey Association's senior open championship.

The score was the same as in Tuesday night's opening contest.

Goals by Russ Kowalchuk and Art Rose sent the winners of the International Hockey League playoff into the lead. Midway in the second period Don Hall scored Johnstown's lone goal with Del Topoll counting again for Cincinnati shortly afterwards. Cincinnati's Bill Sinnett tallied an insurance marker in the final period.

Coach Cleared Of Charges In Gambling Suit

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Adolph Rupp, Kentucky's veteran basketball coach, has been cleared of charges in a $500,000 gambling loss suit.

Allegations against the coach were stricken from the record Wednesday by a ruling of federal Judge H. Church Ford. Rupp's counsel asserted the charges were sham and false.

The jurist later dismissed the suit as a whole.

Judge Ford directed the charges against Rupp stricken "for lack of authority to maintain the action." He said the suit, which listed Mrs. Lucille Chumbley Bradberry as plaintiff, was filed "to gain notoriety."

"The first that Mrs. Bradberry knew of the suit was when she saw it in newspapers and heard it broadcast. . . . ," Ford added.

The action, filed by J. A. Edge, a 77-year-old lawyer, sought to recover three times the amount claimed lost at gambling by George Chumbley and others. Chumbley is Mrs. Bradberry's brother.

Old Country Soccer Scores

LONDON (Reuters) — Arsenal climbed to the top of the English soccer league Wednesday with a 4-1 victory over Bolton Wanderers at Highbury.

The Gunners have the same won-lost record as Wolverhampton Wanderers, but have a better goal average and also two games in hand.

Preston North End, idle with the Wolves in Wednesday's limited schedule, now are a single point behind in third place.

Other games had no effect on league standings.

Langlois Wins Verdict Over Joe Miceli

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Frenchman Pierre Langlois came back after two early knockdowns Wednesday night to punch out a 10-round decision over Joe Miceli of New York in the main event at the Miami Beach Auditorium.

Langlois, the fourth-ranking middleweight, hit the deck in the second and third rounds as Miceli landed with his unorthodox southpaw uppercuts.

But the rugged Frenchman rushed to the attack in the fourth and was clearly the best in the late rounds of a battle that delighted an audience of 3,652.

Langlois weighed in at 158½. Miceli, the fourth-ranking welterweight, came in at 150.

TO RUN INTERCOUNTY

KITCHENER (CP)—John Gillies, 29-year-old London lawyer, Wednesday was appointed administrator of the Senior Ontario Intercounty Baseball for the 1953 season.

The post was created this year by the senior clubs.

Gillies will preside at all meetings of the Senior Intercounty Association and will have the right to penalize any team or player. His decision will be final on all matters.

He played senior baseball with London Majors from 1942 to 1947 and with Strathroy intermediates in 1948-49.

He will take office at once.

Watson Changes His Tune About Flyers

BARRIE (CP)—"A pig sty," sneered Phil Watson, outspoken coach of Quebec Citadelles.

He was referring to the Barrie Arena, site of tonight's second game of the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup series.

The home of Barrie Flyers, Citadelles rival for the eastern junior hockey title, has been a frequent target for the Citadelle management ever since owner Frank Byrne tagged it a chicken coop a couple of seasons ago.

". . . One game is too much in that pig sty," said Watson. The game is the only one of the best-of-seven series to be played here. The series moves to Quebec for games Saturday and Monday. The winner will meet either Lethbridge Native Sons or St. Boniface Canadiens in the Memorial Cup final.

CHANGES TUNE

Watson, who praised Barrie's Hap Emms as a great coach prior to Quebec's 9-2 drubbing by Barrie Tuesday night in Toronto, changed his tune.

Today, he said he was "sick and tired" of hearing Emms referred to constantly as the greatest coach in the world.

"Just wait till we get them in Quebec. We're going to win this series yet and Emms is going to be the laughing stock of the country."

No Ontario team has ever beaten the Citadelles in Quebec.

Emms had a few barbs to toss himself. The Barrie coach said the Citadelles are considered so poorly in Barrie that the fans aren't even interested in seeing them play. Early sale for tonight's game has been slow after the fans learned the outcome of the first game.

"The Cits just aren't a good drawing card any more," said Emms. "Except for Watson, who can't say anything intelligent anyway, there isn't any color on the team at all."

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston hockey fans saw the Bruins win the Stanley Cup on their own ice for the first time, 14 years ago today, when they defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1 in the fifth game of a best-of-seven final. Boston first won the Stanley Cup in 1929, and after the 1939 triumph they won it again in 1941.

MAN AT WORK — Rocky Marciano is back at Holland, Mich., punching sparring partners and the big and small bags in preparation for his title defense against Jersey Joe Walcott. The 15-round match was postponed until May 15.

Basketball Final To Be Played

EDMONTON (CP)—Two impressive records go on the line tonight when Toronto Nortown Tri-Bells and University of Alberta Golden Bears meet in the first game of the Canadian senior men's basketball final.

If statistics mean anything, the edge in the best-of-five series goes to Tri-Bells. In 33 games to date they have lost only three, all to American teams.

Alberta has a count of 29 wins and seven losses. All defeats came in the western intercollegiate playoffs. Golden Bears went through the regular season of the four-team Alberta provincial league unscathed.

Toronto, a non-league team, had to be content with exhibition games this year. They took the Southern Ontario title against Tillsonburg Livingstons, Canadian champions last year, in straight games and handed out the same treatment to Sault Ste. Marie Gunners in the Ontario final and to Ottawa Brookes in the eastern Canada final.

Washington Hopes To Open Ball Season

WASHINGTON (AP) — The weatherman held out some hope today that President Eisenhower might at last open the Washington baseball season.

It has been pretty much of off-again-on-again proposition ever since the president got his invitation to throw out the traditional first pitch.

The ceremony was set for 2 p.m. EST today, but there remained a chance that rain might wash out the ball game between Washington Senators and New York Yankees.

The weatherman said showers were possible.

The Washington club's first three games already have been called off because of adverse weather conditions.

RAINED OUT

The Senators and the Yankees were supposed to play each other last Monday with Vice-President Nixon substituting as lead-off pitcher for Eisenhower—in Georgia on a golfing vacation. It rained. No game.

This afternoon's scheduled game is the make-up date for the postponed Monday game. The Senators and Yankees are due to play again at night.

Bob Porterfield was named to pitch for the Senators in the afternoon and Walt Masterson tonight. Johnny Sain and Whitey Ford were picked for the Yankees pitching assignments.

Olympic Group Discusses Fees

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The International Olympic Committee informally discussed the possibility of charging Olympic athletes entry fees or requiring them to pay their own expenses in an effort to reduce the number of participants in the games.

Wednesday's meeting, preliminary to the formal sessions which start Friday, was closed to the press.

Delegates said the discussions did not take in what is expected to be the principal business of the meeting—the decision whether the 1956 games will be held in Melbourne, Australia, or elsewhere. A three-man delegation from Australia is ready to present reports on Melbourne's preparations and the financing of the games which it expects will convince the IOC the games should not be shifted.

Patrick Trying Desperately To Break Boston's Slump

MONTREAL (CP)—Armchair coaches and the experts agree that coach Lynn Patrick's hopes of keeping Boston in the Stanley Cup hunt depend on whether he can get the Bruins "up" for their game against Montreal tonight. Canadiens only need to win tonight's game to take the Stanley Cup for the first time since 1946. They lead the best-of-seven final series 3-1.

Even Patrick admits his team is in a serious slump. Sugar Jim Henry says he will be back in the Boston nets and "I hope it will give the team a lift."

Patrick isn't so sure Sugar Jim will be in condition. The Bruins coach thinks he might have to go along with Gordon (Red) Henry, who replaced his namesake when Sugar Jim twisted his ankle in a game in Montreal last week.

HAS SYMPATHY

Dick Irvin, veteran coach of Montreal, said: "I feel sorry for Lynn. The same thing happened to us a couple of years ago. We eliminated Detroit in six games and then lost in five to Toronto. I just couldn't get the team 'up' for the Toronto series."

If the Bruins win tonight the next game of the series will be played in Boston Saturday afternoon. Boston Garden has been booked for a religious convention Saturday night and Sunday. A Saturday afternoon game will be something new for Stanley Cup play.

Injuries to goalkeepers have played a major role in the series. Both teams have been affected.

Gerry McNeil of Montreal returned after voluntarily leaving the Canadiens goal early in the series. He came back with a bad ankle which has to be frozen before he gets on the ice.

Marc Sheldon Wins Acclaim Of Audiences In London

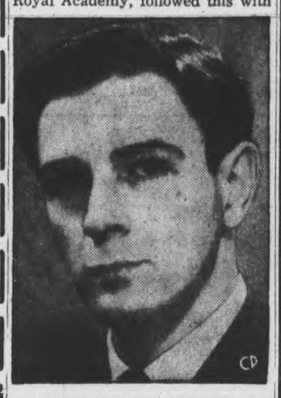
By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Montreal's Marc Sheldon walked past a certain movie house in London's Leicester House, then stopped and stared. The object of his attention was a huge, larger-than-lifesize picture —of Marc Sheldon.

"It's just one of those flukes," says the young Canadian actor, known to Montrealers as Joseph Marcel Sharko. Sheldon has only a small part in "Street Corner," the film the poster advertised, but the poster is so eye-catching it's practically a London landmark.

The dark, 22-year-old actor even rates more space on the poster than the star of the film, British actress Peggy Cummins. Sheldon plays an American soldier in "Street Corner," a story about British policewomen that also features Anne Crawford. Though he has only a minor part, he's headed for better things.

STUDENT OF DRAMA



Sheldon came to London "strictly on spec" in January, 1950, after a year at the New York Academy of Dramatic Art, won scholarships at London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, and now has signed a seven-year contract with an Anglo-American company (Music Corporation of America).

Sheldon spent 10 years of his childhood in the Protestant foster home centre, Montreal. He has won his way to a good contract through a combination of lucky breaks and talent. "Maybe next time I'm postered in the west end, folks will know who I am," he said in an interview. He now is under consideration for three different film parts.

So far, most of his entertainment career has been in radio and television. He came to London with no plans, won the first Irene Van Brugh scholarship awarded at the Royal Academy, followed this with a Baron Parfumo grant for French acting at the academy, and ended his two years with a coveted diploma.

Next followed eight weeks in the television serial "The Broken Horseshoe," a story about doping of racehorses. This was later filmed, starring Robert Beatty, formerly of Hamilton, Ont., and is still to be released.

The slim, studious-looking Montrealer valued the experience of working with Beatty and hopes to have the chance of studying other talented actors on future film sets. Another lucky break was getting the part of an RAF radar officer in the film "Malta Story," starring such well-known performers as Alex Guinness, Flora Robson and Jack Hawkins.

MONTREALER ABROAD—A larger-than-lifesize poster of Marc Sheldon, 22, Montreal actor, is outside a London movie theatre. The young actor says it's just a "fluke," since he has only a small role in the film being advertised. However, after two years of television, stage and screen performances in England he hopes for bigger things.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF FREEDOM—This is an aerial view of the freedom site outside of Panmunjom, Korea, where UN and Communist sick and wounded prisoners will be exchanged. In the background are the negotiators' conference house and tents. Foreground are U.S. Engineers preparing the exchange and receiving buildings.

Tea And Concert Planned By St. Andrew's WA

WESTWOOD (ENS)—Mrs. W. W. Graham was hostess to St. Andrew's Women's Association.

Mrs. Ronald Warner, vice-president, conducted the business session in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. S. Sargent.

Mrs. Aubrey Wood was appointed delegate to the WA Presbytery in St. James' Church, Peterborough, April 23.

Final arrangements were made for a variety concert in Westwood community hall, April 22.

A coronation tea was planned for May 27 at the home of Mrs. W. W. Graham.

Miss Marjorie Huffman took charge of a devotional period on the theme, "Love and Christianity," and led in prayer. The scripture reading was read by Mrs. E. Sargent and a reading, entitled "April," was given by Mrs. Aubrey Wood.

Following a hymn, read in unison, a Biblical contest on the New Testament was won by Mrs. E. Sargent.

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. James Ford, served lunch.

The Hudson's Bay Company post known as Nipigon House was first established on Lake Nipigon in 1775.

Urges Private Investor Return To Bolster Foreign Investments

By FORBES RHUDE

TORONTO (CP)—Countries wishing to attract foreign money must put out the welcome mat, Keith Funston, president of the New York stock exchange, said today in an address prepared for the Empire Club of Canada.

Urging that private money return to the foreign investment field, Mr. Funston said contributions by the governments of the United States and Canada to world recovery and mutual defence, though they had been vital, were admittedly "stop-gaps, not too much admired by the giver or the receiver."

"It is high time that government backed out of the foreign investment scene and high time that the private investor stepped in. But the private investor cannot be just tolerated—he must be invited and welcomed."

NEED THREE THINGS

To encourage the international flow of private capital, three things were necessary:

First, governments of ccuntries seeking capital "must take a fresh, hard look at such deterrents to investment as export or import quotas, limitation on remittance of profits, control of capital movements, multiple exchange rates, fear of nationalization or expropriation, special taxation of foreign enterprises, undeveloped banking facilities, inability to deal with responsible government officials, required local participation, discriminatory enforcement of tax laws, and requirements for the reinvestment of earnings."

Second, the governments of the United States and Canada, and those of other capital-exporting countries "have their own job to do to facilitate the flow of capital.

"The United States, for example, must modify the capital gains tax and double taxation of dividends. Both must work towards the elimination of international double taxation; extension of reciprocal tax treaties; establishment of uniform securities legislation and reciprocal securities treaties.

CANADA BEEN LEADER

"The Canadian government has been a leader in this area—you do not have a capital gains tax and you have made a start toward eventual limitation of double taxation of dividends. . . ."

"Third, our stock exchanges, industries, business organizations, and financial communities should establish closer working relations with each other to speed a return to normalcy in international finance. . .

"I would like to see traded on American and Canadian exchanges the securities of enterprises in all countries of the world—just so long as those nations welcome the flow of international capital and respect the rights of the investor."

Mr. Funston said the "so-called naturalization resolution" passed by the general assembly of the United Nations last December "was an unfortunate example of international action which must be corrected."

The resolution, he said, recognized the right of a country to nationalize its resources, "and then topped off this announcement of the obvious by strangely failing to mention prompt compensation in the event of expropriation."

PILES

When you've finished a bottle of Pyltone, you'll see what we mean by real results that last. The new Pyltone Treatment (a liquid taken by mouth) goes directly to the root of the trouble, inside the body. This modern method has proven itself in thousands of the most stubborn and longstanding cases, and was tested for years before being offered for sale. Pyltone proves this with one bottle or it costs you nothing. Don't suffer. Ask for Pyltone. At all druggists.

GOLD STATE COACH—The gold state coach which will be used by Queen Elizabeth at her Coronation is paraded in a rehearsal around the Royal Mews at Buckingham Palace. Postillions are mounted on the horses on the left side of the four pairs drawing the coach and a groom walks beside each horse.

U.S. Farm Group Supports Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spokesman for the National Grange, an agricultural organization, said Wednesday construction of the St. Lawrence seaway would have "profoundly valuable effects" on midwest agriculture.

J. T. Sanders, the Grange's legislative counsel, said the proposal to build the seaway "is so convincing to us that it is inconceivable that the unjustified opposition of the past two decades will now prevail."

Sanders' testimony was heard by a Senate foreign relations sub-committee. It is considering legislation to authorize the United States to join with Canada in building the big waterway.

Support also came from E. M. Rcihards, vice-president of the Republic Steel Corp. Richards, warning of depleted domestic iron ore reserves, said the seaway would play an important role in transporting "substantial portions" of the replacements which would come from foreign countries.

Richards said he foresees a possible "military disaster" should the seaway not be built. He explained that in event of war overseas shipments of foreign ores could not be depended upon because of enemy submarine action.

Begin Hearing In Arson Case

FORT FRANCES, Ont. (CP)—Aurel Ringuette, 36, appeared Wednesday for preliminary hearing on five charges of arson in connection with five fires here during the Easter week-end.

Ringuette was arrested at Emo, Ont, following fires at three hotels, the bus depot and a rooming house. Damage at the Emperor Hotel alone was set at about $150,000.

Earlier, Walter Dokuchie, 26, Fort Frances taxi driver, was fined $50 with the alternative of 10 days in jail on a charge of obstructing police in their search for Ringuette.

At the hearing Wednesday, J. Fragman, proprietor of the rooming house, and his wife both testified that Ringuette had visited their house Easter Sunday and had "acted like a crazy man."

They said Ringuette had told them he hoped to burn all of Fort Frances down.

The hearing is continuing.

Havelock To Licence Hawkers, Peddlers

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The Council has authorized the clerk to prepare a bylaw regulating hawkers and peddlers in the village. The bylaw will be similar to that of Peterborough.

Chief Hall presented his report for March as follows: Complaints and occurrences, 14; fires reported and extinguished by the fire brigade, 2; revolvers registered, 1; transients cared for, 1; court attendance, 3 days.

J. Fitzpatrick addressed the Council on behalf of the United Cement and Gypsum Workers' Union regarding renting the Council chamber for meetings. Rental set by Council was $3 a meeting for 15 meetings or more, and under 15 meetings $4 per meeting.

All dogs in the village are to be tied up by April 15.

It was decided to have the fire truck cleaned and serviced.

The accounts authorized to be paid included: Chief Hall, salary and transportation, $208.36; D. Johnston, garbage collection, $125; trucking, $75.80; truck insurance, $43.51; clerk's salary, $115; printing and supplies, $52.15; telephone rentals, $13.75; Hydro Commission, $10.88; miscellaneous, $51.13.

Shows Colored Slides To Springville WMS

SPRINGVILLE (ENS)—A special feature of the anual WMS spring thank-offering meeting in the United Church Sunday evening was the colored slides of her recent trip to the island of Trinidad, shown by Miss Jean Hammond of Peterborough.

Miss Hammond left Toronto and flew to Barbados airport, then to Bermuda, Tobago and Trinidad.

The island of Trinidad is especially interesting to Peterborough and district people because Miss Connie Wagar and her sister, Marion, of Peterborough and the Rev. Charles Kitney, also of Peterborough, are missionaries there.

There were many pictures of the girls' boarding school where Miss Wagar is a teacher and with whom Miss Hammond was a guest.

Mrs. Harold Rowan, president of the WMS, had charge of arrangements for the meeting. Mrs. Morgan Cullen led in prayer. Mrs. Preston introduced the guest of the evening and Mrs. Bruce Sargent thanked Miss Hammond for the pictures and her talk. Mrs. Sargent mentioned that Miss Connie Wagar and her sister and Mr. Kitney were all formerly from St. James' Church in Peterborough. Misses Eleanore and Marilyn Bowles sang a duet.

Miss Sandra Neath spent Easter week in Toronto with her mother, Mrs. H. J. Neath.

Miss Shirley Neath of Toronto visited friends here over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. George Madgett of Sunderland were weekend visitors here.

King From Cambodia Pays Toronto Visit

TORONTO (CP) — A king with 4,000,000 subjects got off a plane here Wednesday, dressed in a plain business suit.

He was Norodom Sihanoak, King of Cambodia which is part of Indo-China, who stopped over on a sight-seeing trip through Canada before he makes a two-week trip through the United States.

He scoffed at the idea that rulers in his area have scores of wives. "I myself have too many other problems to find time to marry."

STAND CLEAR

CALGARY (CP)—Not previously enforced, an order requiring passengers to stand clear of the vestibule section on Calgary transit system coaches now is being observed. The Transit Workers' Union had complained of overcrowding.

"The Store That Makes A House A Home"

Alex. Leeson Warden's Father Dies At Age 90

HAVELOCK (ENS)—A highly respected resident and retired businessman, Alexander Leeson, died early Wednesday morning at the Finley Nursing Home.

Mr. Leeson's death followed an illness of about two weeks. Had he lived until June he would have celebrated his 91st birthday.

He was born in Seymour township, son of the late Samuel Leeson and Mary Ann Brunton. He farmed for some years in Belmont township, coming to Havelock 28 years ago when he purchased the general store of J. W. Bryans. This he operated with his son, E. J. Leeson, selling out a few years ago to M. and J. Calnan.

Mr. Leeson took a keen interest in municipal matters and served for two years on the Havelock school board. It was during his term of office that the water system was installed in the school. He was also clerk of Belmont and Methuen township for three years. He was a member of Havelock United Church.

Surviving are a son Reeve Ernest J. Leeson of Havelock who is 1953 warden of Peterborough county, a granddaughter, Mrs. Donald Miller of Lanark, a brother Samuel of Peterborough and a sister, Mrs. E. Loucks of Campbellford.

The funeral service will be held on Friday at 2:30 p.m. in the Curtis funeral parlors and will be conducted by the Rev. R. G. Newman. Burial will be in Maple Grove cemetery.

New Governor

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Formosa's new governor, O. K. Yui, was sworn in today and pledged himself to "better the livelihood of the people. . .and to carry out established policies of our government aimed at recovery of the mainland." Yui, a banker, succeeds K. C. Wu, who resigned.

Transport Plane Crashes, 27 Killed

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—A two-engine transport plane crashed and burned on the bank of the Red river near here today, killing 27 persons. The left engine on the Dakota, owned by the Aigle-Azur Company, caught fire soon after the takeoff.

The plane was on an airlift flight from Hanoi to the beleaguered French strongpoint of Na San.

Coldsprings News

Mr. and Mrs. J. VanHuezen and family have bought the farm formerly owned by Mr. Herbert McKinley and have taken up residence there.

Sunday guests with Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lord Jr., were Mr. and Mrs. W. Bristow and family of Stewart Hall and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lord Sr., Millbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Birney and Mrs. W. Eakins, Centreton and Mr. Cephas Turk, Castleton, were Sunday guests with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cowper.

Mrs. William Ash spent the weekend with relatives in Cobourg.

Recent dinner guests with Mr. and Mrs. Allan Linton, Carol and Ronald were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ireland and Susan, Whitby, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hogarth and Cathy and Orville Stokes, Oshawa, and Mrs. Myrtle Stokes of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Timlin and Mrs. W. Teney were Sunday tea guests with Mr. and Mrs. G. Carruthers.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. McBride visited Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hogg and family, Harwood, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Stockton, Toronto, were recent guests with Mr. and Mrs. H. McKinley.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Carlaw, B.C., and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McLachlan of Alliston were Monday guests with Mr. and Mrs. F. Shier and Mrs. W. Gibson.

ROCKET RICHARD is shown scoring the first of his three goals Tuesday night against Bruins at Boston in the fourth game of the Stanley Cup final, which Canadiens lead 3-1 as the result of the 7-3 victory. Red Henry, Bruin goal tender, failed on this Richardian score attempt.

Game Too Realistic

TORONTO (CP)—A game of "playing firemen" started by two boys ended Wednesday with real firemen fighting a blaze which left 22 persons, eight of them children, homeless. Fire from a blazing backyard shack raced along a fence to two 80-year-old frame houses in east-central Toronto. Two boys, Bobby Taylor, 4, and Fred Blagdon, 3, were dragged from the flames by Mrs. Edith Burnell.

Boost Trade Show

LONDON (CP)—Trade officials hope that the Coronation, along with more competitive prices and quicker delivery dates, will encourage more buyers to stay longer at this year's British Industries Fair. Largest since the war, it is scheduled for London and Birmingham April 28 to May 8.

George St. YPU Play Presented In Norwood

NORWOOD (ENS)—A play "The Road Back" presented by the George St. YPU, Peterborough, was given in the Norwood town hall Tuesday evening under the sponsorship of the YPU of the Norwood United Church. The capacity crowd was welcomed by the chairman, the Rev. H. K. Wright. He introduced Miss Marion Brown of Peterborough who presented the cast to the audience directed by Mrs. Cecil Wasson.

Candy was sold between acts.

Miss Leona McMillan on the violin accompanied by Miss Dorothy McMillan at the piano also entertained between acts.

The Peterborough YPU graciously gave their time and talent in bringing this play to Norwood to help Norwood YPU towards their building fund of the new church.

Lunch was served the cast by the YPU.

Railroads Present Anti-Seaway Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—Supporters of the St. Lawrence seaway, an opponent charged today, are pursuing a "foot in the door plan" for eventually building a 35-foot canal that would cost $1,000,000,000 more than the currently-proposed 27-foot waterway.

Gregory S. Prince, general solicitor of the Association of American Railroads, said the lesser canal—including channels connecting the great lakes—would cost $300,000,000, roughly $115,000,000 more than that estimated by proponents.

Prince's testimony was given to a Senate foreign relations subcommittee that is considering legislation to authorize the U.S. to join with Canada in constructing the project.

The association is a traditional objector to the seaway. It contends that it would prove harmful to the railroads. Similar opposition has—and will be—expressed by East and Gulf coast port cities, coal interests and some private power utilities.

ANSWERS ARGUMENTS

Prince gave his answer to arguments of proponents that there is a need for joint U.S.-Canadian control of the waterway that would provide access to the Great Lakes by ocean-going vessels.

"This is the weakest of the multude of weak arguments that have been advanced through the years in an effort to persuade Congress to embark upon this venture," he said.

He said that even if Canada were to build the waterway alone, as it has frequently stated it might, the United States would remain "adequately protected" against "unreasonable or discriminatory treatment" in either navigation rights or tolls.

Prince said that existing treaties assure equal rights of navigation to the citizens and vessels of both countries and provide for equal application of toll charges.

He also said that "we have the practical protection" of U.S. control of channels and locks used by Canadian ships on the Great Lakes."

CONTINUE CONTROL

"Each country controls today, and would continue to control, an important segment of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway," Prince said, adding:

"Each country has exercised its control in the past in a non-discriminatory manner with complete respect for the rights of the other, and I am certain that any independent control which each might have in the future would always be exercised in that same spirit of fairness and friendliness."

rince said that proponents, in seeking pproval for the 27-foot waterway, eventually hope for a 35-foot depth "since anything substantially less would not accommodate most ocean-going vessels."

He said the greater depth would involve increased costs of more than $1,000,000,000.

Prince said proponents have failed to demonstrate "any reasonable prospect" of making the project self-supporting and "no words in a legislative enactment can convert an economically unsound project into a sound one."

He said if supporters of the waterway really believe it would be self-liqudating, they should propose financing by genuine revenue bonds without government guarantee.

6-Year Slaying Still Unsolved

VANCOUVER (CP)—The mystery of the Stanley Park skeletons remains unsolved.

A murderer crashed a shingler's hammer into the heads of two small children—a girl and a boy—about six years ago, laid their bodies beside a rotting log and fled. A forester found them last Jan. 15 as he was clearing brush on a hillside.

Detective Don McKay, head of the investigating team, says he is convinced the murderer was a woman, the mother or guardian of the children.

The babes - in - the - woods were covered by the rotting remains of a woman's fur coat. There were also bits of rotting cloth.

A woman's shoe was found, trapped between the girl's body and a log.

The boy was about six years old, and the girl a little older.

2 Months Of Training Fashions Smart Escort

OTTAWA (CP)—More than two months of strenuous training have transformed four army officers, formerly novices in the saddle, into a capable mounted escort for the Queen on Coronation Day.

The team, chosen from the 2nd Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, is just about ready for the big day and will sail from Quebec May 1.

Its members are Lt.-Col. E. G. Brooks of Montreal, commanding officer of the regiment, Maj. J. S. Orton of Ottawa and Vancouver, Lieut. H. A. McLellan of Sarnia, and Lieut. D. R. Foster of Assiniboia, Sask. Lieut. Foster is going as an alternate rider in case of sickness or injury to one of the other officers.

LOG-DANCERS' BALL — With the agility of dancers, experienced log drive workers leap across floating pulp logs in raging spring streams to keep them moving to the mills. Piled on frozen lake surfaces in winter, hundreds of thousands of cords on one lake at a time, the pulp logs begin their journey hundreds of miles to the mills when spring warmth melts the ice. Using their peevies to keep the logs on the move, these men are on Red Pine Creek, far north of Ottawa, in the Gatineau pulp forests.—(Photo by Malak).

Violent Eruption

MANILA (AP)—The Philippine News Service says deadly Hibok Hibok volcano in the southern Philippines erupted violently Wednesday. The volcano on Camiguin Island off northern Mindanao last erupted in 1951, killing about 1,000 persons.

Probe Fire Cause

TILLSONBURG (CP)—Provincial police Wednesday questioned several suspects in the possibility that a "mysterious explosion" and resulting fire that levelled a house on a district tobacco farm earlier in the day was the work of outsiders. The house, a 1½ storey structure in Middleton township, Norfolk county, was owned by ex-mayor M. G. Dean of Tillsonburg.

History Of Treatment Of Tuberculosis Outlined At Annual Meeting

A resume of the history of tuberculoisis, its diagnosis and treatment, was given members of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association Wednesday afternoon at their annual meeting.

Speaker was Dr. Hugo Ewart, medical superintendent of the Mountain Sanatorium, Hamilton, and president-elect of the Ontario Medical Association.

In the way of statistics, Dr. Ewart pointed out that from three to five million people die of tuberculosis each year, and he estimated that 50,000,000 suffered from it.

6,000 YEARS AGO

Tracing its history, he said that the first real evidence of its existence was found in a neolithic grave about 6,000 years old near Heidelburg, Germany. The body of a young man who had suffered TB of the spine was found there.

There was a suggestion, too, he said that the Egyptians of 3,000 years ago isolated their worst TB cases. In one section of southern Egypt many bodies had been exhumed which showed strong traces of TB.

In ancient times, there was little offered for curing tuberculosis. One of the best known was the King's Touch for scrofula — tuberculosis of the glands. This curative technique consisted of a king touching the affected person. Its effectiveness was never tested.

Worst period of tuberculosis in the world's history was the century from 1750 to 1850, when it is estimated that one-quarter of the people who died, died of tuberculosis.

Treatment was scanty and made according to the lack of knowledge of the times. Bloodletting and light diets were commonly used.

Three developments during the latter part of the 19th century and the early part of the 20th played a great part in lowering the death rate from tuberculosis, Dr. Ewart said. There were: the development of the stethoscope, the isolation of the tuberculosis organism by Koch, and Roentgen's discovery of the X-ray.

The technique of lung collapse was advocated some time ago, but not used until comparatively recent years. Even it, now, is not strongly in favor as a curative method.

Dr. Ewart stressed the two-fold job of the voluntary associations. Their role was in detection of the disease through their various Christmas seal and educational campaigns, and in preventing recurrence of the disease among patients discharged from sanatoria.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. L. W. Thompson and thanked by C. H. Elliott, new president of the association.

BOTTLE-FED BABIES

If your baby is bottle-fed, be sure to watch little bowels closely. Mother's milk has a natural laxative effect which helps take care of baby's need. Lacking this, a bottle-fed baby often gets fretty, feverish and suffers constipation and upset stomach. Let Baby's Own Tablets help you keep baby's bowels on schedule—sweetest upset stomach. Used with confidence by mothers for more than fifty years. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Equally good for simple fever, constipation, restlessness and fretfulness resulting from irregularity at teething time, and other minor ills. Get Baby's Own Tablets today at your druggists.

Seals Campaign Raised $9,877 For TB Assoc.

Reports heard at Wednesday's meeting of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association held in the YWCA showed that the Christmas Seal campaign in 1952 brought in more donations than previous campaigns.

Treasurer E. W. Armstrong reported that $9,877.10 had been received. The association's balance at the start of the year was $4,267.26, and $7,711.69 at the end of the year.

39 PATIENTS

President J. M. Heffernan reported that there were 39 Peterborough patients in sanatoria, more than there ever were before. He emphasized that this was not an indication that TB was on the increase, but that the program for discovering cases is being more and more successful.

He pointed out that the death rate from TB in Ontario had dropped from 24 per 100,000 in 1942 to 8.5 per 100,000 in 1952.

Twenty-nine clinics were held in the county during the year, with a total of 1,177 X-rays taken.

In the complete chest X-ray survey of the city and county, several active cases of TB were discovered out of 16,202 X-rays taken in the city and 3,321 in the county.

Pre-employment X-rays taken during the year amounted to 900, and more industries were being added all the time.

Mrs. R. J. Ward, executive secretary and official visitor for the Peterborough association, reported that patients were visited every three months and each time a gift was taken to each patient.

One wheel chair was purchased for a patient from the city, and other items were given.

Blamed For Attack

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—The Evangelical Confederation of Colombia, a Protestant group, claimed Wednesday that a Roman Catholic priest had incited some rural residents to attack the home of some Protestants near Bogota. The confederation said a Protestant service was being held in the home at the time and that three Colombians and a British missionary were injured. Date of the incident was not given.

6-Car Crash

SAN FRANCISCO—A man turned into a human torch by a six-car crash was reported to have leaped from the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge into San Francisco bay early today. Two of the cars burned. Another, loaded with sailors, overturned. A fourth smashed into a girder. Occupants suffered only minor injuries.

Prefers Wolves

CHICAGO (AP)—A zoo keeper who became a policeman and immediately learned there is a big difference between training animals and persuading humans to obey the law, is back at the zoo. "I'd rather contend with the wolves in the zoo than the people on the boulevards," Edward Yankoe, 30, said.

Honorary Members Of Canadian Press

TORONTO (CP) — Six former presidents of The Canadian Press, national news-gathering association of the daily newspapers of Canada, Wednesday night were made honorary members of the organization.

The honorary membership, described by Roy H. Thomson, president of The Canadian Press, as the "highest honor which CP can bestow," is bestowed only on former presidents or honorary presidents who have retired from active membership.

The six, with their terms of office as president, are:

E. Norman Smith, Ottawa, 1920-25; M. E. Nichols, Vancouver, 1931-33; Henri Gagnon, Quebec, 1933-35; Senator Rupert Davies, Kingston, 1939-42; Senator W. A. Buchanan, Lethbridge, Alta., 1944-46; Frederick I. Ker, Hamilton, 1946-48.

Dies Under Truck

SARNIA (CP)—Marcia Louise Michelin, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Michelin, Bright's Grove, was killed Wednesday when the dual rear wheels of a milk delivery truck passed over her. The child died instantly when her skull was crushed by the slowly moving truck driven by John J. Bourassa, Sarnia.

16 Hurt In Bus Plunge

MARLIN, Tex. (AP)—H. T. Torgerson was driving 36 children home from school Wednesday when his big bus slipped sideways on a bridge, teetered on the edge, then dropped 12 feet to a dry creek bed. Sixteen children were injured, three seriously. Torgerson, about 30, an industrial arts teacher in the Marlin public schools, was treated for shock.

Reject Beverage Rooms

WEST LORNE, Ont. (CP)—Reiterating their former stand, voters of this community Wednesday rejected a move which would have permitted establishment of beverage rooms for men, and men and women. In October, 1949, electors voted upon and turned down a plebiscite on the questions of beverage rooms for men and the right to serve wine with meals.

The youth, a regional winner last year, was selected because of leadership in his local club and in his community. In January, 1952, he and a group of other boys formed a bucket brigade to fight a fire in the home of a neighbor. John went into a smoke-filled bedroom to get a purse that contained all the family's money.

Mr. Henry Chapple, Rochester, and granddaughters Jean and Joan Chapple, Centreton, visited Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Hope.

Mr. Fred Talling has sold his home at Fenella to the department of highways.

Mary Lou Roberts, Port Hope, visited Thursday afternoon with her cousins, Ronnie, Marie and Trevor Macklin.

BAN DRINKS WITH MEALS

BEACHVILLE, Ont. (CP)—West Oxford voters Wednesday decisively rejected continuance of the sale of beer and wine under a dining room licence for consumption with meals on licensed premises. In what is believed to be the first vote of its kind here, 686 voters cast "no" ballots while 312 voted "yes." Only licensed premises affected by the vote is the Terrace Gardens on No. 2 Highway between Woodstock and Beachville.

Husband, Wife Die

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Mrs. Thomas James Hills, 75, died Wednesday at her home near Hepworth, 36 hours after her husband, 73. They are survived by two daughters and one son.

Found Relief From
SCIATIC PAIN

"I began to suffer with a dull, continuous ache from my hip down my leg", writes Mr. Geo. F. MacGregor, 1604 E. 8th Ave., Vancouver. "The steady pain gave me no rest day or night. One day when my leg was so painful I could hardly get about, a stranger stopped me. He had once suffered much the same thing until he tried Templeton's T-R-C's. He recommended T-R-C's to me. I wish I could thank him for in a short time T-R-C's gave me longed-for relief from my sciatic pain."

Don't suffer from Sciatic, Rheumatic or Arthritic pain. Take Templeton's T-R-C's—Canada's LARGEST-SELLING proprietary medicine specially made to bring quick relief from such pain. At drug counters, only 65c, $1.35.

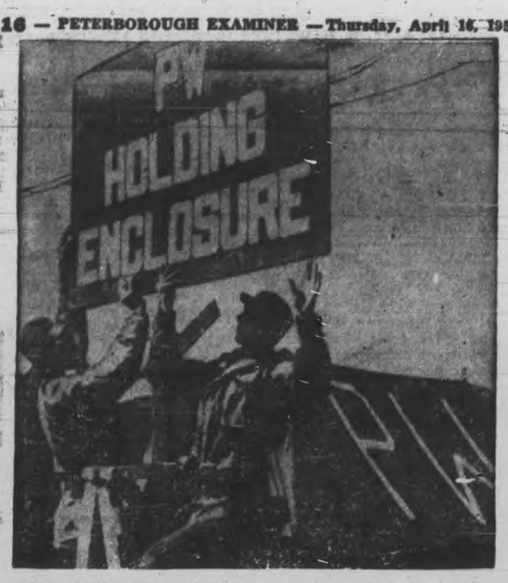
Here's How John and Mary are Growing a Diamond...

THREE YEARS AGO John and Mary became engaged. Mary's ring was a Certified "A1" Quality Diamond from Peoples Credit Jewellers which cost $75—well within John's means.



TWO YEARS AGO they were married, and for the wedding John gave Mary the beautiful 6 Diamond Royal Pair ($135). John was able to do this because Peoples Credit Jewellers allowed him the full purchase price, $75, he paid for his original ring, and applied that $75 on The Royal Pair.

JUST A FEW DAYS AGO to celebrate their wedding anniversary, John applied the full purchase price he paid on The Royal Pair, $135, and gave Mary the magnificent 8 Diamond Regal Pair costing $250.00. He could do this because of Peoples Credit Jewellers "Make Your Diamond Grow Plan."

You too, can grow the Diamond of your dreams

SIGNS OF LIFE—U.S. Army military police put up a sign reading "PW Holding Enclosure" as an advanced camp for sick and wounded Communist prisoners of war near completion. This forward post will be one of the stops in the exchange of men between the Reds and UN forces. Qualified observers feel that solving the prisoner problem leaves the way open to full-scale peace talks.

VON Make 466 Visits On Nursing, Instruction

Nurses of the Peterborough Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses made 466 visits during March.

Miss Harriet McGeary, nurse-in-charge, reported at the board of directors meeting, Wednesday, that 349 of the visits were nursing calls and 177 for home instruction. During the month 53 new patients were admitted—36 for nursing care and 17 for home instruction.

Members of the board authorized the attendance of Peterborough VON nurses at a refresher course to be held in Ottawa next fall. The three staff nurses will attend the two-days' course at different times.

Ald. P. J. Anglesey, chairman of the board, announced that the annual meeting of the Canadian VON will be held in Ottawa, May 6 and 7.

Simonds Plans Far East Visit

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the Canadian general staff, is scheduled to visit Canadian Army units in the Far East the week of May 5-12, The Canadian Press learned today.

He is due to leave Vancouver by air May 3 and reach Tokyo May 5. He will be in Korea May 7-9. Then he visits base units at Kure, Japan, with a full day in Tokyo before turning by air to Vancouver late May 12.

Meanwhile, four United States Air Force Dakotas flew the 23rd Canadian infantry workshop, RCEME, to Korea from Kure Wednesday. The unit is shortly to relieve the 191st workshop.

Brig. J. V. Allard of Nicolet, Que., today visited the first fighting troops of his new command. Brig. M. P. Bogert of Toronto, from whom Brig. Allard is taking over command of Canada's 25th brigade, introduced him to the 3rd battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment. Then he went to the position of the 1st battalion of the Royal Canadian Heavy Artillery, where he inspected a guard of honor and gun positions.

3 Military Colleges To Develop Initiative

MONTREAL (CP)—Brig. D. R. Agnew, commandant of Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., said Wednesday night Canada's three tri-service military colleges aim to develop initiative, service spirit and discipline.

Brig. Agnew, said the Royal Military College developed initiative in cadets, instead of crushing it.

"Cadets may talk about the arduous and tough time they had at RMC, yet our training and discipline is for their own good."

The first general property tax in Upper Canada was instituted in 1853.

Your guests, too, will prefer NESCAFÉ instant coffee

It makes no difference when you serve Nescafé—at breakfast, during the morning, after dinner or late at night—you can always be sure. Nescafé gives you a rich, full-bodied, satisfying cup of coffee everytime. And it's so convenient. Just a spoonful of Nescafé for each cup—add piping hot water—it's ready! Nescafé is so thrifty, too, compared with ordinary ground coffee. You can be proud to serve Nescafé anytime—it's the up-to-date way.

No other coffee, instant or ground, gives you the richer flavour of Nescafé

Nescafé (pronounced NES-CAFAY) is the exclusive registered trade mark of Nestlé (Canada) Ltd. to designate its soluble coffee product which is composed of equal parts of pure soluble coffee and added pure carbohydrate dextrins, maltose and dextrose added solely to protect the flavour.

Wants President To List Truce Terms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Ralph Flanders (Rep. Vt.) advocated today that President Eisenhower "grab the initiative" from the Communists "by telling all parties concerned truce terms that would be acceptable in Korea."

Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem. Minn.) called for broad cold war peace talks with Russia.

And, in the wake of disclosure that the United States has instructed Gen. Mark Clark what to tell the Reds about a resumption of truce talks, Democratic senators protested against what they called failure to guard against Communist trickery in the exchange of sick prisoners of war.

Officials did not disclose what instructions had been sent to Clark, United Nations commander in the Far East. It was assumed, however, that Clark was authorized to accept the Red proposal for resuming truce negotiations.

Flanders said he has no information on what truce terms would be acceptable to the President and the United Nations.

HIS OWN IDEAS

His own ideas for an end to the Korean war call for: (1) Withdrawal of Chinese Communists from Korea and establishment of a neutral zone about 40 miles deep along the Yalu river; (2) Enforcement of this neutral border by a commission of Asians; (3) Rehabilitation of Korea; (4) Holding of free elections for all of Korea after the period of rebuilding.

Humphrey, a foreign relations committee member, said the time has come to carry negotiations to the Russians on a global basis.

"We've got to think beyond Korea, to Indo-China, to the critical situation in Berlin, the partition of Austria and the problems in the Near East and the efforts of the Soviet to divide us from our Allies.

"We must state the basic terms of negotiation and not let them call the shots."

The protests over Red trickery in the exchange of sick war prisoners grew out of reports that scores of Communist supply trucks moved openly toward the Korean front under the apparent immunity granted motor convoys carrying Allied prisoners toward Panmunjom.

Norwood WI Installs New Officers For 1953

NORWOOD (ENS)—The April meting of the Norwood Women's Institute was held at Miss Katie Edwards with 19 members present. The treasurer's report showed a bank balance of $77.09 on hand. It was decided to give $10 to the Norwood Public Library.

Mrs. William Golloher gave the current events. Mrs. Gerald Baker installed the new officers. The slate of officers installed were as follows:

President, Mrs. Earl Armstrong; first vice president, Mrs. Clarence Copp; second vice president, Mrs. Archie Aldred; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Gordon Parker.

Branch directors, Mrs. Alex Davis, Mrs. Fred Gardner, Mrs. M. D. Macpherson, Mrs. Albert Gill; district director, Mrs. Gerald Baker; sick committee, Mrs. Frank Andrews, Mrs. Roy Baker, Mrs. Fred Patterson.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Alfred Bongard, Mrs. Earl Armstrong, Mrs. J. J. Stewart, Miss M. A. Carter.

Rubber Workers Seek 20-Cent Boost

TORONTO (CP) — The United Rubber Workers' Union (CIO-CCL) has set a 1953 wage increase objective of 20 cents an hour for its 15,000 Canadian members.

Wage adjustments headed the list of 10 points in this year's economic program drawn up by the union's international policy committee at a meeting convened here by L. S. Buckmaster, the union's president from Akron, Ohio.

This year's wage objective is the initial step in a drive to wipe out wage differentials between United States and Canadian rubber firms, union spokesmen said.

Woman Acquitted Manslaughter Count

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Edna Le Blanc, 22, was acquitted Wednesday of manslaughter in the death last January of her two-year-old son but was convicted of neglecting to provide the necessities of life for the child.

The woman, who expects to give birth in a day or two to her second child, will be sentenced after the baby is born.

Mr. Justice W. R. Treleaven of the Ontario Supreme Court directed an assize court jury to acquit the woman of the manslaughter charge.

"This trial has been fraught with tragedy," said Mr. Justice Treleaven. "However, there is only circumstantial evidence to show accused struck the blow which caused the death of the child."

Latin America Good Market For Canada-Gray

MONTREAL (CP)—Alex Gray of Toronto, director and immediate past president of the Canadian Exporters Association, said today Latin America offers the "best opportunity" for new Canadian export markets.

Mr. Gray, member of a goodwill trade mission that visited Latin America earlier this year, made the statement in a speech prepared for the Montreal branch of the Canadian Exporters' Association.

"Canada lives by her exports," said Mr. Gray. "They are essential to her economic life and, barring war, in the tough competitive years ahead she will have to fight for these exports. In my opinion Latin America offers the best opportunity.

NEED IMPORTS

"Here you have a continent with more than 150,000,000 people who want to export to us products we do not produce, and who can import much that Canada wants to export."

Canada's exports to Latin America now are 12 times greater than in 1938. They amounted to about $250,000,000 in 1952.

Indicative of the competition in the market was the increase in Latin-American imports from Germany and Japan. The German imports increased to $369,000,000 in 1951 from $3,200,000 in 1948; the Japanese imports to $81,000,000 in 1951 from $6,000,000 in 1949.

Mr. Gray, referring to conferences the trade mission had with Mexican business men, said they wanted more direct shipping links with Canada, particularly on the Pacific coast.

"They would like our buyers to buy cotton and other products direct, instead of through Houston, Dallas and other United States cities. They want to sell us more cotton, more peanuts, more citrus fruits and fresh vegetables and preserved fruits and juices.

"They expressed an interest in buying Canadian wheat, Canadian pulpwood, and they mentioned in detail other products which they thought we should be able to sell them.

"The United States is between us geographically, they said, but they did not want it to come between us commercially and financially."

He suggested that Canadian business men visit Latin America to investigate business opportunities.

Lift Drops 3½ Floors

NEW YORK (AP)—An elevator carrying 13 persons slipped from the 15th floor of the Remington Rand building Wednesday and fell 3½ storeys before it jolted to a stop. Three persons were sent to hospital with leg injuries. The other 10 were shaken up. All 13 suffered shock.

Drew Demands Inquiry In Whole Defence Setup On Third Day Of Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has entered the third day of battle on the question of the moment: is Canada defended or isn't she?

Defence Minister Claxton's version is that "we are on the way to getting there" and should reach the desired level next year or "perhaps the following year." He says the three-year $5,000,000,000 rearmament program announced in February, 1951, will largely finish by June 30, 1954, and will cost an extra $600,900,000.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, on the other hand says Canada is not ready to defend herself in the air, on the ground or at sea. He calls this a "shocking failure" by the entire government after the expenditure of $5,000,000,000 on defence since 1945.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE—Personnel at the Fifth ROK Military Army Surgical Hospital, near Munsan, stack blankets, cots and other equipment to be used for the UN's POWs. The Communists promised to turn over the first of 600 sick and wounded Allied prisoners on April 20.

He wants Prime Minister St. Laurent to order an immediate and sweeping investigation of the whole defence setup.

WARFARE CONTINUES

The warfare went on all day Wednesday while an unusual contingent of two dozen defence officials watched from the galleries.

To his general charges Mr Drew coupled a statement about a reserve force artillery regiment, which, he said, has not a single gun that will fire because the breech-blocks have been taken away. There were only four guns all told in a regiment normally entitled to 32 and this was a typical situation in the reserve army.

Mr. Claxton's reply was that reserve units have more equipment than they need. The breech blocks had been removed for safety as the result of experience in Korea. They were being modified and the modifications would be completed in time for summer training.

He said some artillery pieces were taken from reserve units to be sent to NATO allies and there had been no complaints from the units.

NO ARGUMENT

On the question of Canadian participation in European defence, there was no argument. Mr. Drew said he would accept the government's word that Canada is doing what she set out to do there. Mr. Claxton welcomed this as the first sign in six years that Mr. Drew is willing to acknowledge the defence department is playing its part.

The minister went on to say that Canada for the time being is standing pat on her existing manpower commitments in Europe—a 5,500-man army brigade, a 7,000-man air division—indicating this country won't be accepting further commitments in that field at the NATO council meeting in Paris next week.

Mr. Claxton declined to accede to demands by some opposition speakers that Canada send a predominantly armored force to Europe instead of the 27th infantry brigade now there. That would require more men, and "we have no intention of increasing our manpower commitments on the other side at the present time."

PROGRAM FIASCO

During the debate, Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) called Canada's plane-building program a "fiasco." Canada had spent $130,000,000 to design and build the CF-100 fighter for home defence and had 16 planes to show for it. She should leave the field of aircraft design to Britain and the United States. Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) took just the opposite view.

Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon), a Second World War fighter pilot, complained of lack of information from the government on military matters and said espionage agents probably know more about the defence program than opposition members.

Mr. Drew called on Mr. St. Laurent to open a "complete investigation" of the defence department.

He taxed the government with "shocking failure" to provide air, ground and sea forces capable of defending the country or the organization around which to mobilize for war.

CABINET UNDER FIRE

Mr. Drew, who has directed much of his previous fire at Mr. Claxton, switched it to the whole cabinet, blaming the ministers collectively for "this story of failure" and asking the prime minister himself for action.

Mr. Claxton sharply disagreed with the Opposition leader's statements. He said "we're just on our way to getting" to the desired levels for the immediate defence of Canada and for the basis for wartime mobilization.

To opposition charges that the government has fallen down on the "immediate defence of Canada" which was its own top priority in defence policy, Mr. Claxton said that was one of three points in the over-riding policy. The others were the laying of foundations for mobilization and participation in Korea and in the buildup of European strength.

The last one was really part of the other two and "who is to say which should come first?" the minister asked. "In the view of the government they are all part of the single problem of national defence."

POINT-BY-POINT ANSWER

In a point-by-point answer to opposition charges, he said the navy will meet most of its deadlines, that the army's mobile striking force is ready and capable of meeting the small-scale landings that are the only conceivable threat to Canada, that the air force has half-a-dozen unsurpassed types of planes and that the RCAF is "one of the leading air forces in effective fighting strength" among the Western powers.

He also said the older types of planes now in use in the auxiliary or part-time RCAF squadrons—Vampires and Mustangs—are capable of putting up a good fight against the only planes that could attack Canada today.

Probably the oldest existing city is Damascus in Syria, more than 4,000 years old.

Cameramen Winners

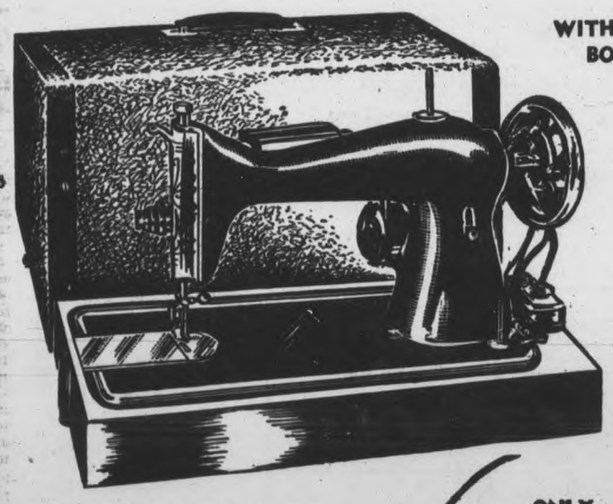
TORONTO (CP)—Toronto and Ottawa photographers won top awards in the sixth annual National Print Show of Commercial and Press Photographers' Association of Canada, it was announced Wednesday night.

Clifford Buckman of the Newton Studios, Ottawa, won the Gilbert A. Milne Trophy for the best press photo in the show and the Toronto Globe and Mail Trophy for the best spot news print.

Buckman's picture showed Governor-General Massey in an informal pose at an Ottawa function.

Ron Vickerz of the Gilbert A. Milne studio, Toronto, won the Latimer Trophy for the best commercial print in the show and first place in the industrial section.

The first award for a sports picture went to Bev Best, Toronto, and the second award to Michael Dudowich, Sudbury Daily Star.



The Best Approach

Challenging fairways call tourists to Ontario's vacation spots. On canny courses par shots and fun-bent duffers try their best approach to tricky greens. Our best approach to welcome U.S. guests may be a friendly smile, a helping hand, or just a word of greeting. But it all adds up to Ontario hospitality. These visitors bring extra prosperity to Ontario; a warm welcome helps to bring them back. John Labatt Limited —Unionized since 1910.

Harmless-Looking Chili Dangerous Piece Of Food

By JEAN E. STENTON

OAXACA—The best cook in Oaxaca prepared my first all-Mexican meal and I enjoyed every morsel even if a piece of chile I had nearly blew my head off because it was so hot.

* * * *

Oaxaca is famous for its food and I enjoyed some of its specialities. Dinner started off with Sopa Oaxaquena (soup made of chick peas with egg). Then there was sopa de pasta, which is a spaghetti with tomato sauce; amarillo which is yellow mole; ensalada, a salad of carrots and avocado; the famous Frijoles fritos which is black beans fried and very, very delicious; dulce de chocolate, (a chocolate dessert) and cafe (coffee).

* * * *

My trouble came with the yellow mole. There was a nice little piece of green chile and I boldly attacked it. A minor explosion seemed to occur in my head and by the time my Mexican companion and the staff could control their laughter they suggested I put a little salt on my tongue. That did the trick and my mouth returned to normal.

* * * *

I had this feast at a grand spot a short distance outside Oaxaca. It is an old hacienda which is being converted into a hotel. The location is beautiful, since it is in a valley with the mountain ranges on either side. Much of the estate is still in ruins but is gradually being repaired and remodelled. There is a very old church on the property near the swimming pool which is interesting. Back of the old mill, there are fields of wheat and it is a wonderful spot to rest and admire the view.

* * * *

TO KEEEP OLD CHARM

The hacienda is known as La Arboleda and it is owned and operated by Bob Chacon of New Mexico. He has only been there a few months but has spent many years in Mexico. They hope to use many of the old buildings still there and it gives the place a charm and old world air that is different from many of the other hotels in Mexico. Here life moves unhurriedly and there is a perfect climate the year round.

* * * *

There is a very old convent at Cuilapam, a village a few miles from Oaxaca which not too many people visit. One of the reasons is that the road is very bad, but it is worth the trip. I wouldn't have missed it. The hero of the Independence Revolution, Vincente Guerrero, was imprisoned here for a short time before he was shot in the village square outside. A monument marks the spot where he fell.

* * * *

The old Dominican convent, which was built around 1524, resembles a fortress in appearance with its thick, battlemented stone walls. In the cell where Guerrero was imprisoned, some earlier monk who must have loved the countryside very much had painted some wonderfully accurate murals of the scene from every side.

* * * *

200 MONKS THERE

At one time there were about 200 monks at Cuilapam and they did a magnificent job of planning and building their convent. There is a lovely patio with two fine gall eries encircled by graceful arches. The small chapel is still used by some of the village folk. From what was the original church, you have an unsurpassed view of the mountains through the ruined arches.

* * * *

On the way to Cuilapam you get a different perspective of Monte Alban and of several of the smaller mountains with unexcavated mounds. The day I spent at those two places was one of the most perfect I had in Mexico.

MUSKIE NETTING MARKS "OFFICIAL" SPRING in the Kawarthas as Department of Lands and Forests men lift trap nets in Deer Bay these days to strip 'lunge for artificial rearing at Deer Lake Hatchery. Net tenders Gratton, left, and Wilfred Nicholls are shown above with their hands full as they haul the wet net toward their punt preparatory to "milking" the fish of roe. Water is still a bit too chilly to recover many eggs; at 55 degrees conditions are ideal. —Examiner Staff Photo

Douro Would Enter School Areas

Propose Two Groups Entering Schools In City, Lakefield

Douro Township Council are applying to the Peterborough County Council to have the township included in high school districts.

Township school area No. 1 and school area No. 2, as well as school sections No. 3 and 12, will go into the Peterborough High School District. So will Separate School Section No. 17, Douro. Otonabee separate school pupils attending St. Francis de Sales, a union school, are already in the Peterborough High School District and will come to Peterborough for their secondary school education when they graduate.

Douro school sections 6 and 10 will join the Lakefield High School District. School section No. 13 (Young's Point) is already in that high school district.

Only three municipalities in the county will now be outside one of the high school districts. They are Dummer, Ennismore and Galway-Cavendish.

APPROVAL LIKELY

Douro's application will be heard at the next session of the county council, probably in June. Their request is almost sure to pass and the township will enter the two districts Jan. 1, 1954.

Following are the Concessions and Lots in the Peterborough High School District: Concessions 1, 2, and 3—Lots 1 to 18 inclusive; Con. 4—Lots 1 to 17; Con. 5—Lots 1 to 16; Con. 6—Lots 1 to 13 and the east half of 14; Con. 7—Lots 1 to 12; Con. 8—Lots 1 to 12; Con. 9—Lots 1 to 11; Con. 10—Lots 1 to 9; Con. 11—Lots 1 to 6; Con. 12—Lots 1 to 5.

Lakefield High School District: Con. 1—Lots 19 to 28 inclusive; Con. 2—Lots 19 to 26; Con. 3—Lots 19 to 22 and the east half of 23; Con. 4—Lots 18 to 22; Con. 5—Lots 17 to 22; Con. 6—West half of Lot 14 and Lots 15 to 21 inclusive; Con. 7—Lots 13 to 21; Con. 8—Lots 13 to 15.

The purpose of high school districts is to have economically-sized, modern, central high schools, drawing from a large rural area. One of the major jobs of the high school boards is arranging transportation.

CHARLES ELLIOTT was elected president of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association at the annual meeting Wednesday. He succeeds J. M. Heffernan, president for the last two years.

IUE Files Cards For Raybestos Plant Workers

The International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO-CCL) on Wednesday filed 66 membership cards with the Ontario Labor Relations Board in a hearing on the IUE's application to become the certified bargaining agents at the Canadian Raybestos Co. Ltd.

At present Local 527 of the rival United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Indep.) are the bargaining agents for the 127 production workers at the plant. The UE are now negotiating a contract with the company.

The OLRB reserved judgment to consider the evidence. If there are 45 per cent of the bargaining unit represented in the IUE application, the board will order a vote.

David Lewis, counsel for the IUE, filed 61 cards that had been signed before the application was made on March 20. The other five were signed between that date and the hearing on Wednesday.

The UE had been circulating revocation slips but none were submitted by Ross Russell, Canadian director of the UE, who represented the left-wing union.

John Whalen, president of Local 527; Albert Greenhalgh, a member of the policy committee; and Leonard Velleman, UE organier, were also at the Queen's Park hearing.

Representing the IUE were Joe Wirtz, Canadian IUE Co-ordinator; Al Knipfel, area representative, and two witnesses to the card signatures — George Giles and Bob Evans.

A similar application by IUE to be bargaining agents for the 3,500 production workers at the Peterborough CGE plant will be heard April 22.

Theft Suspect Picked Up In North Bay

Sought Since January In City Theft, Faces Charge Friday

Implicated by his two partners in a theft at Blackwood and Company, Russell Harley of Peterborough was picked up by provincial police at North Bay Wednesday and held for Peterborough police.

A warrant for Harley's arrest in connection with the theft last January, was taken by Sergeant William Aggas and Detective Douglas Farthing to North Bay this morning. He is scheduled to appear before Magistrate W. R. Philp for plea either Friday or Saturday morning.

Harley had been held as a crown witness when one of his partners, Arnold Cross, had been picked up by provincial police on a forgery charge late in March. He had accompanied Cross when a bad cheque was passed in Bridgenorth.

CLEARED IN FRAUDS

He was absolved of any part in the cheque passing and released before the case came to court. Only a matter of hours later, Cross and his partner in forgery and theft, Ross Gillian, implicated Harley in a theft at Blackwood's January 25. Blackwood's is an electrical appliance store.

Provincial police who had first detained Harley and then released him, were alerted for his recapture when his part in the theft became known.

Their vigilance paid off Wednesday when North Bay stationed officers picked "the third man" up.

Gillian and Cross have already been sentenced on the theft charge, one of breaking and entry with intent, and four charges of forgery. Gillian will serve 22 months definite and one year indefinte while Cross has an 18-month definite and one-year indefinite term.

They also await sentencing Friday by Judge John De N. Kennedy on five additional charges of forgery and four of false pretences.

Hospital's Fate Issue At Open Meeting

LINDSAY (ENS).—The Ross Memorial Hospital Board of Governors will meet with representatives of many Victoria Country organizations and the general public tonight, to decide the fate of the hospital.

Besides being overcrowded and inadequate for the needs of the county area it serves, the hospital is also running large deficits each year. Some measures to counteract the latter have been taken recently by country and municipal councils, but the greatest need of the hospital at present time is more space.

Those present at the meeting will hear a report reviewing the findings of Dr. Harvey Agnew, hospital consultant, who made recommendations for a new wing at the hospital which would cost $1,250,000. The meeting will be asked whether this new wing should be installed and if so, to propose a method whereby the money could be raised.

Representatives of almost every county organization have been invited to the meeting — service clubs and fraternal orders, women's groups and local councils, as well as the county Medical Society, one of the groups which had expressed the most dissatisfaction with the hospital and urged the most changes in operation and structure.

Muskies Trapped, Stripped Of Eggs For Hatching

Seven 'lunge trap nets in Deer Bay are slowly yielding quantities of eggs these days as water temperature rises from 45 to 55 degrees. "Milking" operations have been fair, according to Gratton and Wilfred Nicholls and Ed Pearson who are constantly attending the sets these days.

Deer Lake Hatchery manager Henry Jackson who supervises the Deer Bay operation and other trapping areas in Stony Lake reports that he has received only a million, or quarter, of the needed roe for hatching operations in the plant north of Havelock.

He admits the small quantity is one of the quirks of our early spring and has high hopes that the necessary five-million eggs will be available soon. The water temperature was 45 degrees, or ten degrees under ideal spawning conditions, on Wednesday.

DIRECTED INTO TRAPS

Trap netting for those who may never see it is really a simple operation. Long stretches of wing seine nets direct free-travelling pairs of 'lunge into a tunnel net and trap. The sets are made in shallow marsh water that warms quickly and each day the nets are visited by a team of men in a punt.

They haul the bottom of the trap to surface and dip out black and green bass, mudcats, pickerel and suckers leaving the 'lunge threshing madly in the folds. The fish are taken out gently with gloved hands and "felt" if their bellies are soft enough to yield roe under gentle hand pressure. If the water is cold the fish are firm but if it is just right the men milk the roe into enamelled basins and fertilize the eggs by squeezing roe from the small male fish over the collection of eggs. When fish are not "right" they are returned to the trap but after they have been milked are released.

TAKEN TO HATCHERY

The eggs are taken immediately to the hatchery and placed in large hatching jars on racks in the plant where they hatch after several weeks of constant supervision. The hatched fry are released to rearing ponds at the hatchery and within a few weeks distributed back into the lakes to grow to sporting size.

The program of rearing the famous Kawartha muskie artificially for the past decade has assured a constant supply and the greatest tourist "bait" in Central Ontario. Natural propagation, experts have found, is wasteful, and if the artificial method had not been adopted long ago by far sighted conservationists, there would be no fishing attraction in the Kawarthas today.

The 'lunge is the linch-pin of the Kawarthas' five-million-dollar tourist industry.

R. Bolton Heads Drama Festival

Peterborough Drama Festival voted unanimously at a general meeting on Wednesday night in the city hall to affiliate with the Eastern Ontario Drama League. This will prevent duplication of one-act play festivals in the western region of the League and consolidate drama efforts in this district.

Entrants in the Peterborough Festival will thus be officially contestants, if they so indicate, in the Eastern Ontario Festival eliminations.

A new executive for the forthcoming year was elected and installed. R. J. Bolton is the new chairman, replacing Peter McCombe who has retired from the office because of pressure on his time as a play director. He will remain on the executive committee. Mr. Bolton expressed the association's warm thanks for Mr. McCombe's five years of leadership.

Other officers elected were: W. A. Brown, who continues as treasurer; T. J. Allen, secretary of the assocation; and Harry Cherney, business manager of the festival.

The executive committtee includes: Mrs. James Wharry, Mrs. Jacob Low, Miss Jean Buck, Ray Gillies, John Londerville, John Nornabell, Christopher Gledhill, Harry Silver, Alex Sinclair and Peter McCombe. Committee heads are to be chosen from this executive and others who may be added.

It was decided to hold the 1953-54 festival towards the end of November.

Boat Firm Owner Undecided On Rebuilding

Owners of Lakefield Boats Ltd. who lost their factory in a disastrous $150,000 fire early Tuesday, hope to resume production on a limited and temporary basis as soon as possible.

Whether or not the company will rebuild its factory is still to be decided. Paul Richer, one of the three owners, said it would depend on how much could be realized from the insurance. If it were enough to rebuild, the company would get back into permanent production. If not it would be unlikely that the owners would start up again.

In the meantime, the village council has offered the company the use of the Lakefield Memorial Centre for the summer to maintain production on a limited scale. Private citizens have also offered buildings to help out.

As for the machinery necessary for production, said Mr. Richer, he expects to "buy some, borrow some and beg some."

The boat factory that was employing about 35 men at the time of the fire, is the village's biggest industry.

Just the night before the fire, said Mr. Richer, he was trying to work out a way for the company to expand and raise its production.

TWO GRASS FIRES

Firemen put out two grass fires late Wednesday. One was in the afternoon on a vacant lot at 513 Romaine St., and the other was 7.32 p.m. at 285 Burnham St. Firemen were also called to 369 Edinburgh St. where a flooded oil space heater was reported. They checked the stairway at Grand Central apartments, 343½ George St., where a woman resident noticed some smoke coming up from one of the stairs. She put some water on it and that apparently did the trick. A lighted match or cigarette butt is believed to have lodged in behind one of the wooden stairs.

Cedar Lake Park Be Opened May 23

Cedar Lake Park will be officially opened May 23, Norman Gaynor, president of the directors of Kawartha Recreation Inc. announced today.

Mr. Gaynor said that a member of the city council will attend for the opening which will include the unveiling of a sign at the entrance of the park.

A band will also be in attendance and new equipment and facilities including 20 picnic tables will be ready for the opening day.

C. H. Elliott Heads TB Assoc.

New president of the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association for 1953-1954 is Charles H. Elliott, who succeeds J. M. Heffernan.

Vice-presidents are John W. Madden and Mrs. M. J. Swanston, treasurer is E. W. Armstrong, and Mrs. R. J. Ward continues as executive secretary. Mrs. G. H. Pammett was returned as Christmas Seals secretary.

Honorary president is Herbert Martin, and honorary vice-presidents are Mayor H. F. Waddell and County Warden E. J. Leeson.

Council consists of Mrs. Wallace Shearer, C. J. Ray, H. J. Tudhope, I. H. Keefer, Mrs. William Richardson, Donald G. Smith, Florence Adams, R. R. Stewart, L. H. Ingram, and F. R. Revoy.

Report of the nominating committee was presented by H. J. Tudhope.

Discover Man's Body In Madawaska River

BANCROFT (ENS)—The body of Patrick Dombroski, 23, of Combermere, was recovered from the Madawaska river Wednesday.

Dromboski had been missing from his home since 11:30 p.m. Friday. A search was organized shortly after Dombroski was reported missing and was headed by provincial police from the Killaloe detachment.

The youth's car was found abandoned about 100 feet from the Madawaska bridge. From there parties searched the woods and dragged the river until the body was recovered Wednesday.

trial-size bottle of Johnson's NEW
Jubilee Kitchen Wax

...when you buy Johnson's HARD GLOSS GLO-COAT (either pint or quart) at regular price

You can also get a free trial bottle of Jubilee Kitchen Wax when you buy Johnson's "Red Band" Glo-Coat—the polish that gives a soft mellow lustre.

Jubilee Kitchen Wax—
a magic blend of detergents and wax for cleaning costly kitchen equipment, cabinets, walls, woodwork!

There's no easier way to keep your kitchen spotless! Just wipe Jubilee on with a damp cloth. Fingerprints, dirt, greasy cooking films disappear. Then buff lightly and you leave a lustrous, protective coat of wax. Jubilee Kitchen Wax is the quick, safe way to clean everything in your kitchen but the floor!

Johnson's Hard Gloss Glo-Coat gives a brighter shine and ends scuffed-up floors!

Never before has there been a floor polish like this! Without any buffing, Hard Gloss Glo-Coat gives floors a brilliant shine—and the shine is so extra hard it doesn't get a scuffed-up look after weeks of wear. That means you don't have to polish floors nearly so often. Floor cleaning is far easier too!

Get this 2 in-1-package at your dealer's right now!

Easing Of Russ Censorship Big Surprise To Editors

TORONTO (CP)—Moscow has eased its censorship on news since the death of Stalin, Sir Christopher Chancellor, general manager of Reuters, world-wide British news agency, said Wednesday night.

Addressing the annual meeting dinner of The Canadian Press, attended by newspaper men from coast to coast, Sir Christopher said "no wise man would make any far-reaching deductions" as yet, but there were dramatic signs of a more civilized approach which have been interpreted as a probing towards some sort of entente with the West. He added:

"For my part I cannot help feeling a little alarmed by the speed with which in certain quarters a few merely normal acts by Moscow seem to efface the memory of all that has gone before.

"However, since Stalin died, all our cables from Moscow have come through without any signs of censorship; and telephone calls, for the first time almost since we can remember, have been free from interference.

ASKING QUESTIONS

"My chief news editor finds himself asking leading and significant questions over the telephone which a month or two ago would immediately have resulted in the line being cut. These conversations proceed for the present unhindered. They grow bolder each day.

"It is all very interesting; but we do not yet know what it signifies or where it will lead. The recent visit to Russia of American newspaper editors and the facilities given them left us all gasping and astonished—that is, all of us who have had to battle during these past 10 years with the problem of covering Russia."

Describing Moscow censorship as it has operated up to recently, Sir Christopher said it blew hot and cold.

Sometimes it was so rigid that messages, seemingly innocent, even timid, failed to arrive in London. At other times—and for months on end—everything would come through.

BELIEVE IN FREEDOM

"All of us here believe in press freedom and are prepared at all times to fight for it. We all believe in truth in news.

"We all believe moreover—and with experience I become increasingly convinced of this—that the system of co-operative newspaper ownership (of news-gathering organizations) is the best and safest system so far discovered for the handling of news.

"The Canadian Press (national news-gathering association of the daily newspapers of Canada) is an outstanding example of this system, freely and soundly functioning.

"To my everlasting pride, the organization which I serve, Reuters, (co-operative news service owned by the newspapers of the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand), has applied and extended the system of co-operative ownership by carrying it across the boundaries of a single country."

IN PEKING TOO

Speaking of censorship in countries other than Russia, Sir Christopher said that what has applied to Moscow in the past, applied also to Peking.

Other countries with censorship included Egypt, Jordan, Syria, Iran and Burma.

"And there has been loose talk, too much of it, by members of the South African government, threatening to introduce censorship. I think these threats will not materialize, but we have to take note of them."

Report 327 Sex Offenders Now In Prison

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons criminal law committee heard Wednesday that there are 327 sexual offenders in federal prisons. Of these, 139 are repeaters and eight are sexual psychopaths, considered dangerous to society.

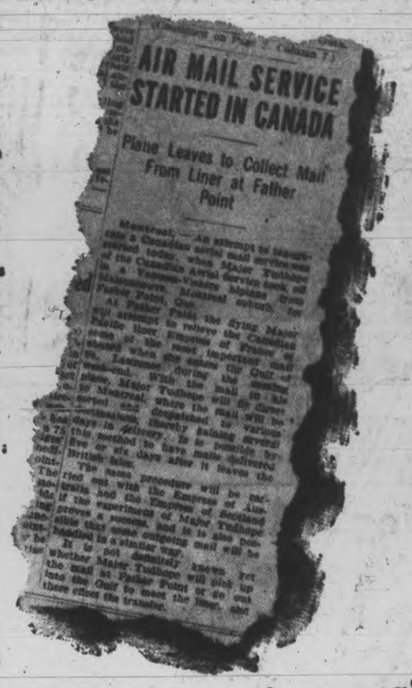
Dr. L. P. Gendreau, assistant director of penitentiary psychiatry in the justice department, said sexual offenders can be cured by psychotherapy but not until the offender himself wants the treatment.

Most offenders spend a lot of time trying to prove to penitentiary authorities they are innocent, Dr. Gendreau said. In time, some accept their mental condition and ask for help.

NOT NEUROTIC

Sexual psychopaths are sentenced to a determinate period in prison and also to an indeterminate period. This means they can be kept in jail until they ask for treatment and are cured.

Leon Crestohl (L—Montreal Cartier) asked if it would not be better if sexual offenders were committed to mental institutions instead of jail. Dr. Gendreau said these persons are not insane nor neurotic.



RICHARD A. BUTLER, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, smiles as he packs the famous and much-battered dispatch case with the new British budget preparatory to presenting the document to the House of Commons in London.

Know the Date?

In this year Canada turned down a U.S. invitation to join in the development of a St. Lawrence Waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic... Captain Charles Lindbergh arrived in London, England, from Paris after his transatlantic flight and was received by the King... England inaugurated trans-Atlantic telephone service with Canada... and William Phillips arrived in Ottawa to become the first U.S. Minister to Canada.

Flood Victims Reach Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—Frederick Pace, his wife and two small children, Canvey Island flood victims, arrived Wednesday from Britain aboard the liner Samaria, carrying with them all their possessions in a small cabin trunk.

Mr. Pace, 36-year-old crane operator, his wife Olive, and their children, Norma, 6, and Malcolm, 3, are the first flood victims from Canvey Island, Essex, England, to come to Canada under the Canadian government flood-victim scheme.

Interviewed in their tourist-class cabin, the Paces said "we are glad to be in Canada at last but we don't know a soul out here."

They will go to Winnipeg where Mr. Pace hopes to get a job.

"The clothes we're wearing were given to us by the Women's Voluntary Service back home," said blonde, blue-eyed Mrs. Pace. "All the money we have left is about £20."

Name G. H. Lancashire Millbrook Postmaster

MILLBROOK — (ENS) — G. Howard Lancashire has been appointed postmaster and was sworn in by Mr. J. Blackstone, post office inspector, Thursday.

Mr. Lancashire replaces T. H. Collins who completed 30 years as postmaster last December 1. In the four-months interval, Miss Betty Lunn has been acting postmistress.

Mr. Lancashire was born in Millbrook and has lived here all his life. He attended high school in Port Hope and graduated in economics and political science from the University of Toronto in 1928.

Canners Plan Give Growers 4 Per Cent Cut

TORONTO (CP)—Canners will pay Ontario growers approximately four per cent less on the average for beets, carrots, cabbage and beans this year than in 1952.

The farm products marketing board Wednesday approved negotiating committee recommendations establishing minimum prices and terms of contract for the vegetables bought for processing.

Graded beets—¾ to 1¼ inch, $60 ($70); 1¼ to 1¾, $41 ($46); 1¾ to 2½, $34 ($35); 2½ to 4½, $17 ($27).

Ungraded beets—1½ inch and up, $25 ($23).

Carrots—June 25 to Aug. 15, 1¼ inch, $52 ($52); Aug. 16 to Aug. 31, 1½, $35 ($25); Sept. 1 to Sept. 15, 1½, $28 ($25); Sept. 16 to Nov. 10, 1½, $24 ($25); after Nov. 10, $28 ($27).

Cabbage—$13.25 ($13.50).

Green and wax beans—$98 ($100).

All prices are f.o.b. factory or factory receiving station.

Processors' representatives on the negotiating committee were H. W. Powell, Grimsby; E. R. Renouf, New Toronto; and C. K. Roland, Chatham. Growers' representatives were: R. E. Pooley, Exeter; Ira Moyer, Beamsville; and John Van Raay, Chatham.

Mechanic Found Guilty Motor Manslaughter

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 46-year-old Toronto rigger-mechanic, Frank Walter Brawley, Wednesday was found guilty of motor manslaughter in the Elginfield car-truck crash that claimed four lives last Nov. 12.

A Supreme Court jury returned its guilty finding with "a strong recommendation for mercy" for Brawley, who was charged as the car driver involved in the crash.

Mr. Justice D. C. Wells remanded Brawley until Friday for sentence and said he would pay strong attention to the jury's recommendation.

Brawley was driver of a car that collided with a pickup truck at the Elginfield intersection of No. 4 and No. 7 highways. He is the sole survivor.

Pearson Wants Canada To Keep Its Guard Up

NEW YORK (CP)—Canada's L. B. Pearson said Wednesday the West should keep its guard up but should not miss a chance to help ease world tension.

The Canadian external affairs minister said it would be folly to weaken defensive arrangements now operating in the West.

But it would be "equally foolish not to seize any and every real chance to relax the tension. . . however slight and however temporary that relaxation might be."

Pearson, president of the current session of the United Nations general assembly, spoke on "National Freedom and International Co-Operation" in one of a series of annual lectures at Town Hall to promote better understanding among English-speaking peoples.

PUT TO TEST

He said NATO now is apparently to be put to the test of "peaceful blandishments and disarming gestures" from Russia. The countries of the free world must consider now what their policy should be.

"We must meet new situations as they develop, without being unduly elated or unduly excited by phenomena which should be interpreted as representing only a shift in tactics, designed to achieve the same old objectives in a new way, until results in action prove to us that there has been a real change in the direction of strategy and policy," he said.

In his prepared speech, Pearson said: "Canada is being urged, and quite rightly, by her colleagues in the North Atlantic coalition, including the United States, to develop defence industries and defence production.

"We are short of the electric power which is essential for this fuller development, and yet are unable to secure a decision in Washington which would make new development of such power from the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence river possible."

Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHYS
A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, April 16th—Looking forward to summer in the garden? Now's the time to smarten-up your chrome garden furniture with S.O.S. Yes, S.O.S. Scouring Pads will take that rust off in a twinkling. You know how bright and shiny S.O.S. makes pots and pans. Well, it will do the same for dozens of things around your home. Your porcelain tubs and basins, for instance. And S.O.S. quickly removes any starch that's burnt on your iron. You see, S.O.S. Scouring Pads are a magical combination of sturdy, interwoven fibres and grease-dissolving soap. Outdoors—indoors—all around the house . . . I've found that S.O.S. is just about the most useful cleanser there is.

You'll Get High Praise from your husband for your good shopping sense, when you buy him this "bargain" in good looks and economy . . . a B.V.D. NYLON TRICOT SHIRT. The smooth, attractive nylon tricot fabric is comfortable to wear. The fused collar and cuffs never wilt—they stay good-looking for the life of the shirt—without ironing. Truly, laundering a B.V.D. Nylon Shirt is so easy. Just a quick rinse—wait a while—and the shirt's ready to wear. You save the price of the shirt in laundry bills alone! What's more, a B.V.D. Nylon Shirt outwears an ordinary shirt several times over. Buy him one—$12.95—in white, blue, tan or grey.

Your Baby will thrive on loving care and food made specially for him. And what's more "specially for baby" than the delicious, nutritious variety of HEINZ BABY FOODS? He'll love them. And that's a fondness you can encourage, mother, because Heinz Baby Foods are so good for baby. All of them—from the nourishing variety of Heinz Pre-Cooked Cereals to the tempting Heinz Junior Foods—are pre-cooked in Heinz spotless kitchens, so all you have to do is take them from the tin, warm them up and serve. They're wholesome, appetizing and good. No wonder Heinz foods for babies are the best-selling baby foods in Canada!

If Your Husband is like most I know, he likes his white shirts white. So next washday, be sure to use Blue. Yes, Blue does the best job of all in keeping clothes from turning yellow. We all know you have to rinse the wash to get the clothes really clean—then simply put a dash of Blue in the water to get them really white. Blue is kind to the finest fabrics—you're not taking chances when you use it. What's more, it costs just a few pennies a month. And just wait 'til you see the glorious results! Hubby's shirts, your sheets and towels and precious table linen . . . all as white as can be! Yes, for the whitest wash, use RECKITT'S BLUE.

You Have An Invitation From Mrs. John Fisher, wife of the famous Canadian radio personality. She invites you to compare BLUE BONNET MARGARINE with any spread at any price. She's sure you'll agree that Blue Bonnet is best. You'll like its fresh, country-sweet flavour—its nutrition (no other spread is richer in Vitamin A!)—and its real economy. Try it! Buy Blue Bonnet and get all three . . . flavour, nutrition and economy. Use Blue Bonnet in cooking, on vegetables and as a spread for bread. I know you'll agree that it's as delicious melting hot as served fresh from the refrigerator. And Blue Bonnet is now foil-wrapped for extra flavour-protection . . . so it stays good.

Spring Speaks Of Outdoor Living . . . in the park, on picnics, at holiday resorts—and all that outdoor living speaks of valuables left unguarded around the house—and that situation whispers of burglars and shouts a reminder to rent a Safety Deposit Box at the BANK OF MONTREAL! All of which leaves me a bit out of breath but with the satisfaction of having delivered some good advice! I speak from experience, too—having had my own home broken into, one unhappy springtime. That's when I resolved never to leave my precious possessions at the mercy of burglars again! And rather than face the risks of carrying valuables with me on my travels, I put them in a B of M Safety Deposit Box . . . and leave my worries in there with them! So why not take a tip that can save you much grief? Rent yourself a B of M Safety Deposit Box at your neighborhood branch tomorrow. Costs less than two cents a day!

So Many Women Tell Me they have to cook lunch just for themselves. Ever tried FRENCH'S INSTANT POTATO? It takes just one minute to prepare creamy-smooth mashed potatoes with French's Instant Potato powder. There's no washing—no peeling—no cooking—no mashing . . . and no waste! Ask your grocer for a package of French's Instant Potato . . . then, here's all you do for a delicious, nourishing mashed-potato treat—

Put 1½ cups water and ½ teaspoon salt in medium-size saucepan and bring to a brisk boil. Remove pan from heat and add ⅓ cup milk. Stir, then add: ½ cup French's Instant Potato. Whip vigorously until light and fluffy. Add butter and pepper to taste. (This quantity serves 4 to 6 persons.)

Major Elected Hon. President Of Can. Press

TORONTO (C)—Herve Major, news editor of Montreal La Presse, Wednesday was elected honorary president of The Canadian Press for the ensuing year.

Mr. Major, who was president of the national news-gathering co-operative for the years 1950-52, was presented with a television console at the annual meeting of members. His election to the office of honorary president followed at the meeting of the incoming board of directors.

Roy H. Thomson, head of the Thomson newspaper group, was re-elected president, R. J. Rankin, Halifax Mail-Star, first vice-president, and D. B. Rogers, Regina Leader-Post, second vice-president, were also re-elected.

ELECT DIRECTORS

The annual meeting elected the following 19-man board of directors:

British Columbia—Donald Cromie, Vancouver Sun; Stuart Keate, Victoria Times;

Prairie—R. S. Malone, Winnipeg Free Press; Philip S. Fisher, Winnipeg Tribune; D. B. Rogers, Regina Leader-Post; R. M. Cantlon, Saskatoon Star-Phoenix;

Ontario—John E. Motz, Kitchener-Waterloo Record; Arthur R. Ford, London Free Press; Roy H. Thomson, Timmins press; John Bassett, Jr., Toronto Telegram; Arthur L. Davies, Kingston Whig-Standard; Peter M. Preston, Brantford Expositor.

Quebec — Charles H. Peters, Montreal Gazette; A. J. West, Montreal Star; Herve Major, Montreal La Presse; A. F. Mercier, Quebec L'Evenement-Journal; Maritime—Ralph B. Herder, St. John's, Nfld., Telegram; R. J. Rankin, Halifax Mail-Star; Roy D. Duchemin, Sydney Post-Record.

EXPRESS REGRET

The meeting expressed regret at retirement from membership of Senator W. A. Buchanan, Lethbridge Herald, and Emile Jean, Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste.

D. Smith, publisher of the Fort William Times-Journal and himself a charter member of CP, remarked that Senator Buchanan is not only an outstanding publisher but "has been one of the men to whom the west owes so much for its advancement in methods of agricultural improvement, in irrigation projects and in building up of an industrial empire in the wheatlands." Senator Buchanan's son Hugh Tuesday was named to CP membership for the Lethbridge Herald. The senator, as a former CP president, becomes an honorary member.

World's longest dam is the Gabel Awlia dam on the Nile in Egypt, stretching 16,400 feet.

CORONATION SILK — Dom Edmund, a Benedictine monk, displays two-ounce skeins of silk, which will be used in the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II. Five years ago Dom Edmund planted 7,000 mulberry seeds at St. Michael's Abbey in Farnborough, England. Last year the trees produced enough leaves to feed the silkworms.

Five-Cent Increase Granted To Workers

WELLAND (CP)—A new contract covering 200 workers at the Reliance Electric plant provides for a general hourly increase of five cents, bringing the basic rate to $1.43. The new minimum is the same as that in the basic steel industry.

The agreement negotiated by the United Electrical Workers (Ind.) also provides for reduction of hours from 42 to 40 a week for men and from 41¼ to 38¾ for women. Overtime at the rate of double time applies after 11 hours' work and on Sunday.

Committed For Trial 10 Break-in Charges

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—David Crnec, Windsor, and Robert MacDonald, Vancouver, were committed Wednesday for trial on 10 charges of break-in, entry and theft throughout Essex county.

Joseph Guay, Pembroke, earlier pleaded guilty to the charges and was remanded a week for sentence.

Guay testified that he and the other two performed the breakins and committed the thefts.

The three, along with another man and two girls, were arrested in nearby Detroit several weeks ago after a hotel clerk reported they were flashing large amounts of Canadian money.

The alleged breaks occurred in Windsor, Harrow, Leamington and Kingsville from Feb. 15 to Feb. 28.

John Graves Simcoe was appointed the first lieutenant-governor of Ontario in 1791.

Canadian Pays Less Tax Than U.K. Citizen

LONDON (CP)—An unmarried Canadian in the $4,000-a-year bracket pays less income tax than his counterpart in the United States and Great Britain—$605. This includes $60 for social security.

In Britain, under new income tax rates announced Tuesday, a single person earning $4,000 a year pays income tax of $1,032. In the United States, the same person would pay $696.

A Canadian Press table Tuesday comparing income tax rates in the three countries erroneously said a single person in Canada earning $4,000 a year pays $505 income tax.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Conserve All Its Goodness When Cooking Asparagus

Between now and the end of the next six weeks you will spend a considerable portion of your housekeeping money on those delicate little shoots of green that first show their heads above the dark cold earth in spring—namely asparagus.

To me asparagus is among the top three favorite vegetables — only green peas and fresh corn on the cob running it strong competition.

Asparagus is a valuable little vegetable, not only for its prized flavor but for its chlorophyl, mineral and vitamin content. Are you going to retain all of these valuable ingredients by your careful cooking?

Do you plan to give it the almost - waterless bright - green quick-cook? Or, are you going to give it the submerged-in-water boil until it is yellow with age and mushy?

You know where I stand.

Girls, conserve all of its goodness by standing it on its cut ends in one inch of boiling water, cover it and boil hard to create a big head of steam and cook it only 8 or 10 minutes, to make it barely tender enough to eat with a fork. The ounce or two of cooking liquor you have left over should go into your precious soup jar for future reference.

Years ago stone-deaf Minnie was our housekeeper. We had a large garden, and you would see her out in it with her paring knife and pan cutting only the fattest, shortest spears of asparagus with careful scrutiny. When her pan was full she would trudge back to the kitchen and then spend the best part of an hour trimming off every scale below the tips. I used to go slowly mad wondering if that asparagus would ever be ready in time for dinner. One thing I did know though was that it was clean.

When we had two or three meals with it plain or with melted butter, Minnie would get restless, and ask me if she could make creamed asparagus as her mother used to do it down on the farm. I never said no, for anything she talked of fondly like that turned out to be wonderful.

MINNIE'S CREAMED ASPARAGUS

Since sizes of bunches differ so much I'll talk in terms of cups.

To serve four prepare 4 cups cut up asparagus by washing, cutting off tough ends (or paring sides of tough ends) and cut into 1-inch lengths. Cook covered, in 1 cup boiling water until barely tender and still bright green. Drain off liquid and measure it and make it up to 2½ cups by adding rich milk and some cream. (Minnie always added at least ½ cup cream. She was an extravagant cook but, results were worth it.) Melt 4 tablespoons butter, stir in 4 tablespoons flour and ½ or ¾ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon freshly ground pepper, then stir the liquid and milk or cream mixture into this until thick. Add drained cooked asparagus and heat through. To enhance the creamy color of this sauce I've seen Minnie add a drop or two of yellow vegetable coloring. For myself I like to stir the sauce into 1 or 2 beaten egg yolks and then reheat it for a minute, especially if to be served at a meatless meal. Pour the creamed asparagus into a heated vegetable dish with a cover.

Minnie thought this beautiful dish demanded fried chicken as an accompaniment. So do I to this day.

Would you like a sophisticated casserole to serve sometime when you have run out of meat?

ASPARAGUS SUPPER CASSEROLE

Cook about 3 cups cut up asparagus in very little water for about 6 minutes. Drain. Make a cheese sauce, by heating 1½ cups milk and ¼ lb. process cheese in top of double boiler; melt 3 tablespoons butter, stir in 3 tablespoons flour, and when blended stir the hot milk and cheese into it until thick. Add salt and pepper to taste. Place alternate layers of cooked asparagus, cheese sauce and chopped, toasted, blanched almonds in a casserole, finishing with sauce and almonds. Bake 20 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. or until bubbling and top is tinged with gold. I hope you love me for this.

First Woman To Graduate In Theology From Trinity

TORONTO (CP)—A beautiful girl with a soft southern accent expects to be the first woman to graduate in theology at Trinity College here.

Blanche Murphy of New Orleans is in the graduating class in theology at the Anglican Church college. If she maintains her present second-class average and writes a thesis she will be granted the degree of bachelor of sacred theology. She will be the first woman to receive the degree which originated last year and is offered by accredited theological seminaries.

However, she will not become "Rev." Blanche Murphy, as the Church of England does not allow women to be ordained.

That does not disturb Miss Murphy, who says:

"I'm not a suffragette. I can't see why women are not ordained but it does not worry me that they are not."

The tall attractive southerner has already had seven years of study. Four undergraduate years at Vassar, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and three at Trinity.

She first thought about studying divinity during her junior year at college in the states. In her senior year she made the decision.

"It sounds silly to say I had a call, but that is really what it was," she said.

Women cannot go through theological seminaries in the States and having heard a great deal about Trinity College, she came to Toronto.

Her original plan to return to the United States to work in colleges was changed when she became engaged to another theology student, Maurice S. Donovan of Brandon, Man. They will be married in July.

However, Miss Murphy hopes eventually to carry on Christian counselling among women college students.

"In the United States men and women are officially appointed to act as chaplains for college students. There is a need for this here, particularly in the West," she said.

JEANETTE SCOTT CHAPTER

Mrs. A. Rutter, regent, presided for the regular meeting of Jeanette Scott Chapter, IODE, Tuesday evening at the YWCA. Treasurer Mrs. P. LaBranche presented the 1953 budget.

It was decided to have as the annual major project the spring fashion show. Mrs. LaBranche read Mrs. R. Maybee's report on the last fashion show which they had convened together with considerable financial success.

The annual clothing exchange will be held this Thursday evening, April 16th, at the YWCA and each member is asked to bring a friend. Mrs. J. Hewitt is convening this.

Conveners elected to the executive at the meeting were: Mrs. J. King and Mrs. A. Drynan, social; Miss M. Medd, Empire and world affairs; Mrs. K. Kingston, ways and means.

Delegates to the national convention at Hamilton April 22-24 will be Mrs. A. Allin and Mrs. Phil Turner.

Mrs. M. Knox and committee served refreshments.

Worry of

FALSE TEETH

Slipping or Irritating?

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth slipping, dropping or wabbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a remarkable sense of added comfort and security by holding plates more firmly. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD —(ENS)— J. E. Stephens, principal of the Lakefield District High School, addressed a meeting of the Home and School Association Monday evening in the public school.

Introduced by the president Mrs. Stanley Burger, Mr. Stephens outlined the courses for grades 9 to 13 and stressed the need for vocational guidance for the pupils. He also discussed the mental health of students.

The Rev. W. B. Walker, a member of the public school board conducted a short devotional period. Mrs. W. C. Grant read the secretary's report. The treasurer's report given by Mrs. T. Payton showed a balance on hand of $178.77.

The association will give any help possible to the Chamber of Commerce with their plans to beautify the village but their rules do not allow them to give financial assistance.

Mrs. A. W. Newson reported on the school fair, showing it to have been most successful. Mrs. C. H. Hunter and Mrs. T. Corkery were appointed auditors.

Reports from the convention held during Easted week in Toronto were given by Mrs. J. Kennedy, Mrs. K. Heard and Mrs. Eldon Johnston. Mrs. H. E. Gastle gave a report on the cancer unit. She also asked for canvassers for the drive for funds April 23.

A recommendation from the executive that the High School be given a large picture and each room of the public school a donation of $3. to be used as the teacher saw fit, was approved. This was in appreciation of co-operation received at the time of the school fair.

A letter from the federation about buying a house to be used by both the Ontario and national federations and for library use, was read and the plan was approved. The cost per member fould be 25c, the letter stated.

Films from the National Fim Board were shown by the Rev. L. J. Delaney.

Miss Bertina Beavis moved a vote of thanks to all those who had helped with the program. The attendance prize was won by Miss Elsie Kidd's room.

Fenella W.I. Re-elect Mrs. Waldie

FENELLA (ENS)—The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the school, with 12 members and two visitors present.

It was decided not to serve lunches or meals at the plowing match. A committee of men were to be asked to move the piano to the new hall. The financial report showed a balance of $136.11.

The president, Mrs. J. Waldie, reported on the year's meetings and thanked the members for their support.

The following officers were elected for 1953-54: President, Mrs. Jim Waldie; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Clifton Rogers; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Jim Curtis; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Percy Macklin; district director, Mrs. Ambrose Fanning; pianist, Mrs. N. C. Leach. Standing committees: agriculture, Mrs. George Harvie; citizenship, Mrs. W. I. Montgomery; community activities, Mrs. M. Lonsberry; home economics, Miss Ruby Adams; historical research, Miss Ruby Herrington.

It was decided to donate $10 to the Rotary Club of Cobourg for crippled children.

Mrs. Jim Waldie was elected convener for the west group and Mrs. Beecher McDonald for the east group to see that meetings of their groups were called to make plans for serving at community auction sales.

Readings were given by Mrs. M. Lonsberry and Mrs. Carl McNaught, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem, followed by a social time.

Guests Contribute

George St. Evening Auxiliary met in the board room Wednesday evening. President Mrs. D. Munro opened with hymn and prayer, followed by reports. Mrs. Ross Moore was the pianist for the singing and she accompanied Mrs. Chester Carson when she favored with a vocal solo. Guest speaker was Mrs. J. Beatty who gave a well-prepared message on the high ideals of gracious Christian living. Miss E. Dix expressed thanks of the group to these ladies. Final plans for catering for the church bowling club banquet were discussed. Mrs. Charlton McBride again extended an invitation to hold the June picnic at her summer cottage. Mrs. C. Munro, group leader, took charge of the worship period and scripture was read by Mrs. Frank Greatrix and prayer was offered by Mrs. V. Roseborough. Miss Dix gave an interesting talk on the Church in Angola from the study book. Lunch was served during a social hour following the meeting.

First Tea Held By Evening Aux. At St. Andrew's

Their first spring tea was held by the Evening Auxiliary of St. Andrew's United Church on Wednesday afternoon. The young women of this organization enjoyed the patronage and encouragement of more than 125 friends and entertained them in the church parlour.

The tea table was attractively covered with a lace tablecloth and centred with a graceful arrangement of daffodils and mauve and white stocks in a crystal holder. Crystal candelabra with yellow tapers trimmed with sequins completed the setting.

The tea room carried out the color scheme of yellow and mauve and groups of paper daffodils were gay decorations on the walls.

Conveners of the tea were Mrs. Lloyd Routly, Mrs. Clayton Andrew and Mrs. Harold Russell.

Mrs. L. Wood, president of the Auxiliary, was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Henry Cotton.

Mrs. F. McNeely, Mrs. G. F. Dawson, Mrs. A. Weddell and Mrs C. H. Wishart poured tea.

Tea room hostess was Mrs. R. M. Hardie and the servers were Mrs. H. Hawley, Mrs. R. J. MacNab, Mrs. J. McLeod, Mrs. J. B. Hardy, Mrs. James Mitchell, Mrs. M. H. Spears and Misses Ellen Murphy and Marion Manning. Replenishing of plates and tea pots was done by Mrs. W. C. Read and Mrs. George Crompton.

A sale of home baking and candy was operated in the auditorium and was in charge of Mrs. W. Edkins with Mrs. J. D. Young assisting.

Mrs. Bruce Taylor took tickets at the door, assisted by Mrs. H. Russell.

Decorated Cake Tea Feature At Coronation H&S

Coronation Home and School Association had use of St. Luke's parish hall for a spring tea and bazaar on Wednesday afternoon. This was the first event held under the new name, Coronation School, but a tea was held last spring by the then Rifle Range Association.

For this occasion a member baked a cake and decorated it wih a crown and the lettering "Coronation School". The cake graced the bazaar table during the tea but was sold as part of the home baking.

Color scheme of the decorators was pink and green and they decked the bazaar tables as well. The tea table was covered with a lace cloth and had a lovely centrepiece of deep pink snapdragon and tulips, arranged in a green pottery dish. Tapers were pink and green and the open-face sandwiches and the cakes were mostly decorated in these colors too. Small serving tables were centred with rose bowls holding pink tulips set on green leaves.

President Mrs. W. Amos was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. E. Davis who was bazaar convener. The tea convener was Mrs. J. Quinn assisted by hospitality convener Mrs. L. Welch and they were busy in the tea room. Admission tickets were taken by Mrs. N. Andrew and she received about 125.

The home baking table did a rushing business which was looked after by Mrs. W. Muir, Mrs. J. Trennum and Mrs. B. Dunford. The bazaar table displayed a variety of aprons, pillowcases and tea towels and was in charge of Mrs. K. Mann and Mrs. H. Winterbottom. Mrs. B. Neeley had the candy table.

A "Wishing Well" was a popular feature and it was handled by Mrs. M. Humphries.

The refreshments were served by Mrs. D. Flint, Mrs. P. Pyche and Mrs. M. Northey with the plates and tea being kept in supply by Mrs. H. Schroter, Mrs. K. Lavictoire, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. J. Rayment and Mrs. R. Stover.

Tea pourers were Mrs. Floyd Curtis, member of the School Board; Mrs. K. Wilson of the teaching staff; Mrs. H. Quinn and Mrs. S. Wood, members of the association.

Murray St. Group Cook Books For Sale At Tea

The Married Couples Group of Murray St. Baptist Church has a unique program. The couples have a class each Sunday after church which is led by their minister, the Rev. Ivan Morgan. Once each month they have a social evening together and twice each month the ladies meet by themselves.

The ladies also have a Spring Tea which they held on Wednesday afternoon in the classroom where their meetings take place. They decorated it attractively in pastel-colored bows and streamers and with pussywillows, plants and simulated spring blossoms.

Daffodils, snapdragon and iris were in the tea table bouquet, made up in pyramid effect and held in place with pink tulle, and the yellow, pink and blue candles matched the flower colors.

A feature of this event was the introduction to the public of the cook books compiled by the group members. There are 215 recipes in the book, each signed by the donor. The pages were typed and stencilled by Mrs. Vaughn Taylor and put together by a committee of the ladies who worked until late Tuesday evening to get them ready for sale. They will continue to be available from members throughout the year. The attractively decorated booth where they were displayed at the tea was in charge of Mrs. Earl McNabb.

Crib quilts and full size bed quilts which have been made at the ladies' meetings were also offered for sale. They are attractively patterned and very nicely quilted. Aprons and household articles etc., were also for sale at the bazaar table in charge of Mrs. Fred Trotter and Mrs. Harry Doughty.

A large supply of home baking was quickly sold by Mrs. L. Horning, Mrs. Harry Weston and Mrs. Gordon Duncan. Mrs. Bill Loomis and Mrs. Frank Ephgrave had charge of the candy booth which also did splendid business.

The guests were welcomed at the door by president Mrs. T. J. Smoothy and vice-president Mrs. T. Naish and the tickets were taken by Mrs. D. Lamers.

Mrs. Walter Flyntt was hostess, as well as being the tea convener, and she invited the small children to the nursery where they were entertained by Mrs. Max Middleton, Mrs. K. Rome and Miss Leone Smedmor.

A musical background in the tea room was supplied by pianists Mrs. Donald McKenzie and 14-year-old Barry Wills.

Servers at the quartette tables were Mrs. George Ross, Mrs. A. Smedmor, Mrs. Harry Spence, Mrs. Bill Osborne, Mrs. Jack Dayton, Mrs. E. G. Baker, Mrs. Robert Orr and Mrs. Davis Graham, and the plates and tea pots were kept filled by Mrs. H. Tranter and Mrs. Clifford Wills. Tea pourers were Mrs. Ivan C. Morgan, Mrs. O. J. Hayward, Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald and Mrs. A. V. Harnden.

The decorating was done by Mrs. Flyntt and Mrs. Loomis and they were designers of the novelty flower pot arrangements on the small tables.

Doug. Head Wed At Hamilton To Live In Toronto

Of wide interest was the marriage of Miss Carol Beatrice Williams, daughter of the Rev. Waldemar Williams and Mrs. Williams of Hamilton, to Mr. John Douglas Head of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Head of Peterborough, which took place in Westdale United Church, Hamilton, on Saturday. The bride's father officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. Morgan Williams of Kankakee, Ill.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by Mrs. Lynn R. Williams, matron of honor, Mrs. G. H. Coggins and Miss Helen Tarlton.

The bride's gown of white Chantilly lace over white satin was fashioned with small pointed collar and long-pointed sleeves. The unpressed pleats at the back of the skirt were gathered diagonally from the front of the waist, and the skirt ended in a chapel train. A small fitted cap held the bride's fingertip veil, and she carried a white orchid with shredded carnations and ivy.

The attendants wore jackets and long skirts of medium blue corded taffeta, the jackets finished with stand-up collars and three-quarter sleeves. All carried bouquets of white bent-back tulips and shredded carnations to match their floral headdresses.

Mr. James Airth was groomsman and the ushers were Messrs. Lynn R. Williams, Toronto; William Kemp and Hugh Graham, Peterborough; William B. Peterson, Smiths Falls.

The reception was held in the church hall, the bride's mother receiving in a navy crepe and taffeta gown with matching accessories and corsage of white and pink roses. Mrs. Head, mother of the groom, assisted in cocoa lace with matching accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses and carnations.

Leaving on a wedding trip to southern United States the bride wore a grey worsted suit, navy accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Head will live at 732 Indian Road, Toronto.

NECKLINE NEWS is seen in this Canadian-made dress of white crinkle chiffon. A high, straight slash across the shoulders at the front, the neckline dips to a low cowl drape at the back. The softly full chiffon skirt is topped by a shirred cummerbund and blouse of mat jersey, the entire dress lined with taffeta.

H. & S. News

KING GEORGE SCHOOL

The King George Home and School Association met Tuesday evening in Mark St. Sunday School Hall with a large crowd in attendance. President Mrs. H. Morrison opened with the Lord's Prayer. The attendance prize was won by Mrs. Ingall's class.

Reports were read by delegates Mrs. H. Moebus, Mrs. F. Darwin, Mrs. E. Bradshaw, Mrs. J. A. Nornabell and Mrs. H. Morrison who attended the Home and School Convention held in Toronto during Easter holidays. The reports were very interesting and Mr. D. Munro moved a vote of thanks to the ladies.

Peterborough Accordian Club under the direction of Mr. L. Rawson favoured with a number of musical selections which were very much enjoyed.

The play "Fresh Variable Winds" was presented by the Prince of Wales Association players. The play and cast was introduced by Mrs. A. Pooley. Commentator Dr. Robert Bell gave an outline afterward of the behaviour problems presented in the play. He was introduced by Mr. E. Bullock. Mr. W. Patterson moved a vote of thanks to the cast, Dr. Bell and the Accordion Club members.

Mrs. O. Jamieson was pianist for the evening.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Ebbs social convenor and her committee and a social half hour enjoyed.

PTA News

ST. PETER'S SCHOOL

St. Peter's PTA met Tuesday evening in St. Peter's Grade School. Sister Lucretia opened with prayer which was followed by the singing of "O Canada". President Max Glover presided. An extremely interesting report of the OECTA was given by Sister Anna Grace on behalf of the delegates appointed to attend the convention.

It was decided that plans for a social evening featuring cards and dancing be made. Mr. R. Baldwin, Mr. E. O'Brien and Mrs. M. Readman formed the committee to look after this event. The nominating committee consisting of Mr. E. Hickey, Mr. H. Crowley and Mrs. P. Rodd will present a slate of officers for consideration at the next monthly meeting.

Mr. Ed Ridley, chairman of the study club, reported that his group is going ahead with a co-operative housing project under the direction of Rev. F. Marrocco.

It was announced the Peterborough Diocesan Council PTA are sponsoring a lecture "I Just Can't Love My Neighbour" by Rev. Daniel A. Lord, SJ, to be held May 19 in St. Peter's Auditorium. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the PTA.

The Rev. J. F. Coughlan, principal of St. Peter's High School, spoke on "Vocations." Father Coughlan said vocations are given in proportion to the needs of the Church and therefore people must look forward to more religious vocations. He said it is selfish of parents to decide what station in life a child should follow because, if a child's talents are not fulfilled unhappiness results.

Father Coughlan remarked that children of 12 and 13 do confide ambitions to parents and sometimes without realizing it the parents "throw cold water" on these ambitions. He advises the best way to help children prepare for a vocation is to allow them to live as a boy or girl of high school age with responsibilities at home and at school.

Mr. John Lynch, athletic advisor of the High School, gave a short talk on "Sports and Your Child". He said: "Sports should be started in the elementary school about Grade 5 or 6. There is nothing which enables a child to make friends more quickly than to get in a game competing with others of his age. These activities make full use of all muscles and develop an alertness of mind. The majority of players on school teams will be found among the top students in the classes". He urged parents to remember that games aren't as "tough" as they look and that sports are a "must" for all the schools.

Mr. H. Crowley moved a vote of thanks to Father Coughlan and Mr. Lynch.

Attendance prizes were won by Sister Anna Grace's Grade 4 St. Peter's School and by Mrs. Hayes' Grades 4 and 5 and Miss Galvin's Grades 5 and 6 St. Mary's School.

Since this was "fathers night" the room mothers enjoyed a delicious lunch served by fathers decked out in very dainty aprons.

DOROTHY DIX:

Girl 16 Complains Parents Forbid Reasonable Freedom

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 16 years old, and absolutely am not allowed out at any time. My father objects to any recreation, and I must be in bed at 8 o'clock, unless I have to stay up to care for my younger brother and sisters. I can not go to football, basketball, dances, shows, plays at school, skating, visiting, or any place. Naturally, all the kids at school are allowed to take part in school activities, so I'm left out of everything. There's no use suggesting that I speak to my parents about this; they won't listen. I can't have a teacher or my pastor talk to them, as you often suggest, since they don't go to school events and are not church members.

ANNA

✧ ✧ ✧

DESPOTIC FATHER

ANSWER: Your household apparently is entirely bossed by your father, who has more than a wee touch of tyranny in his make-up. Any fair-minded parent, no matter how strict a disciplinarian, would concede the right of a sixteen-year-old girl to participate in school activities, at least on week-ends. Parental authority as demonstrated by your father, is the type that sends children scurrying from home at the first opportunity. It's responsible for many too-young and too-hasty marriages and, deplorably, for many tragic teen-age romances. Girls who are too severely restricted at home are inclined to make the first dash for freedom, to accept the first love offered, without stopping to discriminate.

A parent's responsibility in rearing a child involves considerably more than clothing, feeding, and housing his young. His chief job is to rear a child to a sense of responsibility that will enable the youngster to tackle the problems of maturity as they come along. Naturally, if a young girl is not permitted to mingle with her contemporaries, or to engage in their available activities, she'll never learn to cope with people or problems. Overprotecting a child, whether for reasons of loving solicitude, or an ornery desire to deprive her of fun, is harmful. Teen-agers have a natural tendency to strain at disciplinary measures—the desire for larger fields to conquer is part of their development—and when this desire is aggravated by an unreasonable restraint, it is bound to lead to trouble.

Admittedly, it is a most difficult thing for parents to decide between over-laxity and over-repression. It is just one of the problems confronting parents, especially those with teen-age children. Its happy solution may mean the difference between a maladjusted and a well-balanced individual. Association of boys and girls is a teen-age need, which a wise parent will direct, rather than quell.

There's little you can do about your situation, Anna, especially since your mother has little to say in the household. Your only hope is that dad may realize the grave mistake he is making. He is retarding your development, rather than aiding it as he should.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I like two boys. They are the same age, both are polite, neat, and good-looking. I must choose between them. Which one should I take?

POPPY

ANSWER: From such meagre information, no one in this world could help you to a decision. Why not keep both of them as friends until you know them well enough to make a choice yourself?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem has been bothering me for some time and, frankly, I don't know where to begin in its solution. I'm tired all the time. In addition, I become confused easily and have no interest in anything. My husband tells me I should see a doctor, but I'm afraid to. Perhaps I am mentally ill; I don't know. I have a baby and a home to care for, but just don't seem to have the energy to do anything.

HOPEFUL

ANSWER: Go to a doctor—the best you can find—give him a complete story of how you feel and I'm sure you'll be helped. The probability is that you've never completely recovered from your baby's birth and need a thorough job of building up. Doctors have wonderful help for people suffering as you are, with treatments quickly and easily given. There's no cause for you to despair, but don't put off care any longer. A weakened body can often lead to a weakened mind, which is what you fear. Proper care now will prevent complications.
